Final Exams Loom

To Flunk Or Not To Flunk — Issue Uppermost In Collegiates' Minds

By Johnnie Dorris

To study or not to study, that is the question. Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous instructors or to take up books against a sea of subjects, and by studying end them.

Not exactly as Shakespeare said, but much more fitting to the City College campus in this "homie stretch" period before finals.

This is the time in every semester when male students begin debating the feasibility of joining the Army, and female students get married in an attempt to evade final examinations.

The problem, though, is not so easily settled. The men usually decide that joining the Army might be jumping from the frying pan into the fire, and the women do not always have a willing male. Thus life gets "tejous."

This period in any semester marks the change from abstract possibilities to cold, hard realities.

Although the word "flunk" at one time held no fear for students, it is rapidly becoming a word filled with ominous meaning.

Parents until now could be put off with a light flick of the hand and an unincriminating expression like "grades? oh, all right, I guess," but soon, alas, they must be given the horrible details.

And parents, it seems, still harbor an old-fashioned belief that a college is an institution of learning.

More and more students will be forced to forego a night-out with the ONE for a night-in with, if you'll pardon the expression, studies.

And the rest is silence, or more appropriately, hard work.

Men Behind The Curtain Raisers Take Their Bows

By Dale Butterfield

Behind the scenes at any theatrical production are unsung artists who feel the lure of the theater as strongly as the performers or the audience.

They never appear before the curtain—and seldom are recipients themselves of the recognition their work gives the production as a whole.

Speaking locally, in terms of a campus that has reached a high peak in music, drama, and light opera production, the college boasts two students, outstanding behind-the-scenes-artists. Bill Carter and Bob Stranton, light and stage men who, as agreed by music and drama instructors, perform their work with an air of professionalism.

Each is adept in either field, but Carter specializes in stage lighting, and Stranton in staging; together they form a well-balanced team.

Since their first years in Lincoln High School, when Stranton and Carter started lighting effect and stage supervision as a team, they have worked together.

"Since effect and lighting supervision is just a hobby with me," Carter says, "and there is nothing in the world I would rather do."

Stage supervision is not the main endeavor of these students. Carter is making preparation for the radio engineering field and Stranton for the publications field.

The two students, with Little Theater work as past experience, came to the college and soon after, an acute illustration of their artistic work was reflected in last spring's Vagabond King — the production which helped make the Hurley Village playground project a success.

Since this production, they have worked on stage props for College Daze; the humorous and hilarious, The Man Who Came To Dinner, starring John Lord; the cultural Opera Workshop Concert, and the just recently produced annual Christmas concert.

Directors of these past productions, when asked of the two students' ability, stated, "They go about their job with little or no hesitancy and they assume full responsibility."

Club Cavalcade . . . .

By Jim Baker

• C. C. S. F. Band: There will be a meeting during college hour today and an executive meeting is scheduled every Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

• Forum Club Meeting: Subject of tonight's discussion will be Contemporary Music at the home of Dorothy Mercer, advisor, 2231 Jackson Street. All students are invited to be there at 8 p.m.

• Hillel: The local chapter in cooperation with the chapter of S.F. State College and the Shereth Seniors will present a dance, Winter Ball, at the Shereth Israel Temple, tonight from 9 to 12 o'clock. Admission is 50 cents for members and 75 cents for non-members.

• Theta Tau: The pledge dinner-dance is slated tomorrow, January 8, at the Claremont Hotel.

• Beta Geta Gil: Will hold a joint meeting with the brother fraternity, Beta Geta Goil, next Wednesday at the home of the brotherhood's president, Seigfried Katchakold. At the meeting future marriages will be planned between members in order to retain the same pin letters.

College Thespians Try For Shakespeare Roles

By Bud Price

Cries of "Gadzooks" and "Odsblood" are being heard in the basement of the main building these days, as Shakespeare's tragic comedy, Twelfth Night, directed by Paul Ellison, goes into first rehearsals.

The play, generally considered Shakespeare's greatest comedy, is to be presented with authentic sixteenth century music.

Director Ellison states that the five-act satire will be presented for four days starting Friday night, January 21, and running through Tuesday night, January 25.

City College play-goers will recognize some of the characters from The Man Who Came To Dinner in Twelfth Night, as the curtain opens for the first act, whisking you back three hundred and fifty years to the time of Shakespeare.

Cast as Sebastian is Don Landers. Ray Rhine will portray Antonio, and Jack Hulse is in the role of Orsino.

The remainder of the characters include Bob Jones as the Sea Captain, Bill Hayes as Valentine and the Priest, Hewitt Kendall as Curio, Jack Jones as Sir Toby Belch, Dick Vreeland as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Dick Totaro as Malvolio, Dave Irvine as Fabian.

Feste, the Clown, will be played by Pat Paulsen and Charles Panlagua, Roselyn Sydell and Jo Ann Setlow will portray Olivia, Mary Cook and Mary Ann Steyart will play Viola, and Barbara Andress will be seen as Maria.

The comedy is summed up as a definite three hours of both serious and humorous entertainment.

Rose Bowl, Smos Bowl! Cal Lost, Program Cost

Because the Rose Bowl game is an important facet in West Coast athletics, the fact that a former star back at City College carried the ball twice for the Bears in this game, brings to this campus some semblance of interest.

The two-time ball carrier and flash of the '46 Ram championship team is Staten Webster. In addition to his grid chores while at the college, Mr. Webster was a sports reporter for The Guardsman.

Although this information was not given in the mammoth Rose Bowl program (selling price of one dollar), some unimportant information was contained therein.

On (roughly) page 80, of the 95-page brochure, it was disclosed that Montana, generally the doormat of the Pacific Coast Conference, is not known as the University of Montana, but as Montana State University. The grizzly state also possesses a Montana State college, which indicates that things are in a confused state.

Although the massive advertisement for the Big Nine and the Pacific Coast Conference (it also managed to sneak in the Northwestern and California rosters and starting line-ups) made very few errors, under the section donated to Cal, there appeared a slight blurb.

This Rose Bowl annual slipped in a statement that the University had 43,424 students and then went on to list the campuses. We don't like L.A either, but there is no need to omit UCLA from the roster.

• Thanks

Editor, The Guardsman:

May I extend my most grateful and sincere thanks to Roy Pasini and The Guardsman for the very kind article about me in the December 10 issue. I humbly hope that I will be able to live up to half the nice things that were said about me.

But even more important than that I'd like to extend sincere appreciation on behalf of the A Cappella Choir for the wonderful cooperation which The Guardsman staff has given us in the past, especially for the last Christmas Concert. Without your help it would be extremely difficult to reach all the students and other interested parties with information about what we consider and hope to prove very worthwhile projects.

Thank you again very much.

Tony Cuevas,
Manager, A Cappella Choir.

RAMblings . .

By Walt Roessing

BILL FISCHER, the Rams' baseball and football line mentor, acted as umpire in last Saturday's East-West battle at Kezar. The City College coach, a former All-American guard at St. Mary's, had plenty of company, though. Another Bill Fischer (no relation to the Ram coach), an All-American guard at Notre Dame during 1948, was playing for the East eleven. . . .

Tom Wilson, the college's intramural director, did a fine job acting as referee in the aforementioned East-West clash. We watched the game over a television set in a nice, dry office, while poor Wilson and Fischer had to slush through a lot of mud in Kezar Isle. . . .

Staten Webster and Jim Turner, two former Ram grid stars, played heads-up ball for California in the Rose Bowl against Northwestern. . . .

Mike O'Neil and Ken Cameron, also former local stars, helped the blue-and-gold Bears win the Pacific Coast Conference Tournament cage title at the Cow Palace last week. O'Neil is presently the leading scorer for the fast improving Cal squad. . . .

Gene Gorden, the junior varsity end who was injured at the Post Office during the holidays, is now back in college. There is now nothing wrong with Gorden, despite many false rumors that have been circulating around the campus. . . .

Al Litvinov, reserve center on the football team, has been very busy the past couple of weeks. He has been doing a fancy paint job on the fences around the West Campus. . . .

Ray Poznekoff told us the other day that he will probably be playing for the San Jose State Spartans come next grid season. . . .

Where is Ollie Matson going? Everyone would like to know the answer to that question, but we don't think even Matson has made up his mind, yet. The All-American junior college flash could help many college teams next season. Nevada and San Jose State look very inviting!

Talking about future college plans, the Payne twins, Bob and Don, are definitely heading for the University of Southern California campus after the spring semester. Sam Barry, the Trojans' coach, can certainly use these talented Ram basketball and golf stars. . . .

When the local City College football players participated in the Fog Bowl contest last Sunday, each gridder had to chip in with a little cash to help pay for the rental of the Galileo field. Thus, their amateur status was preserved. Jack Marcus, declared ineligible for the Rams during the season, was the star of the game, completing almost every pass he tossed. . . .

Lou Batmale, counsellor at this college, has been doing an outstanding job refereeing basketball games around the Bay Area this season. . . .

Cats Win In Fog Bowl

Composed of a collection of City College gridders, the Wildcats belted the Robin Hood Creamery team 19-6 in the Fog Bowl at Galileo High School Field, Sunday, January 2.

Jack Marcus, Pete Osuna, Bill Marcus, Rudy Smith, and Al Myers were the backs, while Bob Kaffke, Merv Fauss, Leo Camp, Ray Poznekoff, Al Litvinov, and Dean Beuder played in the line.

Both Soph And Faculty Hoopsters Work Hard Preparing For Traditional Tilt

By Larry Baldocchi

Sports fans or not, few will miss one of the biggest inter-collegiate conflicts of the semester, one that will feature many laughs and maybe even more surprises, when a sophomore quintet clashes with a dark-horse professor's team in a basketball game in the men's gymnasium Friday, January 21, during the college hour.

The coaching duties for the "intellectuals," (sometimes they are called professors) have been taken over by Jack "Confident" Brady.

As yet there have been no reports of the profs holding any practice sessions, probably because they figure on an easy win over the sophs.

However, there is a rumor around the college that Roy "Determined" Diederichsen, who is the varsity boxing coach for the college and one of the mainstays on the profs' squad, has been secretly working out in the men's gymnasium in the afternoons.

Maybe Coach Diederichsen is not as confident about the coming game as his Coach, "Confident" Brady.

When the profs take to the hardwoods on January 21, they will boast such stars as Diederichsen, Ralph "The Kid" Hillsman, John "Hot Shot" Selig, Grover "Tarzan" Kleumper, and Jack "Rock 'Em Up" Cuddy.

The mighty sophomores are still in the process of forming a squad, and hope that any student interested in playing in this gala affair will inform either George Capanis, coach for the soph squad, or Bernie Davis.

A few of the brave students signed up for the sophomore squad are Roy Pasini, who showed his basketball ability playing in the intramural basketball league; Dick Featherstonhaugh; Guardsman Editor Herb Levy; Walt Roessing, assistant Sports Editor, The Guardsman; Gene Ellison, and Roy Hurlbert.

Soph Coach Capanis admitted that mighty as his squad obviously is, the class still needs further support in the form of ruthless, fearless men.

EXCHANGING A FRIENDLY HANDSHAKE in mutual agreement are Block SF President Al Athanasopoulos and society sponsor, Ralph Hillsman, after discussing plans for the group's forthcoming banquet to be held Wednesday night, January 12, at the college cafeteria.

All new members will be hosted by the 20 active incumbents of the society at the semi-annual affair which gets underway at 7 o'clock.

Expected to be in attendance also as guests are President A. J. Cloud, Vice-President J. Paul Mohr, Dean Edward E. Sandys, Assistant Dean John J. Brady, Franklin C. "Doc" Sewell, Jules Fraden, and the staff of physical education instructors.

Among those to be feted will be 16 players from the third place soccer team and 35 stalwarts of the Rams' championship grid squad.

Non-active members desirous of taking in the occasion will be admitted for a fee of $2.

Ram Cagers Rout Marin And Menlo To Annex Title At Cow Palace

By Bob Quinlan

SWEEPING all opposition aside with comparative ease so far, the City College basketball squad is truly a definite threat to their NCJC conference foes this year.

City College's battering Ram cagers came out of the Cow Palace's two-year college Preliminary Tourney with everything but the cows last week.

The local quintet rolled over College of Marin and Menlo College to win the tourney title, while forward Doug Truelson and guard Don Payne, adding to City College's cassaba glory, were honored with berths on the all-tourney team. Payne also received a trophy denoting him as the meet's best defensive player.

Other members of the all-tourney team are Menlo's Brad Gleason, San Mateo's Fed Prescott, and Dave Herbert of Marin. Dallas Brock, Menlo's deadly forward, received the best offensive player trophy for being the tourney's highest scorer with 27 points.

Payne received his trophy along with Captain Jim Caldwell, who received City College's championship trophy, just before the Cal-Stanford finale.

In the championship game, last Thursday, Menlo offered the Rams little opposition. The Oaks accumulated only nine points in the first half, although they gained a more respectable score in the second half while dropping the tilt 32-57.

Coach Ralph Hillsman received a pleasant surprise in the outstanding play of reserve forward Marty Schneider. Schneider and the aforementioned Payne, both tallying ten points to share high point honors, were the game's standouts.

High scorer for the Rams in the tourney was Truelson with 22 tallies, closely followed by Kev Duggan with 16, Payne with 15, Bob Metheny with 14, and Les Brilliant with 12.

Local Boxers Prepare For Swatfest With California

City College's professor of swat, Roy Diederichsen, is hard pressed for time these days in prepping his varsity boxing squad for the approaching intercollegiate campaigns.

Commencing Tuesday, January 11, the Rams jog across the bay for an informal "hit" together with the University of California ringsters.

Hardly extended recently in routing San Francisco State's pugilists through a 13-1 tally runaway, the locals have yet to be tried to the full measure of their capabilities.

Competition for starting slots is considerably fierce, with the abundant crop of newcomers giving the holdover veterans a tussle for job security.

As it now stands, the top candidates in the punch parade are bantams Johnny Fisher and Ed Saito; lightweights Len Garcia, Al Chappuis, and promising Don Gerich; welterweights Roy Damas, Nick Cahill, and corners Josy Karp and Jerry Stern; and middleweights Joe Jackson and dependable Joe Veneacasave.

In the heftier divisions, Darrel Victor and Neil Shelnerdine vie for 165-pound laurels, while chunky Oscar Brown, light heavy, and the Samoan socker Frank Suenaga, heavyweight, hold forth in their brackets.

Gentleman Jim Corbett fought in the ring 18 years and never suffered a black eye or bloody nose.

Ski Rams Make Debut In NCAA Meet Feb. 7

City College will be represented in the Northern California Athletic Association ski classic by a new squad recently formed and known as the Ski Rams.

The snow fest will be held on Monday, February 7, on the Highway 50 ski run.

The Ski Rams first became recognized as an official college skiing group in the fall of 1945. Since that time the Ski Rams have hoped to participate in interscholastic competition.

The forthcoming February meet will be the first time that this endeavor has been realized.

All students with skiing ability and who are interested in joining the Ski Ram Squad are requested to inform Bill Johnson, president of the group, His telephone number is MOntrose 4-8266.

A ski trip has been planned for the week-end of January 15, at Spooner Summit Ski Area.

Balboans Dominate Intra Grid Finals

Although the Balboa Wildcats won the intramural grid competition, Harvey Roscelli of the Balboa Ramblers captured the scoring title with 20 points.

Rudy Smith of the Balboa Blues scored 25 points but was declared ineligible when the defending champions were disqualified.

The championship Balboa Wildcats will receive gold plated belt buckles. The Wildcat roster included Don Mallen, Frank Monte, Irv Thomas, Bob Frazier, Emmett Lynch, Rudy Berlolozzi, Roy Hurlbert, Frank Gallo, Stan Cordes, Hal Flinn, and Don Lakin. This team's goal line was never crossed during the tourney.

Second place medals go to the Falcons. Members were Tom Joez, Bob Orr, Bob Mellegre, Larry Baldocchi, Ed Roper, Bob Quinlan, Gil Morrison, Bob Gonsalves, Bob Parenti, and Phil Hallenbech.

The rags-to-riches Wildcats reached the finals by upset wins over the Ten Pins and heavily favored Ramblers, while the Falcons claimed victories over Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Ten Men of Iron, and the Balboa Blues, the latter a default win.

Ram CHOPS

By Roy Pasini

A VICTIM of the current "cold war," and therefore unable to cough up anything worthy of a full col-yum, today's effort will consist mainly of a few short sniffles.

Cold days make for much radio listening, and while pursuing the above mentioned sport, we ran into the following bit of well steeled irony.

Seems as though, at long last, the men of the mike have taken up the battle against racial prejudice. As fillers between regular network shows, plugs for racial tolerance are inserted in an effort to aid in spreading true democracy throughout these United States.

There's just one little difficulty. Each day, on most stations, you can always tune in on a program which stars the stereotype servant or member of a minority group who takes a kick in the pants as their fellow Americans can get a few cheap chuckles.

Wonder if those honey-combed airedales really know whose side they're on. . . .

HAT-IN-RING TIME

In a lighter vein, we have the local ulcer-brewing situation, which pits aspiring politicos against one another in the battle of the ballot box, or "Bring out the Joe College photos, I'm running for a student office."

No doubt these fertile grounds will soon be splattered with posters depicting a courageous office seeker, with his best face forward, and puffing away on a pipe, letting one and all know that he is prepared to smoke out his rival.

Many a coke will be spilled over the neighboring snack bars, and many a new friendship will come into being before the last vote is cast. Inspired by the recent national election, the hometowners should be in rare form this trip.

SLEEP IT OFF

Politics make strange bedfellows, but, as in past campaigns, many a candidate will wish he had stood in bed before the race comes to an end.

Pre-election dope has it that many stalwarts who didn't quite make the grade in the last running, they weren't geared high enough no doubt, will be on the comeback trail and sporting the good ole do or die spirit.

In passing, we might add that we spotted a dead seagull on the bridge the other p.m. and it brought to mind the number of dead pigeons usually found wallowing around in the midst of a fist full of campaign promises after the big push is gone and forgotten.

So bring out the buttons and bows, and jump on your favorite bandwagon, 'cause it won't be long 'fore it's votin' time again'.

Booths For Mardi Gras Near Completion

Decorations for the Associated Men Student Mardi Gras Friday, January 14, in the college auditorium, will be a novel change from all previous affairs, Pete Isola, AMS president, declared yesterday.

The frameworks for 25 permanent booths have been completed, and three are on display in the auditorium in order that campus organizations can plan their concessions according to specifications, Isola said.

This semester's Mardi Gras will not have the traditional silver ball as part of the colorful festivities. There will not be a variety show, either, but a concentration of booth attractions, the AMS president explained.

Paint Lectures Planned Here

Leading experts in paint technology will hold a series of lectures at the college during the next five months, according to a report from the paint technology department.

The first lecture, in a series of seven, will be given on Tuesday, January 18, by R. Lee Wharton of the Titanium Pigment Corporation on Exterior Paint Formulation.

Alkyn Resin Manufacture, the second lecture, will be discussed on February 3, by S. R. Greenberg of the Pacific Paint and Varnish Company. The rest of the lectures will take place on February 28, March 21, April 21, and May 11, respectively.

The lectures are scheduled for 6:30 p.m.—and dinner is to be served in the cafeteria preceding classes.

Winter Ball Opens '49 College Social Season

Opening the new year social season with dancing, the Hillel Foundation of City College and San Francisco State present their Winter Ball at the Shereth Israel Temple tonight between 9 and 12 p.m.

Music for the evening will be furnished by the "Hi-Hatters," according to Barbara Singir, president of City College Hillel.

Admission is 50 cents for members and 75 cents for non-members.

Eugene Field said of his first book, The Tribune Primer: "Like the boy with the measles, I am sorry for it in spots."

NOT ONLY DO Hotel and Restaurant Division students gain training experience by working in hotels, but also permanent positions as did Charles Highsted, a former student of the college.

Shown above is Willard E. Abel, manager of the Hotel Sir Francis Drake, and Highsted who is now Purchasing Agent for the hotel.

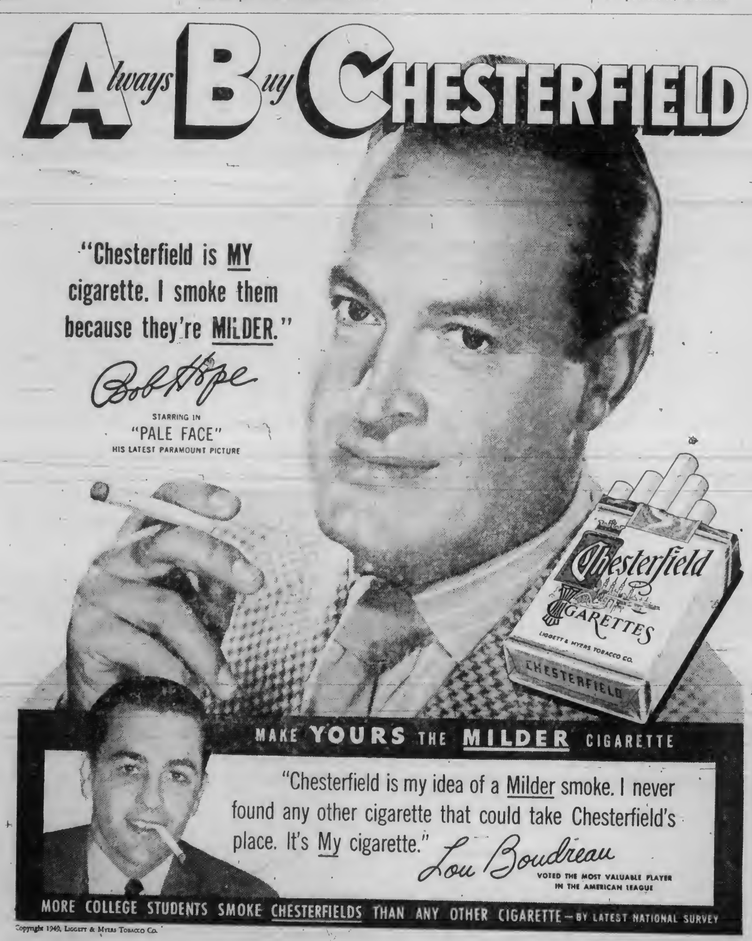
Through his training in the college division, Highsfed secured a permanent job in this downtown hotel.

Office Positions, Opera Usher Jobs, Now Available

Positions are now available for 25 men or women with experience in setting up office filing systems, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced yesterday.

Opportunity for students to hear Oscar Levant, pianist, playing a Gershwin Piano Concerto is also offered students agreeing to usher one night at the Opera House, Tuesday, January 11.

Older students are preferred for the office openings, Amori said. Hours are from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Ten typists are also needed by this company for morning and afternoon work.



Students interested in obtaining these jobs should inform Amori in Building 2, immediately.

Levant will be a guest artist on January 11, of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra conducted by Pierre Monteux. Information is obtainable in Building 2 from Dean Margaret Dougherty.

Club Advisory Board Plans Next Election

Election of Club Advisory Board officers is scheduled for the board's last meeting of this semester, Friday, January 21.

"Also, a late approval for charters of the organization will be considered at this last session," Jim Davis, CAB president, declared.

Former Traditions Discarded For Big Mardi Gras Friday

Traditions of previous semesters will be displaced Friday, January 14, by the presentation of novelty decorations and entertainment at the Associated Men Students' Mardi Gras in the auditorium, Pete Isola, AMS head, said today.

The Silver Ball and variety show, which were former traditions, have been discarded in favor of the new entertainment theme, Isola stated.

Confetti, Noise Offered

The aura of the New Orleans Mardi Gras will be injected with the presentation of a confetti and noisemaker booth. The French spirit will also be represented, Isola added, for the Hotel and Restaurant Division are presenting a pastry booth.

"The innovation of dance tallies to be given to the masquerading women will be a novelty touch that might set a precedent if it goes over as expected," the AMS president predicted.

Prizes Donated

Prizes will be awarded to the best costumed couple and individuals. The best booth will also receive an award, all of which will be donated by local landmarks, like the St. Francis Hotel.

"With this same novelty spirit prevailing," Isola declared, "the band of Stan Robinson will be imported from Oakland to be one of the first musical organizations ever to come from that city for a college function."

New Information On Vets Transfers

Because of the heavy veteran demand for information about transferring to another college, specific information was released by the Veterans Administration last week.

Veterans, who are studying under the GI Bill who want to transfer to another college at the end of the fall semester should notify the administration at least 30 days before they intend to make the change.

Needed Data Listed

To enroll at a new college, Walter McCloud, Veterans Administrator, explained, the student-veteran needs a supplemental certificate of eligibility. He also needs a statement from his present college showing that his progress there is satisfactory.

The veterans may obtain a certificate of eligibility by applying to the Veterans Administration regional office which has his record on file.

Hospital Rules Clarified

Some more first hand information which has been released recently by the Veterans Administration concerns the VA hospital.

Emergency cases get the first call; those suffering from injuries incurred in or aggravated by wartime service are next on the priority list, and those who swear they are unable to pay hospital charges for nonservice-connected disabilities or illnesses are third.

The last cases must wait until a bed is available.

Recreation Department Schedules Workshop

In cooperation with the Training Committee of the Camp Fire Girls, the recreational leadership department of City College has scheduled a one-day workshop meeting Saturday, January 15, from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m., in the student lounge.

The conference, dealing with leadership of high school groups, and led by F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of counselling here, will review the subject of vocational guidance, community service and social recreation. An evening of recreation will follow the dinner and discussion.

Auditions For Spring Operas Start Today

Auditions for spring semester opera productions begin today in the auditorium.

Time for auditions is set at 3 p.m. daily through next Tuesday, January 18, Directors Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler said.

Operas to be produced are The Marriage of Figaro, by Mozart, and Naughty Marietta, by Victor Herbert.

Students trying out for singing parts were requested by Miss Badger to bring their own songs for their audition.

Alumni Association Opens Recruiting

The charter of the City College of San Francisco Alumni Association will be open to all graduates and former students as soon as articles of incorporation are filed in Sacramento for the organization, according to a statement made last Tuesday by Dr. Richard E. Kelley, chairman.

Only life membership in the association will entitle an alumnus to the distinction of charter membership, Dr. Kelley added.

Joseph A. Amori, placement director for the college, said, "Membership in the Alumni Association of the college is a continuation of one's participation in the life of the community after graduating from college."

Frank Ferguson, student president, in a statement to the press, stated, "I am joining the Alumni Association because it helps a person later in life in many substantial ways. Many of my friends are joining, and I would like to have some way of keeping in contact with them. The Alumni Association provides that contact."

Application for membership in any of the five classifications, charter life, subscriber, active, faculty, and honorary, may be made by members of the February class through Jack Hagan, liaison officer for the Alumni Association.

Edwin Fredinni, City College alumnus, was voted a member of the executive committee of the Alumni Association at a meeting held on the campus last Tuesday. He is now acting as attorney for the organization.

JACK HAGAN who at alumni liaison officer, has been instrumental in organizing the college Alumni Association.

Drama Department To Present Comedy, 'Twelfth Night'

Shakespeare's great tragicomedy, Twelfth Night, directed by Paul Ellison, will be ready for presentation to City College students by the drama department starting Friday, January 21.

The plot deals with the adventures of a girl who goes about as a wedding as a man and falls in love with the Duke she, as a lackey, serves. The Duke, in turn, is in love with a rich woman named Olivia who happens to be in love with Cesario, or rather Viola, who is masquerading as a man.

In the role of Orsino, the Duke will be Jack Hulse, while Mary Cook and Mary Ann Stewart will portray Viola. Cast in the role of Olivia are Rosalyn Sydell and Ju Ann Setlow.

The play, said to be Shakespeare's greatest comedy, has a great similarity to an Italian production written about the same time, titled Gl' Ingannati, or the cheated, and it would seem that Shakespeare was not entirely averse to borrowing plots from stories by other authors.

Gold Footballs To Be Presented To Team

Gold footballs, donated by Mark Moeller, manager of the Student Store, will be presented to the players and coaches of the championship City College football team at the semi-annual Block Sorority dinner, Frank Ferguson, Associated Student president, said today.

The footballs are gold plated with the letters "S. F." raised in red and white. The name of the receiver and, "Conference Champion, '48" are engraved on the award.

Educators Convention Set For San Francisco

When the national convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges meets at San Francisco, February 23 to 26, City College will be represented on important committees by four members of the faculty.

Led by Dr. A. J. Cloud, college president, they are Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president; Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president; and Thomas Porter, Faculty Association president.

Dr. Cloud will be playing a dual role as chairman of the general state committee and of the banquet committee.

Luckmann, serving as chairman of the hospitality committee, will welcome the delegates from all "48" and provide for their needs and entertainment.

The general theme of the convention will be, "Education—The Creator of New Frontiers." This theme was adopted in keeping with the pioneer spirit prevalent as California celebrates the centennial of "The days of old, the days of gold, the days of '49."

Meeting Called For Campus Presidents

A president's meeting of all the campus organizations and newly elected officers will be held Tuesday night, January 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the student lounge, Bea Groger, vice-president of the Associated Students, announced yesterday.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss the activity calendar for the coming semester.

Social Committee members have decided to stick to their resolution of last semester to give organizations who didn't have a social calendar date, first choice after Associated Student dates have been filled.

Student Elections Begin Next Week

WALT McRAE is not only leader of the college band, but is a member of the Student Council and Chairman of the Election Committee.

Three Candidates Run For Presidency

With only the Associated Women Student President and Yell Leader offices going unopposed, candidate's petition filing closed last Friday at 3 p.m.

Information released by Walt McCrae, election committee head, disclosed that Barbara McBride and Larry Weber will be automatically elected AWS President and Yell Leader, respectively.

McCrae further stated that George Capanis, James Fernhoff and Pete Isola are candidates for Associated Student President, while Ben Groger and Carrine Lambert are running for Vice-President.

The election committe chairm. said that the polls will be open in the Student Lounge on Wednesday, January 19, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and on Thursday, January 20, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In the race for Associated Men Student president, Dale Fritz will be opposing Harry Williams.

Candidates running for Sophomore Council are as follows: Al Abramson, Andrew Butler, Olivia Clement, Grace Ellison, Jack Gallisdorfer, Theodore Glasnow, Kurt Levi, Orville Luster, William MacGarn, Teddie Malavazos, Jeanne Marsh, John Mix, Wilbur Renke, and Richard Wunderlich.

Running for positions in the Freshman Council are Gloria Boritz, John Deignan, Shirley Maritzen, Elmer McGrau, Norman Reger, William Rosaia, Helene Steuer, Helen Stoker, and Gardner Strong.

The election committee head urged all candidates to report to the auditorium at 9:40, Friday, January 14.

In order to keep the election as fair as possible a rigid set of campaign rules have been adopted according to McCrae.

Election Rally Set For College Hour

Fervent election campaign will hit their peak next Friday, January 14, when an election rally will be held in the auditorium during college hour starting at 10:40 a.m.

Although the campaigns will continue through Wednesday, January 19 it will be the only chance for students to hear presidential and vice-presidential candidates in formal messages to the students.

In a statement released by Walt McRae, early yesterday morning, the election chairman said that the candidates for the executive offices of the college will be allotted a certain amount of time to make their speeches.

McRae further disclosed that candidates for the other college offices will be introduced to the students.

To give the rally a convention flavor, McRae urged that the band may be present.

Opera House Needs Ushers For Symphony

Ushering opportunities at the Opera House will enable college students to hear the San Francisco Symphony, conducted by Pierre Monteux, during its current season, according to Margaret Doucherty, dean of women.

Featured as tonight's guest artist, Oscar Levant, pianist, will play Gershwin's Piano Concerto.

Other guest artists include Jeanette MacDonald, who will appear with the Symphony Thursday, January 13.

Soph Tux, Formal Time January 29

It's tux and formal time again as the Sophomore Class presents its semi-annual Soph Formal Saturday, January 29, at Oakland Scottish Rite Auditorium, between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m.

Climax of the royal dance will be the coronation of the winning King and Queen couple, who will receive personal loving cups from the Sophomore Class.

Other tokens of royalty given to the victorious couple are perpetual trophies presented by Beta Tau and Theta Tau.

Jackson Terry and Orchestra from Oakland will feature an evening of musical entertainment.

Bids for the event are $1.80 per couple and went on sale yesterday at the student bank, according to Dick Featherstonhaugh, Sophomore class president.

Although the semi-annual event is tabbed "formal," tuxedos or dark suits will be in order for men, while the ladies should appear in formals. Corsages will be proper also.

Novel Plan Offered For Elections

By Arnold Solkov

Instead of running the, you should pardon the expression, fraternities against the student league for the various campus plums, why not pit the student store-ites against the habitues of the local coke parlor during the coming election fracas?

Can you not visualize it now? A member of the student store party is making his campaign speech.

"I pledge bigger and better card games for my constituents. I pledge bigger and better booths for my bigger and better card games for my bigger and better followers. Free cokes and liberty for all."

Now the fountainers can come back with a wing to their temple of culture.

"We will promise that the signs saying 'no card playing' will be removed and substitute for them banners on the wall saying, 'Free decks for all.' A louder juke box will be installed to replace that wind-up victrola that now stands in the corner. It will hold the place of central worship so that all cult members will have equal opportunity to pay homage to it."

An added incentive to garner the votes could be the promise that all profits taken in by the oracle of fountainphi will be put into a central kitty for the benefit of all party members.

(An eaves that was dropped in the fountain that vitally concerns the outcome of the election was picked: "I can't run for any office," the young man said, "I don't look good with a pipe in my mouth."

Now if the fountainaires should happen to win the election, perhaps the meetings of next semester's student council will be held in an unobtrusive corner of the Fountain 21A and 21B lab.

A discarded coffee cup would probably replace the walnut and gold gavel now in use. Instead of calling the meeting to order, the new pres. could order coffee for all.

Ah! the ramifications of such an election, hypothetical as it may seem, are devastating!

Allons Enfants de la Patrie; Stop Colds, Have Heat; Everyone Happy?

MATCHING the frigidity of the weather, indoors and out, with a certain cool attitude toward the mogul in charge of issuing sheets and pillow cases, the barracks dwellers of late have been complaining somewhat of the icicles hanging from the ceiling of their garrets.

Using terminology, more or less exclusively reserved for members of the armed forces, or in this case former members of the armed forces, the boys in the campus dwellings have a somewhat icy feeling toward the barracks officer.

During the present temperature drop, a "cold" war has been raging between the second lieutenant and his men. The not-so-privates living on the campus seem to have a legitimate gripe, when they claim that their rooms get mighty cold at night. With the meteorological temperatures falling into the 30's around midnight, and the temperatures of the barracks dwellers rising at the same time, the boys' chief complaint is that the heat is turned off at approximately 10 p.m. nightly.

Furthermore, the rattling of the steam pipes that generally start their musical whirl in the mornings, of late, have not been playing their noisy, yet welcome tune.

When the privates talk to the second lieutenant about such things, the second lieutenant in turn talks in general, and generally nothing is done about the situation.

Not to mention the stopped up sinks and the quick switch to ice water in the showers around 9:30, something should at least be done to have heat in the barracks during the night.

We are not trying to raise the cudgel of disdain against the people who control the destinies of the men who live in the barracks.

What we are trying to do is, por la gracia de Dios, to eliminate the coughing and the consequent germ dispensing of the barracks boys, when they come into The Guardsman and proceed to sneeze on our shoulders.

Accentuate The Positive

By Nancy Loughlin

YOU think that you have it bad? Then take the case of one man-about-the-college . . . you're not the only character around here who isn't appreciated.

Hewitt Kendall, a drama major, has dramatic aspirations that are rapidly being nipped in the bud . . . for instance, his first big role consisted of one line in the Vagabond King show . . . to wit, "You mean the Burgundians are going to pay us tonight?"

His second dramatic venture, in The Man Who Came to Dinner, was "Shall I put the radio here, Miss Cutler?"

The latest in this story of rapid rise to fame is that Hewitt Kendall has now declined, with thanks, his third role — sensational as it was—"Shall we hunt, my lord?" in Twelfth Night . . . the strain of rehearsals and script-memorizing has been too much for the lad.

Coming events . . . incidentally, the January 21st presentation of Twelfth Night will be graced with a stage in Room 28, the basement spot for the little-theater-off-Phelan Avenue . . .

This radical innovation eliminates the necessity of Sir Toby Belch, Sebastian, the Duke, and other characters making their entrances and exits through the audience, although some play-goers liked that personal touch of having the actors in their laps.

Weather forecast . . . colder 'n usual days ahead . . . characters in these h'yar parts suggesting that the higher authorities artificially freeze over the west campus parking lot for ice-skating, so they can make like the Mallards in Golden Gate Park.

The crowds in the student fountain these days don't mind the frost . . . they claim that they get their warmth from the millions of bodies pressed close together around the counter.

Besides, the local climate now matches the frosty faces of the coffee-dispensers who take their coins.

For real warmth, anyone can make the trek over to the student store, where a real cheery atmosphere and an assemblage of pinned and inter-pinned brothers and sisters prevail.

Added attractions in the West Campus . . . a certain football star who strolls daily into The Guardsman office to see if there aren't any new pics of him . . . through cajoling of The Guardsman photographer, he has nosed out Ollie Matson for top spot in the office's gallery of fame.

Thrills, Chills, Fill The Ills On Campus Hills

By Arnold Solkov

Fur-lined parkas and other assorted foul-weather gear were brought out of moth balls this week to do service aganst the foulest weather the silver-capped campus has experienced in its eight years of contributing to culture.

In a recent poll taken at the silver pole, students expressed their opinion concerning the sudden chill.

Premonition of Spring?

One khaki-and-tee-shirt-clad extrovert claimed that the present state of weather is merely the premonition of spring.

"Foul weather? That's for the birds. Why, where I come from, it gets so cold that when a person speaks, you have to warm his words over a heater to hear what he had to say," the young man exclaimed.

"One winter the heater broke down," he continued. "We collected the various conversations in an oil drum and saved it for spring. When the thaw came, it turned out to be the noisiest spring you ever heard."

Not only is the temperature down, but outside the building it is even windier than inside. One student was seen coming down the hill leaning into the wind at a good 45-degree angle.

Direction Lost

This might not seem unusual, but when approached for a statement concerning the big blow, the student remarked that he was not going to the west campus, but was attempting to gain entrance to the main building.

It seemed that the combined efforts of the overly ambitious breeze and the silver-plated pole conversations that came through the doors kept him from making the steep climb.

(A late bulletin from a college official stated that in an effort to combat the hurricane-like winds that have been frequenting the campus, a ski lift will be installed on the hill to enable students to reach their classes on time.)

POOLS OF WATER surrounding Pete Isola and assistant Ted Glasnow are tears shed by those charming little creatures known as Schmoos. It appears that Schmoos have been subsisting on the remains of old Mardi Gras booths and until now have been making a good living. Read the adjoining story to find out the cause of the sorrow.

Schmoos Declare Modern Designed Booths Illegal

By Johnnie Dorris

On the land, on the sea and at City College, it's modern design by a vote of two to one, and if you don't believe it, go out and count the votes yourself.

This is the decision reached by a well known group of discredited census takers, who just completed a survey of Schmooville, which is located in a gopher-hole directly in back of Hurley Village.

Schmoos View Booths

It seems that the Schmoovillers have been making nightly sojourns to the west campus auditorium to inspect the progress of the week-old construction of Mardi Gras booths, which will be used in the forthcoming gala extravaganza.

This fact alone would not have made the gopher-hole occupants reason that City College has gone in for modern design, because it has for many moons now been their custom to keep semi-yearly check on Mardi Gras booth construction.

The booths, of which the tasty, edible people heard there will be 25, are being prefabricated in order to save the twice yearly expense of buying new lumber.

Schmoos Boo Booths

This was a helly blow to the Schmoos, who taste like chicken when fried, as their chief diet has been discarded Mardi Gras booth, but who now fear they will have to subsist on east-away test papers.

Although the booths, which come in two types, one with counter and one without, are being sponsored by local organizations, the little people strongly insist that Pete Isola, Associated Men Student president, is responsible for the plight.

Isola, they claim, was instrumental in obtaining the new type booths, this robbing the Schmoos of Christmas dinner. Their Christmas it seems comes in February.

Schmoos Banished

Although the Schmoos attend pre-Mardi Gras activities with enthusiasm, they will not be present next Friday night because of an accident last year.

It seems that at the first dance they attended, several of their number were stepped on and crushed by enthusiastic dancers, and as a result the dance floor became goocy and sticky, making it hard to dance on and necessitating their banishment.

The present survey was completed under somewhat difficult circumstances because of the recently adopted habit of students eating Schmoos in order to save lunch money.

• Heat Wanted

Editor, The Guardsman:

What's the story on turning off the heat in the barracks around 10 o'clock at night? For people who don't live there it may be a joke, but to us dwellers, it gets mighty cold.

The other night the temperature at 11:30 registered 37 degrees outside the building and it was probably just as cold inside.

I don't know who runs the works around here, or who's to blame for making the barracks seem like an ice-box, but I wish something would be done.

There's little or no privacy the way it is now, so how about a little heat just for laughs?

I wish to address this letter to the editor-in-chief, Herbert Wenvy, or Levy, I don't know which.

Anyway, Mr. Editor, why do you have to indulge in the frivolous fashion of the Hearstish papers? Specifically, I am referring to your, pardon the expression, editorials—in appearance, that is.

Why do you have to torment the readers with that heavy, unnecessary, black, inky letter type? . . .

Is it really necessary? Hum-m-m?

Long hair is now the fashionable style sported by half a dozen males around this campus —harking back to the days of Shakespeare.

For the past few weeks, hopeful members of the opposite sex have been waiting somewhat impatiently for at least one of these handsome males to visit his neighborhood barber shop.

Despite anguished pleas from pretty City College ladies, their long-haired friends will not part with a dollar twenty-five for a badly needed hair cut.

The ladies' cries would not be so pathetic if only the hair atop these males' heads was in a halfway neat condition.

No matter how much the co-eds would like to blame the males for their seemingly laziness or cheapness to have their hair cut, these fellows are not to blame. In fact, the City College drama department deserves all blame and complaints.

With the production of Twelfth Night coming January 21, would Shakespeare be very happy to see the players with old-fashioned short hair?

Ram Cagers Win Modesto Tournament By Edging Pirates In Final Game 47-45; Truelsen, B. Payne On All-Tourney Five

Coach Ralph Hillsman's basketball quintet journeyed to the Eleventh Annual Modesto Junior College Tournament as favorites to take championship laurels, and did live up to their expectations by edging Modesto Junior College in the final game last Saturday night, 47-45.

The game being an exciting one, the Pirates' over-anxious Lee Wade fouled Kev Duggin in the last crucial seconds allowing Duggin to make his two winning charity tosses.

One of the main reasons for the Rams' success was their outstanding record achieved on the free throw line, making 15 out of 16 attempts.

The game was a see-saw battle from the start, until Modesto took a 24-19 lead a few minutes before the half ended.

Substitute Bob Mingee and Dud "Buckets" Truelsen paced the Rams to their first victory over San Benito J. C. of Hollister 70-31 by scoring 26 digits between them. Their next encounter found the red and white squad smothering Visalia J. C. 59-46. In the semi-finals the favored locals emerged victors over Long Beach City College 66-51.

The All-Tourney five included Carl Youngstrom, Grant Tech; Dud Truelsen, CCSF; Lee Wade, Modesto; Bob Payne, CCSF; John O'Boyle, Modesto.

Sigmund Stern Grove Site Of WAA Banquet

Sigmund Stern Grove will be the setting for the Women's Athletic Association banquet to be held this Thursday at 6:30 p.m., Jean Slater, vice-president, announced yesterday.

Everyone is welcome to the affair, and tickets for 75 cents each may be purchased from any WAA member, Miss Slater added.

Profs Sure Of Win; Sophs Practice

By Larry Baldocchi

With the date for the colorful Soph-Faculty game drawing closer, both teams are rapidly rounding into shape in order to be ready when the whistle blows to begin the tilt on Friday, January 21, in the men's gymnasium.

A little item that should be of interest to the profs was uncovered yesterday. The sophs held a secret practice last Friday to determine what kind of offense and defense they will use against the "aging profs."

All the instructors of the physical education department have more than shown their interest in the coming game by signing up to play 100 per cent.

Along with these athletes will be such players as Bill "Hips" Fischer, Lou "Econ" Batmale, and Harry "Busy" Buttimer. With such stars as these, the profs are more than confident that they will win over the softie sophs.

Varsity Track Signup To Be Held January 19

Grover Klemmer, newly installed City College track coach, announced yesterday that an informal get-together for all track prospects will be held in the men's gymnasium Wednesday, January 19, at 3:30 p.m.

No official sign-up will be held until next semester, Klemmer said.

Expected to pace the Ram cindermen in the coming season are such stalwarts as Bill Wrightson, hurdler; Dave Ramos, half miler and miler; Joe Greggans, sprinter; Owen Moore, 440 man; Mel Knight, pole vaulter; Bill Walti, high jumper; and Ollie Matson, versatile trackman.

TURNING out for the Faculty basketball team in the forthcoming tilt with the Sophomores is none other than John "Hot Shot" Selig, political science professor on the campus.

We offer a brief sketch of this outstanding cage player, using facts taken from an application that he turned in to Sophomore Coach George Caponis, who is also taking care of the game details.

Selig is a massive six foot three inches of man, and he tips the scales at a hefty 132½ pounds, it says here.

His height may well prove a great advantage to the old man of the Faculty in the January 21 contest in the men's gymnasium.

Vassar Star

The well-liked professor classified his experience as playing three years for the sparkling Vassar cage team.

And what a deadly "eye" Selig has in the casaba sport! His offensive talents are unbelievable, averaging a fantastic one point per encounter. This is where is obtained his nickname of "Hot Shot."

Sophomores beware! If Selig maintains his point average in the coming affair, the Faculty may well go on a sparkling scoring spree.

Faculty Confident

We took a short trip down to the men's gymnasium last week and asked the coaches who would win the forthcoming Sophomore contest.

The coaches, Ralph Hillsman, known as the "kid," Roy "killer" Diederichsen, and Tom Wilson, were confident of a landslide victory for the team with the height, weight, experience, age, and brawn advantages. The latter descriptions are to be identified with the Faculty.

Volleyball Today

Four Balboa Alumni AC teams, Gammi Phi Ypsilon, and the Falcons, open the first round of the intramural volleyball tournament today. The tourney will be run on a round robin basis with games scheduled Tuesdays and Thursdays at 4 p.m.

In another intramural front, Andy Divodi and Bob Frazier downed Don Mallen and Emmett Lynch for the college badminton championship.

Ram Pugilists Face Bears; Golden Gloves Tourney Set

From here on in, it's strictly business for City College's varsity boxing squad.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's anxious lads embark on a hardy week of fisticuffing with the University of California scrappers, the first objective at Berkeley this afternoon.

WITH CONFIDENCE IN HIS EYES: "Roy Damas stands ready for any opponent he has to meet. Damas is a member of Coach Diederichsen's varsity boxing squad.

Some 20 battlers will make the jaunt to the lair of the Golden Bears, intent on repeating last year's convincing 10-3 lacing handed the transbay belters.

State Bouts Friday

Friday night, the Rams entertain San Francisco State in a return fight-fest in the men's gymnasium. Previously the locals drubbed their Gator rivals, copping all but one match in fourteen.

Then, as an added climax, resident ring addicts will be treated to the college's annual Golden Gloves spectacle to be offered for campus consumption on Monday, January 17.

Eleven Bouts on Card

Eleven division bouts will docket the evening's card.

Tentatively scheduled to swap blows for the coveted awards are pocket size Ed Sato vs. veteran Johnny Fisher, 122; Dick Spargo vs. southpaw Len Garein, 126; Wayne Bartlett vs. Bob Pierson, 11, the 130-pound duel; crafty campaigner Roy Damas against an unnamed opponent; and fast rising Don Gerich vs. Jerry Stern, in the 140-pound class.

Joey Karp faces toughies Nick Cantull, in their 115-pound clash; Joe Vcauesasaic tackles comer Larry Schubert, 150; Joe Jackson opposes Bud Taylor, 155; Darrel Victor, 165, vies against an undecided foe; Dean Bender tangles with chunky Oscar Brown, 175; while rated Frank Sueuga and towering Jim O'Hare will contest heavyweight honors.

Baseball Candidates In Pre-Season Signup

Baseball mentor Bill Fischer greeted an enthusiastic turnout of some 60 candidates for this spring's varsity nine last week in a special sign-up meeting.

Eligibility rules were fully discussed by Fischer, who indicated that initial practice sessions will begin for his aspiring batterymen, pitchers and catchers, starting Monday, January 17.

Regular squad workout, including infielders and outfielders, will not get underway until early next semester, Fischer said.

Among the veterans returning from last year's ball club which finished third behind San Mateo and Santa Rosa, is hard slugging first baseman Ray White, whose consistent sticking was instrumental in the locals' '48 loop title race.

City College's first league tussle is against the Modesto Pirates in the valley city on March 19.

Ram CHOPS

By Roy Pasini

ONCE again the student lounge on the west campus has felt the wrath of local administrators, and once again the blame can be laid directly upon the shoulders of the students who frequent said lounge.

Recently, a week ago yesterday to be exact, the lounge was closed for a full day because ". . . for the last month or so the lounge as a lounge has been spoiled by students moving chairs from tables to a corner and holding sort of a hilarious convention, sitting on tables, throwing paper and cigarette butts, etc., on the floor . . ."

Although we feel that the phraseology used in the above edict is not necessarily in keeping with the dignity of the anonymous administrator who issued it, the thought conveyed is very apparent.

Last semester, around April 9, similar action was taken by Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, ". . . in a direct move designed to curb student abuse of the student lounge . . ." and the place was void of loungers for one week.

Last week, probably because of the nippy weather prevailing on the outside, the one-day ban was put into effect, thereby allowing time for a whole scale clean-up session which left the establishment in the best of condition again.

NOTE THE NOTICE

Notices were posted, and promptly "revised" by some of the more mature loungelites, asking one and all to cooperate and actively participate in the move to make the room ". . . a place where one may sit with two or three companions and do some school work and at the same time indulge in a smoke."

In an attempt to make the lounge an integral part of the campus, plaques depicting the emblem of the college's organizations were scheduled to be hung on the walls of the room last Friday.

The plaques, made by each organization, are the result of an idea born in the mind of Dean Edward Sandys with the leg work for the project being handled by Councilman George Capanis and CAB head Jim Davis.

DON'T YOU DARE

In order to aid in keeping the lounge in a semi-respectable state, we are listing the five don'ts which appear on the aforementioned notice.

DO NOT:

1. Throw paper, etc., on the floor.
2. Move chairs from the tables.
3. Disturb people who wish to read and study.
4. Wear a hat in the lounge; this shows disrespect. (This one threw us for a loss but that's what the man said.)
5. Eat lunch in the lounge—use the cafeteria for this purpose.

The missive ended with "please do keep it a place of which to be proud; where guests at the college can wait for students and feel at ease and can look with pride upon the courteous conduct of the students."

By the way, as a reward for reading this far, let us be the first to tell you that free samples of Camel cigarettes will be given to AS cardholders this Friday in the student lounge and the lobby of the main building.

Public Address System Control Viewed By Council

The burning question of who will control the future use of the Associated Student owned public address system whose "headquarters" are the west gate guard-shack, was the main topic of conversation at Thursday's Student Council meeting.

Rally Commissioner Bill Hansen wanted the public address system under the supervision of future rally committees. In this way, all publicity and campus advertising would have a central location.

"I do not want the opinion circulated that there will be discrimination if the rally committee runs the system," Hansen said. "Every one who has a legitimate right to air plugs over the speaker will have equal opportunity to do so."

The only qualifications limiting use are that the aired ads must contribute to the general welfare and benefit of the college, and that good taste must be employed at all times.

Also, no personal campaign advertising will be allowed over the Associated Student system. The election in general may be pushed, however.

Educators Use Films To Instruct Students

Films seen by college students here are carefully chosen from an organized library for their educational and interest value by Madison Devlin, director of Audio Visional Aids, said yesterday.

Devlin explained that the Audio Vision Department has taken the films for the different courses and centralized them so that the desired film can be easily found.

Film is arranged in rows and marked according to the topic of the movie and the course for which it is to be shown.

The most widely used films are those used in the sciences, English, speech and other major courses.

Devlin has also planned showing several movies such as Green Harvest, a color film of lumbering in the northwest, scheduled for Friday, January 14, and the Fifth Winter Olympiad, a film to be shown through the courtesy of the Standard Oil Company on Friday, January 21.

Employee Problems Discussion Topic For Retail Dinner

Progress on the proposed Earn-As-You-Learn program increased in tempo today, as business department personnel prepared for the Union-Employer-College dinner, tentatively scheduled, February 22, at the Elks Club.

Round table discussion will involve the adopting of a program whereby students may obtain college credit for part time retailing work at professional firms.

Also planned for major discussion is the issue, Problems of New Employees, which concerns adjusting the student to his working environment in a congenial, businesslike manner.

Opens In Spring

The new plan will be officially effected at the college during the spring semester.

Among the 30 invited guests will be Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools; the college administration, Sam Ziegler, retailing instructor, and James Hughes, business department head, who will act as chairman.

Reaction Favorable

Ziegler stated that annual inventory of business establishments had caused postponement of an early January dinner to the late February date.

"Student reaction has been extremely favorable," he said, "and we're expecting our initial semester to be a great success."

Distributive Educator Representatives voiced the opinion recently that work experience is the most effective way of teaching merchandising — especially in salesmanship.

Surprise Chorus Concert Scheduled January 18

Surprise musical event of this semester will be a concert given by the men's and women's choruses, Tuesday, January 18, at 8 p.m., in the west campus auditorium, the chorus directors announced yesterday.

The men's choral group, composed of 20 members, is directed by Harold Cunningham, and Gertrude Norgard directs the 18 members of the women's group.

Music numbers will be presented in a light, gay mood instead of in a formal concert manner. Traditional number to be sung by the men's chorus will be Friendship. Other selections include, When Good Men Get Together, By the Sea, and Oh Peaceful Day.

The melody, Carol of Flowers, previously presented in the Christmas concert, will be sung by David Arvilagn.

Officers of the women's chorus for this semester are Jacqueline Deasy, president; Eileen Scott, vice-president; and Nancy Durkee, secretary.

Men's chorus officers include Ben Cheek, president; Tony Cuevas, vice-president; and Gene Dupignac, secretary.

National Poetry Honors Won By Two Students

Originality brought honor to two City College students, Michael Berg and David Sheldon, recently.

The Annual Anthology of College Poetry accepted Sea Gulls, by Berg, and Companion, by Sheldon, for publication in this yearly publication.

The Anthology is a compilation of the finest poetry written by the college men and women of America, representing every section of the country.

Air Corps Program To Be Explained Here

Captain William A. Ham of the United States Air Force will be located in the student lounge on the west campus on Monday and Tuesday, January 24 and 25, in an effort to interest City College men in the advantages of the Air Corps Aviation Cadet-Pilot training program.

Incentive that the Air Corps will provide for interested students is the 12-month training program which leads to a pilot's rating and a commission in the Air Force.

Qualifications for training include good physical condition, age between 20 and 25, and the meeting of the educational requirements.

Ham said that the classes will commence on March 1, July 1, and October 15 of each year.

Love Again Musical On Stage February 18

Love Again, the musical production presented by the Talent Placement Bureau, has been set for Friday, February 18, Stanley Sadler, set designer, announced.

The two-hour show, an original musical, has as its theme song, Can It Be Love Again? from which the title was taken.

The program features such dances as A Devil Dance, A Doll Dance, a two-act jungle number along with a jam session.

Mardi Gras Set For Auditorium Tonight

Election Campaign Hits Peak At Candidates' Rally Today

By Al Gamma

Election campaigns will hit their fastest tempo today when an election rally, sparked by the Ram band, takes place in the auditorium during college hour, 10:40 a.m.

This rally will afford the students an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the candidates running for offices.

All candidates will be introduced by Election Chairman Walt McRae, at this time, and those running for the Associated Student Presidency and Vice-Presidency will make short speeches explaining their platforms.

A list of candidates released by the Election Committee reveals that George Capanis, James Fernhoff, and Pete Isola are Associated Student President hopefuls, while Ben Groger and Corinne Lambert are running for Vice-President.

AMS Has Fritz vs. Williams

Dale Fritz will be opposed by Harry Williams for Associated Men Student President.

Barbara McBride and Larry Weber will be automatically elected Associated Women President and Yell Leader, respectively, because of a lack of opposition.

14 Sophs In Race

Candidates running for Sophomore Council are as follows: Al Abramson, Andrew Butler, Bernice Clement, Gene Ellison, Jack Gallisdorfer, Theodore Glasnow, Kurt Levi, Orville Luster, William MacGurn, Tedde Malavazos, Jeanne Marsh, John Mix, Wilbur Renke, and Dick Wunderlich.

In the race for the Freshman Council are Gloria Boritz, John Deignan, Shirley Maritzen, Elmer McGrau, Norman Reger, William Rosaia, Helene Steuer, Helen Stoker, and Gardner Strong.

The election committee set the time for voting at 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, January 19, and 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday, January 20.

Yearbook Sale To Begin On Monday

Sales of the college yearbook, Ram-Pages, will begin on Monday, January 17, according to Bob McVey, editor.

Ten salesmen will circulate about the campus, enabling any student who is desirous of purchasing a book to reserve his copy early, as the number of copies to be published is limited to two thousand.

The price is $2.50 with an Associated Student card and $5.00 without. A mailing service charge of 50 cents has been established for the convenience of February graduates.

Ram-Pages, designed by Stan Sadler, student-artist, is to consist of more than 200 pages, containing sections of colored photographs and drawings and carrying no advertising. All campus activities will be represented in the book, McVey said.

Today is the last day that pictures of students graduating in January or June are being taken. Sophomores who have not yet been photographed and anticipate graduation are urged to come to Building 2, Room B, before 3 p.m. this afternoon.

XGI Election Debates Set For January 18

Semi-annual election debates of the XGI Society will be held Tuesday, January 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the student lounge, Jim Davis, society member, announced yesterday.

All city college students are invited to attend, and it should be of particular interest to those seeking offices next semester, Davis added.

Candidates will be able to ask questions from the floor following the debate.

Leadership Is Topic Of Meeting Tomorrow

A one-day workshop meeting will be held tomorrow, Saturday, in the student lounge on the subject of leadership of high school groups.

In cooperation with the Training Committee of the Camp Fire Girls, the recreational leadership department of the college, led by Jules Fraden, and Grant Marsh, coordinator of counseling, will meet from 2 to 10 p.m.

The conference will review vocational guidance, community service and social recreation.

A dinner and an evening of social recreation will follow.

NON-COSTUMED STUDENTS may find themselves in the "clink" or Kangaroo Court at the Mardi Gras tonight by their failure to appear in costume. Lon Loudermilk poses above as the offender behind bars, while "Judge" John Pifer metes out justice, and Dolores Dirito pays the bail.

Shakespeare's Comedy Ready For Next Friday

The mythical town of Illyria is the scene of action in the forthcoming Shakespearean tragic comedy, Twelfth Night, directed by Pete Ellison.

The five-act double cast satire, reputedly one of Shakespeare's greatest, is to be presented in Room 28, starting Friday, January 21.

Viola, the heroine and central character of the play, played by Mary Cook or Mary Ann Stewart, causes much "ado," to coin a Shakespearean phrase, when she dresses in male attire and, using the name Cesario, serves Orsino, Duke of Illyria, portrayed by Jack Hulse.

Sebastian, Viola's twin brother, ably acted by Don Landers, meanwhile returns from a sea voyage after being shipwrecked and is generally mistreated by various characters in the story.

Olivia, played by Rosalyn Mincer or Jo Ann Setlow, who has been confused by Viola's masquerade as Cesario, is a trifle chagrined when she finds out the truth, and therefore starts to reciprocate the love offered by Orsino.

Viola, in love with Orsino also, wins her man finally, and Shakespeare's comedy of errors comes to a climax.

Chorus Concert Is Postponed To March

Because of pressure of other activities, the men's and women's chorus concert slated for Tuesday, January 18, is postponed until next semester, according to Harold Cunningham and Gertrude Norgard, chorus directors.

The concert, now scheduled for March, will present light music numbers instead of the formal concert type, Cunningham said.

Student Lounge To Be Reorganized

Drastic reorganization hit the student lounge in Building 2 on the west campus recently when careless students forced a three-point program into immediate effect.

The program, created by the administration heads, is designed to reinstate the lounge to its former capacity as a place for quiet visiting and study.

Released by Dean Edward Sandys the program consists of the following:

1. Chairs and tables are not to be moved.
2. No congregating of large groups.
3. Lunches are not to be eaten in the lounge.

Sandys also said that members of the administrative staff will police the lounge from time to time to see that the new regulations are enforced.

For students who bring their own lunches, Sandys disclosed that the cafeteria will be open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. They will be under no obligation to buy their lunches in the cafeteria, Sandys added.

The administration closed the lounge Monday, January 3, for violations of common courtesy by students.

(The lounge activities also met the disapproval of the administration last semester for similar violations.)

Entertainment To Feature Music And Carnival Masquerade

Exhibiting variety, the Associated Men Student Mardi Gras will feature 29 different attractions tonight in the auditorium, Pete Isola, AMS president, revealed today.

Entertainment for the masqueraders include booth offerings such as, "Hit the Rolling Record," presented by Block S.E., and a roving flower seller sponsored by the French Club. They are just part of the large, diversified program offered at this semester's Mardi Gras, Isola stated.

Six costume and decorational prizes will be awarded this evening, and groups contributing the prizes are the St. Francis Hotel, the Fairmont, Blum's, I. Magnin, Macy's, and the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Music will start at 9 p.m. and the band of Stan Robinson will provide the melodies. For additional entertainment, three campus organizations will present shows in keeping with the spirit of the affair, Isola said.

Those not attending the masquerade in costume will be apprehended and deposited in the Kangaroo Court until fined a sum befitting the crime, Isola declared.

"Let's all turn out in costume and have a good time in the true carnival tradition," Isola urged.

Cold Barracks Lead To Petition For Heat

Responding to a Guardsman editorial, it was reliably reported yesterday that the men living in Barracks 7 were in the process of having a petition signed that would insure heating of the living quarters during the night.

A spokesman for the group, referring to the editorial appearing in the Tuesday, January 11 issue of The Guardsman, stated, "It's about time somebody recognized the fact that it gets damn cold in the barracks at night.

"We don't mind some of the other inconveniences that arise because of living a barracks life, but at least there should be sufficient heat in the building at nights so as to be at least half way comfortable."

Associated Student Financial Report Due

All sponsors of student activities are requested to present all outstanding advances and signed bills for goods received to the Controller's Office not later than January 21, 1949, as the Associated Students' financial report has to be made by January 28, and books must close as of January 21, according to O. E. Anderson, controller.

No purchase orders may be issued on the fall budget after January 14. Final purchases should be arranged to meet this schedule.

Rumor Says Marston Will Be Matson

With city law requiring that Marston Avenue be closed at least once a year to insure that all property south of the avenue will remain in college hands, Marston Avenue was recently closed by the college law enforcement officers.

In addition to closing the avenue for the purpose of keeping legally secure the college property, this action also keeps the avenue itself in college hands.

(The inscription on the sign indicates the name of the thoroughfare clearly, however, some student opinion seems to disagree with the lettering on sign.

(From various students, the cry has been raised that the name of the avenue is almost correct. However, it is opined that two letters should be eliminated from the name.

(General consensus seems to be that the "r" should be omitted, the "s" and "t" transposed, and thus "s" and "t" transposed, and thus the sign would read "Matson Avenue."

(Al Athanasopoulos reports that he is considering the idea of passing out petitions, via the Block SF members, to the effect that Marston should go, and Matson should stay.)

Further rumors floating up from the men's gymnasium also indicate that the same feeling is prevailing down there, in effect, Marston should go and MATSON should definitely stay.

Fraternities At Stanford Are Open For Discussion, So Why Not Here?

IN THE discussion about Fraternities that arise from various quarters of the campus, perhaps an editorial that appeared in The Stanford Daily will toss some further light on the subject.

Because at Stanford open discussion of fraternal activities is fostered, we feel that a few thoughts expressed in The Stanford Daily editorially, may find a counterpart here.

As to the political endeavor of certain individuals belonging to fraternities, recently a high student office holder here stated that his chief aim in joining a fraternity was for the boost it gave him in his desire for political office.

The Stanford Daily reiterates, "In a house (fraternity) a man will lose some of the rough edges. In several years of fraternity life a man will have an opportunity to hold important offices."

And again, some City College students indicate that fraternities may be steeped in prejudice and have the tinges of an "exclusive" society. Pertaining to this feature, the Farm paper continues, "Fraternity membership . . . as an exclusive 'society' organization . . . isn't so."

The Daily continues with an elucidation that, "If it were, the democratizing influence of the veterans has changed it."

Perhaps on the Stanford campus, the veteran influx in fraternities has made them more "democratic," as their college paper tends to indicate; however, on the City College such a situation does not seem evident.

Maybe, because of the rapid turnover at City College and the tremendous enrollment of high school students each semester, there is a tendency to keep City College fraternities on an immature level.

The Stanford editorial concludes, with ". . . don't have your heart set on joining a particular house (fraternity) just because your Uncle Jim or a friend of your Dad's was a member."

Our only comment is, that if some fraternity members here continue to spend so many semesters at this college, it is not inconceivable that their children could well be members of the same fraternity.

Accentuate The Positive

By Nancy Loughlin

SCANNING the horizon these morns through steam-covered windows, we find not-much-at-all going on . . . anyone who thinks the situation any different will be welcome . . . just shake the ice off your feet before entering.

Someone else with big ideas suggests that the administration install a ski-lift going from the west campus to the main building. . . .

And how about another to scale the stern and rock-bound cliffs above the gym?

Party time . . . As the local debutante season closed so City College "debutantes" celebrated the end of pledge season with dinner-dancing at the Claremont Hotel.

Highlights of the evening were the sparkle of be-jewelled sorority pins and sparkling new sorority smiles.

An "anonymous" campus publication celebrated with just-plain-dinner at the Riviera restaurant the same evening. The "best men" on the campus were there wearing suede shoes and three-day growths.

Undercover agents on the campus predict that their candidates for the student election have a good chance this semester with the fraternity-sorority vote split. It appears that the fraternities have allowed more than one of their men to run for the same office . . . and so the fiasco continues its semi-annual round.

Term paper due soon? No typewriter? Now, you, too, can turn in a neat, professional looking job with a trained secretary doing your typing for you at the pittance price of $.75 a page.

The lady, Mrs. Virginia Arntz of 79 Lee Avenue, will be happy to do it. Phone her at JU. 7-2927 . . . we take no responsibility for debts incurred in the bargain.

The local consensus around here is that all good ill' City College guys and gals should get out and vote!!! In the words of Lenin Vyacheslav Skolsky, subversive elements leader, "We can win if the independent students will shake off the forces of reaction that bind them and awake from their lethargy by voting for the subversive elements candidates!"

Harpist Distinguishes Orchestra

Forthcoming Operas Will Need Additional Instrumentalist

By Dick Brennan

Because her piano teacher just happened to have an ancient, battered harp, Marie Joan Campbell is today an accomplished harpist, and the City College orchestra is one of few college orchestras that can boast a harp.

Miss Campbell is but one unique member of a unique organization, the City College orchestra. Made up of 20 talented students, and led by able faculty member, Meyer M. Cahn, the orchestra has been an asset to many college affairs.

Most of the members are new and, surprisingly enough, many of them are not music majors. They simply play for the fun of it. Many former students still come back to play with the orchestra whenever they can.

One of these is Marvin Silverman, now playing with the Stanford orchestra, who is planning to return next semester.

Now hard at work on Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, the group practice twice a week, and they must have fun because they get only one unit of credit.

Their music repertoire includes both student orchestrations and original compositions. One of these is a tone poem by student, Conrad Dorn.

Bill Murray, the student manager, wants all interested students to inform him of prospective membership, at the auditorium before next semester. With two operas scheduled for production in the spring, early organization is essential.

MARIE JOAN CAMPBELL strums the harp which has made her an accomplished and integral part of the City College orchestra, while Manager Bill Murray looks on. Her virtuosity has distinguished the orchestra in that it is extremely rare when a college music group can boast a harpist.

Letters to the Editor

(Editor's Note: Letters to the editor may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in the Guardsman office in Bldg. 12. Deadlines are noon on Monday and Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld but the author must be known to the editor.)

• 1 Out Of 397

Editor, The Guardsman:

I have noticed, in the short time (three hours) which I have spent on your campus, that this college is unique among the educational institutions of the nation.

It is plainly seen that this college takes care of its veteran students, or at least the ones who are married.

The only other college or university in the country that I have heard of which provides dwellings for married vets, is the University of Wisconsin. (Don't shoot me if I'm wrong. I've only seen 397 of the institutions in the past two years.)

Also, this college has a class in hotel and restaurant management which I have not seen at any of the Pacific coast establishments. Perhaps an example can be made so that more of the young people of the coast could learn the business they wish to live by in the future. More power to you, C.C.S.F.

J. N. Lyons,
Inglewood Daily News.

• Familiar?

Editor, The Guardsman:

In looking through a recent issue of The Guardsman, I reread Roy Pasini's column, Ramchops, in which he jokingly satirized the conditions in the student fountain.

Although the column was treating the subject in the best of college spirit, I, after two semesters of patronizing the fountain, am rapidly losing any good cheer regarding the so-called "student" fountain.

Mr. Pasini was correct when he stated that there are usually only one or two persons behind the counter to handle the crowds yelling for their coffee and sandwiches. I don't claim to know anything about the business of running a fountain, but it seems to me that the prices at the fountain are high enough to warrant the employment of a sufficient number of workers.

Being that I am a cheerful lad who believes in supporting his college, I try to patronize anything which is sponsored by and for the students of the college.

If I contrast the food and cheerfulness of the workers at the student store, for instance, I am inclined to take my business outside.

George Johnson

• Early Bird; No Worm

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why is it that the school cannot open the main building before 7:45 in the morning; and why isn't it possible to open the library before 8:00? There seem to be many students who get to school by 7:30 and would like to be able to go into a warm building and study; not stand out in the cold and freeze. This writer being one of these students, is doubly interested in finding out why this situation exists.

Shakespeare's Farce Tops Girlie Shows

By Jack Hulse

We heard that there's going to be a play here pretty soon, so we had a talk with Paul Ellison, local drama instructor.

Besides having a lot of stage experiences—Ellison is also an Englishman—which makes him sort of an expert on Shakespeare (a playwright of the old-school who still wows 'em).

Ellison said that he's going to put on a play called Twelfth Night. He claims that Shakespeare wrote it, and that the play will start Friday, January 21.

Ellison thinks you will like Shakespeare's stuff. He says it is Shakespeare's "best comedy" (according to critics, who should know, you know).

He also says that it is very popular with ordinary citizens (during the late war, factory workers in England "demanded" Shakespearian plays. Traveling-girl-shows found, to their dismay, that it was Shakespeare Two-to-One). Ellison approves of factory workers.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Jim Baker

(Editor's Note: The deadlines for club news are Wednesday noon for Tuesday's paper and Monday noon for Friday's paper; material accepted at The Guardsman.)

• CCSF Band: There will be a meeting during college hour today, and every Tuesday at 1:30 an executive meeting is scheduled.

• Alpha Lambda Chi, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, and Theta Tau sororities enjoyed dinner dancing at the Claremont Hotel Saturday, January 8, in honor of the sororities' pledge groups.

Delta Psi sorority held its dinner the same evening at Zaro's in Marin County.

• Phi Beta Delta: The fraternity's pledges lost to the members in a football game, 19 to 8.

• Ram-Cam: Members of the photographic society spent the week-end in Yosemite National Park.

Boxers Host S.F. State In Ring Rematch Tonight

San Francisco State's gladiators invade the local pit tonight in a mitt rematch with Roy Diederichsen's City College boxers.

The nine-bout regular intercollegiate program will start promptly at 8 o'clock in the men's gymnasium.

Fresh from an early week swat-setto with the University of California, the Rams figure to overwhelm their cross-town opponents, whom they lambasted 13-1 previously in their initial season encounter.

Diederichsen revealed that a number of his lads were afflicted with colds but should be in battling trim for this evening's card.

Also announced was the Rams' complete fight schedule for the ensuing spring campaign which gets underway with the locals hosting San Jose State on January 26. The Spartans were Pacific Coast champs last year and finished third in the nationals ratings.

On February 10 the Red and White scrappers journey to Spartanville for another shot at the Staters. Santa Clara's Broncos will provide the opposition on February 23 here, while a few weeks later — March 23 — both squads will square off at Santa Clara.

Modesto's Pirates are next on April 1 here.

Frazier, Divodi Grab Intra Badminton Title

In a thrilling finish, Bob Frazier and Andy Divodi teamed up to down the Don Mallen-Emmett Lynch duo, 21-19, for the college badminton doubles championship. Both combinations were Balboa sponsored.

Lynch later bowed to lanky Bill Burgess as the latter captured the badminton singles title.

In another championship contest, Jose Noltenius and Tom Kellog emerged victorious over Balboa's Harvey Roscelli and Roy Hurlbert for top tennis honors.

Jim Leaskou meets Walt Hallquist for the horse shoes crown today, while the tennis singles and ping-pong singles and doubles titles were still at stake late this week.

Track Prospects Meet With Coach

By Frank Galo

In need for much material in all events, Track Coach Grover Klemmer is calling a special session Wednesday, January 19, for future cinder aspirants. The informal meeting will deal with training rules and getting acquainted with each other.

The coming season marks Klemmer's debut as track coach. The amiable mentor is qualified to hold the post, for he rates as one of California's all-time greats. Besides starring in foothall and basketball, Klemmer held the 440 world's record for several years.

A big question mark in Klemmer's plans is Ollie Matson. Matson may or may not return next semester. The versatile athlete took top honors in the pole vault, 100-yard dash, and 220 in last year's local All-City prep track meet. San Francisco's gift to City College holds the world's high school record for the 440 with a :47.8 mark and the local prep 220 record with a :21.4.

Irv Beltrame, Balboa's sensational sprinter, will wear Ram spangles in the coming season. Other newcomers are Marv Hoffman and Jim Waiti.

Varsity Nine Forms

With his first-string quartet of infielders returning to the fold, horse-hide mentor Bill Fischer will set out to rebuild his pitching staff and single out his outstanding flychasers. Departure of several of last season's mainstays has left vacancies in both departments which should be amply sought after by some 60 aspirants.

Top Pugilists Vie In Monday's Annual Golden Glove Bouts

By Clarence Hurlbert

City College's pugilistic elite meet in Monday's annual Golden Glove championships which get underway at 8 o'clock in the men's gymnasium.

Eleven division bouts will be offered with admission free to the general public.

This all-comer event features several of Roy Diederichsen's varsity leather tossers as well as intramural finalists and newcomer hopefuls exchanging blows for gilded medals and runner-up awards.

Bartlett Novice Hopeful

Bantams Ken Sato and veteran John Fisher open up the sock session in the 122-pound class; Len Garcia, lanky southpaw featherweight, takes on Dick Spargo, 126; novice kingpin Wayne Bartlett trades shots with Bob Pierson, 132; and welterweight mauler Roy Damas will battle an as yet to be disclosed opponent in his 135-pound bracket specialty.

Jerry Stern and fast stepping Don Gerich, both contenders for starting varsity berths, are matched in the 140-pound welter brawl which could well clear up the status toward that end.

Stocky Joey Karp and free wheeling Nick Canull book up in an even weighted 145 duel which should provide onlookers with rip-roaring action as suits their styles of combat.

Jolting Joe Veaucasavic, 150, squares off against Larry Schubert, a tried journeyman from the tourney ranks, in a middleweight scrap.

Jackson Top Middleweight

In the 155-pound go, Joe Jackson tangles with Bud Taylor over the three-round route. Jackson is looked upon as a likely prospect by mitt mentor Diederichsen as is the latter's top middleweight.

Darrel Victor, 165-pound stalwart, also gets the call to apply his talents against a foe to be named later. Victor impressed recently with a hand job in the SF State slugfests.

Light heavyweights Dean Bender and chunky Oscar Brown are set for a rousing tussle with the winner a solid bet to maintain a varsity job in the 175-pound ranking.

As an added climax to the punch proceedings, novice heavyweight champ Jim O'Hare will attempt to wrest laurels from hard socking Frank Sueuga, a mainstay of the Ram team and rated tops in the group.

Unbeaten City College Cagers Open Conference Play As Favorites To Down Weak Monterey, Hartnell Colleges

By Bob Quinlan

Possessing two tourney titles and an unblemished record of 12 consecutive victories, a highly favored Ram quintet will invade Salinas and Monterey tonight and tomorrow night, respectively, to open the 1949 southern division version of the Northern California Junior College Conference.

Hartnell College and Monterey Peninsula College, by no means casaba powers this season, will play hosts to the locals.

If past scores form any basis of comparison, the Panthers and the Lobos will need to elevate their brand of ball to compete with the Rams. Hartnell edged out Marin 51-49 and was subdued by Long Beach 82-62. The Rams, however, fared much better than the Panthers as they swept by the two quints 54-39 and 66-51, respectively.

Monterey Peninsula showed even less promise as they dropped their Modesto Tourney opener to Santa Rosa 49-82. City College defeated the same team earlier in the season 58-45.

The Panthers and the Lobos will have their hands full in attempting to stop the offensive thrusts of forward Doug Truelson and center Kev Duggan. In 12 games this season Truelson has led the locals in scoring with 158 points for an average of 13 tallies per game. The rangey Duggan is next in the scoring column with 119 digits for a 10-point average.

Coach Ralph Hillsman is blessed with three outstanding guards in Bob and Don Payne and Jim Caldwell. The Paynes have each gained a position on an all-tourney team; Don was named on the Cow Palace's Preliminary Tourney quintet while brother Bob received an honored berth on the Modesto Tourney squad.

Darrel Victor, 165-pound stalwart, also gets the call to apply his talents against a foe to be named later. Victor impressed recently with a hand job in the SF State slugfests.

Light heavyweights Dean Bender and chunky Oscar Brown are set for a rousing tussle with the winner a solid bet to maintain a varsity job in the 175-pound ranking.

As an added climax to the punch proceedings, novice heavyweight champ Jim O'Hare will attempt to wrest laurels from hard socking Frank Sueuga, a mainstay of the Ram team and rated tops in the group.

WAA Shines At Horse Show Last Saturday

By Rose Hardle

City College gained top honors last Saturday by winning the Women's Athletic Association inter-collegiate horse show, Shirley Austin, president, declared yesterday.

Ram entrants in the event tallied up a total of 23 points to take the lead over other Northern California colleges participating.

Herminia Rosa of City College displayed excellent horsemanship by winning in the jumping obstacle course. Beginner's horsemanship winner was Allyn Slifer, while Annette Warden placed second.

Miss Austin was second in intermediate horsemanship, and Jacqueline Miller came in third.

By winning this show, City College acquired a gold trophy to be kept on the campus for one year until the next horse show.

A large group filled the St. Francis Riding Club in spite of cold weather, and everyone present seemed to enjoy the events of the evening.

Ring clerk for the show was Wanda Hodges who kept the timing and scoring records.

Sophs To Feature Three Separate Teams To Whittle Down Aging Profs

By Larry Baldocchi

With the sophomores set on the type of game they are going to play, and the professors still confident of a sure win, the date for the Soph-Faculty Game draws very close. This colorful tilt will take place on Friday, January 21, in the men's gymnasium during the college hour.

The sophomores are all giggling up their sleeves because of some secret plans that will be put into action against the "ancient profs" come game time. But their plans are not quite as confidential as the sophomores safely think.

There must have been a student who couldn't let just the sophs be the only ones in on the plans, because their secret is not secret any more.

It seems that the younger set is going to try to wear out the profs by having three separate teams all with equal talent in ball handling. When one of the teams get too groggy from fatigue the sophs will quickly send in a new "fresh as daisy" squad to keep the profs puffing and snorting.

Among some of the ace ball handlers that will take to the hardwoods for the sophs will be Herb "Lavell" Lexy, who gained fame while playing the intramural league for the Bradley Beauties in early '42.

Another casaba athlete who will try to uphold the honor of the sophs is Sophomore President, Dick Featherstonehaugh.

Featherstonehaugh.

Student From India Now Pro-Boxer

By Walt Roessing

Cavorting around the college campus this semester is Aaron Joshua, a photography major, from Calcutta, India, minus the conventional turban.

Joshua isn't just an ordinary first semester student, though.

This 25-year-old Indian is a one-time lightweight amateur champion of India, and now boxes professionally along the Pacific Coast.

He has won his bouts in the United States fighting as a featherweight and has taken impressive victories in Portland, San Jose, and Fresno, to name a few, during his stay here.

Joshua's next pugilistic endeavor is in Portland, Tuesday night.

A popular boxer wherever he fights, this new addition to the local scenes has been downing his foes with regularity, possessing a wicked left jab and hook, to go along with his deadly right hand punch.

Joshua would like to save enough money to bring his parents to this country, but he may have to go back to India, himself, because his visa expires in June of this year.

The good-looking Indian would like to give a few pointers to the Ram varsity boxers, but he explains that he just doesn't have the time to devote to Coach Roy Diederichsen's efficient pugilists.

Professional fighting has proved a little more trying to Joshua, than his amateur battles in the Calcutta arenas. In India, the now featherweight, fought three two-minute rounds a contest, while now he usually has to box six to ten three-minute rounds a bout, which is quite a difference.

Despite the time and weight changeovers, Joshua is still winning!

Ram CHOPS

By Roy Pasini

THE "cold wave," which has set San Franciscans' hair a bristling and broken all endurance records of the past, has left its mark among the collegiate set here on campus.

Aside from the return to the overcoat and muffler stage, the crop of frigidity has made for many a deviation from the norm on the home grounds.

Much has been said of the Eskimo existence that the barracks dwellers have been thrown into because of heatless days and nights, but little has been said of the extremes to which the inhabitants have gone to keep the body and soul warm.

A SLOW DEAL

From the book stores comes the report that cokes are continually freezing over, making it possible to order a 33 freeze and drink it in a breeze. The cold has also slowed the usually nimble fingers of the card sharks down to a slow deal.

Of course, business has picked up at all the fountains and such, for who wants to stay on the outside when he can go storming into these cozy establishments.

But, unlike the rest of the city, good ole CCSF has more to offer its followers in the way of added chills.

Take the whirling winds which accompanied the cold, and what about the chills the thought of impending finals sends running up and down everyone's spine?

Yet through it all has emerged a group of the braver ones who have attempted to burn the place up with their fiery political campaigns.

BANDWAGONS ROLL

While the hopefuls are loading their bandwagons for the rocky road ahead, none has neglected to throw an artist aboard. From the looks of the current collection of "vote getters," it seems as though the candidates have turned in their campaign managers for a paint and brush wielder.

No doubt the politicos have many more red-hot ideas brewing, like sitting in the back of convertibles and looking friendly or maybe just a little baby kissing, so the atmosphere hereabouts should be taking a turn to the warmer side but soon.

Even if the weather hasn't returned to a humane state before this issue hits the street, students can always build a bonfire or two with the posters which the candidates have lavishly strewn about the grounds—after the ballots have been cast, naturally.

POLICY MAKERS ROLL

Today's election rally is a typical example of the effort the aspiring policy makers have put into their campaigns. Much time and thought, and even money in some cases, have been thrown into the ballot race, and who knows, it might even be fun.

Still, when all is said and over, will it have Been to any avail if none of the voting group listens to the candidate's tale.

It costs no more to live in the upper story of life where the air is purer, the scenery fairer, the vision keener, and the joys more constant.—Lord North.

Competitive Scholarships To Pomona College Available To CCSF Student

Pomona College announced yesterday its annual competitive scholarships for the year 1949-50, according to Don Jensen, Alpha Gamma Sigma adviser.

Scholarships available for men or women from City College, one-half of the stipend being available for the first semester and one-half for the second semester, include one competitive scholarship of $500, and one of $500 to a candidate nominated by Alpha Gamma Sigma, statewide scholastic honor society.

All candidates must file with the Committee on Admissions, a regular application for admission, including a fee of $5.

Applications for the student competitive scholarships should be made on a regular application blank and filed with the application for admission to Pomona College by March 1, 1949, Jensen said.

Further information may be secured from Jensen in Building 5, Room B, at 1 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and 11 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Application blanks and more complete information may be obtained by writing the Committee on Scholarships, Pomona College, Claremont, California.

Alumni Applications Available Monday

A limited number of application blanks for membership in the City College of San Francisco Alumni Association will be available on Monday for members of the February Class of '49, if the Executive Committee approves a suggestion which Jack Hagan, Alumni liaison officer, has prepared.

Lillian Bommarito, a graduate in the February Class, stated last Tuesday, "By joining the City College Alumni Association, when I receive my degree in February, I insure continuation of the associations I have made in the past two years."

The Executive Committee is scheduled to meet tonight in the faculty dining room, according to Dr. Richard B. Kelley, chairman.

Opera Auditions Close Tuesday

Auditions for next semester's musical productions of Naughty Marietta, by Victor Herbert, and The Marriage of Figaro, by Mozart, will continue through next Tuesday, January 18.

Directors Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler set the audition time at 3 p.m. in the campus auditorium.

The Mozart opera will have several openings outside the Opera Workshop for lyric sopranos, mezzo-contraltos, mezzo-sopranos, tenors, bass and baritones.

Naughty Marietta offers opportunities for some 100 students, the directors said.

Northwest Color Film On Screen Today

Green Harvest, a color film of lumbering in the northwest, will be shown today directly following college hour in Room 136, according to Madison Devlin, director of audio visual aids here.

The January 21 film is the Fifth Winter Olympiad, shown through the courtesy of the Standard Oil Company, Devlin said.

King-Queen Winners To Be Announced At Formal

Rain or shine, sleet or snow, the Sophomore Class will present its semi-annual Soph Formal Saturday, January 29, at Oakland Scottish Rite Auditorium, between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m.

Spotlight of the evening will focus on the coronation of the winning King and Queen by the Sophomore class, who will present the royal couple with personal loving cups.

Perpetual trophies presented by Beta Tau and Theta Tau, will also greet the smiling twosome.

Musical entertainment for the royal evening of dancing will be presented by Jackson Terry and his orchestra from Oakland.

Bids for the dance may be obtained at the student bank for $1.80 per couple, Dick Featherstonhaugh, Soph president, revealed.

Tuxedos or dark suits will be correct apparel for men, and formals for the ladies. Corsages will be proper also.

Members of the dance committee are Maria Wilson-Walker, Bob McVey, George Capanis, and Bernie Davis.

Council Debates Social Duties In Heated Session

Constitutional "lawyers" had a field day at Tuesday's Student Council meeting as the question of jurisdiction, once again, was brought to the councilmen concerning the duties of the constitutionally appointed Social Committee of the Associated Students.

The controversy started when it was brought to the attention of the councilites that social date setting time was once more with them.

The question was then raised as to the right of the council to go over the heads of the committee after the constitution stipulated that the aforementioned committee had the prerogative to issue social function dates.

As Dean Jack Brady, advisor to the council, put it: "The student council has no legal right to run the social committee, and consequently, the social calendar."

Short dates will be limited. There are only 16 open dates for next semester, and already 11 have been applied for and, or, filled.

After the ramifications of the council-ruled social committee were discussed to the full limit, a motion was passed by the council providing that organizations be limited to one dance per year.

In addition, any group that does not fulfill its contract with the calendar will have date privileges relegated to last choice for social date of the next year's calendar.

Election Edition

VOLUME XXVII SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1949 NUMBER 23

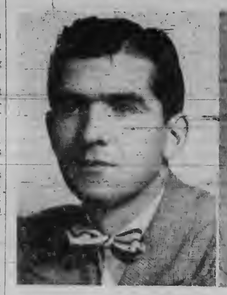
Student Elections Start Tomorrow

Three In Race For Presidency; 34 Candidates Run For Office

The climax to a week of campaigning by 34 candidates will be reached tomorrow when Associated Student card holders go to the polls to vote their choices for spring semester student offices.

The polls will be open in the student lounge tomorrow from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday.

Candidates must remove all of their posters from the inside and outside of the lounge before the elections begin and no campaigning will be allowed in the voting area, Election Chairman Walt McRae warned.



All eyes will be focused on the race for Associated Student President in which George Capanis, James Fernhoff and Pete Isola are competing for honors.

Another point of extreme interest is the contest between Ben Groger and Corinne Lambert for the office of Vice-President.

In the race for Associated Student Vice-President, Dale Fritz opposes Harry Williams.

Presidential Political Trio

GEORGE CAPANIS, candidate for Associated Student President, is running on a non-partisan ticket.

JAMES FERNHOFF, candidate for Associated Student President, is the Fraternity party standard bearer.

PETE ISOLA, candidate for Associated Student President, is the standard bearer for the Student League.

Soph-Prof Game Is Friday

By Larry Baldocchi, Sports Editor

Tension rides high on the campus in expectation of the biggest games of the semester, when the high spirited sophomores meet the "intellectual" professors in a college hour basketball game this Friday in the men's gymnasium—admission free.

The strength in the professor's squad can be found in such stars as Lou Batmale, Tom Nesbit, Harry Buttimer, and Baff Baffico.

Profs Tabbed Cagey

The physical education instructors have more than showed their interest in the coming affair by turning out 100 per cent in aid to uphold the college professor's honor. The gym department boasts such athletes as Ralph "The Kid" Hillsman, Grover "Tarzan" Klemmer, Jack "Commander" Gaddy, and Roy "Determined" Diederichsen.

Coach Jack Brady is confident of a sure win, but as yet has not given any information as to who will be on his starting line-up, come game time.

Turning to the younger side of things, the sophomores are definitely and positively positive of an easy win.

Taking over the coaching duties for the sophomores are George Capanis and Bernie Davis. Both are sure that their three-team system will wear the profs down to their size and therefore bring their team to an easy victory.

Soph Starters

The sophomores' starting line-up and first team will be Roy Pasini, famous intramural star; Walt Roessing, Assistant Sport Editor; Dick Featherstonhaugh, Sophomore President; Gene Ellison, red-headed man about the campus; and Herb "Lavelli" Levy, Guardsman Editor.

The second team will be Jim Gilford, football stars Burl Toler, Doug Wilson, Paul Hagan and George Capanis.

The third team will feature such mainstays as George Maganaris, Lou Pasani, Ray Schwein, Carl Simonian, and Bill Hansen.

'Red' Strader Here

By R. H. Allen

Norman "Red" Strader, famous couch of the New York Yankee football team, visited the campus last Tuesday as guest of John R. Gaddy, acting chairman of the men's physical education department.

Strader, who was in this city attending the national convention of the American Football Coaches Association, inspected the athletic facilities at the college, then dined with his host in the cafeteria.

Gaddy said later, "Mr. Strader was very liberal in his praise of the Hotel and Restaurant Division set-up here at the college."

"Red" Strader was the first football player from St. Mary's to ever win "All-American" recognition and later he returned there as head coach of the football team.

(Rumors as to why Strader visited the campus, apparently were pointed at the possible signing of Ollie Matson and Burl Toler to the professional conference ranks.

(Persistent reports from Southern California indicate that Hugh Macelhenny, Compton star back, will play for the Los Angeles Dons of the All-American conference.)

Twelfth Night Starts This Friday

By Bud Price

When Shakespeare's Twelfth Night is presented for student appraisal starting Friday, January 21, it will feature authentic sixteenth century background music.

This realistic touch was added by director Paul Ellison, who acted in the tragic comedy at the age of 13, and, remembering the tunes from then, hummed them for faculty orchestra conductor Meyer M. Cahn to take down, revise slightly, and orchestrate for the musicians to play for the performances.

These will include such songs as, Come Away, Death, and O, Mistress Mine, the title of the latter having been borrowed for a modern Lunt-Fontanne play.

The songs are to be sung by Pat Paulsen or Charles Panlagua as Feste, the Clown.

Room 28, scene of action of the five-act satire, has been arranged by the hard working stage crew to look like a courtroom of a Duke's palace, Lady Olivia's house, and a dungeon, in turn.

(After looking around vainly for a Rosalyn Sydell, portraying the part of Olivia, supposedly, The Guardsman reporter was approached by an actress named Rosalyn Mincer, who straightened the reporter out as to her name.)

Two Party System Attracts Attention

Intensification of party politics appears to have slackened somewhat, according to reliable spokesmen for both political groups on the campus.

The Student League and Interfraternity Council leaders have indicated that although many students are still tremendously interested in the political situation this semester, both seem to agree that the intense partisanship of the past is gone.

The spokesmen claim that because of the crossing of party lines, it's hard for the average student to decide whether the Student League or the Inter-fraternity Council is clearly backing the various candidates.

One of the spokesmen stated, "Although we are hoping for a large turnout, I doubt if the number of voters will exceed the 1100 total cast last semester."

Commenting on the political situation in general, Dean Jack Brady said, "The continual interest in campus elections shown by the students is an indication that this college is performing an important function in aiding the students to comprehend all types of political situations."

Corinne Lambert

Vice-Presidential candidate Miss Lambert is running on the non-partisan ticket.

Voting will take place in the student lounge of the west campus auditorium from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., tomorrow, January 19, and from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday, January 20.

Clubs, Cagers Take Over College Hour

Club meetings will compete with the Sophomore-Faculty basketball game during the next college hour, Friday, January 21, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, said yesterday.

Clubs will meet in previously assigned rooms, while the Sophs will be battling the professors in the men's gymnasium. Both events will compete for student support, Brady said.

The following Friday, January 28, an award rally will be held in the auditorium, Brady added.

Students Arrange Shakespeare Music

Five students of the orchestration class recently completed arranging several selections to be heard in Paul Ellison's production of Twelfth Night, announced Meyer M. Cahn, orchestra director.

The students to be credited for the orchestral arrangements are Marie Jean Campbell, Conrad Dorn, Nick Panagiotou, Robert Tefft, and James Turner.

Recordings were made of these selections which will constitute the background music for the Shakespearean presentation starting this Friday, January 21.

Bea Groger

Vice-Presidential candidate Miss Groger is running on the Student League ticket.

Voting will take place in the student lounge of the west campus auditorium from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., tomorrow, January 19, and from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday, January 20.

Independence In Any Project Has A Definite Popular Acceptance

OVER on page one of this edition, the type of makeup used throughout the page is known as "horizontal" make-up. It is known by this name, because it is supposed to guide the reader's eye across the page, rather than vertically.

By trying this innovation, we feel that we have branched out from a small, yet powerful group of journalism's hierarchy, which says that [illegible] the current style of newspaper make-up, any independent paper that tries something new is a maverick.

Perhaps, then, The Guardsman as a paper is a maverick in a journalistic sense, but we believe that independence within a group, with which by classification we are connected, means more to the reader than static journalism.

On a more emphatic basis, we cannot see why a small, entrenched clique can dictate the policies of all the people connected with that group, merely by demanding that what they say should be accepted as gospel.

Likewise, if a metropolitan daily experimented with "horizontal" make-up, it would risk being branded as a traitor and shunned by the hierarchy of the newspaper world.

However, if the paper had obtained a place of distinction by its own virtue, then of course, the final result would lie in the hands of the reader.

If a project be independent, and the subscribers find that policy of independence acceptable, even though the subscribers' environment advises against such acceptance, a great deal of good will evolve.

The Guardsman feels that independence of thought and action, regardless of affiliation, shows an undeniable spirit of integrity.

We think the idea of "horizontal" make-up is good, but the final tabulation will be voted on by the students in the form of continued interest in the paper, or negation, by the simple process of writing a letter to the editor.

Independence of action is a wonderful thing, and if it can be followed through by popular support, then a forward step has been taken.

Accentuate The Positive

Today's Column Was Written By Johnnie Dorris

MANY strange and wondrous tales are told in the land of the midnight sun, Alaska to you, Schmoo, but one need look no further than City College for any desired type of strange tale.

To prove this assertion, The Guardsman sent out a roving reporter with his trusty typewriter to take down the ravings of various students.

These are the tales as gathered from all social levels.

Poor boy: "My folks were so poor, I was born without a stitch of clothes on, and jeez, in this cold weather I'm about to freeze."

Gray-haired student: "My life was tough for the first 50 years, but after that I began making my own way. Brother, could you spare an old man eight cents for a cup of coffee?"

Soda fountain bore: "I was told early in life what I should do."

Gullible bystander: "What was that?"

Bore: "Drop dead! Yak Yak!"

Our wandering typewriter with its reporter now turns in the direction of athletic activities.

Boasting athlete, wearing size aught hat and forty-four shirt: "There I was shooting baskets right and left, it almost seemed the opposing team had quit trying, and after the game the fans almost murdered me; gad, what a game!"

Stupid looking idolizer: "Really happy were they?"

Athlete: "No, maddern'ell, it seems I was shooting at the wrong basket."

Once again we turn our educated typewriter with its uneducated reporter in another direction, this time it finds itself inside a local brain trust, more appropriately known as the student lounge.

Homesick Co-ed: "I'm writing a letter to myself; letters always cheer me up and keep me from thinking of home."

Sappy looking spectator: "What does it say?"

Co-ed: "Well, how should I know, I haven't received it yet."

Now our well groomed typewriter, with highly polished keyboard and ragged looking reporter, turns attention to a group of liars busily at work in a corner discussing the latest Saturday Evening Post mosquito stories.

1st liar: "Huh, they think those are big. Why, when I was in the Navy we used to shoot them down thinking they were Jap planes."

2nd liar: "That's a lie if I've ever heard one."

1st liar: "Oh, is that so! Why we even kept the fleet supplied with fresh mosquito steaks once for six months, while it was frozen up in the ice around Gundalcanal."

A buttered up looking typewriter, followed by a goofey looking reporter, can now be seen wandering about in the land of midnight suns searching for a strange story.

Many Grave Hearts Slept, So Beware

Females Nothing But Predatory And Grasping Specie Of Human Race

By Nancy Laughlin

A revealing consensus of the men at this college indicates that they, in accordance with Leland Stowe's "Advice to the Male Animal" in February's Esquire, agree on one thing—to wit, the female animal is a predatory, grasping specie.

Mr. Stowe considers, that the ancient Romans were the only men with any degree of wisdom, for they [illegible] that females were goddesses of the hunt and not the frail little creatures supposed.

He further claims that the myth of women's frailty is a mask for hiding a shrewdness that has bamboozled many an unsuspecting male.

In the words of a prominent man-about-the-campus, "Women have the baser instincts of tigers. This stems from the huntress genus of the cat family, whose characteristics, have embodied women with all the cut-throat features of the big game, in this case, men."

DON JENSEN, Alpha Gamma Sigma adviser, and Bob Jonjock, president of the scholastic honor organization, exchange grins as they look over the scholarship bulletin from Pomona College. Jensen is a past president of the organization, and just to clarify the situation, is the blond gent on the left.

The sloe-eyed lad went on to illustrate his point from his own experiences on dates.

"On a date a woman will use all the tenacity of her genus to get what she wants. In most cases a big time at clubs and parties—none of these simple little dances for them. Contrary to popular opinion, every handsome lad like myself is not a man-about-town. Most of us are poor, struggling students, subsisting on a handout from Uncle Sam."

Mr. Stowe, of Esquire, defeats his purpose by lauding women to a high degree (see page 38 for an example) blames the abominable situation on some prehistoric dreamer who invented the propaganda of woman being a dependent little creature.

This myth enchanted him with his own power to such an extent that the little woman decided to kid him along, thereby building up a front which has not yet been torn down.

"Obviously it is now the time for a shakedown. It is high time that the male of the species recognizes the true situation; statistics will show that the female animal is always the deadliest — the cat family has its tiger, the insect family its black widow, and any ornithologist will tell you that while the male bird rustles up the grub the female feathers her nest, characteristically like a woman.

Citing statistics still further, one can note that American women are just as intelligent, if not more so, than men. An ever-increasing number of women now enroll in U. S. colleges, all of them subsisting on the dole that papa hands out.

This last, regarding papa's handouts, confirms the world-wide opinion that American women are extremely spoiled. Thus, a doll with a well-filled sweater and an eye-catching face, will consider it, a man's privilege to escort her to the nightspots.

From a man who should know better, Leland Stowe of Esquire mag, the advice is "lay off."

Keep on playing, however, for some Diana with a sharp arrow will get the guy sooner or later.

Fellas, Shmellas

'Males Are Sly, Egotistical, But Why Stay Home?'

By Roperish

"Fellas are too sly, egotistical and selfish, but paradoxically shy, which makes them sorta interesting."

Such is the consensus picked up at some of the local psychiatric couches, prone upon which were local co-eds. The following gems of feminine philosophy are gleaned from aforesaid couches.

Because of their natural egoism, men have a thoroughly distasteful habit of centering the conversation around themselves. "De goils" have listed "Repulsive Conceit" as the paramount hate on the list.

(The conversation should be mutually interesting, not just interesting to the speaker . . . which somehow or other is always the man.)

Since we forgot to include it in the beginning, we figure here is a swell place to tell you that no attempt at a coherent essay will be made here.

Men think all women are alike, in personality, in desires, in likes and dislikes, and in temperament.

On the way to pick up Mary, the man reviews his last date with Jane, and plans the date with Mary accordingly. A sort of perverted version of what was good enough for Grandma is good enough for you.

Too many fellas, in making a date for the weekend, telephone on Thursday or Friday and expect the girl to be breathlessly waiting for their call.

Because of their constant aggressiveness and cunning, a girl can never relax and enjoy herself on a date for fear that the man is watching her every movement for a clue to things to come.

AGS Adviser No Fugitive From An Ivory Tower

Don Jensen, math instructor, became the regular adviser of Alpha Gamma Sigma this semester, replacing Edwin Cranston, who is now on leave.

It's no wonder that AGS members have been boasting of their new adviser. For while Jensen attended City College, he was a member of AGS, President of Associated Men Students and later of the Associated Students.

Active In Soccer

He was quite active in soccer at City College—a wide grin covered his face when he spoke of playing soccer, his favorite sport.

Jensen attended CCSF for two years, then transferred to the University of California. He majored in math and social sciences.

To peer a little into his personal life, Jensen is 27 years old, married and is the father of a seven months old baby, who, he says, is "quite a giant."

Scholarships Announced

In one of his first official acts, Jensen announced that two scholarships were available through AGS. One will be given through competitive examination and the other through State AGS selection. Interested students should apply in Room B, Building 5, at 1-MVF, or 11-TTh.

When asked how he felt about the appointment of adviser of AGS, he said he was quite pleased and proud.

He further stated that more recognition should be gained for this organization, as it is the college's major scholastic society, and events are being planned for this purpose.

[Editor's Note: The deadlines for club news are Wednesday noon for Tuesday's paper and Monday noon for Friday's paper; material accepted at The Guardsman.]

• CCSF Band: There will be meeting during college hour, Friday and an executive meeting is scheduled every Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

• Collegiate Christian Fellowship: A meeting is called Tuesday, January 18, in Room 1A (auditorium), 3 p.m. The CCF will meet in Room 200 during college hour, Friday, January 21.

• Delta Psi: A joint meeting with Gamma Phi Ypsilon is slated Wednesday, January 12, at the home of Mary Matulich.

• Newman Club: Appreciation is offered to all members for the help given in preparing for the Mardi Gras.

• Tau Chi Sigma: The final game of the "Interfraternity Conference" was played Sunday, January 9, and determined the winner of the football league. Tau Chi Sigma claimed the championship record of five wins, no defeats, as it dumped Tri Epsilon 31-0. The modern Tau Chi Sigma team used the platoon system of substitution, i.e., substituting entire teams.

Ram Boxers Show Talents In Meet

Apparently sluggish from early season activity, City College's varsity pugilists did manage to get better than a stand-off with California's ringsters last week at Berkeley.

In an informal 15-match session the Rams were conceded seven bouts with six mythical nods awarded the Golden Bears and two scraps rated draws.

No official verdicts were rendered, as both coaches used the meet on the experimental basis without regular judging.

Ed Sato, Len Garcia, Don Gerich, Joe Veaucasavic, Nick Canuli, and heavyweights Jim O'Hare and Frank Sucuga turned in convincing stints for the locals. On the reverse end of the battling were Al Chappuis, Dick Spargo, Bob Pierson, Bud Taylor, Neil Shelmerdine, and Oscar Brown.

Middleweight Darrel Victor and light heavy Dean Bender were stalemated in their exchanges with the Bears' Tucker and Bartley, respectively.

Things might have been different had Roy Diederichsen's full squad, including stars at bantams Johnny Fisher, Jerry Stern, Joe Jackson, and welterweight starter Roy Damas, been available.

Falcons, Blues Clash In Intra Volleyball

The two top teams in the intramural volleyball tourney, the Balboa Blues and the Falcons, clash today in a "semi-final till, with game time scheduled for 4 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

This game promises to be a grudge battle, for a bitter rivalry exists between Tom Jock's Falcons and all Balboa Alumni AC outfits. Come game time and all friendship will be tossed aside as both clubs prepare for a fierce, brutal game of volleyball.

The Falcons advanced into the semi-finals by dumping the Tipsters twice, 15-7 and 15-10. Largely responsible for the Falcon victory was the leaping Larry Baldocchi with his hard driving shots which balled the Tipsters. Other Falconmen showing volleyball possibilities were Joez, Bob Melberg, and Ed Roper.

Players in the other semi-final game will be the two survivors from last Thursday's games.

Rams Beat Salinas, Monterey

DIMINUTIVE BASKETBALL CAPTAIN JIM CALDWELL looks up with awe at City College's gigantic reserve center, Bill Kahn. The two energetic Ram cagers are the "long and the short" of the college's powerful hoop-hitting quintet. Caldwell is considered the best ball handler on the squad and sets up the offensive patterns with his fast, accurate passes. He is playing his second year with Coach Ralph Hillsman's basketball team. So far this season he has tallied 41 points in 11 games. Kahn is a fine team player and a great asset on backboard control.—Photo by Howe.

Cagers Open Conference Race With Two Wins: Truelsen And Metheny Lead Rams To Victory

By Bob Quinlan

City College's classy cagers proved to the Salinas and Monterey casaba fans last Friday and Saturday nights that they are worthy of the many praises handed their way as they defeated Hartnell and Monterey Peninsula by scores of 53-40 and 71-44, respectively.

These victories gave the Rams their first two conference wins and extended their undefeated season record to 14 consecutive wins.

Hartnell, playing an inspired game, kept within a few points of the Rams until the final quarter. The locals led at the end of the first quarter by a margin of 10-5, at the half 24-17, at the end of the third quarter 36-30, and finally broke through the Panther defenses in the last period to win by 13 points.

Dud Truelsen and Bob Metheny paced the Rams' attack with 15 and 11 digits, respectively, while Ed Macha's 13 tallies and Jim Cordial's 12 markers supplied the greatest portion of the Panther scoring.

Truelsens tip-in from about five feet out and Bob Payne's twisting shots from under the basket furnished the crowd with many excitements. "Rebel" Mingee provided the game's crowd-pleasing play when he tanked a forty foot, two handed shot one second after the game ended.

The Monterey Peninsula game was unique in the sense that Coach Ralph Hillsman did not render the services of his first string. The reserves, however, took over in fine fashion to rack up City College's highest score of the season.

Although the Lobos got off to an early lead, the Red and White quintet had the game tied at the half when they led, 37-22. In the second half the locals drove the hapless home team into the planks.

Bob Mingee and Al Athanasopoulos spearheaded the Rams' offense with 15 and 13 tallies, respectively. Don Payne, who garnered 12 points, and Bill Kahn, scorer of eight digits, had constant control of both backboards. Floormen Marty Schneider, Les Brilliant, and Ed Kahn accumulated nine, six, and eight points, respectively.

Fischer Surmises Baseball Outlook

By Clarence Hurlbert

With his managerial duties just around the corner, pilot Bill Fischer took recent inventory of his material for the coming spring baseball wars.

An initial sign-up confab, held two weeks ago, revealed that the hoarse-throated mentor will have little cause to fret over the infield situation, since his four starters will return en-masse.

These veteran guardians of the inner channels are third sacker Tom Bournellis, a consistent glovesman and a hardy .286 clutch hitter last season; shortstop Emmett Lynch, who covers a lot of territory, while a comparatively light sticker; hustler Nick Cahill at the keystone bag; and regular first base dependable Ray White, wielder of a .279 batting average in the '48 campaign.

Holdovers Frank Billecci and Bob Friedman are currently slated to be the Rams' top receivers with the mitt and pads, with versatile utility men Chris Makras, outfielder Al Tabarini, and hurler Dick "Lefty" Johnson rounding out the scanty list of returnees.

Fischer declared that both his mound corps and outer-garden positions are noticeably weak.

Another special meeting is scheduled early in February which should attract matriculating preps to the local nine, and this newcomer crop might fill the present vacancies.

Prospective flingers started loosening up yesterday in advance of full team workouts which will begin in about three weeks.

Mural Depicting History And Freedom Of Press Will Be Unveiled Thursday

By Gene Ellison

A project initiated eight months ago by Stanley G. Sadler, Guardsman staff artist, will become a reality Thursday, January 20, when the graphic arts department presents its official unveiling of the colorful mural series depicting the history of printing and freedom of press.

Working with modern art methods, Sadler painted the mural in oils with a new wash and line technique, which will be displayed at an open house between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. in Room 345, main building. All students and the public are invited.

Long History Portrayed

Guided by William Eckert and George Mullany of the Graphic Arts Department, Sadler depicted the history of printing from China's Pi Shing and his solid porcelain type block, to Gundy and present-day methods.

The subordinate theme of the entire mural emphasizes freedom of the press through United States history.

Permanent Home Here

Adding the finishing touches to the masterpiece, workers will frame the artistic series with plexiglass and steel trimming for its permanent home at City College.

Frank Ferguson, Associated Student president, will preside.

WAA Names Next Semester Officers

Women's Athletic Association officers for next semester were announced following last Thursday's banquet in Sigmund Stern Grove, Shirley Austin, president, said yesterday.

New officers include Jean Sliter, president; Florence Loo, vice-president; Auline Hendrickson, secretary; and Chris Di Sibio, treasurer.

Those who have been working hard to make the fall semester a success are Miss Austin; Miss Sliter, vice-president; Annette Warden, secretary; and Shirley Howard, treasurer.

Terry McGovern, who won the bantam and featherweight championships, and then succeeded in knocking out the lightweight champion, was through as a fighter when he was 21.

Club President Meet Slated For January 25

A president's meeting will be held Tuesday night, January 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the student lounge, Bea Gregor, vice-president of the Associated Students, announced yesterday.

Heads of all campus organizations and newly elected officers are urged to attend this meeting.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss the activity calendar for the coming semester, the Vice-President said.

Social Committee members have decided to stick to their resolution of last semester to give organizations who didn't have a social calendar date, first choice after Associated Student dates have been filled.

Eck! We Gotta Work; File For Jobs Now

"All graduates, both men and women, who intend to go to work after graduation, should file applications in the placement office immediately," Placement Director Joseph Amori said yesterday.

"Although jobs are not as plentiful as they were last year," Amori said, "the demand for women in the field of secretarial work remains high, and there are several good opportunities for Junior College Graduates in Civil Service Agencies, both local, state, and federal."

There are a few openings for men in hardware and household sales, married men with business experience preferred. Also a man with a car who has a knowledge of athletics is needed for sporting goods sales in the bay area.

The salaries in both jobs range from $200.00 to $300.00 per month, Amori said.

Dance Goers Primp For Soph Formal

Although bids for the Sophomore Formal are quickly disappearing at the student bank, they are still available, Dick Featherstonhaugh, Soph class president, announced today.

The semi-annual affair gets underway at Oakland Scottish Rite Auditorium Saturday, January 29, at 9 p.m.

Highlight of the royalty dance will be the coronation of the winning King and Queen couple, who will receive personal loving cups from the Sophomore class.

Perpetual trophies will also be presented by Beta Tau and Theta Tau to the victorious couple.

Presenting a full evening of musical entertainment will be Jackson Terry and his orchestra from Oakland, well known to East Bayers.

The bids, which went on sale last week, are priced at $1.80 per couple at the student bank, main building.

Apparel for the event should be tuxedos or dark suits for men, and formals with corsages for the ladies, Featherstonhaugh said.

Members of the dance committee are Maria Wilson-Walker, Bob Mevey, George Capanis, and Bernie Davis.

Ram CHOPS

By Roy Pasini

PREDICTION: Before many weeks have gone by in the approaching spring semester, more than one dissatisfied student will raise his voice in protest of the new Associated Student officers who will be elected at the polls this Wednesday and Thursday.

It never fails. Regardless of the caliber of the chosen few who are in office, there is always a segment of the local populace which remains dissatisfied until the end.

The bickering of this unhappy group may be directed at anything from an appeal for more able student representation to a cry for a bigger social season, replete with dances, teas and such.

Of course, the complainant is in his first semester at the college, his charges usually do not go beyond the ears of his close friends, for he has no doubt heard of the terrible machine which infests the local political scene.

But the old timer who has been around for a while and is wise to the setup isn't afraid to raise his voice in defiance. Sometimes he may even be so bold and tolerant as to attend a council meeting in order to air his views.

ACTION SPEAKS LOUDER . . .

Ah, but what a happy place this institution might be if at least a few of these homemade rabble-rousers had enough common sense to act when their acts would be of some help.

Nine out of ten times, the "I told you so-er" doesn't even bother to cast a vote during election time.

Yet, he feels perfectly just in ranting and raving after the ballots have been counted. After all, isn't he a member of the Associated Students, and doesn't he have a right to voice his opinion on how things should be handled around here?

What better voice could a student have than his one official vote?

To some, such a statement seems slightly off kilter. Still, in past elections many a candidate has gained office merely by a margin, small enough to count on one hand.

Last semester, with not even ONE-THIRD OF THE QUALIFIED VOTERS casting ballots, the presidency was won by the narrow margin of 32 tallies.

NO POLL TOLL

This year AS cards have reached a new high in number of sales, but how many of those cardholders will trek to the polls in the student lounge Wednesday or Thursday. A safe estimate would be not even 1100, and the current number of possible voters lies somewhere between the 3000 and 4000 mark.

Many a candidate has lost an election because his backers felt that THEIR vote was not necessary to insure victory for their man. Look at Dewey in the national election.

Still other worthy politicos have lost backers simply because many of the votes cast were of the blind and unintelligent variety. Something like playing the ponies with a hatpin.

Granted that an intelligent and well represented vote would be a novelty here at CCSF, it nevertheless would be a gratifying surprise.

Ram Cagers Off To Flying Start, Rate Best In State

By Leo Buccharelli

Coach Ralph Hillsman's basketball quintet, to date considered one of the greatest teams that has ever set foot on the hardwoods for the locals, strengthened this opinion by taking the Cow Palace and Modesto State Tournaments.

Each man equal in ability, the Rams are one of the best balanced two-year college teams in the nation.

Twice, All-Tournament Dud "Buckets" Truelsen is leading the scoring parade for the locals with a 13 point average per contest.

Bob "Modest" Metheny holds down the other forward spot because of his smooth dribbling and cat-like defensive work.

Key man of the willtoppers' offensive pattern is Kevin Duggan, who handles all opposing centers in a more than gentle manner with his rough tactics.

Veteran guard, Jim "Pop" Caldwell, sets up the plays with his superb passes and is considered the best ball handler on the team.

Twins, Bob and Don Payne, do most of the defensive rebounding for the Rams. Don proved his rebounding ability by making All-Tournament and best defensive player at the recent Cow Palace Tournament, while Bob gained All-Tournament honors at Modesto for his poetic hook shot movements.

Reserves deserving credit for their efforts in helping the team to victories are Marty Schneider, Bob Mingee, Bill Kahn, Al Anthanasopoulos, and Ed Kahn.

Much of the success of the team is due to the fine coaching of Hillsman and his scout, football coach Grover Klemmer.

Future Year Book Must Pay Own Way

Although there is a possibility that the Associated Students might drop as much as $5,000 on the proposed yearbook for this coming spring semester, Associated Student President Frank Ferguson stated at Thursday's Student Council meeting, that such losses will not be sustained for subsequent annuals.

"The yearbook will be an integral part of student activities during future semesters and will be a benefit for the Associated Students as a whole," Ferguson declared.

The student council voted a needed $2,300 for the fulfillment of the yearbook contract. This sum, together with a previously acquired $3,000, will be used for the publication of the Associated Students' annual.

The lowest bid submitted for the printing job, $8,100, had been approved by Comptroller Oscar E. Anderson and Lloyd Luckmann, faculty adviser to the yearbook staff.

"Skating Vanities" In Need Of More Ushers

Any students interested in serving as ushers for the Skating Vanities, currently appearing at the Civic Auditorium, should report to Dean Margaret Dougherty's office in Building 2 immediately.

Performances will be held nightly, commencing with tonight's show and running through January 23.

It is a collegiate and professional rule that all players in action on the football field must wear head protection.

Tryouts For Spring Opera Parts End Today

Students interested in trying out for possible roles in next spring's opera productions are reminded by Flossie Badger and Lloyd Sister, opera directors, that today is the last day for auditions.

Tryouts are to be held in the college auditorium at 3 p.m., and students are requested to bring their own music.

Mozart's opera, The Marriage of Figaro, is to be presented in April, while Naughty Marietta, by Victor Herbert, is tentatively scheduled for the latter part of May.

Cafeteria Open Early On College Hour Days

On all days for which college hour is scheduled, the cafeteria will be open for luncheon service at 10:45 a.m. instead of 11 a.m., Lawrence Wong, hotel division instructor, announced yesterday.

"This change is made as an accommodation to the students and faculty so that they may adjust their routine to college hour and still have ample time for an early lunch or a late snack," Wong added.

Attention was also called to the fact that coupon meal books are still available and save the buyer 10 per cent.

Not only was he a great fighter, but John L. Sullivan was considered an excellent ball player as well.

Soph-Faculty Basketball Game Set For College Hour Today; Coaches Boast Confidence

By Larry Baldocchi, Sports Editor

The Soph-Faculty basketball game takes top place today and sends the energetic sophomores against the creaking professors of the college. The tilt is scheduled to take place in the men's gymnasium during the college hour today, 10:40 a.m.

The baby faced sophomores will take to the hardwoods with a slight edge over the profs because they have more reserves with over-flowing energy. The sophs also will be ready to uphold their honor by putting three teams into action during the course of the game to try to wear down the "aging," but determined profs.

Coaches of the boys in the swaddling clothes, George Capanis and Bernie Davis, are more than confident that their high spirited quintet will not let them down this afternoon.

Jack Brady, coach of the brief case carriers or the profs' team, has not been saying much lately and would not reveal his starting lineup until game time.

Coach Brady is just as confident of a win as the sophomores and has at his command all of the working men of the physical education department along with such ball handlers as Lou Batmale, Tom Nesbitt, Harry Buttimer and "Baff" Baffleo.

Both teams have been tediously practicing in preparation for this coming contest that will save face for the winner and destroy the faith of all for the loser. This game is not just another basketball tilt that will soon be forgotten, but a game where both teams will be out there to win in order that they may take their rightful place among other champions of the college.

The professors are eager to show the students not only that they are intellectual masters, but that also they can be masters at anything they attempt to do. Maybe those brief cases they pack around are loaded with secret basketball plays.

The sophomores figure it this way. All day long the professors teach all they know to the students. Well, here is something that the students can teach the professors.

Probable starting line-up for today's game:

Sophs	Position	Faculty
Roy Pasini	F	Ralph Hillsman
Herb Levy	F	Roy Diederichsen
Leo Buccharelli	C	Grover Klemmer
Gene Ellison	G	Lou Batmale
Walt Roessing	G	George Baffleo

Royalty To Be Crowned At Soph Class Formal

Highlight of the last social event of the current semester will be the crowning of the King and Queen at the semi-annual Sophomore Formal at the Oakland Scottish Rite Auditorium Saturday night, January 29.

Dancing to the strains of Jackson Terry and his orchestra from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. will provide a full evening of musical entertainment, Dick Fetherstonhaugh, Sophomore Class president, said.

Bids for this formal function, priced at $1.80 per couple, have been on sale at the student bank for a week and are disappearing fast, Fetherstonhaugh said.

Coronation of the King and Queen will be the climax of the dance, and loving cups will be awarded them by the Sophomore class.

Selection of the King and Queen was the result of an election held at the college recently. Names of the winners will be kept secret until the evening of the formal.

Other tokens of royalty given to the victorious couple are perpetual trophies presented by Beta Tau and Theta Tau.

Apparel for the affair should be tuxedos or dark suits for men, while formals and corsages will be appropriate for the women.

Twelfth Night Opens Here Tonight In Little Theatre

Drama Instructor Paul Ellison's Shakespearean actors will display their talents for student appraisal in the tragic-comedy, Twelfth Night, starting tonight, and continuing tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday nights.

The five act satire will start at 8:15 p.m. and run for not more than two and one-half hours in the campus Little Theater, Room 28.

It will feature Mary Cook and Mary Ann Stewart in the role of Viola, and later disguised as the male servant Cesario; Jack Hulse as Orsino, Duke of Illyria; Don Landers as Sebastian; Ray Rhine as Antonio; Bob Jones as a Sea Captain; Bill Hays as Valentine; Hewitt Kendall as Curio; Jack Jones as Sir Toby Belch, and Dick Vreeland as Sir Andrew Aguecheek.

The underplot deals with Dick Totaro as Malvolio, Dave Irvine as Fabian, Pat Paulsen and Charles Paniagua as Feste the Clown, Rosalyn Mincer, and JoAnn Setlow as Olivia, and Barbara Andress as Maria.

Other characters include various and sundry Lords, a Priest, Sailors, Musicians and attendants, which will be members of the drama class.

The plot deals with the actions of Viola, who, after a shipwreck, dresses like a man, adopts the name Cesario, and serves Duke Orsino as a lackey.

Complications arise who she falls in love with Orsino, who is in love with Olivia, who, in turn, is in love with Cesario.

Malvolio is developed as a rather brooding character, who is constantly being cheered up by individuals in the play.

Comedy relief is provided by Feste, the Clown, and subtly, by Sir Andrew Aguecheek, as a court dim-wit who takes everything seriously.

Withal, the City College drama department will attempt tonight to carry spectators back three hundred and fifty years, to Elizabethan times, and show their version of what is generally considered Shakespeare's greatest comedy.

Musical Production Ready For February

The proceeds from Love Again, the Talent Placement Bureau's musical production to be presented Friday night, February 18, are to go into the Associated Student treasury, Hewitt Kendall, the bureau director, announced today.

It was the original intention of the bureau to give the proceeds to the drama department for better stage equipment, but Dr. O. E. Anderson, comptroller, revealed that the funds are to go into the Associated Student treasury to be apportioned as they see fit.

The two hour show, an original musical, has as its theme song, Can It Be Love Again, from which the title was taken. The program will be made up of six original tunes and six old favorites, plus original dance routines.

The acts will be set off by very modernistic scenery, created by artist Stanley Sadler, with comedy woven into many of the scenes thereby presenting a well rounded and entertaining program.

Elizabethan Music Part Of Twelfth Night

Several madrigals, songs typical of the Elizabethan period, will be presented by eight members of the A Cappella Choir in Paul Ellison's presentation of Twelfth Night.

Choir members giving support to the drama students appearing in Shakespeare's great tragi-comedy, starting tonight, are Richard Agee, Gladys Amburn, Tony Cuevas, Gene Dupignac, Carolyn Reiss, Sara Taff, Robert Way, and Velma Webster.

These vocal performers are to don Elizabethan costumes when they sing these popular selections of the period.

Guardsman Goes This Way, Not Up And Down

Going along with modern make-up, Herbert M. Levy, Guardsman editor, with Roy Pasini, Spring semester's editor-to-be, yesterday declared that the make-up of The Guardsman today is known as horizontal make-up.

This differs from up and down make-up which is known as vertical make-up, Levy declared reflectively.

The editor, after being nudged consistently by Pasini, further stated, "We are of the opinion that this type of make-up tends to make the paper easier to read, as well as making it more attractive."

Pasini nodded vigorously.

Bob Curtis Is Mardi Gras Costume Contest Winner

Awards for the contest winners were distributed at the Associated Men Student Mardi Gras, last week, in what was pronounced by many one of the best masquerade turnouts in a long while.

First prize in the costume judging went to Bob Curtis, who came as Sabu, the elephant boy. Charles Hingsberger won second prize as an Irish cop.

Curtis was presented with two tickets to the Mark Hopkins Hotel, which are good for eight cover charges, and the runner-up prize was a bid to the Sophomore Formal.

Portraying a Dude Ranch, the Women's Athletic Association booth won first prize in that contest. Alpha Sigma Delta received honorable mention.

The costumed couple winner were Gil Fredericks and Bob Baumgartner, who came as Carmen Miranda and a jungle hunter, respectively. A free dinner and dancing dicat was their award, which was donated by the Hotel St. Francis.

Other evening winners were a pair who came as "Toni Twins" and won an evening's dinner and dancing at the Fairmont Hotel. The Chinese costume of Mary Lee Zimmermann was awarded a cosmetic kit from I. Magnin's.

Educators To Meet Here Next Month

City College is preparing now to play host to visitors from all over the nation during the national convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges at San Francisco, February 23 to 26.

Most of the visitors will come to the campus in small groups by taxi cab, according to Dr. A. J. Cloud, college president. After reaching the campus, they will be conducted on special tours of inspection arranged by a committee, yet to be formed, made up of members of the faculty.

Scholarship Here Honors Botanist Alice Eastwood

Nationally famous botanist, Alice Eastwood, was honored with a scholarship in her name to a City College Florilature department student at a special luncheon celebrating her 90th birthday, Harry Nelson, instructor, disclosed today.

The luncheon was held January 18, at the Fairmont Hotel.

Administering of the scholarship will be conducted by the San Francisco Garden Club, and the college floral group.

Acclaimed as a botanical expert by foremost floral authorities in the nation, Miss Eastwood is currently Curator at the Academy of Science in Golden Gate Park. She recently announced her retirement but intends to remain active studying and experimenting with her colleagues.

Clubs And Basketball Share College Hour

Although the Sophomore-Faculty basketball game hogs the spotlight and student interest, club meetings will be held as usual during college hour today, John J. Brady, assistant dean of men, said yesterday.

Brady added that the last rally of the current semester will feature the presentation of intramural and other awards next Friday, January 28.

Election Totals Late

Conflict with a press deadline made results of Associated Student elections unobtainable for publication in this issue of The Guardsman.

Complete returns will appear in the next issue.

Headed by Chairman Walt McRae, the election committee includes Chuck Hingsberger, Helen Rich, Bob Sears, Peggy Logan, Frank Ferguson, and John Pifer.

Part 1 - Reflections Of Campus Life Or Two And One Half Years In Type

There come a million times in an editor's life, when he can either allow unhealthy situations to exist, or he may uncover them editorially.

Usually, because he so often gets perturbed at such things, he chooses the latter. And besides, what percentage of students ever reads the editorial?

For instance, the political sheet called the "GuardsmEn" circulated on campus this week was in no way connected with the official publication of the Associated Students, The GuardsmAn. But why spend valuable space trying to explain this to the students.

Looking in retrospect, in the two and one-half years that the editor has been connected (glued to his chair, is more appropriate) with The Guardsman, he has seen a lot happen and has visualized what could happen.

He has seen the college rise to a mature standard with the veteran influx, and drop to a more "youthful" stage now that the vast number of vets have moved to other colleges and universities.

Next month the editor will join that group of veterans moving on to the universities. In other words, "California, Here I Come," or the editor better get a "C" in Spanish.

But back to the situations, unhealthy and otherwise. Even with the college grabbing two grid titles and destined for that many cage titles in the past three years, is the college actually going forward?

The not-so-secret Order of the Ram, and the Sword Society, still exist surreptitiously as alleged service organizations, which to the best of the editor's knowledge have only served to confuse.

And granted the student political cliques are flourishing, the faculty are not always at ease with each other.

But progress is marked by the great musical and dramatic endeavor, The Vagabond King.

Progress is indicated by increased enrollment and talk of a four year college.

Until continuation in Tuesday's editorial, the editor rests (in peace)!

Accentuate The Positive

Today's Column Was Written By Johnnie Dorris

SHOULD pinball machine popularity increase much more, math instructors will have to start looking for different types of jobs.

This situation wasn't of a serious nature until a few months ago, when the makers of pinball machines went wild and began making the machines with possible scores up in the millions.

It doesn't appear as a dangerous situation on the surface, but one needs only to post himself by a group of pinball machines and watch the math class moron, who can't even add two and two, go to work.

He may be a blank in class, but behind the controls of his favorite machine, he becomes a veritable Einstein, or something, adding and subtracting the hundreds of thousands with little or no effort.

Of course, a solution to this problem could be worked out in several ways by interested math instructors.

One method would be to install a few pinball machines in each of their classes, but instead of having the machines regulated in such a way that millions are needed for a free game, the students could operate the "fixed" machines with only a bare knowledge of fractions.

Another way in which the instructors might save their bread and butter would be for them to divert these pinball fanatics to other types of entertainment, which require little or no knowledge of math.

These ways and means, of course, would mean a certain amount of lowered dignity, so they might not be acceptable, which brings us to the last and most scholarly-like alternative.

Approach the makers of pinball machines and appeal to their more humane characteristics.

Explain to them that by installing these machines around schools and colleges, they are jeopardizing the jobs of all math instructors, who constitute a big share of U.S. instructors, which would only mean increasing the rolls of unemployment.

Maybe, as a last resort, it would be better if all the instructors just threw in the towel to this machine age without a struggle, and instead of trying to fight it, got themselves a few pinball machines to stake out here and there for their livelihood. It might, incidentally, turn out to be a pretty good living.

The only possible conclusion to this whole affair is another question: What chance has mere man got in this age of atomic bombs and pinball machines?

Pinballing Threatens Instructors' Future

Alumni Association May Grab 383 Grads

Urging the 383 prospective graduates of City College to continue past college relationships by joining the Alumni Association, President A. J. Cloud made the following statement recently:

"The organization of a live, effective, and enduring Alumni Association at City College has been regarded by me as an objective of primary importance. Hence, I am deeply interested in learning of the plans now being put into operation for the formation of a City College Alumni Association.

"The record of this college as an institution of learning over the years should be a source of legitimate satisfaction to its large and growing body of graduates and former students. The ties that bind them through their associations with the college will last throughout life. How better can they enjoy the benefits of those relationships than by joining the Alumni Association and actively participating in its program. I commend this movement most heartily and wish for it the highest degree of success."

The 383 who filed petitions to graduate are as follows:

DISCUSSING PLANS FOR THE FUTURE of the Alumni Association, Joe Amori, one of the directors of the association, ponders the list of 383 February graduates. Looking on and libitizing are Jack Hagan, alumni liaison officer, and Lillian Bommaritto, February graduate and potential member of the association. The three are considering the feasibility of inviting all 383 members of the graduating class to join the association immediately upon graduation.

College Hour Meets On Club Schedules Today

City College Be-Boppers Take In Edgewater Band

By Gene Ellison

Progressive jazz lovers of this institution, mainly be-boppers, got their kicks recently as Dizzy Gillespie and band presented a Bop concert at the Edgewater Ballroom that left everyone limp in the knees.

Berets, goatees, and horn rimmed glasses were in prominence, as "The Diz" put on a frantic program of new and old bop tunes, novelty arrangements, and some smooth vocals done by Johnny Hartman.

Snowbound

While City College students thought the cold weather was bad here, Gillespie and band were snowbound for three days at Kearney, Nebraska, en route from New York to make their west coast appearance.

As a result, the outfit missed engagements in Denver, Salt Lake City, and Sacramento, to fill their date at the Edgewater and Oakland Auditorium the following night.

Gillespie and crew, named one of the top three bands in the nation during 1948, put on a show that City College boppers will never forget, or any other bopper as far as that goes.

The well-varied program included such tunes as Emanon, Algobueno, Manteca, Ool-Ya-Koo, Good Bait, Ooh-Bop-Sha-Bam, Ooh-Boppa-Da, and some more recognizable ones as I Can't Get Started, and Day By Day.

Future Brilliant

The band, which has an average age of about 22, includes numerous young musicians who should have a brilliant future ahead of them.

Latest reports reveal that San Francisco and Los Angeles have really thrown out the welcome mat for "The Diz," resulting in a long California stay for the group—everyone is happy.

Rams Seek 15th Win

RAMblings . .

By Walt Roessing

HOW long will the current City College basketball winning streak (14 games now) continue?

The Rams face two comparatively easy foes this week end, then Modesto January 29.

Modesto gave the locals their only real test, succumbing in the final seconds of play, two weeks ago, 45-47.

In the opening round of NCJC conference play the Pirate team, besides the Rams, was the only southern division team to win both its games. The Modesto cagers walloped San Mateo, 68-53, Friday night, and edged Menlo, 37-32 in Saturday's encounter.

In other southern division contests, the Stockton Cubs split a pair, whipping Menlo, 48-38, and being edged out by San Mateo, 59-62.

Forward Johnny O'Boyle of Modesto racked up the most tallies in one game, scoring 21 against San Mateo in a winning cause.

Grant Tech College is setting the pace in the northern division of the conference, taking impressive first round victories over Napa, 56-29, and Vallejo, 57-46. Also holding an early season win over Modesto, Grant Tech looms as the team to beat in its division.

In other sectional tilts Marin squeezed by Yuba, 58-54, only to be trounced the following night by Placer, 47-62.

Sacramento and Santa Rosa each came through with a win, the Panthers whipping Vallejo, 64-43 and the Cubs beating Yuba, 74-55.

Guard Gene Schiller of Yuba racked up the most points in northern division play, dropping in 23 digits against Yuba.

These are the Ramblings' NCJCC picks for the week end. For Friday:
San Mateo over Menlo
Modesto over Hartnell
Stockton over Monterey
Santa Rosa over Sacramento
Grant Tech over Marin
Placer over Vallejo
Yuba over Napa

SATURDAY'S GAMES
CCSF over Menlo
Stockton over Hartnell
Modesto over Monterey
Yuba over Vallejo
Placer over Napa
Grant Tech over Santa Rosa

Cagers Beat War-Drum Against Farm Braves Today, Menlo Here Tomorrow

By Bob Quinlan

Basketball returns to the local hardwoods tomorrow at 8 p.m., when the Rams entertain Menlo Junior College in their first home conference game. Today the locals trek to Palo Alto where they will meet the Stanford Braves at 3 p.m.

The Rams will attempt to make the Braves victim number 15 on their unblemished record. The fact that City College defeated the Cal Blues, conquerors of the Braves, should make them pre-game favorites.

Menlo's hail club is much improved over the one that was trounced by the Rams, 57-32 in the championship game of the Cow Palace's Preliminary Tourney. The Oaks were barely edged out by Modesto, a team rated on par with the locals, last Saturday night, 32-37.

In the Modesto Tourney, Menlo was eliminated in the first round, 37-41 by John Muir, which was later defeated by City College, 51-41.

Tomorrow night's game with the Oaks will provide local casaba fans with an opportunity to see City College's greatest basketball team.

The Rams, the Bay Area's only undefeated collegiate cage team, will again feature Dud Truelson's deadly shooting, Kev Duggan's offensive following, Bob Payne's drive-in shots under the basket, and the outstanding defensive work of Bob Metheny and Jim Caldwell.

HELPING THE RAM CAGERS in their race for conference championship are reserve hoopsters Marty Schneider (with ball), and Bob Mingee. The basketball team meets the Stanford Bravas in a non-conference game at the Stanford pavilion today at 3 p.m.

WAA Booth Wins Mardi Gras Prize

Women's Athletic Association members took the spotlight at last Friday night's Mardi Gras by winning first prize for their cleverly designed booth, Shirley Austin, president, declared yesterday.

The winning exhibit was fashioned in western style, complete with cowboy and long horned steer.

Ring toss was played on the prairie animal's horns, and those attending the Mardi Gras tried their best to spear balloons attached to the realistic frontier man.

Intra Individual Team Wins Listed

By Frank Galo

Intramural Director Tom Wilson began a hunt today for managers to replace the retiring triumvirate, and urged anyone interested to file application now. The job carries full physical education credit, Wilson said.

Balboa Alumni Athletic Club will receive the President Cloud Trophy for their outstanding achievements in the intramural world.

In the major sports, Larry Baldocchi copped the basketball scoring title with 97 points, while Harvey Roscelli was the best gridster in the recent football tourney.

Ralph Hillsman's Ram Heads won first place basketball buckles, and Leo Bucciarelli's Balboa Alumni AC won second honors.

Football honors will be bestowed on Don Mallen's Balboa Wildcats and Tom Jocz's Falcons, runner-ups to the championship Wildcat team.

Receiving first place awards for individual sports will be Walt Hallquist, horse shoes singles; Rudy Pfister and Bob Clark, horse shoes doubles; Tom Kellog, tennis singles; Tom Kellor and Joe Nottenius, tennis doubles; Bill Burgess, badminton singles; Bob Frazier and Andy Divodi, badminton doubles; Don Becker, ping pong singles; Ray White and Nick Cannull, ping pong doubles.

Boxers KO State, Face Spartans Next

By Clarence Hurlbert

Tag Tutor Roy Diederichsen yesterday prescribed heavy duty with emphasis on conditioning for his fistic charges from now on.

Last week, the Rams took the measure of S. F. State's pugilists, 4-2 in a six bout program rematch, yet failed to impress in their third intercollegiate outing.

Two fights on the originally scheduled card of eight scraps were cancelled, both squads forfeiting single encounters.

In the curtain raiser, Johnny Fisher staved off a dogged bid by Gator Sal Solina to take the 125 pound nod.

Joe Veaucasavic copped a close verdict from Will Abbott in the welter feature which had the sparse gathering rooting 'em home.

State's Mike De Gregorio was awarded a unanimous decision over rugged Nick Canull, 155, in a riotfest.

Portsider Don Gephart, 165, scored too often and too hard to edge taller Darrel Victor to tally for the Gators.

Well timed hard shots brought triumph to Dean Bender in the 175 pound light heavy clash with the visitors' rangy Dick Boyd.

The anticipated heavyweight mixup saw local favorite Frank Suenga pound out an expected win from cross-towner Gene Fackler.

Diederichsen's battlers get the clout call next as host to San Jose State's Spartans on Wednesday, January 26.

Win a POSTGRADUATE COURSE IN AVIATION

PLUS AN IMPORTANT $4000-A-YEAR ASSIGNMENT

INTERVIEWING TEAM COMING SOON!

Few opportunities open to college upperclassmen can match this one! Here's a chance to get both flying and executive experience with the world's leader in Aviation—the U. S. Air Force.

If you can qualify, you join a select group of college men for 52 weeks Aviation Cadet-Pilot Training—with pay.

When you complete the course, you get your wings and a commission in the Air Force Reserve . . . up to $336 a month pay . . . a vitally important 3-year assignment as pilot with a crack Air Force squadron.

A special interviewing team will be on campus to tell you more about it and to give preliminary qualifying examinations. Stop in after class and talk it over with the pilots themselves.

If you wish, you may sign up now and finish your schooling before starting your training.

HERE ARE THE REQUIREMENTS:

You must be a male citizen; between 20 and 26½ years old, physically sound, and have at least two years of college (or be able to pass the equivalent examination administered by the interviewing team). Both single and married men may now apply.

HERE'S WHERE TO GO FOR DETAILS:

Columnist Goes National In Scope, Defends Acheson's Job As Statesman

By Roy Pasini

ALTHOUGH the main spotlight in Washintgon, D. C. was no doubt trained on Harry S. Truman's inaugural ceremony yesterday, the point which attracted our attention was that concerning the new Secretary of State, Dean Gooderham Acheson, who also assumed his official duties as of January 20.

President Truman's selection of the man with the bushy red mustache, which caused quite a bit of fuss among several Republican Senators a few weeks back, made good copy for newspapers throughout the country.

During all his years in the capital city, Acheson has been branded almost everything ranging from a liberal to a conservative.

HE "LEFT" THEM

So, when he was called before the Senate because of alleged "leftist" tendencies, he was asked what his views on Russia were, and also whether the State Department shift foreshadowed a change in the U.S.'s get-tough policy with Russia.

Had these competent Senators bothered to take a look at the records, they would have known where Acheson stood. He has always branded Russia's foreign policy as "aggressive and expansionist" as well as giving his full support to the U.S.'s anti-Communist drive in both Europe and Asia.

Yet, because he admitted that he was a close friend of Alger Hiss—currently under indictment for perjury—the boys used that as one of their reasons for giving Acheson a good going over before they confirmed his appointment as Secretary of State.

Why a man must have his name thrown around loosely by the nation's headline writers before he assumes one of the country's largest and messiest jobs is beyond us.

Now all the poor fellow has to do is make one tiny slip and he is back in print with a lot of people assuming a lot of nasty things.

CLEAN UP MAYBE

It has been said, by intimates of the State Department's new boss, that he has a low regard for many of the people now drawing checks from this department, and a house cleaning would not come as too much of a surprise.

Sounds like a very sound move. To date the State Dept's boys haven't even been able to keep things at home running cheerfully, much less abroad as far as our foreign policy goes.

Speaking of our foreign policy, Acheson's stepping into the top spot should not bring about any drastic changes for, after all, he was in on the Marshall Plan since its inception.

In fact, the whole set-up could be compared to the local situation on campus. Many new faces will appear in student government hereabouts, but nothing revolutionary will come out of these policy makers.

VA Clarifies Tax Regulations

Disability compensation, pension or subsistence allowance paid by Veterans Administration to veterans or their dependents are not considered as income for income tax purposes, the Veterans Administration reported yesterday.

Income that student-veterans may earn on part-time jobs while attending City College full time, or earn while on-the-job training, is subject to taxation under existing tax laws.

Also subject to taxation is the earned income of veterans, or their dependents, who are drawing disability compensation or pension. Only the compensation or pension paid by the Veterans Administration is tax-exempt.

French Department To Stage Play

Marking the first production sponsored by the French department, Le Cerèle Francais will present Le Cuvier (the washtub) in the student lounge Wednesday and Thursday, January 26 and 27, Doris Hernreid, sponsor, announced.

The one-act play which will be done in French dialogue with an explanatory prologue, will be performed by Wayne Parkin, Jane Howarth, Cam Thonas and Walt Kalante, Gerry Schmale, and Doris Olson.

One matinee and two evening performances are scheduled. Starting at 3 and 8, the play will have its premier Wednesday evening, with two shows following on Thursday.

Heat And Hot Water Sooth Frigid Students

In answer to urgent pleas for more heat from frostbitten residents of campus dormitories, Fred McFarland, college housing administrator, announced Wednesday that the buildings are now being heated two additional hours each day.

In addition, to increase physical comfort resulting from the new heating schedule which became effective last week, dormitory dwellers are assured a larger supply of hot water for early-morning ablutions, laundry endeavors and showers.

According to engineers at the west campus boiler room, under the new arrangement, heat is being supplied to dormitories from 5 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Benefits Open To Vets

State benefit certificates will be issued to eligible veterans, Tuesday, January 25, F. Grant Marsh, head counselor, announced. Veterans should bring photostatic copies of their discharge.

Goldman Protests Free Membership To Grads

By Arnold Solkov

Sam Goldman, Associated Student member, addressed Tuesday's Student Council meeting questioning the authorized issuance of gratis life time membership in the Associated Students to deserving members of City College student government.

Goldman did not agree with the intended policy of the Student Council.

"The motion read that any graduate student who participated in college government would be eligible to obtain such a card. Since the council merely represents the wishes of the Associated Students, I do not believe that it is the wish of the student body to throw away approximately $200 each year for the free cards," Goldman stated.

"All are, in effect, members of the student government since the council is a representative body. Therefore, as members of the government, the entire student body would be eligible for free cards," Goldman added.

(The council action was published in The Guardsman, Tuesday, October 26.)

Jack Hagan, Alumni Association liaison officer, said that it is the function of the association to incorporate graduate students in future college social activities.

"Any move by the council awarding a functional membership in future college activities to a graduated student would defeat the purpose of the Alumni Association," Hagan said.

Dean Jack Brady commented that it might be "unfriendly" for a student who devotes time while in college to be denied entrance to college social functions after graduation, simply because he does not hold an Associated Student card.

Thrills, chills, and spills of life in the great outdoors will be portrayed in The Fifth Winter Olympiad, a Standard Oil film, to be shown in Room 136 after college hour today, Madison Devlin announced.

"Sport fans should see this film," Devlin added, "which shows contestants from all over the world in Switzerland competing for international honors in skiing, ice skating, and bobsleding."

Fisher Highlights Golden Gloves

Classy bantam Johnny Fisher's outstanding show stealing effort against rugged Ken Sato highlighted the college's first annual Golden Glove slugfests staged last Monday night before a meager but well satisfied crowd in the men's gymnasium.

Student League Landslide; Isola Wins

The Guardsman
VOLUME XXVII SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1949 NUMBER 25

League Snags Nine Seats On Council; Frats Get Five

By Al Gamma

Highlighted by the election of Pete Isola to the office of Associated Student President, and a Student League party landslide, elections were run off last Wednesday and Thursday with a total of 917 ASCCSF card holders casting ballots.

Isola, the Student League standard bearer, polled 413 votes, while Jim Fernhoff, Fraternity candidate, and George Capanis, independent, totaled 263 and 210 votes respectively.

In the Vice-Presidential contest Corinne Lambert won over Bea Groger by an 81 vote margin. Miss Lambert compiled the highest vote total of any individual opposed candidate, 456; Miss Groger polled 375.

Harry Williams (328) was successful in his quest for the office of Associated Men Student President as he defeated his opponent, Dale Fritz (244).

Barbara McBride and Larry Weber were automatically elected Associated Women Student President and Yell Leader, respectively, since neither faced any opposition.

Dale Butterfield (406) nosed out Money Hickman (390) for the office of Sophomore Class President by a scant margin of 16 votes.

Jack Kearns (435) was victorious over Edward Botsford (295) in the race for the Freshman Class Presidency.

Gene Ellison, Theodore Glasnow, Jack Gallisdorfer, Kurt Levi, Jeanne Marsh, Orville Luster and Teddy Malavazos were successful in their bids for seats on the Sophomore Council.

The new Freshman Council will line up as follows: Elmer McGrau, William Rosaia, Gloria Bonitz, Norman Reger, Gardner Strong, Helene Steuer and Helen Stoker.

PETE ISOLA, president-elect, who swept into office with the Student League landslide, praised interest in student government and elections.

New President Lauds Student Body For Vote

Smiling Pete Isola, president-elect of the Associated Students, early Friday declared, "This is not a victory over the Fraternities, nor is it a victory of the Student League, but rather a victory for understanding of all students on the campus."

Isola further pointed out that he believes the Student Council represents a healthy cross-section of the Associated Students.

"I feel that this is an indication of greater student interest in campus government and elections," Isola said.

Sincerely expressing his thanks to those students, who voted him into office, Isola added, "I would appreciate having students with suggestions for campus improvements approach me and the Student Council next semester, as I feel that we have been elected to do just that."

CORINNE LAMBERT, independent candidate, who won the vice-presidency by a 456 count to 375 for Bea Groger, present incumbent, stated that she would do her best to complete a successful social calendar for the Spring 1949 semester. Miss Lambert added, "I wish to thank every one that voted for me for this high student office."

Award Rally, Guardsman Ring Curtain On Semester Activities

"All's well that ends well," and true, The Guardsman, ending its twenty-seventh consecutive semester of publication, with this issue, plans to lock up shop and bring a successful close to the Fall 1948 semester.

Significant to the ending of a semester, the semi-annual awards, given to outstanding students for meritorious service in college activities, will be presented at college hour, 10:40 a.m., Friday, January 28.

Assistant Dean of Men Jack Brady announced that college hour Friday, February 4, would be cancelled by the final examination schedule.

Students taking final exams are assured by Lawrence Wong, instructor of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, that the cafeteria will continue service from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. during the last week of the semester.

During registration, serving hours are 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Wong also added the fountain will maintain regular hours during finals, but would be closed throughout registration.

Beta Tau will present a similar trophy to the soph queen. The smaller cups are personal awards to the winners at the Coronation Ball, Saturday, January 29.—Photo by Howe.

Profs Edge Sophs In Hoop Tilt 15-12; Batmale Stars

By Larry Baldocchi

With shouts of "excitement" from the fans ringing in their ears, the intellectual professors of the college outplayed a determined but ragged sophomore team by a score of 15-12. The tilt took place last Friday, January 21, in the men's gymnasium during the college hour.

Even though the soph squad put their three team system into action, it still was not enough to wear down the elite profs.

Spear-heading the profs' attack was diminutive, but mighty, Lou "Hotshot" Batmale, who took high point honors for the day with a grand total of five points. Batmale was closely followed by his teammate Grover "Tarzan" Klemmer, and the sophs' Lou Pasani who both tallied four points.

Among the professors who turned out for the game were Roy Burkhead, Lou Batmale, Tom Wilson (who incidentally made three points), Grover Klemmer, George Baffico, Roy Diederichsen and Harry Buttimer, who was outstanding for his smooth and clever ball handling.

Turning to the brighter side of things, which means the soph team, we find that the over-flowing vitality of these reckless and daring youngsters was not enough to subdue the accurate long range shooting of the profs.

—Point-makers for the little tots were Walt Roessing, with two points; Bill Hanson, two points; Bob Simonian, three points; Schwiern, one point, and Pasani, four points.

Summer Session For 1949 Cancelled

The summer session, part of the college calendar in previous years will be discontinued this year, according to Dr. A. J. Cloud, college president.

The summer semester was inaugurated several years ago so that veterans could take advantage of an accelerated program. However, with the drop in veteran enrollments, it is believed that the purpose of these special sessions has now been fulfilled.

"The anticipated enrollment would not be sufficient to warrant a full program," President Cloud said in making the announcement.

Another advantage to discontinuance of the summer semester is that it will allow workmen to make needed repairs to the interior of the buildings of the campus, he added.

Policy Is Announced For Library Books Between Semesters

Library books may be kept over the period between semesters, if stamped on or after Monday, January 24, Marcus Skarstedt, head librarian, disclosed yesterday.

Beginning Monday, January 24, books will be stamped for three weeks, allowing students a week's extension over the usual two week period.

This is a new policy of the library and Skarstedt hopes all books will be returned at the stamped date.

All books due prior to Monday, February 14, will be overdue, and students who have not returned their books by then will be assessed for the delinquent period. These students will not receive their grades and will not be able to register until the amount is paid, Skarstedt warned.

French Club Sponsors Play Tomorrow Night

French humor, in the form of The Washtubs, a one-act play, will be presented in the student lounge tomorrow evening at 8 p.m., and Thursday at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m., Doris Hernreid, French Club sponsor announced.

The farce, concerning a henpecked husband, will be done in French dialogue by two casts. An explanatory prologue will preeede the show, so that those attending without any knowledge of the language can understand the proceedings, Miss Hernreid declared.

The play will be the first presentation sponsored by the French department.

Members of Le Cercle Francais compose the dual casts. One group consists of Wayne Parkin, Jane Howarth and Cam Thomas, while the other trio is made up of Walt Kalante, Gerry Schmale and Doris Olson.

Sophomore Class Presents Formal Dance This Saturday Evening

Bringing the social season to a close, the Sophomore class presents its semi-annual Sophomore Formal this Saturday, January 29, at Oakland Scottish Rite Auditorium between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m.

Royalty is the theme, as the winning King and Queen will be crowned by the Sophomore class, climaxing one of the most colorful dances given by City College this year. At midevening the victorious couple will receive personal loving cups, given by the Sophomore class and perpetual trophies, given by Beta Tau and Theta Tau.

Jackson Terry and his orchestra, well known band from Oakland, will feature an enjoyable evening of musical entertainment.

Bids for the semi-annual event are priced at $1.50 per couple, and may be obtained at the student bank in the main building, according to Dick Fetherstonhaugh, Sophomore class president.

Members of the dance committee, Maria Wilson-Walker, Bob McVey, George Capanis, and Bernie Davis, who are making preparations for the formal event, stated that apparel for the evening should be tuxedos or dark suits for men and formals for the ladies. Corsages also are in order.

The winning King and Queen were selected by vote in December and will be named at the ball. Queen candidates were Phyllis Ryan, Marvelle Sneider, Mary Ann Stewart, Gloria Beetz, Muriel Schumacher, Veronica Morrison, Inge Menders and Elgene Wheeler.

King hopefuls were Bill Koenig, Oliver Bascom, Ben Clothier, Doug Wilson, Larry Wakefield, Hank Schaffner and Tony Bruno.

Free refreshments will be served during the evening, with free checking of garments at everyone's service, all of which is gratis from the Sophomore class. Photographers will be available for pictures upon request.

Faculty members who have guided Sophomore officers in their activities are Nancy Sparks and Waddington Blair.

For those who don't get around much in the East Bay area, Fetherstonhaugh added, Scottish Rite Auditorium is located at 1547 Oak Street by the shores of Lake Merritt in Oakland.

Floriculture Wins Honors

City College floriculture classes have been awarded the Certificate of the National Garden Institute for outstanding service in the field of gardening, it was announced today.

The message was contained in a letter received by President A. J. Cloud.

The certificate is now being inscribed and will be sent here as soon as possible.

The National Garden Institute is known as one of the most important of its kind in the country. Famous personalities such as novelist Louis Bromfield, and Lloyd C. Stark, former governor of Missouri, are on its staff.

Many other prizes and certificates have been awarded to the college's floriculture classes in previous times; among them, 1st prize at both the 1917 and 1918 Spring Garden and Flower Shows which were held in Oakland.

Selection of the student to receive the Alice Eastwood scholarship has not been made. The award, being offered for the first time in the spring semester, will be given to an outstanding student each quarter hereafter by the Garden Club.

Parking, Women Helpers News Given

Spring semester west campus auto passes will be "drawn from a hat," Dean Edward Sandys, said today. Meanwhile, Dean Margaret Dougherty urged all women who want to help at registration to see her immediately.

Part II-The Editor Folds Up With Reflection, Suggestions and Thanks

CONTINUING with the editorial soliloquy that started in last Friday's edition, this "thinking aloud" expression of the editor will deal in the main with improvements which could be made around the campus.

With final tabulations on the election compiled, perhaps, an improvement already has been accomplished. Remembering the beginning of this semester quite clearly, when the editor's election to his present post was hotly contested by the then vindictive political winners, the editor feels somewhat gratified at last week's election results.

Since the editor (then managing editor and author of the column entitled the "Soothsayer"), with tirades of slander and claims of bias in The Guardsman directed against him, dared the "holier-than-thou" Fraternity campus power, and printed the TRUTH, he now says, "OKAY, THE STUDENTS VOTED IN THE STUDENT LEAGUE. NOW LET'S GIVE THEM A CHANCE TO SHOW WHAT THEY HAVE."

For more improvements, we might suggest closer cooperation of the Publications Board with the very capable Assistant Dean of Men, in order to make very sure that the name of the college or any official organization is not used in any way that would cast negative reflections on the Associated Students.

In the editor's past two and one-half years with The Guardsman, a student co-operative has been continually supported with all forms of news coverage. This coming semester would be the ideal time to install an actual "money-maker," while giving excellent "reduced rate" service to the Associated Students.

How about a medical service, such as most Bay area colleges have, that insures free medical and hospital care with the purchase of an Associated Student card?

We sincerely hope that City College will soon move forward in high gear!

In closing, the editor wishes to express his gratitude to those co-workers, who started beginning Journalism with him, Jack Hulse, executive editor; H. N. Bishop, managing editor; Bill Franklin, staff editor; Ed Roper, feature editor, and Barbara Culvyhouse, late of The Guardsman, present of the Daily Cal.

Schmoo Philosophy Under Fire; Capitalism "Safe"

By Nancy Loughlin

WE have to get this column from someplace, y'know . . . so, last Tuesday evening we listened to the radio.

It seems there is some sort of little animal invading the country these days who has come in for a lot of publicity—the little creature is known as a Schmoo.

The local brand of Schmoo resides in nearby Hurley Village in its own capitalistic plot of ground known as Schmooville.

According to their creator, Al Capp—guest speaker on Town Meeting of the Air—Schmoos reside throughout the earth, and, like the earth, there is plenty for everybody.

All of these features are embodied in a happy philosophy with which Capp parallels the advantages of the Schmoo—free dairy products to all—with promises of a middle-of-the road capitalism.

This philosophy has come under a lot of target fire in its short history, just as any philosophy will undergo in its fight to make a mark in the world.

Certain segments claim that Schmoos are defeating their purpose—they are not the epitome of an ideal capitalistic system such as they purport, but are actually enemies of the free enterprise system.

This last is based on the evidence that Schmoos deprive people of the need to work through providing them with the basic necessities of life . . . anyone who can get fried chicken and broiled steak by merely looking at a Schmoo is sure to develop a well-rounded case of ergophobia (aversion to work) . . . such is the assumption.

Other segments of the population are averse to Schmoo philosophy in that it is definitely counter-revolutionary . . . with enough dairy products free to all, people will forget their radical tendencies, and revert to reactionary thinking.

Mr. Capp has written a book entitled The Life and Habits of the Schmoo. Coupled with his enlightening talk on Town Meeting of the Air, it appears that capitalism is in for another few years of healthy monopoly.

Twelfth Night Review Shows Play Well Done

Me thinks should Willy Shakespeare have been present for his production of the Twelfth Night, the ancient bard's bones would have cackled with delight at the interpretation presented by the college players under the direction of Paul Ellison, drama instructor.

Save for the usual stress of working in difficult circumstances for drama productions, the Shakespearean comedy, after a slow start, moved to a satisfying finis.

Opening night at the Little (and we do mean little) Theatre packed in 120 customers, who jammed their way to the one exit, gratified at witnessing an excellent performance of comedy as acted by City College students.

Tabbed for top honors for sheer comedy were Richard Vreeland, as the foolish and somewhat effeminate knight Sir Andrew Aguecheek; Charles Paniagua (opening night performer in a dual casting) who portrayed the clown; and Richard Totaro in the part of Malvolio, the somewhat primped steward.

As the plot is a series of coincidence and happy endings (everyone gets a girl), the progression of the play is relegated to unimportance.

Supporting the three standout characters with dramatics mixed with comedy were Mary Ann Stewart, (opening night performer in dual casting) as Viola, sister of Sebastian; Don Landers, Sebastian, sister of Viola, who were incidentally twins in the play; Jack Hulse, with a real impressionistic performance, as the Duke of Orsino and Rosalyn Mincer, (opening night performer in a dual casting) as Olivia, the Countess.

Miss Stewart's acting ability is one of promise.

The slowness of scene changing was rather disconcerting to the audience as well as the inability of the spectators in the rear of the "theatre" to see the stage.

Director Ellison, being from England, did an admirable job of training his entourage of actors in the way of the British accent, you know. However, the rapidity in which some of the more humorous lines were spoken tended to make them difficult to understand from the back rows.

Although critics agree that Shakespeare became quite bawdy in spots, the case of the players in presenting the "questionable stuff" was carried off in a pleasing manner.

Perhaps because of the closeness of the room, the audience reaction at times was relief, when an intermission came. Generally it seemed however, that the production could be somewhat abridged. As the opening scenes moved along slowly (opening night jitters taken into consideration), it seems quite feasible that a condensation would be an improvement. Two and one-half hours of uncomfortable seating definitely makes the audience not quite as receptive to the comedy.

Others in the cast, who put on good performences were Barbara Andress as Maria, Olivia's woman; Ramon Rhine, who portrayed with genuine dramatic ability the part of Antonio, a sea captain and friend of Sebastian; Jack Jones, very familiar to the audiences of City College productions as Sir Toby Belch, uncle to Olivia, and generally inebriated, and Dave Irvine as Fabian, servant to Olivia.

Twelfth Night's four night stand ends tonight.—H.M.L.

Lensman Shoots For Skiers, Plays "Fall Guy" In The Snow

By Johnnie Dorris

Come rain or snow, The Guardsman photographer must come through.

This statement was confirmed recently when a well-known camera bug was asked to get some shots of ski jumpers in action for a story concerning an intercollegiate ski meet, Saturday, February 12, in which the Ram ski team is participating.

His duty, he discovered much to his dismay, required climbing a steep mountain all covered with snow.

Comes the dawn, the flicker hound can't ski, and try as he might, the job was entirely too much for shod feet.

Taking his camera in hand, which seemed appropriate at the moment, the ever-ready photographer went to work.

Many bruises and lacerations later, the not-too-fearless photographer found himself perched at the bottom of the precarious descent.

Some hours later the pictures of beautiful snow, and likewise the beautiful girls, developed perfectly, but what about the ski jumpers?

Well, there remains one more negative to be printed, and it might just possibly be a skier caught in the act.

Letters to the Editor

● Fan Mail

Editor, The Guardsman:

Cloaking your worst intentions with words out of the mouths of intellectually-superior Stanford editors, you have managed quite neatly to abandon any neutral editorial policy which the campus paper should at least profess to follow.

Obviously your tirade against fraternities in the Friday, January 14, issue of The Guardsman, was intended as a "shrewd" political move. You evidently regard any member of a fraternal organization who runs on the IFC ticket as a potential idiot, incapable of efficient administration. And you go on to include, by innuendo, fraternity members who run independently, with the best interests of the college at heart.

I am a great admirer of your writing ability, but I think it's a shame when an editor sees fit to lower the prestige of his publication by printing an editorial which is intended to sway opinion at election time.

"IMPARTIAL"—that's the word for you to remember.

It is also evident that you have forgotten that The Guardsman is financially supported by the Associated Students as a whole, and therefore the students expect an unbiased editorial policy.

Jeanne Marsh
A.S. Card No. 1478

(Editor's Note: Reader Marsh's harsh clairvoyance seems to have gone so far as to read things into the editorial that do not exist. For the life of us, we cannot see where we regard any IFC backed candidate as a "potential idiot" and "incapable of efficient administration." Really, Miss Marsh, we don't think you're a POTENTIAL idiot. (Reader Marsh ran for Sophomore Council on the IFC ticket.) But, "intellectually superior Stanford editors"—Bah!)

● Free AS Cards

Editor, The Guardsman:

On October 21, 1948, the Student Council passed a motion whereby the former members of "student government" were given life time free passes to Associated Student affairs.

When the council passes such motions as giving themselves "awards," they should think of the students' views and not only of their own individual interests.

Prior to the passage of this motion, the President of the Associated Students was the only person to receive such a pass. The council members received a key, as did the president. This was the token of appreciation from the students to the council members.

I hope that the council will consider this problem as rational individuals and persons representing the college and not their own special interests.

● Blow-Out

Editor, The Guardsman:

After suffering my second flat tire in the parking lot adjoining the auditorium, I've become a little peeved. When the helpful souls who arranged the railroad ties around in seemly strategic positions, didn't they give a thought to picking up the spikes and nails that go with the ties? I know they didn't pick them up, just curious to see if the idea entered their minds.

Bitter, who's bitter? Hell's bells, I need the exercise.

Bring Joy To Others Is Tom Welch's Life Theme

By Richard Allen

Tom Welch, tall, silver-haired janitor at City College, has a hobby—bringing happiness to others.

After a long series of family misfortunes (as told by Herb Caen in his column in The Chronicle, December 10) Tom was filled with a determination to help others spending long, dull stretches in hospitals.

He bought a movie projector, and begged, borrowed, and rented films. Now he spends all his spare time touring the various hospitals.

Recently, aid came to Welch in his humanitarian work in the person of Walter Rivers of the Castle Film Company, who has promised Tom all the films he needs.

Bringing happiness to others has been Tom's hobby for the last 14 years. Each year he tours the city soliciting toys and depositing them at fire stations where they are given as gifts to make Christmas a little happier for the city's underprivileged kids.

Some years back, Tom was quite an actor—appearing with such actors as Warner Baxter, Frankie Darro, and Myrna Loy.

Another of Tom's long-time actor friends is Richard Lew; they graduated together from Sacred Heart College in 1923.

Cagers Winning Streak Holds; Pirates, Cubs Next On Ram Schedule

By Bob Quinlan

City College's yet to be beaten cagers entertain the highly touted Modesto Pirates next Saturday night in what should prove to be a basketball natural.

The Stockton Cubs invade the local court Friday night when they furnish the Rams with their fourth conference contest. Tipoff time for both games is 8 p.m.

Modesto, currently sharing first place in the Southern division with the Rams, will be out to avenge their two point loss at the hands of the locals last January 8 that cost them the Modesto Tourney title.

The Pirates have a three man scoring punch in forward Ken Milo, center Lee Wade, and guard Johnny O'Boyle. Wade and O'Boyle gained berths on the Modesto Tournament's all-tourney team, as did City College's Dud Truelsen and Bob Payne. O'Boyle, by the way, was picked as the tourney's outstanding player.

Third place Stockton has a conference record of three wins and one defeat, at the hands of San Mateo. The Cubs are paced by high scoring forward Sam Gelleges, a product of Pittsburg High School.

In the aforementioned Modesto Tourney, Stockton defeated Lassen, 54-55, before being eliminated by Long Beach, 48-5. The next day Long Beach was defeated by the Rams, 51 to 66.

The local quintet racked up two unimpressive victories last weekend when they defeated the Stanford Braves, 53-42, at Palo Alto Friday afternoon and Menlo Junior College, 42-36, Saturday night in the men's gymnasium.

At this writing the Rams have 16 successive games to their credit. (The result of last night's tilt with the USF Frosh was too late for this edition.)

DON (15) AND BOB PAYNE (10), the college's outstanding athletic twins, drop two shots through the mesh in a recent cage practice session. Don was All-Tournament and most valuable defensive player in the Cow Palace tourney, while Bob made the All-Tournament five at Modesto.

Lamb Hoopsters Face St. Francis Tonight

City College's junior varsity basketball team encounters the St. Francis casabans tonight in the Balboa High School gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

Seeking their fourth straight win, the other three all triumphs through default, the Lambs are pointing for the championship of the San Francisco Recreation Department Basketball Tournament.

Through league regulations, now posted in the men's gymnasium, suitable awards will be presented winning and runner-up teams after the four league champions playoff, to determine finalist clubs.

Intra Title To Balboans

By Frank Galo

Balboa Alumni Athletic Club will be presented the coveted President Cloud Intramural Perpetual Trophy by Director Tom Wilson in a special award assembly Friday during college hour in the auditorium.

Last semester the Block SF narrowly edged the Balboa men, but this semester the Balboa organization dominated all sports with Tom Joce's Faleons giving strong opposition for over-all honors.

The cup winners sponsored five basketball teams, five volleyball squads, two football teams, and 19 men in various individual sports.

Ralph Hillsman broke the Balboa monopoly somewhat by having his Ram Heads defeat Balboa Alumni, 22-28, for the basketball title. The Ram Heads will be presented with gold belt buckles for their effort.

The Falcons came close to halting the Balboa victory parade but dropped a 6-0 decision to the Balboa Wildcats for the football crown.

Late last week the volleyball race was still wide open with two Balboa teams, the Blues and the Wildcats, in the semi-finals. The pesty Falcons were still in the race trying to knock their rival Balboa clubs out. The champions will be honored at Friday's rally.

In individual sports, out of sixteen possibilities, Balboa captured three first place awards and ten second place honors. Walt Hellquist downed Jim Leaskou for the horse shoe title. Hallquist was sponsored by the Hotel and Restaurant division.

Ski Rams To Compete In Conference Meet

City College's Ski Racing team will journey to Cisco Grove, California, to compete in the Northern California Junior College Conference Ski Tournament on Saturday and Sunday, February 12-13.

Ski enthusiists racing for the Rams are Captain Vernon Dallman, Bud Taylor, Bill Johnson, John Townsky, Earl Simpkin, and Henk Schaffner.

The Rams have entered events in the slalom, giant slalom, jumping, and cross country.

This will be the first postwar year that the ski racing team has been entered in such competition with other two year colleges.

Ram Boxers Post Spartans; Fisher Top Gloves' Ace

By Clarance Hurlbert

San Jose State's Spartans, defending Pacific Coast champions, offer the first major obstacle to Roy Diederichsen's Ram boxers in their nine bout mitt meet tomorrow night in the men's gymnasium, starting at 8 o'clock.

In last season's clout carnival with the visitors, the local warriors dropped the duke, 13½-10½, and the Spartans wound up third in the national standings.

Golden Gloves Results

Bantam Johnny Fisher's trophy winning stint featured the varsity-dominated Golden Gloves inaugural spectacle last week, witnessed by some 500 fistic faithful.

Ken Sato and sharp jabbing Fisher opened the hostilities with the latter, exhibiting plenty of class, a unanimous choice at the finish.

String bean featherweight Len Garcia barely edged intramural ace Dick Spargo in their free swinging 126 pound clash.

Bob Piersou thumped novice champ Wayne Bartlett in a well-matched 132 pound scrap.

Jerry Stern took welter honors with an early the first round win over Don Gerich.

In a regular pier-sixer, Joe Veaucasavic staged a dogged comeback to put rugged Larry Schubert away at the end of two heats.

Canuli Takes Middleweight

Crafty Nick Canuli connected with solid body shots to wear down Joe Jackson, 155, to annex middleweight laurels.

Darrel Victor copped the light heavy crown with a slim margin verdict over Neil Shelmerdine.

Squat Oscar Brown outclassed Dean Bender in their rousing 175 pound kingpin tussle.

In the windup, varsity stalwart Frank Sueuga dumped elongated Jim O'Hare midway in the last session of their one-sided mixup.

"Battle Of Ages" In Two Acts; Profs Vs. Sophs And Cartickets Vs. Ride

WITH the elections over and done with, approximately 1457 rabid followers of the hardwood sport trekked down to the gym during the college hour last Friday to witness a bitterly contested tussle between the Faculty and Sophomore Class basketball teams.

The profs, shooting and hitting from all angles for a blazing 15-12 win, were definitely crowd pleasers and in the best of condition—the latter probably because of the strict training rules set down by Coach Jack "I'm Smiling Again" Brady.

Questioned after the game as to his boys' fine playing condition, Brady just grinned and said, "The boys have been waiting for this one all season and were really high before the tip-off."

In the soph dressing room all was quiet. The boys dressed hurriedly in order to avoid the slashing tongue of Coach George Capanis who declared, "Those hamburgers of mine fell apart when the pressure was on. I think some of them were approached by gamblers. They had thought it was all for laughs but the strain was too much when they heard money was riding on the outcome."

"WE WUZ ROBBED"

The sophs felt an injustice had been done to them and a rumor was circulating about the campus that they would protest the game. The student element will demand an explanation of the 13 minute first half and the 15 minute second half of play.

The younger set feels that the game was extended two minutes in order to give the profs a chance to go ahead, and that they did.

Official comment from timekeeper Fred Kelly reads as follows, "Both coaches agreed on an 11:20 time limit so the game was officially over at 11:20 a.m. It's as simple as all that!"

The true blame though should probably be laid upon the faculty's ineurable habit of running all their meetings with students overtime.

BATTLE OF AGES—PART TWO

Going along with the battle of the ages is a word from a local administrator who states that, lately, some users of car tickets have been refused passage because they are over 18.

The spokesman advised all students who become ensnarled in such a situation to flash their AS card, but to remain pleasant at all times for the operator is the sole captain of his ship.

Students Need Foot Work Stamina, When Registering

By Dick Brennan

Registration, an indoor sport requiring great stamina, courage, and fast foot work, is almost with us again. Sometimes known as, hold-on-to-your-hat-boys — here-we-go-again, this trying period of college life is marked by many hazards.

Amid the mad confusion, we find an engineering student desperately trying to avoid taking an English course on 18th Century poets and their love life. At the same time an English major fights frantically to escape Construction and Metallic Components of the Bay Bridge.

A dewy eyed young Ramette carefully checks the ratio of men to women in a prospective class while a husky football player enrolls in Sewing 1a in order to meet that certain blonde.

This is, of course, just a general idea of the picture. The real danger to the mental health of students comes in trying to figure out the time schedule.

A cross between a railroad time table and an income tax form, this schedule requires a great deal of consideration. No two classes at the same time is the general rule. Slide rules are, of course, out.

One system is to fold the schedule carefully and stick a pin through it, then take every other course with a pin hole in it. (Personally we don't consider this too reliable.) Another method is to take the square root of the day of the month and take only courses with a corresponding number of units. Of course if you don't know how to do square root you will have to think of your own system.

One more thing to keep in mind is studying (a combination of two latin words, stu meaning this is dull as hell, and dying meaning well I've got to do it sometime.) The more units the more studying.

Higher education is a fine thing, we always say. What do you always say?

Final Grades Ready After Spring Semester

Final grades will not be available until after spring semester registration, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said today.

Those students who will not be returning for the Spring semester are advised by the registrar's office to leave a stamped, self addressed envelope in the registrar's office, and grades will be mailed to them.

Enrollment Dates For New Semester Revealed

Registration for former students for the spring semester has been set up as follows, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced today:

Thursday, February 10—7:45 a.m., L; 8:45 a.m., M; 9:45 a.m., N, O, P, Q; 10:45 a.m., R; 12:45 p.m., S; 1:45 p.m., T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z.

Friday, February 11—7:45 a.m., A; 8:45 a.m., B, C; 9:45 a.m., D, E, F; 10:45 a.m., G; 12:45 p.m., H; 1:45 p.m., I, J, K.

Classes begin Wednesday, February 16.

Slim Gaillard And Combo To Show At Today's Rally

Highlighting the first Associated Student affair of the young semester, the Slim Gaillard recording combo will be present during the college hour rally in the men's gymnasium at 10:40 a.m. today.

Appearing along with Gaillard and his trio will be Don Pitts, star of his own KYA record show, The Rumpus Room, Laine Curry, rally commissioner, said late yesterday afternoon.

Because of a speech, first in a business department series, by Roger Deas, of the National Conference Bureau, on Personal Public Relations in Business, the rally has been scheduled for the men's gymnasium, instead of the auditorium.

Curry further disclosed that Gaillard will entertain City College students with songs presented in the style which made him a nationwide hit. Tentative plans call for Pitts to be master of ceremonies between numbers by the combo.

"Gaillard may play the current hit, Down by the Station, for the audience," Curry continued.

Entertainment presented by the Talent Placement Bureau, whose production, Love Again, will be presented tonight in the auditorium, will also be featured in the rally, Curry added.

Cafeteria And Snack Bar Hours Disclosed

City College cafeteria and fountain will be open during the following hours, Monday through Friday, according to an announcement from the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

Fountain, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Cafeteria, breakfast, 7:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.; lunch, 11:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; dinner, 5:00 p.m. to 6:15 p.m.

On college hours days, the cafeteria will be open at 10:45 a.m.

Revue Tickets On Sale At Bank, Guardsman

Tickets for the college musical production, Love Again, to be presented this evening in the west campus auditorium, can be purchased today at the College Bank and The Guardsman office, or tonight at the door, Rew Kendall, Talent Placement Bureau head, announced.

All Associated Student card holders can secure tickets for 50 cents and general admission tickets are on sale for 75 cents, Kendall stated.

Two Instructors For Art, Hotel Divisions

As the new semester gets under way, two new names appear among faculty members at City College. The Graphic Arts Department is bolstered with the addition of Robert Meyers; while the Hotel and Restaurant Division gains a new member, Augusta Clawson.

Meyer brings to the Graphic Arts experience gained through years spent in that field.

Miss Clawson brings to her new duties with the Hotel and Restaurant Division experience gained as vocational director in high schools in New Jersey and later during the war, as an agent of the government in setting up war production training programs for women.

Supplementing arrival of the new instructors, two teachers' courses, in furniture finishing and mechanical drawing, are now offered under college direction.

Two semster units will be given for completion of the course. Instruction in the furniture course opens today at Samuel Gompers from 4 to 6 p.m. Mechanical Drawing will be given on Wednesdays here

Classes Shortened For College Hour Today

Somehow or other students get something for nothing today. By cutting ten minutes each off the first three classes of the day, the college ends up with a bonus time between 10:40 and 11:20 a.m. This time is called college hour.

During this period there is a big rally scheduled for the men's gymnasium. (Of course, if you are just plain anti-social, you can twiddle your thumbs, knit, or do crossword puzzles.) One more important thing to remember is that the regular 11 o'clock class starts at 11:30.

The day's schedule follows:

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9.50 to 10:30
College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Students To Celebrate Washington's Birthday

To give local students a well deserved breather following the ordeal of registration and first days of attending classes, Tuesday, February 22, has been ruled an official holiday and the classrooms here at the college will be legally vacant.

By the way, George Washington was also born on February 22.

There is NO holiday scheduled here Monday, February 21 contrary to rumor.

February 25 Last Day To Add New Course

Course changes or program additions must be made by Friday, February 25, according to the official college calendar.

Students are required to have their petitions for changes of schedules in the registrar's office by 5 p.m. of this date. No changes will be possible after this time, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said today.

Petitions for changes of programs are available in Building 3.

THE PEOPLE HERE at rehearsing Love Again. Love Again is the name of tonight's original production by the talent bureau. They are, reading from the script and, reading left to right, Bill Carter, Roy Barnett, Sid Brakey, Rosalyn Mincer an unidentified participant, JoAnne Setlow, Tom Moore, Jean Kelly, Hewitt Kendall and Stan Sadler, kneeling.

'Love Again' Revue Set For Auditorium Tonight

Starting the new semester in entertaining fashion, the Talent Placement Bureau will present Love Again, a musical revue, in the west campus auditorium tonight at 8:30.

Featured in this two-act play about love, from heaven to a dude ranch, are such popular City College emoters as Carolyn Herfield, Rew Kendall, Stan Sadler, Jo Anne Setlow, Rosalyn Mincer, Roy Barnett and many others.

Music for the show will be played by the 17 piece band of Scott Weinberg, and will blend popular favorites with some of Barnett's new tunes.

Barnett's composition, Can It Be Love, will be the new featured number which will share the spotlight with standards like Just A Little Affection, I Can't Get Started, and Hello, Honey, Hello—a slight change from Hello, Frisco, Hello.

Specialty numbers of the show include a Devil Dance by Sadler with tympany background; Bob Tefft and his Combo, interpreting some jazz; comedy skits satirizing Napoleon and love in the Congo; and other numbers by Mike Cohen, Jean Kelly, Betty Andress, Barney Howell and Jan Anderson.

This all student production is supported by Associated Student funds and all profits will be returned to the Associated Students, according to Kendall, bureau head.

Love Again is the first campus show since Lambda Alpha productions completely by students without faculty direction. The settings, arrangements, and play direction were handled by the play's participants and the use of special effects was utilized whenever suitable, Barnett stated.

Under the newly elected Associated Student President, Pete Isola, the President's Cabinet were formed, and committees appointed yesterday for the spring semester.

Up for approval as committee heads are Jim Caldwell, Men's Athletic Commissioner; Roy Pasini, Publications Board chairman; George Capanis, Director of Public Relations; Jill Hansen, Associated Student card sales; Danny Lagan, Finance chairman, and Nancy Lane, Assistant Secretary.

Choir Sings At Conventions

City College's A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Flossita Badger, is scheduled to present musical programs before delegates of two national conventions during the latter part of this month.

On Sunday, February 20, at 3:30 p.m. the choir will present a half-hour program at the San Francisco Opera House, as the musical part of a vesper service, for the National Convention of School Administrators. In addition to songs by the Choir, the delegates will hear solo performances by Marie Joan Cambell, harpist, and Carolyn Herfield, soprano vocalist.

On Thursday, February 24, the Choir will also sing at 9:30 a.m. before the opening session of the National Convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges at the Fairmont Hotel. Soloist will be Velma Webster, soprano, accompanied by Gertrude Norgard, music instructor here.

"This is the first time in the history of the college," Miss Badger said, "that the A Cappella Choir has been able to accept two important engagements so early in the semester."

She explained that almost the entire personnel of the choir has returned again this semester which has resulted in few changes in the composition of the choir.

Guardsman Survey Includes All Students For First Time; Lowell Bests Lincoln, Gets Second

By Dale Butterfield

The Guardsman's semi-annual preview check of new students found itself extended this semester for the first time to include all spring semester registrants and afford a cross-section of City College student body grounds.

Official registration figures were unavailable at deadline time, but the 7000 mark was passed early Tuesday.

Lowell Moves In

San Francisco high schools held fairly well to previously established lines with one exception.

The big three, Washington, Lincoln, and Balboa, a consistent top trio in previous registration figures, changed to Washington, Lowell, and Lincoln, in that order, in new student enrollment, followed by Balboa, Mission, Commerce, Polytechnic, Galileo, and Girls' High.

Total registration figures show that San Francisco high schools are represented here, in descending numerical order, by Washington, Lincoln, Balboa, Lowell, Mission, Polytechnic, Galileo, Commerce, and Girls' High.

A concluding observation of the survey indicates that approximately 478 students are in their fourth semester, 271 are continuing on their fifth, 143 are geared for a sixth, 30 decided on a seventh semester, and eight are enduring their eighth semester.

Of the total survey enrollment figure, 1128 students have gathered here from East Bay high schools and from high schools of other cities in California—only 237 of this large total are new students.

508 From Out Of State

Figures on out-of-state students indicate that the migration to this state is still continuing, for of the more than 5000 students checked, 508 have graduated from out-of-state high schools. This figure does not include the sum of 155 students attending college here from many foreign countries.

Although there was a greatly anticipated slump in veteran enrollment, the veteran ratio changed very little, for one of every six new students was a veteran in comparison with one out of five among former students.

Figures also convey the fact that come Sadie Hawkins day at City College, women will have a wide field to choose from—the total of women students reaching approximately 1000 to 5000 males, giving her a choice of a man from every four. If all men turn out for the Sadie Hawkin's Day race, women should have the race won before the start.

Gold Rush Daze Hit Campus With Tri Epsilon Dance

Returning in spirit to the days of '49, Tri Epsilon Fraternity will present its first social event of the spring semester, Gold Rush Daze in the west campus auditorium, Saturday, February 26, from 8:30 to 12 p.m.

Bob Britton and his orchestra will present an evening of music for the lovers of the west and their gals as they swing and sway in their Gold Rush Daze attire.

Costume for the spirited event will be garb typifying the days of '49 when the excavators of that precious ore wore long musty beards, slung their pick and gold pan on their backs and retired their trusty weapon of defense low on their hip.

The disguised bad man of the west, Waukeen Merryette, now loose on the west campus, Tri "E" officials say, is wanted and they expect that he will be galavanting about during the Gold Rush Daze shuffle.

Forty-niner officials will pay a reward of $5.00 to the old westerner who apprehends the varmint. Officials retorted that he has sapped the energy from many an eager apprehender, and he must be caught.

Dance committee chairman Steve Mayfield and his committee associates, Jack Somers, Pete Krinkle, and George Capanis, revealed that refreshing drinks will be served at the '49er coke saloon, and there is a tariff of $1.24 per couple for the Gold Rush shuffle.

Intercommunications

THERE once was a lad, and probably a lass, who was lonely and sad, because of the need for a friend with whom to chin.

These two little lines of prose would probably fall far short of any classic standard, but the simple problem involved is one which has affected almost everyone at one time or another, that is, lack of friends.

It is not a problem which concerns ye olde students at the present time, but it is one which is of the utmost importance to new-comers at this pleasant little brain-trust.

STICK AROUND, SALTY

But don't you old salts at this "breeding spot of tomorrow's leaders" go away, for it is the hope and intention of this writer to carry a message of some importance to just such people as you.

There is a period in every semester which seems to be unavoidable; it is a period in which sad and melancholy faces are sickeningly numerous, and as it happens, we are now in the midst of said period.

Oddly enough, this period keeps coming around at the same time each semester, and the problem involved is so easily alleviated, if not altogether avoidable, it is pitiful.

All it would take would be the application of a little fundamental human psychology on the part of old, as well as new students.

The human animal is not meant to be a stand-offish sort of being, and it has been proved time and again by the way a lonely dog is petted and fawned over by almost every passerby. Why then, it can be asked, is man, supposedly the only rational being, so backward in making friends with his fellow men?

NEW STUDENTS HUMAN, TOO

It seems a rather safe assumption to place new students in a category somewhat like that of present friends, and not as some strange things newly arrived from Mars.

So, why not go a bit further and actively solicit their friendship? And this can be a most pleasing occupation, if the person is a pretty girl.

Appearances in many cases may indicate that the person is completely at ease with their friendless state, but if human nature is at all active in their person, you can bet they would like a new friend.

NEW-COMERS BE BRAVE

Now for a bit of advice to you new-comers, who seem to harbor a terror, of a sort, for college life and anything connected with it.

Just because the person sitting beside you has trod the grass covered hills surrounding City College a few months longer than you doesn't completely nullify his chances of being in some state approaching normality, he may be a right guy.

At least, give him the benefit of the doubt, for it is a common fact that many of those seemingly strange "intellects" will later turn out to be some of your best friends.

RAMifications

Doodle With Dali And Join The Elite

DOODLING, or how to fill a note book the easy way, is the subject of today's erudite dissertation. Non-doodlers please file out quietly.

A neglected phase of contemporary art, doodling is defined as free hand drawing with no particular object in mind. There is a great deal of discussion about this definition among experts, but it is generally accepted.

Roughly speaking (and we are one of the roughest speakers on the campus), doodling can be divided into two schools. The abstract or non-representative school and the classical of old fashioned type.

HOW GOOD CAN WE GET?

In the classical school, we find the common variety of squares, five-pointed stars, circles, and tick-tack-toe. It is, however, with the abstract school that this art reaches greatness.

Most of us do our best work in straight or didactic lecture classes (History and Economics courses seem to produce the best work).

However, we have known some advanced doodlers who could turn out very creditable work in an active class-participation course. This, as you no doubt know, requires a high degree of skill and is relegated to ambidextrous students, one hand for doodling, the other for taking notes.

But now let us consider the specialist or one-track-minded doodlers. We once knew a girl who drew nothing but eyes, small eyes—big eyes, but nothing but eyes. (Psychologist make of that what you will.)

Then there is the student in a morning philosophy class who specializes in girls' heads (exquisitely drawn). For the most part critics frown on specialists as being far too unimaginative.

THE FRENCH TOUCH

Personally, we are now at work on what we consider our masterpiece. An abstract impression of the field of Economics, it is to be called Laissez-Faire. That's French for something or other but we have forgotten exactly what.

A recent confidential survey showed that most students doodle, and we might add, a surprising number of instructors.

We drew up an impressive chart on this subject recently. This chart showed something or other pretty graphically, but we lost it.

A new movement in the field of doodling is called surrealism. Dallying with Dali-like doodles, some students attempt to show the activities of the subconscious mind by means of images that, as in dreams, are without order or sense. (This is, of course limited to those students who have a subconscious mind.)

'New Deal' Begins Face Lifting Job; Columnists Take Over Feature Page

THROUGH the years, the semester's opening editorial has been devoted to a policy-outlining session between the Editor and the Associated Students.

Today, we would like to depart from this well worn path, taking it for granted that all the interested students on campus are well aware of the fact that The Guardsman maintains an unbiased attitude on its news pages, with the exception of signed columns, which are given a free license as long as they remain within the bounds of good taste.

Turning from the editorial policy to a more pertinent item, mainly what will be written rather than how it will be written; a glance at the remainder of this page, the feature page, calls for an explanation.

This semester, page two will be primarily a "column page." The columns appearing on the page will be written by staff members who have proved their worth to the paper and who have something to say. Variety will be the spice of these columns.

The two columns, Ramifications and Intercommunications, will be devoted to observations and interpretations of the writers on outside as well as local events.

Should one of the columnists become carried away enough to arouse one of his readers, the letter-to-the-editor department, Ram's Horn, is provided in order to give the reader an opportunity to have his say, whether he verbally pats the writer on the back or a little lower.

In an effort to quell the voice for a "chatter column," the tidbit labeled Hilltopics will deal with campus doings.

To better acquaint club members and other interested students with campus social dates, the club column, Round 'n About, has been revamed and switched to page four.

As a finale to this first message, the Editor would like to welcome both new and old students to City College and offer a suggestion to the new arrivals.

Mix business with pleasure by joining a club and becoming a part of campus life.

Jiggers! The Cops!

Campus Police Vital Phase Of Local Community

By Arnold Solkov

FOLLOWING through with the policy of presenting City College and its relationship to the community, The Guardsman takes an X-ray view of the campus, hoping to show it, not only as a place for gaining an education, but as an integrated community-within-a-community.

Since the fundamental part of any organization is order, the college's Law Enforcement department will herein be spotlighted.

The activities of an up-to-date policeman are quite different from the stereotyped billy club swinging, apple stealing cop. A recent article by San Francisco's Chief of Police stated that men trained in sociology and psychology are needed by law enforcement agencies throughout the nation.

Departmental Organization

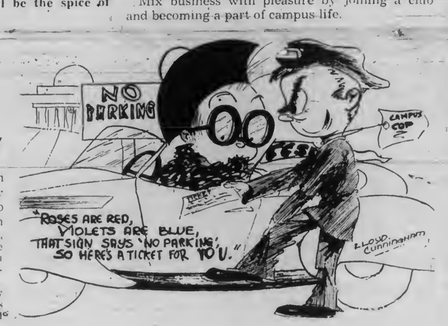
The campus' embryo cops are headed by Fred Fitzgerald, a ten year veteran of the city's police department. Fitzgerald exemplifies the modern peace officer as he is a trained criminologist, having obtained his Master's degree at the University of California.

With the cooperation of the downtown police department, he organized the campus police in the spring semester of 1948, the members being students in his law enforcement classes.

"Although this course, and consequently, the campus police, are new to junior college instruction, City College has had this course as far back as 1939," the pipe smoking ex-cop said.

"Then," he continued, "the course was given by the police department, under the direct supervision of the director of personnel of the department."

Today's campus force has the full police power of a blue-uniformed patrolman. As a matter of fact, the college police, 16 strong, will break out new uniforms this semester. Their duties will be directing traffic on campus, plus helping students observe the parking regulations.



Rulings

The rules, by the way, stipulate that cars parked on a red marked part of the ramp will be cited; in a white zone, unattended, will be tagged; with the same penalty for parking for more than thirty minutes in a green area. Also cars on west campus that violate posted restrictions will be cited.

Norman Yates, one of the newly authorized student boys - in - blue, brought out a point that is a sore spot with the squad.

"We are not traffic boys," said student officer Yates. "The 16 men are regularly deputized deputy sheriffs, and since we have the authority, we would appreciate being treated as such."

Indeed, they have the authority, as many a pink-tagged windshield can attest.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

Praise Given To Paper, Registration Procedure; Counselors Blasted

● Thanks

Editor, The Guardsman:

It has been very reassuring to me to find that in the four semesters of attending this college The Guardsman has punctually awaited me every Tuesday and Friday as scheduled.

In a college of this size it is certainly necessary that one have some source of information other than bulletin boards and radio broadcasts. Therefore, I have relied upon The Guardsman to give me this information—it has never failed me. Knowing a little of the journalism profession myself, I can say with authority that the coverage in the paper has always been impartial and complete.

You promise the students of City College another 25 issues for the Spring semester . . . you can count on this man as a steady reader.

Jack Ware

(Editor's Note: We thought it was 24! What can we do after such appreciation.)

● More Praise

Editor, The Guardsman:

Not very many students of this college take time out from their studies and social activities to praise any feature of college life. However, I will be an exception to the rule and extend my praise to the administration of the college for working out a truly efficient system of registration.

I have attended other colleges and have never found a registration procedure which I have found could top the one at City College this semester. The IBM method of registration is an innovation which is seldom found anywhere else—in short, it is the best.

A vet who gets around

● Those Counselors!

Editor, The Guardsman:

For nearly six semesters I have been faithfully attending City College, and the longer I go the farther it seems I am getting from meeting the requirements of my next institution of higher learning.

My beef is, why can't our counselors and advisers do a decent job of preparing their charges for big-time schools?

It doesn't seem too much to ask that at least these counselors spend a little of their unused time in investigating the requirements of a few of the more outstanding universities.

Another sour note in the counseling system is their inability to agree even among themselves.

Once, now and then, doesn't matter too much, but when you change counselors and consequently have to change your entire schedule, something is definitely wrong.

If anyone is in doubt as to the reliability of this little bit of griping, it would be easily enough verified by asking any graduate student of City College how many extra or needless units he has on his transcript.

RAMblings . .

Compton, Rams Pace State Cage Race

By Walt Roessing

THE two, yes TWO, best junior college basketball teams in California, and perhaps the nation, are claimed by City College and Compton.

Little has been written of the southern Tartars in this region, but they have racked up an even better cage record than the Rams.

Led by a sensational scoring forward, Bob Johnson, who tallied 45 points in ONE game, the Compton College quintet has won 28 contests, while suffering one lone loss. City College has won 22 games, lost one.

City College and Compton have faced two identical opponents. The Tartars whipped John Muir 59-37, while the Rams downed the same team in the Modesto Tourney 51-41. The locals trounced Long Beach 66-31, while the Southern California five split a pair with the common foe, winning 69-63, and losing 56-70, after 26 straight wins.

The Tartars' highest scoring output was 97 points against March Field while the Rams tallied 78 on Hartnell.

Two other scoring sparks on Coach Kenny Fagan's Compton squad are guards Allen Lamout and Dan Johnston. When the Tartars lost their only game of the year, Johnson and Johnston were each held to one point.

Johnson, by the way, was once named "Prep of the Year" in Southern California and now averages well over 20 points per game.

Compton is currently holding down first place in the Western States Conference.

SPORT SHORT

Grover Klemmer received the Helms Athletic Foundation award recently as Northern California's outstanding athlete of 1941. The award was for his sterling performances in track, that year.

Baseball, Track Teams In Signup Spree; Fischermen Meet State

City College's still-in-the-process-of-forming baseball nine gets an impromptu call to duty in its initial spring game with S. F. State's horsehiders at the Lake Merced diamond on Monday, February 28.

Coach Bill Fischer is sounding the cry for all available talent, incoming and otherwise, for tryout sessions for the squad which opens the NCJCC race with a twin bill against Modesto, there, Saturday, March 19.

Fischer disclosed that all candidates who have signed up will find their names on intersquad teams to be posted on the gymnasium blackboard in advance of elimination sessions which start Monday.

With sign-ups concluded and equipment doled out, City College's trackmen will limber up in their first formal practice of the season, Monday, Coach Grover Klemmer said yesterday.

Looking forward to an ambitious schedule, the Rams open cinder festivities against the Stanford Frosh on Saturday, March 5.

Local Skiers Finish Third In Meet

Although it is the first NCJCC ski meet they have participated in since the war, the City College skiers managed to place third in a five team meet held at Auburn, February 26 and 27.

Vernon Dallman, Bud Taylor, and John Townsley proved to be the mainstays for City College. Dallman placed fourth in the jumping event, while Townsley placed sixth in the jumping, eighth in the downhill, and seventh in the slalom.

Taylor placed fourth in the downhill, and tenth in the slalom.

A plea for more skiers to compete for City College in future meets was issued yesterday by Dallman, team captain.

Intra Deadline March 1

Intramural director Tom Wilson announced last week that Tuesday, March 1, has been set as the deadline for team entries in this semester's basketball league. Squad lists ranging from five to eight members are to be turned in at the gymnasium office.

Rams Face Tough Pirate, Tiger Quints

Modesto Tilt May Determine Title

By Bob Quinlan

Riding high, on a chain of 22 victories in 23 starts, City College's classy cagers embark on their toughest obstacle of the season tonight and tomorrow night when they invade the home courts of Stockton and Modesto, respectively.

Providing the locals and Modesto win the rest of their games, the winner of the Ram-Pirate tilt will snare the Southern division crown and gain the right to meet Grant Tech, the probable winner of the Northern division, for the NCJCC title.

In their last encounter at City College January 29, the Hillsmans snowed under the highly touted Pirates 63-44. The locals' deadly forward combination of "Mr. Outside," Bob Matheny, and "Mr. Inside," Dud "Ike Frances" Truelsen, found little trouble in penetrating the Modesto defense for 18 and 21 points, respectively, to spearhead the Ram attack.

The defensive play of Jim Caldwell on forward Ken Milo and the combined guarding of Kev Duggan and Bob Payne on center Lee Wade took the heart out of the Pirates' attack.

In tonight's game with Stockton, the Rams' main worry is that they don't wear themselves out for the Modesto classic. The Red and White quint had little difficulty in running the Cubs into the planks, 61-51 on January 28, on the home hardwoods.

Next week City College closes its regular season when they meet the St. Mary's Frosh at Moraga Tuesday and trek to San Mateo for their final conference game Friday night.

Menlo garnered this season's giant-killing act when they upset the Rams, 34-33, at Menlo, February 5. Last week end the Rams defeated Hartnell 78-54, and Monterey 61-28, while the USF Frosh was defeated January 24, 52-43.

MAINSTAYS FOR CITY COLLEGE'S greatest basketball team, one that has snowed under 22 opponents while capturing two tourney titles this season, are Jim "Pop" Caldwell, Bob "Mr. Outside" Matheny, Don Payne, Kev "Snower" Duggan, Bob Payne, Dud "Mr. Inside" Truelsen, and Marty Schneider.

Ram Boxing Team Rate 'Next Best In West'

By Clarence Hurlbert

Potentially the best of their lot in the Far West, barring San Jose State's perennial coast champs, City College's boxing team faces the proverbial "if" clause at the mid-season mark.

In their intercollegiate milling thus far, the local ringmen have compiled a creditable clout record with three of four dual meets accounted for on the victory side.

Under the aegis of Coach Roy Diederichsen the Rams knocked off S. F. State twice, 13-1, and later 5-3 in a regulation program; took a virtual win over California in a 15 bout informal affair; and didn't look bad in dropping the duke to the aforementioned Spartans, Pacific Coast Conference kingpins the past three years, 3-6.

Lack of condition had been apparent among mentor Diederichsen's campaigners, which handicapped their chances to bring home even greater laurels in earlier outings. Last month's shindig with San Jose's pugilists emphasized the latter ailment when a few points meant the difference.

Suffice to say the Rams will be ready when they encounter Santa Clara's Broncos away from home next Wednesday night in what shapes up as a real roughhouse session.

One month hence a return go is scheduled with the Broncs in the visiting role. Highly regarded heavy Jim Buckley tackles campus stalwart Frank Sueuga in a natural rematch between the two.

Next match on the fistic docket is slated for Friday, March 4, when the Rams hop southward for the San Jose Collegiate Invitational slugfests.

Johnny Fisher, 125; Len Garcia, 130; and fast rising Jerry Stern, 140; dependable mainstays to date, will share the brunt of the point-making attack.

Gaddy Names Coaches

Jack Gaddy, director of the physical education department at City College, announced yesterday that two sports will be headed by different mentors this semester. Roy Burkhead will take over the swimming team, and Harry Buttimer, a business instructor at the college, will be the tennis mentor.

Round 'n About

Club Cavalcade Dies, But College Social Activities Still Covered

By Gene Ellison

CLUB CAVALCADE is daid! Therefore, with the advent of a new semester at City College, we are venturing "Round 'n About" in an effort to bring social highlights directly to campus "gay blades."

First big event of the new semester is a tremendous rally during college hour today, devoted to Love Again, an all-musical production to be given by the Talent Placement Bureau tonight in the west campus auditorium.

All cats will be happy to know that Slim Gaillard and his "gone" combo will be on hand to keep the joint jumpin': berets and goatees are proper for the informal event!!

A week from tomorrow night, Saturday, February 26, in the west campus auditorium, Tri Epsilon fraternity presents Gold Rush Daze, first dance of the new spring semester.

Dancing from 8:30 until 12 p.m. features the music of Bob Britton and his orchestra; tariff for the affair is $1.24 per couple. A five dollar reward will be given for the capture of Wauken Merryette, distinguished badman around campus, who was last seen at his hangout—(Al's?).

A Club Activities Board meeting of all representatives of campus organizations is being held today during the college hour in Room 2B, according to Bob Selby, president. This first meeting is very important, consequently, every representative is urged to attend.

Rumors are flying, and so are the new officers for Hillel Foundation this semester. They are Leonard Wolf, president; Bob Harris, vice-president; Margreta Spitzer, secretary; Harry Spatz, treasurer; Sheldon Manaster, CAB representative; and Irwin Phillips, sergeant-at-arms. Everyone's busy!

Members of Ski Rams are urged to attend a meeting during college hour today in Room 212, main building. Information concerning future outings to Rainbow Tavern will be discussed, Bill Johnson, president of the group, announced.

The high sliding Ramsters returned last week from a highly successful tournament in northern California, winning important victories in collegiate skiing competition.

New officers are being announced and selected all over the place, so here are some more. Alpha Sigma Delta announces the following officers for the Spring semester: Danny Lagan, president; Bill Hansen, vice-president; Harry Williams, recording secretary; Al Chapin, corresponding secretary; Louis Eike, treasurer; Frank Sperisen, historian; Chuck Van Every, sergeant-at-arms; Bill Seney, parliamentarian; Bill Rosaia, Pledge Master; and Dave Strauch, C.A.B. representative.

Limited space and time prohibits complete coverage of all campus organizations for this, our first trip out. Club officers are requested to meet news deadlines by Monday noon for Friday's paper and Wednesday noon for Tuesday's edition.

Business Department Dinner Held Monday; Job Situation Told

A second meeting of the Work Experience Retail Management Advisory Board, sponsored by the Business Department of City College, was held at the Elks Club, Monday evening, February 14.

City College officials present at the dinner were Dr. A. J. Cloud, president; Dr. J. Paul Mohr, vice-president; James Hughes, business department head; Joseph Amori, placement director; Orville D. Adams, assistant supervisor of Adult Vocational Education in San Francisco; and George Stulken, manager of the State Employment Office.

Main topic for discussion was the over-view of the excellent progress being made because of the interested response of both students and employers. During the discussion, the current employment situation was presented as becoming grave.

Everett Smith, personnel director of the Union Oil Company, felt that training for the job was an excellent way of insuring a student of a job after graduation.

Conclusions drawn were that better preparation through college training would result in lower labor turnover, as well as a more productive employee.

Hughes was chairman and master of ceremonies for the Monday night affair.

Bus Tickets For Ram, Modesto Tilt On Sale

Any student interested in joining the high riding Ram eagers on their southward trek to Modesto for tomorrow night's conference tussle may do so by depositing $2.75 with Associated Student President Pete Isola in his office, Building 2, west campus, no later than today.

According to word from Isola, the bus, carrying 37 rooters, will leave the city Saturday afternon at 4 and return the same evening following the Ram-Pirate game.

WAA Meet Scheduled To Welcome Students

Looking forward to another successful semester, Women's Athletic Association officers are busy planning activities for the Spring session, Jean Sliter, newly elected president, said yesterday.

In the near future, Miss Sliter added, a mass meeting will be held to welcome all new and returning women students who join the organization.

Sponsor for the WAA is Gloria Swicegood. Other officers are Florence Loo, vice-president; Aulne Hendrickson, secretary; and Chris Di Sibio, treasurer.

Planned activities for this semester include play days at other bay area colleges, family nights in the women's gymnasium, and a dance demonstration at Mills College.

WAA offices are located in the women's gymnasium. Those wishing to join in this semester's fun and sports should inquire there, Miss Sliter said.

Alumni Plan Dinner On Campus

Plans for the formal observance of Charter Day with a dinner on the campus late in March or early April were approved by the Executive Board of the newly formed Alumni Association at a meeting held here last Wednesday night.

Dr. Richard Kelley, chairman, approved a resolution commending Frank Ferguson, Fall '48 president of the Associated Students, for his selection of Jack Hagan as Alumni liaison officer.

Hagan's work was described as outstanding by Dr. Kelley. The board approved as his successor, Nelson Jones, who was nominated by Pete Isola, Spring '49 president of the Associated Students.

Preparations are being made to extend invitations to all former graduates to join the Alumni Association.

College Plays Hos Feb. 23-26 To 400 Convention Delegates

City College faculty members will play host to more than 400 delegates from all over the nation during the convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges, to be held in San Francisco from February 23 to 26.

Delegates will visit here on Thursday and Friday, February 24 and 25, from 1 to 5 p.m., and the educators will be conducted through classrooms and about the entire campus in order to make a survey on the conditions of this college in comparison with other two-year colleges throughout the United States.

City College will sponsor bus tours throughout the bay area on Saturday, February 26, so delegates may visit other colleges as well as see many of California's scenic wonders.

During their four day stay in San Francisco, delegates will attend various meetings and discuss the aspects of the two-year colleges and their problems in relation to instructors and students.

Among subjects to be discussed by the group are two-year college building standards, family life education in these colleges, and teacher welfare and training.

City College faculty members who have worked especially hard to make the convention's stay here a success include Mildred Jensen, Fred Kelly, Don Jensen, Herold Miller, and Maurice Powers.

Parking Permits Ready For Drawing Winners

Results of the drawing for parking permits on the west campus have been posted on the bulletin board in Building 2, west campus, according to Fred MacFarland, campus housing head.

The lucky 250 winners can secure their permits from MacFarland in his Building 2 office. Permits will be issued only to second or more semester students, MacFarland added, with new students becoming eligible for the permits next semester.

The remainder of the permits have been issued to dormitory residents and veterans with a 30 per cent disability or over.

Price Of Car Tickets Same, But Rides Less

Price of car tickets will remain the same this semester, but there will be half as many rides for the money, 10 instead of 20, because of the recent increase in carfare, a City College bank representative said today.

Car tickets are sold in Room 188 between the hours of 9:45 to 11:15 mornings, and 12 to 1:15 afternoons.

Conductors and bus drivers may demand proof of college attendance, in which case possession of an Associated Students Card will be proof enough, Controller Oscar Anderson said.

New Club Meeting Room Applications Due By March 4

Next official college hour for club meetings is scheduled for Friday, March 4, Assistant Dean of Men Jack Brady said today.

All student clubs must file for renewal of club charters and new meeting rooms before that date, Dean Brady added. Room assignments for the semester will then be posted.

Applications for meeting rooms and charters may be obtained at the dean's office, Building 2.

Club activities board officers for this semester are Robert Selby, president; Frances McCarthy, vice-president, and Helen Stoker, secretary.

Meetings of the CAB are held during college hour in Room 2B.

Uniformed Campus Police Will Enforce Smoking Regulations

By Rose Hardie

City College students will follow smoking regulations in the main building this semester, or face administrative action, Fred Fitzgerald, instructor of campus police, declared yesterday.

"Students have had enough advance notice, and 16 uniformed campus police will begin, now, to take names of violators," he said emphatically.

"However," he continued, "students will be glad to hear that regulations on the hilltop do not include the basement floor."

Offenders of the law will have three chances, and if they refuse to submit to authority by then, they will have to take out a leave of absence. On the first offense, the violator's name will be recorded, and on the second offense, the student will be placed on probation.

Those apprehended will be asked to show registration cards; therefore all students are expected to carry their cards.

A program of orientation for students was carried out last week by the campus police, and for the most part men and women cooperated. Last semester, "no smoking" signs were posted in the main building, but no one seemed "to pay attention."

College officials felt it necessary to enforce this state law, and campus police seemed to be the only answer.

So that there will be no doubt as to the identity of campus police, NEW uniforms were purchased for the patrolmen.

Students can be sure this regulation will be enforced, Fitzgerald said.

As a last note of praise, Fitzgerald gave credit to the majority of students who have worked with the campus police in enforcing regulations. "As in any other college," he said, "a few people spoil things for the rest by refusing to submit to rules and regulations."

College Fashion Adviser To Speak Here Next Monday

Olive Berry, college fashion adviser for the Simplicity Pattern Company and once director of fashion promotion for large department stores, will speak to the City College Home Economics classes Monday, March 7, in Room 158 of the main building at 10 and 11 a.m.

Miss Berry will tell the story of pattern designing and give a demonstration on the manufacture of simplicity patterns, showing original muslins, and master pattern style.

In the fall of 1947, Miss Berry made a tour of Canada when she introduced her company's educational program in the larger cities. She has established a reputation as a lecturer on Home Economics.

Business Students Hear Trickett Lecture Friday

Dean J. M. Trickett of San Francisco's Golden Gate College, will lecture during college hour, Friday, March 4, in the campus auditorium, on Labor and Management, in the second meeting of the college's business educational forum.

Under the combined direction of business department head, Jim Hughes, and Glenn Mercer, instructor in the department, this is one of a series of six meetings scheduled during the semester.

Compulsory attendance is required of students in the business courses coming under this heading, Hughes said, and no college hour meetings in the future will conflict with a scheduled rally.

Trickett is expected to discuss collective bargaining versus cooperation in business and what management expects of the beginner.

Future forum college hour speakers include Howard G. Freas, rate expert, Public Utilities Commission, on Friday, March 18; Harry Goodfriend, vice-president Anglo California National Bank, Friday, April 22; Howard Carver, general superintendent, The Emporium, Friday, May 13; a speaker to be selected later from Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Friday, May 27, and Dr. George Mallory, U.S. Civil Service Commission, Friday, June 3.

Club Presents New Annual Scholarship Awards To Two Co-eds

Two first semester students at City College, Betty Knightsen and Louise Lee, were recently named as recipients of the Carpe Diem Club semi-annual scholarship awards.

Both young women are graduates of Girls' High School of San Francisco. Miss Lee is now a secretarial major and Miss Knightsen is taking a general business course.

Each semester the Carpe Diem Club, an affiliate of the Booker T. Washington Community Service Center, offers a scholarship of 75 dollars to a graduate of a senior high school who plans to enter an accredited college in San Francisco.

Recognizing the many special advantages in college life for holders of Associated Student cards, Jane R. Bosfield, president of the Carpe Diem Club, wrote the Misses Knightsen and Lee, "In order that you may be eligible for full participation in all student activities, it is requested that you purchase an Associated Student Card."

Enlarging on this advice, she added, "It is hoped that you will actively participate in all student activities as it is felt that great benefits can be derived from such participation."

Student Card Investment Is Better Than War Bonds

By Gene Ellison

The Associated Students of City College, among other things, is a business organization, which spends between $20,000 and $30,000 a semester toward campus activities, which make the college outstanding.

Students naturally would like to know what happens to their investment of $3.00 for an Associated Student card. The return to the student in this investment is valued at $20.75, even better than War Bonds.

Activities which are supported by the Associated Students fall generally into three categories.

Completely paid for, but with some income, are activities of the athletic department, which needs funds for new uniforms and team traveling. If the highly successful Ram basketball team journeys to Kansas City, Missouri for the National Junior College tournament, all expenses will be in the hands of the Associated Students. Track, baseball, and boxing teams will also be budgeted by the Associated Students; gate receipts determining the return.

Under the Publications Board, The Guardsman is also completely paid for, with a 20 to 30 per cent income returned in advertising.

Supported by student funds are the Little Theater, Opera Workshop, and music productions, and a profit is expected from ticket sales. These departments will produce Blythe Spirit, Naughty Marietta, and The Marriage of Figaro this semester.

Both the Year Book and Forum Magazine are underwritten and financed by the Associated Students; the Year Book return is determined by sales, while the Forum has had a 100 per cent return.

Organizations appropriated funds with little or no return are many. A Cappella Choir uses funds for transportation and choir pins, along with the Band and Orchestra. New uniforms for the Band were made possible last fall by the Associated Students.

The Social Committee and Associated Men Students are allotted funds largely for the functions of local dances. Semi-annually the AMS presents the Mardi Gras and Barn Dance for City College students.

Tickets, athletic programs, and invitations to campus activities are handled by the Publicity Committee.

Women's activities, such as teas and sports day expenses, also come under the aid of the Associated Student.

What doesn't the Associated Students finance at City College? Here it is in a nutshell. State and City school funds supply the college only with equipment and instruction, although this is quite a large nutshell.

Blithe Spirit Will Open Little Theater Productions March 18

Little Theater production of Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit, directed by Paul Ellison, opens the spring semester drama season, Friday, March 18, for a five night stand.

Entangled in the plot's maze of mystic dilemma are a Mr. and Mrs. Condomine, a couple with earlier marriage experiences. Mr. Condomine has ambitions of writing a book on spiritualism, and employs the aid of a local crystal gazer, Madam Arcati, who unintentionally causes the ghost of his first wife, Elvira, to appear.

The present Mrs. Condomine likewise dies, and both first and second wife return as spirits to taunt their husband.

Principles in the cast include Don Landers, as the harrassed Mr. Condomine; Carolyn Reiss portrays Madam Areati, the spiritualist; Elvira, the ghost and first wife of Mr. Condomine, is played by Mary Cooke, and the second Mrs. Condomine is portrayed by Mary Ann Stewart.

Forum Sets Deadline For Copy March 25

Students who possess a flair for creative writing or art work of the black and white medium will have an opportunity to exhibit their talents in Forum Magazine, published every spring by the Forum Club of the college, a Forum Club representative said today.

Students should give their work to faculty advisers, Dorothy Mercer or John Gerstung, or send them to Room 251 or 4K before the tentative deadline, Friday, March 25, the spokesman said.

Forum Magazine will welcome the work of those students that have not yet appeared on its pages. Writing of all kinds is in demand; stories, essays, dramas, translations, and articles up to 1,500 words.

Ram-Pages To Accept Campus Life Snaps

Something revolutionary in yearbook styling will be unveiled in Ram-Pages, the college annual, which is now being sold by staff salesmen for $2.50 with an Associated Student card and $5.00 without.

Any student who wishes to submit candid shots for the college life section should turn in his snapshots with the negatives to Building 6, Room R before Friday, April 1. Names should be written on the back of each photograph.

Those who wish to reserve a copy of Ram-Pages may do so through any of the following sales staff members: Jim Fernhoff, Charlotte Jacques, Larry Webber, JoAnne Elliffsen, Urb Cummings, Carol Neusbaum, Bobbie Andress, Pete Krenkel, Jack Sommers, Bobbie Jackson, or Grace Hatamers.

City College Craftsmen Win Cash Awards In Silversmithing Contest

Cash awards amounting to a total of 30 dollars were awarded recently to four talented City College craftsmen, students of silversmithing. First prize went to Martin Zais, second to Eleanor Keep, and third to Lois Milpoy and Robert Green.

The original fund of 100 dollars was donated to the art department by G. H. Niemeyer, president of Handy and Harman Company of New York. The company sponsors a silversmithing workshop conference each August in Providence, Rhode Island.

On April 16, 1948, Niemeyer sent the college a personal donation of 100 dollars to be awarded to outstanding students of silversmithing.

Instructor Roy Walker said yesterday that besides learning the basic techniques of working with silvers, stones, solders, flames and tools, the class attempts to stimulate contemporary design.

A group of art department instructors acted as judges for the contest.

Cafeteria Dinners Student Managed

Cafeteria dinner service is an accommodation rendered by the hotel and restaurant division to the campus residents and students enrolled in late classes, Hilda Watson, director of the division, said today.

The work is done under the guidance of the student management division and the students engaged in the dinner work who have volunteered their services are paid the prevailing wage.

"Since the work is considered extra-curricular there is no credit or grades given by the division," Miss Watson stated.

The student manager who directs the operations is chosen each semester, the manager this semester being Richard Andrewsen.

The manager receives credit for the work completed under his supervision.

Concerning extra functions of the cafeteria, Mrs. Watson said that a reserved section of the west end of the cafeteria has been reserved through the request of Dean Edward Sandys for students who bring lunches.

Fountain Crowded

This move was undertaken to alleviate the congested situation of the fountain. The specially created lunch eating section will also facilitate the maintenance of the student lounge.

According to Mrs. Watson, Dean Sandys made his request so that better service can be obtained by the patrons of the fountain while the students eating in the reserved section will have the convenience of counter service.

Arrangements have been made so as to have two tables in the recommended west end of the cafeteria reserved for the sole use of the lunch-bringing students.

Space Adequate

Lawrence Wong, instructor in the division, pointed out that the space is quite adequate to accommodate the students.

STUDENT MANAGEMENT proves a success in cafeteria. Left to right are Laurence Wong, adviser; Skip Andrewsen, student manager; Pete Arroyo, counter man, and James Fong, being served.

"This plan will benefit the students who are forced to eat their lunches in the crowded fountain and will also ease the job of policing the lounge," Wong said.

The cafeteria management also announced that the reduction of the eight cent cup of coffee to five cents will be here to stay as long as operating expenses arising from dish-breakage and the loss of silver are kept down.

Accent On The Affirmative

WITH the advent of television threatening—to lure—the American public from rocking chair loges, reports have it that the experts in the field of motion picture production are suddenly hailing the "flickers" as a true art form.

This is a somewhat delayed discovery. The motion picture has enjoyed a successful career for 40 years and is only now achieving recognition beyond its commercial entertainment values.

Foreign films are largely responsible for this. Jean Cocteau, a French poet, achieved motion picture eminence with his Beauty and the Beast. This tale of wild (and beautiful) love played at San Francisco's Clay Theater for two months.

ART FOR ART'S SAKE

It fits into the true art form category through its use of odd techniques, such as human hands jutting from the walls clasping torches. An eerie effect was achieved through the characters floating—not walking—through their roles.

Such poetic touches could be logically portrayed only by an experimentalist as Cocteau.

The French do not have as strict censorship laws as are those in the United States. Thus, their greater freedom permits French movies a realism not possible in American pictures.

SPIRITUALISTS, TAKE NOTE

Symphonic Pastorale, by the French novelist, Andre Gide, is now in its third month at the Clay. Critics claim it a "spiritual masterpiece," but its refreshing realism takes it out of an "above-the-clouds" classification. It is well within the understanding and emotional enjoyment of the average movie-goer.

The British film industry is exporting the best of its trade to American movie houses. Among these, Hamlet and The Red Shoes stand out.

Hamlet, a superb dramatization of the "world's greatest tragedy," vies with any legitimate stage production of the drama.

Proof of its recognized merit is its contention for 1948 academy awards. Notably among these is the actor-producer, Laurence Olivier, top contender for the "Oscar."

ANDERSON'S TALE

The Red Shoes, a forthcoming adaptation of a fairy tale, is also a candidate for academy awards. It is the story of a dancer who secures a pair of ballet shoes. A fairy-like theme is depicted in the tragic end, whereby the dancer cannot stop. So enchanted are the shoes that they force her to dance until her death.

Braced in ballet tradition, the picture has outstanding dancing and settings. It promises to be above the criticisms of any movie-goer or the most experienced balletomaine.

RAMifications

DOUBLE bill today, two items for the price of one. What to do with two ancient iron cannons. Vintage 1862, is the first perplexing problem. Stored behind the cafeteria, pending a logical suggestion for their placement, these old Civil War relics have been here since 1947.

We have decided to have a contest to take care of this situation. The best solution to the weighty problem of what to do with these monstrosities will receive a heavy reward.

Just finish the following sentence in 3,000 words or more:

If I owned an 1862 cannon I would

ENTRY RULES

Then rip off the top of an old cannon ball and enclose this with your entry. First prize in this gigantic contest will be a beautiful authentic old (1862) cannon. Second prize will be a beautiful authentic old (1862) cannon. Third prize will be a lovely ball point pen (dry).

The decisions of the judges will be final, and in case of a tie they will award the winners a half a cannon. Bring all entries (including cannon ball tops) into The Guardsman office as soon as possible.

One more item and then we can all take a break for coffee. It seems appropriate, this early in the semester, to take up the subject of how to make a good impression on new instructors.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

If all of your instructors already know you, then the jig is up as they probably have your number. But, if you are making a fresh start, there is still a chance.

Alex Zzyd, author of that famous book, Are Instructors People, has written a new book entitled, The Care And Feeding Of College Instructors. If you don't know who Alex Zzyd is, it is time you found out.

Instructors take a dim view, Mr. Zzyd points out, of students who hide in the furthest corner of the class room. Zzyd also believes that it is important never to show fear in front of instructors. (Like lions and other ferocious animals, instructors are able to sense fear.) As you can see it is important for all enterprising students to read these valuable books.

And so, with sharpened pencils, clean note books, and a fresh deck of cards, we face the future with hope and confidence (two of the nicest girls you could ever want to meet).

As that great French philosopher, Claire (of Claire De Lune) once said, "Le crayon est sur la table." Which, as any fool knows, means there is nothing like a college education

College Hour For Social Benefits; Smoking Nearly Lost Campus Art

THE college hour period was originally made an active part of the college program to provide all students with one activity hour each week.

Although this hour was primarily set aside as a time for campus organizations to hold club meetings or rallies, there was nothing binding about this provision.

If a student did not choose to participate actively in campus social life, he was entirely free to use the hour in what ever manner he deemed wisest.

Business And Pleasure Clash

But recently, an attempt was made by the college business department to hold compulsory class meetings in the auditorium at which time instructors of several business courses checked the official class roll. These gatherings are at present being conducted as a part of organized meetings for a business club which is very much in an embryonic state.

There is no organization on campus which has a set penalty for any member who does not attend a meeting during the college hour and there is no need for any group to adopt such a practice.

The college hour has always been a student hour and it should remain as such.

Student Abuse Direct Cause

Because of the extreme negligence on the part of a segment of the smoking populace on campus, "No Smoking" signs will no doubt become a universal sight about the college before long.

Smoking has always been a smoldering issue hereabouts. There was a time when students were allowed to puff away on their rehabilitators with very few restricted areas. Then the stair wells at either ends of the halls were designated as legal smoking centers.

Now, smokers are not allowed to stray above the basement level with their fiery little companions, and uniformed members of the law have been employed to stamp under foot any offenders.

The next step will probably result in an underground movement, with indulgers sneaking off to parked cars to grab a quick smoke.

From Budgets To Business In One Easy Jump

Student Council Arranges Campus Life At CCSF

By Palmer. Cramer

SIMILAR in nature, if not proportions, the Student Council of City College resembles the Congress of the United States.

Whereas the Congress is composed of Senators and Representatives, the council is composed of students from the Freshman and Sophomore classes, —seven from each.

These 14 council members vote upon the issues regarding student government and control funds from the Associated Student treasury.

The Vice-president, now Corinne Lambert, too, has a vote on the council. The Associated Student President, now Pete Isola, has a vote only in case of a tie.

Contrary to popular belief he is not the "leader" of the student council, but presiding officer, or chairman and normally has no vote.

COUNCIL MORE THAN SYMBOL

Not just a figurehead for the administration of City College, as many erring students believe, the council does plan and supervise expenditures for extra-curricular activities of the Associated Students without supervision from the faculty.

Dean John Brady's capacity is strictly that of adviser.

A recent interview with Dean Brady brought forth the views of the administration regarding student government, or Student Council, here at City College.

"The administration of this college is aware of the fact that students of the college can think for themselves, that they can think clearly and intelligently if given the opportunity. We, therefore, believe that these students should be allowed to direct their own program."

IT'S THEIR BABY

City College is classified as a secondary school, but it is believed by Dean Brady that nowhere else in this state is a two-year college granted so much control in student government.

Although the councils of senior colleges have almost all the say-so regarding their student government, and proceed unrestricted except by state law, secondary schools are not usually granted that privilege; rather, they are supervised by the school's administration. Student government here is strictly the student council's "baby."

Often misunderstood, often seemingly confused, the council invites students to attend their meetings to see the proceedure used in directing the activities of more than 5,000 students.

Catalog Says Students Assume Responsibility for College Career

Letters To The Editor

(Editor's Note: Letters to the editor may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman editorial office in Building 12. Deadlines are noon on Monday and Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld but the author must be known to the editor.)

• You're Grown Up, Now—

Editor, The Guardsman:

If sixth semester student, J.K., in the February 18 Ram's Horn, will consult page 23 of the official college catalog, he will find that it is not the function of counsellors to guide him through a maze of catalogs from higher institutions, and, in general, plan his education for him.

To quote: "Although a counsellor will assist him in planning his program, the student must assume complete responsibility for compliance with instructions and regulations as set forth in the Circular of Information and Announcement of Courses and for selecting the subjects which will enable him to achieve his objective, whether that be (1) graduation from college, or (2) meeting the lower division requirements of a higher institution, or (3) preparing for an occupation."—end quote.

Surely J.K. can read. If so, he should spend more of his own time pouring over catalogs rather than complaining about a counselling system which has more than one J.K. to counsel—unfortunately.

• Parking Pains

Editor, The Guardsman:

Before the-powers-that-be issued the dirt-lot parking permits, they should have examined the entrance. The tank-trap there gives my Adagio Six a horrible feeling of insecurity in the region of the oil pan every time it passes over. Another such scrape as that entrance gives, and it will demand an inventory of missing parts. Can't we have a little campus dirt where it would count?

• A Frat Bows

Editor, The Guardsman:

Please thank Mr. Herbert Levy, last term's editor, for his help in starting the Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity.

This fraternity is approved by Dean Brady and Dr. Mohr. Mr. Devlin is chairman of the committee of advisers.

Our service project was two information desks for the new coming students and supplement work with the Associated Women Students. The men that helped were as follows: David Auyong, Tom Dietz, Richard Engeseth, Al Flores, Ed Israel, Jan Jackson, Jack Shaw, Howard Strauss, Clyde Thompson, Harry Walrath, and Dale Yaste.

David Auyong is temporary president; Jack Shaw, secretary, and Tom Dietz, treasurer.

Our first meeting of the new term will be college hour, March 4, 1949, in Room 132.

THE Roy Pasini (Guardsman Editor) and Joe Amori (Job Placement wheel) junket with the Navy to Pensacola is creating more than a modicum of speculation. Insiders aren't sure whether both will "join up" while there, whether Amori has a line on a new job and Pasini, hearing about it, tagged along, or whether both are just hot for uniforms. Best guess is that the two Ramrods have been recruited to help recruit.

Speaking of uniforms, the newly organized Campus Kops broke out into snappy Navy Blues last Wednesday (complete with stars) and created nothing but a mild sensation. Fred Fitzgerald's finest are currently assisting in the traffic problem on the campus, and are helping check passes at the south gate.

Ducks Want Toquinto, But To SC Does He Go

By Walt Roessing

OREGON has been conducting a search for a new quarterback up and down the Pacific Coast, to replace All-American Norm Van Brocklin. One of the prospects finally decided upon was Bob Toquinto, Ram quarter during the successful 1948 grid season. The Ducks decided a week too late, though, on Toquinto. He had already enrolled at Santa Clara.

Compton's basketball team was upset by John Muir 68-74, last week.

The National Junior College basketball finals will be held in Hutchinson, Kansas, March 22 through 26. The Rams or Tartars may again bring the title to California. College of Marin won last year.

Ray White, Ram first baseman; Nick Cannuli, local second sacker; Dick Johnson, pitcher, and Con O'Shea, grid player, were among the candidates at the recent San Francisco Seals' baseball try-out camp. Cannuli and Johnson were signed to Phoenix contracts, a Seals' farm club. White, by the way, is back on the local campus.

Bob Greenwood, forward on last year's cage five, has been cavorting lately on the hardwoods for Stewart Chevrolet's basketball team. Greenwood is now in the Seals' baseball camp at Boyes Springs, as a pitcher. He also hurled for the campus nine last year.

Compton College meets the Stanford varsity in a baseball contest this spring, while City College's diamondmen have a tentative date with the Indian freshman nine. Both are two-year colleges!

Burl Toler is going out for USF's track team. He is going to try to throw the discus.

Ed Jacobsen and Bill Covall, two of last year's campus tennis team players, are now out for the University of California net squad.

Returning Veterans Stock Large Ram Cinder Squad

By Walt Heil

With 52 candidates on the roster and 25 mores expected to sign up, Coach Grover Klemmer's track team prepared for the swiftly oncoming season with workouts on the windswept San Francisco State oval during the past week.

Hoping to repeat last year's win over the Stanford Frosh, the Rams open intercollegiate competition against the Indian Babes, Saturday at Palo Alto.

A host of returning veterans has Klemmer gleefully anticipating a successful season. For broad jumpers Klemmer has Jim Palahy and Allan Rillerva in the fold. Tom Kellog, a veteran from the '46 campaign, and Dave Ramos are slated for the half mile. Quarter miler Owen Moore and hurdler John Hurst also return.

Up from George Washington High is sprinter Don Waldon, tabbed a point-winning prospect.

Barring any sudden rain storms, next week the locals will continue their preparations on the State track.

Golfers, Natadors, Tennis Teams Organize

City College's '49 edition of its swimming team began their workouts yesterday under the direction of Coach Roy Burkhead. More than 20 prospects hit the Jefferson High water in an effort to be selected for the 15 man traveling squad.

Only three returning members of last year's squad remain this year. Bill Nelson, Art Swartz, and Max Siegel will lead the Rams in a definite six meets and possibly three more.

On the golf front, Mentor Ralph Hillsman is looking for additional talent for the coming NCJCC campaign, as well as meets against Stanford, USF, San Jose State SF State, and sectional finals at Stanford.

Signups for the Ram tennis team, with Harry Buttimer at the helm in his tutelage debut, are currently being taken, and all interested are requested to get a move on in indicating the same.

Intra Entries Due

Entries for students interested in the intramural basketball league should turn their applications into Intramural Director Tom Wilson by Tuesday, March 8.

The outstanding intramural athlete, chosen on a basis of points secured on a 1, 2, 3, and 4 place standard in all of this semester's ten sports, will be presented a perpetual trophy, Wilson added.

SHARPSHOOTING Dud Truelson, high scorer on the Ram cage team, was instrumental in leading the locals to the NCJC Conference title.

Rams Meet Grant Tech In NCJC Playoff Tomorrow

Ralph Hillsman's City College eagers, winners of the Southern division title, and Woodrow Hutchinson's Grant Tech five, holders of the Northern division crown, square off tomorrow night in the first game of the Northern California Junior College Conference playoffs in the City College gymnasium.

Tipoff time for the first tilt of the best two out of three games series is slated for 8 p.m.

Grant Tech glided undefeated through the weaker Northern division to take the title easily. In the Modesto State Tournament the Technicians were eliminated by Modesto, a team they had previously defeated.

Towering Carl Youngstrom, high scoring forward, has continuously paced the Sacramentans throughout their successful season. The remainder of the squad is rounded out by former local prep stars Jim Loscutoff, member of Commerce High's famous Loscutoff regime, and Ed Rueda, former Mission flash.

Rams Win Southern Title

By Bob Quinlan

City College's never-say-die eagers defeated Stockton, 59-42; Modesto, 43-41, and San Mateo, 77-50, the last two weeks to wind up their regular season as champions of the NCJCC's Southern division.

It wasn't as easy as one-two-three, however, as Modesto forced the Rams to use every ounce of their ability, determination, and spirit, to overcome a Pirate lead of 37-29 with seven minutes to go and win 43-41.

After Bob Matheny and Dud Truelsen had finally tied the score at 41-41, Kev Duggan tanked the winning basket one minute and a quarter before the final gun.

The champs' fighting "bench" played a deciding factor in the outcome of the game as they continuously yelled encouragement to players on the floor, and if it wasn't for this there wouldn't have been such a startling comeback.

Through a 23 point effort by Matheny, the locals made San Mateo their 26th victim this season.

Fischer Sears Baseball Club With Squad Tilts

By Gene Van Dyke

An enthusiastic throng of 100 baseball candidates under the direction of Coach Bill Fischer held intersquad games last week to determine who will occupy positions on this semester's college nine.

Unfortunately, inadequate playing facilities provided at the Balboa Park field, which is without a diamond, necessitates the lowering of the squad to a minimum of 30 members.

Students still interested in directing their talents toward the team are invited by Fischer to secure a tryout for themselves. Anyone so desiring should inform Fischer in the men's gymnasium at the Earliest possible date.

This week candidates will again play intersquad games. Yesterday the Ram nine was scheduled to meet SF State.

City College's game with Modesto, there, Saturday, March 19, will serve as an unveiling of the squad at its full strength, in the NCJC Conference opener.

WAA Plans Family Night Activities

Women's Athletic Association family nights are among planned activities for this semester, Jean Sliter, president, said yesterday.

These evenings are of particular interest to veterans and families, and featured events are volleyball, badminton, and other games.

Also slated for sometime in June is San Mateo Junior College's annual horse show, in which City College participants always make a good showing.

Round 'n About

SONG of the week, according to all up and coming socialites on campus, is, "He Is The Best President We Ever Had."

New officers, committees, and big wigs are being elected, appointed, and however else they get in, to campus organizations this new semester. In other words, it's wheel time, so here we go right down the line.

Spring semester officers for Alpha Lambda Chi are Doris Dirito, president; Lynn Gagas, vice-president; Loma Pohlmann, recording secretary; Barbara McGurn, corresponding secretary; Bea Springer, treasurer; Beverly Jank, sergeant-at-arms, and Louanne Cota, historian. Formal initiation was held recently, and new members have been installed.

The Amateur Radio Club of City College, W6FJL (sssshhh, it's a code!) is having a meeting Friday during college hour in Room 400 to make plans for reorganizing. All "Hams" are invited to attend.

Installation of Beta Phi Beta officers was held Monday evening, February 21; this is what happened: Andy Butler, president; Pete Perkins, vice-president; Jack Pullen, historian; Dick Manseau, treasurer; John Harness, secretary, and Don Englefried, corresponding secretary.

Block Society, a local organization for muscle-men, has announced officers for the spring semester. Al "Frenchy" Athanosopoulos, president; Oliver Bascom, vice-president; Robert Payne, secretary; James Caldwell, treasurer, and Thomas Tomlinson, sergeant-at-arms.

Collegiate Christian Fellowship, a group that participates in weekly Bible study, announces the following new officers: El Blanch, president; Don Raisner, vice-president, and Dave Brewer, secretary-treasurer.

Cosmopolitan Society, locally known as the "Cosmos," have released their election results. Officers are Raymond Krehoff, president; Betty Wong, vice-president; Betty LaVassar, secretary, and Bernyce Clement, treasurer.

An installation dinner was given by Delta Psi between semesters at Lucca's, resulting in new spring officers. The gals came up with Nadine Cookley, president; June Ilog, vice-president; Ginny Cutler, recording secretary; Sandy MacKay, corresponding secretary; Nancy Lane, treasurer; Joby McCann, pledge mistress; Marge Schroff and JoAnne Setlow, historians.

Masonic Club, a social organization for all Masonic affiliates, announce officers Gene Lundin, president; Wanda Cady, vice-president; Harry Walrath, treasurer, and Ellen Cody, secretary.

Latin-American Club, an organization for South American students, reveals election winners: Victor Solorzano, president; Benito Karbel, vice-president; Gloria Bonitz, secretary; Jose Luis Lozada and Gene Sanchez, social events.

Phi Beta Rho announces their new officers for the spring semester. They are Mary Ann Bailiff, president; Lois Schroeder, vice-president; Diana Beach, secretary; Eleanor Meredith, corresponding secretary; Ruth Cristante, treasurer, and Pat Edwards, historian.

Believe it or not, that's all the new officers this trip!

An urgent plea to all City College students and their friends for aid and cooperation in the coming Goodwill Campaign on the local campus is asked by Zeta Chi.

This campaign is important, not so much in its charitable aspect, but in the opportunity it provides to the many handicapped of San Francisco. Cooperation is the theme.

Solid Senders Sent; Club Officers Swing Into Organized Confusion

Symphony Forum Memberships Open Here, Offer 18 Concert Opportunities

Membership openings for 45 City College students in the Symphony Forum this semester were announced yesterday by Meyer Cahn, orchestra director and forum adviser.

The Symphony Forum is composed of music major students from 14 bay area colleges and allows these students to attend 18 Thursday night concerts. The Forum also provides opportunities for them to discuss their art with famous solo artists, such as Marion Anderson.

Cahn reported yesterday that only a few students from the college have signed up for the Saturday morning meetings which make it possible for them to attend the other functions. Bill Murray has been appointed as one of the officers from City College.

Pi Mu Gamma Plans Dance

Pi Mu Gamma, pre-medical students' society, will present The Cadaver Carousel on Friday, March 4, in the campus auditorium.

According to publicist Leo Stark, Gay Evers and his music-makers will be on the band stand. Dancing will begin at 8 p.m. and will end at 12 midnight. The cut will be 50 cents per person.

Any other club or organization planning to hold dances during the semester must have dates approved by the Social Committee, Corinne Lambert, Associated Student vice-president and committee chairman, said today.

Lost And Found Business Picking Up

Although the college's lost and found donated all its accumulated supplies to the Red Cross at the end of last semester, it now has another complete storage in view, according to Peggy Logan, secretary to the college deans.

The following are items already turned in this semester: A stuffed animal (ant-eater), two handkerchiefs, three pairs of gloves (white), a portfolio of stationery, numerous fountain pens (no Eversharps or Parkers), a binder, a lady's purse, and several books (slightly used).

To claim lost articles or to turn in found articles, students should call on Miss Logan in Building 2, Room 4.

Student Council Will Prohibit Club Meetings When Rallies Are Planned

Clubs and other chartered organizations will not hold meetings during college hours when rallies are scheduled.

This statement, put in the form of a motion and passed at the last meeting of the Student Council, was voted on because statistics show that the meetings detract from the students' participation in rallies.

The Club Activities Board will be notified as to the dates of future rallies, and any club not abiding by this rule will be brought up before the council to be dealt with, according to a statement by Pete Isola, Associated Student president.

Talent Placement Bureau productions must be under complete supervision of the instructor in the future.

Isola stated that the bureau was organized mainly to supply skits at rallies. Last semester, however, with that council's approval, the bureau went ahead and produced a variety show called Love Again, without supervision. In the future, the council rules, the bureau will comply with regulations or face abandonment.

Larry Weber, yell-leader, stated that Ram-Pages, the college yearbook, has not sold as well as expected and that there are 3500 copies still on hand. Weber claimed that this shows "lack of college spirit" on the students' part and that the council will have "to arouse more interest if the books are to be sold."

Charles Murphy was appointed Associated Men Student vice-president, and Lee Johnson was appointed head of the Judiciary Committee.

Student Council meetings, which are held in Room 100 every Tuesday and Thursday at noon, are open to all Associated Students.

Vet Service Credits Evaluated Next Week

The office of veteran affairs announced today that evaluation of service credits will take place Monday, March 7, and Tuesday, March 8.

All names beginning with the letters A to L will have their credits evaluated on Monday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Evaluation of the remaining letters of the alphabet will be held on Tuesday during the same hours.

Credits will be evaluated in Building 3, on the west campus.

Navy Flies College Newsmen To Pensacola NAS

By Roy Pasini, editor

Maintaining that seeing is believing, the US Navy loaded nine Northern California college newsmen and two members of the local working press aboard a R4D-6R and flew them off to the Pensacola Naval Air Station in Florida, Monday, February 21, for a close look at their Naval Aviation Cadet (NAVCAD) training program.

Leaving the Alameda NAS at 6:55 p. m., Monday, the plane proceeded to Los Alamitos NAS, near Los Angeles, where the group stopped over until 3 a. m. Tuesday when they resumed the trip to Florida.

Accompanying the flight were LCdr. F. Bigham Jr., USN, from the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, and LCdr. J. Amori, USNR, known to City College students through his duties as job placement director on campus.

Arriving in Florida late Tuesday night, after stopping for fuel at El Paso, Texas and Shreveport, La., the group was taken aboard the aircraft carrier USS Cabot where they observed cadets flying "SNJ" trainers during carrier qualifications and exercises at sea.

While on board the carrier the visitors witnessed a near crash when a plane misjudged a landing and struck a barrier near the landing officer's platform with a wing, forcing the plane to limp back to the base with a damaged wing. A fire also broke out on the flight hangar deck during the night, but was quickly brought under control to the relief of all.

On Thursday, the Californians returned to Pensacola where they met in conference with a staff aide of Chief of Naval Air Training, who outlined the purpose of the program, to produce naval aviators and trained naval aviation personnel for the Naval Establishment and to maintain a trained Naval Air Reserve, for the visitors.

One point which was emphasized throughout the visit was the fact that the Navy does not compromise quality for quantity. Cadets are not eased through the program and of every 100 students who commence the course, about 60 are awarded navy wings—often described as the Doctor's Degree of aviation training.

The training which a cadet receives costs the Navy $41,000 per man, but when the pilot has graduated he has successfully made the transition from a non-flying civilian into a highly trained naval aviator—a specialist in a specific type of fleet aircraft and knows that he is an able and competent pilot.

Before we left the birthplace of naval aviation, we had an opportunity to meet Midshipman James L. Burton, who is a typical example of the type of men the Navy wants.

Burton, a product of San Francisco, went into the program when he graduated from George Washington in June '46.

He enrolled at the college for his two years of study and upon graduation, reported to Pensacola where he is about four months away from winning his wings. Burton is 20 years old, unmarried, physically fit and has completed two years of college.

After eighteen months of active commissioned service, the cadet will be eligible for selection for transfer to the Regular Navy and the completion of his college work, or he may revert to civil life to a billet in an organized reserve squadron which brings a recompense of about $500 a year.

Any interested student may secure additional information by calling LCdr. Bigham at the Ferry Building, or by dropping by The Guardsman office and browsing through the library of Navy literature which we acquired from Uncle Sam on the trip to Florida.

Editors and reporters who made the flight were Stan Arnold, Chronicle reporter; E. H. Reeves, Vallejo Times-Herald reporter; John Bell, Hartnell Junior College; Richard Kay, College of Marin; Thomas Kenny and James Warner, Sacramento Junior College; Fred Lane, Santa Rosa Junior College; Cecil Riley, San Mateo Junior College; Rudolph San Filippo, Modesto Junior College; William Walters, University of San Francisco; and Roy Pasini, City College.

JAMES L. BURTON, CCSF graduate of class of Feb. '48, who is currently winning his Navy wings under the NAVCAD pilot training program.

Volume XXVIII SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1949 NUMBER 3

Uniformed Campus Police Win Praise, Student Approval

Despite a few scattered grumbles and groans, City College appeared to be reacting favorably to the new campus police procedure, according to Fred Fitzgerald, law-enforcement instructor.

At the request of Chief of Police Mitchell, the Police Commission has authorized the wearing of uniforms which make identification positive and authority certain.

To date the members of the force, clad in white caps, grey shirts, and navy blue jackets and pants, have issued no "citations" for smoking above the basement level, but names will definitely be taken if necessary.

"Cooperation of students has proven to be admirable since the new law was laid down. Cooperation has been extended far beyond anticipation," Dean Edward S. Sandys said Monday.

Dances, rallies, sports events, and other City College activities fall under the jurisdiction of the newly organized force, so law and order will reign supreme throughout the college.

Little Theater Group Will Feature Veteran Cast In Blithe Spirit

Featuring the return of seven veterans of past performances on the college's Little Theatre stage, Blithe Spirit will open its five night run on Friday, March 18.

A bit of comic spiritualism will pervade the air when Don Landers, as Mr. Condomine, is harassed by the ghosts of his two dead wives played by Mary Cooke and Mary Ann Stewart, who were both double cast in Twelfth Night.

Carolyn Reiss, who was originally to play Madame Arcati, the spiritualist, was replaced by Rosalyn Mincer, a comparative newcomer to the college players.

Others in the Blithe Spirit cast, who will be remembered for their performances in Twelfth Night, are Barbara Andress, Jo Ann Setlow, and Charles Paniagua.

Blithe Spirit, which has been in rehearsal for one week, a two hour play, will be ready for student and public approval on Friday, Saturday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, March 18, 19, 21, 22, and 23.

There will be no matinee performances unless requested by the students.

McCoy New Editor Of Forum Magazine

Rapidly developing its plans for the spring '49 issue of Forum Magazine, college literary publication, the editorial board, at a recent meeting, selected as its editor, Roy McCoy, well known campus writer, whose work has been distinguished in the past.

McCoy wrote a prize winning article for Forum Magazine in 1947, entitled Let's Burn the Books, which was later reprinted in Contour Magazine, a Berkeley publication.

Also on the staff is David Hansen, former associate editor of the magazine.

Oratory Contest Open

City College students desiring to compete in the Seventh Annual Tournament of Orators, sponsored by the Hearst Newspaper chain, are requested to so inform Michael Griffin, sponsor of the debate team, at his office in Building 19 during this week.

Regional prizes in the competition, all in United States Savings Bonds, will be $200, $100, $75, $50, and $25.

Clubs Urged To File Request To Meet Here

Student organizations that wish to meet during future college hours, were today reminded that if they want to hold meetings in any buildings on the campus, they must first file a request at the office of Assistant Dean Jack Brady, in Building 2.

The following is a list of this semester's college hour schedule: March 11, rally; 18, club meetings; 25, mid-terms; April 1, rally; 7, rally; 8, holiday; 15, vacation; 22, club meetings; 29, rally; May 6, mid-terms; 13, club meetings; 20, rally; 27, club meetings; June 3, club meetings; 10, rally.

Prize Offered For Yearbook Sale

A prize will be awarded to the campus organization who first obtains 100 per cent membership participation in purchasing Ram-Pages, Larry Weber, yearbook publicity manager, revealed today.

For the convenience of those who are desirous of a copy of the yearbook, a salesman will be in attendance from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily at the silver pole. Copies may also be purchased at the student bank.

Students who wish to submit informal snapshots for the candid section are reminded to turn them in before the April 1 deadline. Any pictures pertaining to campus life or related outside activities are in demand. Snapshots may be turned in at Ram-Pages office in Building 6R or may be handed in at the silver pole.

Yearbooks are priced at $2.50 with Associated Student Card, and $5 without.

Bus-Ed Forum Hears Dean Tricket Speak On Labor Relations

Second in a series of seven speakers to appear before the college's business education forum will be Dean J. M. Trickett of San Francisco's Golden Gate College. Trickett, whose topic will be Labor and Management Relations, will speak during college today, 10:40 a.m., in the west campus auditorium.

Business department chief James Hughes and Glenn Mercer, business instructor, are directing the forum which has been arranged so as not to conflict with other activities scheduled for college hour.

Although Business 119 students are required to attend the forum and all other business students are requested to attend, the meetings are open to anyone enrolled at the college, Hughes said yesterday.

Pi Mu Gamma Cadavers' Carousal On Tap Tonight

Utilizing medical atmosphere as the theme, Pi Mu Gamma, City College's pre-medical fraternity, will present their Cadavers' Carousal tonight in the campus auditorium, at 8 p. m.

Music will be provided by Garry Evers band.

Tickets for the affair, at $1 a couple or 50 cents, stag, can be purchased at the silver pole, the guard shack, or the student lounge.

When the musicians take their accustomed break, entertainment by the Pi Mu Gamma Frolickers will take over. Short skits, embodying life on the campus, will be the basis of the Frolickers' stunt.

Pi Mu Gamma is an organization of students who are majoring in pre-medicine and other allied sciences.

"At this dance, as at other past Pi Mu Gamma dances, anything can happen, and usually does," Helen Rich, the group's president, explained. "Among one of the happier surprises, there will be a door prize for some lucky couple."

A coke bar will be pressed into service for refreshments, Miss Rich added.

The planning committee said that the dance will end at 12 mean it!

Fashion Editor Coming Monday For Style Talk

City College home economic students will hear discussion of latest college fashion news next Monday, when Olive Berry, well known college fashion adviser for the Simplicity Pattern Company, will speak to them on new developments in pattern designing and styling.

Miss Berry, once fashion promotion director for large department stores, will speak to the classes in Room 158 of the main building at 10 and 11 a.m. on this date.

Included in her talk will be the story of the evolution of pattern designing, and highlight of her visit here will be a demonstration of the manufacturing of Simplicity patterns. She will show all aspects of pattern making including original muslins and master pattern style.

Miss Berry is well known for her work throughout this country and Canada.

Boy Gets Girl In Double Shuffle In Opera Workshop Presentation

If the contemporary Hollywood comedy romance is at one step, boy meets girl, boy gets girl, boy marries girl, it might be said that Mozart's opera, Marriage of Figaro, scheduled for City College Opera Workshop production here March 31, builds its complete story action around the problems preventing boy from marrying girl—until the last act.

In the case of the Marriage of Figaro, the boy is Figaro, and the girl is Susanna, both attached to the household of the Count Almavia. Figaro in the capacity of what would today be a confidential secretary to the Count, and Susanna in the present day counterpart of maid-companion to the Countess.

Briefly as to background, the Count, though jealous of his wife is himself a real blade with the ladies, and currently has directed his attentions to Susanna, Susanna loyal to the Countess, and sincerely in love with Figaro, must repulse the Count without offending him.

As was the custom of the time, the two needed the permission of the Count before they could marry, and this was delayed by the sudden infatuation of the Count for Susanna. The opera then relates in plot and counter plot the comical intrigue surrounding Figaro's and Susanna's attempts to outwit the Count and redirect his affections toward his Countess.

Meanwhile, Figaro has borrowed money from a lady named Marcellina, promising either to repay the money or marry her—and Marcellina is far more interested in getting a husband than in money.

In addition to the four major roles sung by the Count and Countess, Susanna and Figaro, that of the page boy, Cherubino, is of stellar proportions.

Cherubino is in a constant state of bliss at being a part of the Count's household and fancies himself passionately in love with one lady after another.

In a series of comic scenes, suggesting everything from practical blackmail to impractical masquerade, Susanna, through her intelligence, genuine sweetness, and loyalty, meets each crisis. Marcellina is taken care of in a scene of great dramatic effect, the Count repents his course and gains the forgiveness of his Countess, and of course, Figaro (BOY) marries Susanna (GIRL).

It's Only Human Nature

STUDENT reaction, and an analysis of this reaction, to policemen in the main building will be the topic of discussion for today.

Something of an innovation, the stationing of campus sleuths in strategic spots of the main building has stirred up considerable feeling of one kind and another about the campus; some good, some bad.

Not so long ago the first group of law enforcement student was authorized by the San Francisco Police Department to issue citations to illegally parked cars about the campus. Little response resulted, but the latest move has stepped onto mighty "thin ice".

NO SMOKING YEAR OLD

The story had its beginning some time last year, when signs, notices, and announcements were put out to the effect that no smoking would be allowed anywhere in the main building above basement level, which edict abolished the practice previously allowed of smoking on the stairs.

For somewhere in the neighborhood of a year these new rules were lackadaisically enforced, with only mild reproaches to the offenders; but the boom has been lowered.

And feeling on the matter appears to be running in two channels; one is of resentment, the other gratitude.

First to be considered will be reaction of gratitude, which seems to be the feeling of the minority group. The students in this group feel that enforcement of main building regulations by the use of cops is definitely a good thing because of the extreme to which some newly arrived students push "new freedoms."

Newcomers, they feel, decidedly take advantage of a privilege granted them by "the powers that be," reprehensible at any time, and think that this wanton disregard for its limitations should be halted.

COPS NOT WANTED

On the other side of the fence, however, lies a more resentful and adamant faction, who take an opposite view of policemen in the main building and leave no adjectives unused in expressing their opinions.

They feel that faculty members could easily enough be utilized in successfully controlling smoking on the stairways, and if told by a member of the faculty to "put out that cigarette" students would be less hesitant in complying.

It isn't that they have any disrespect for the law in mind, but only that they hate to be ordered around by members of their own social caste, which is only human nature.

Gullibility, Greed; Sucker Bait Formula

THIS better to giveth than to receiveth, and in order to prove this, thousands have joined or are joining Pyramid clubs. A long time ago a man named P. T. Barnum had something to say about people who think they can get something for nothing. One born every minute, we think he said.

Basically there is nothing new about this variation on the old chain letter gag.

Way back when a citizen of Egypt sold his country cousin the new Sphinx he was using the same principle. This principle is known as the get-rich-quick or gold-brick formula.

The formula depends entirely on two things, gullibility and greed.

Since most of us are well supplied with these two ingredients, the potential market is enormous.

12 DAYS TO PROSPERITY

Gather around now, and we will examine this latest something-for-nothing craze.

You pay one dollar when you join, and in 12 days you reach the top of the Pyramid or the end of the rainbow where you receive the pot of gold amounting to $2048. (Mathematicians and economics students will have to control their laughter or leave the room.)

There are 12 steps in the pyramid, and each step is labeled from L up to A. You start at the bottom, and each night you go to a party and work your way up the pyramid.

You start by bringing two friends, each of whom will bring two more friends to the next party and so on ad infinitum. (Latin for, my God, it never ends.)

If all of this sounds confusing, don't worry about it because it doesn't work anyway. There are two small things that the advocates of this goofy scheme would like you to overlook.

One, the population of San Francisco is NOT infinite, and two, there is a human element that cannot be overlooked.

MORE PEOPLE NEEDED

The fantastic odds against reaching the top of the pyramid are over 2000 to 1, and this is without the human element. If the population of San Francisco is about 800,000, and each contributes one dollar, there can be only 400 prizes of $2000 each. This means that 799,600 giveth and 400 receiveth.

The human element enters the picture when those near the top of the pyramid start handling large sums of money. The human element being what it is, they are likely to decide that they don't want to play any more and just keep what they have.

If you don't believe Barnum and are still unconvinced, then look me up in The Guardsman office. (Bring a dollar and two friends.)

College Gains City-wide Mention, But Still Lacks Student Attention

CITY COLLEGE, at long last, is beginning to take its rightful place among the front ranks of San Francisco's institutions of higher learning.

Following last Spring's successful light opera production of The Vagabond King, and the advent of the current production schedule which calls for two additional operatic performances, the Music and Drama departments have drawn a heavy enrollment of talented performers who, otherwise, never would have ventured upon this campus.

Not only are these people gaining experience and valuable instruction from the college's competent and tested faculty, but the college in return benefits from the favorable publicity and prestige which the performances of these people achieve.

The city's drama critics have been impressed by the college's brand of talent, as well as the manner in which the productions have been managed.

At this present rate, City College should forge to the front of all other local contenders before long, and hold claim to the best in student productions throughout the Bay Area.

ANOTHER factor which has been playing an important part in making City College THE college in San Francisco is found in the athletic picture.

Trophies and glory reaped by last season's championship football squad had barely been placed in the record books when the basketball aggregation came up with a five of equal ability.

The casabans are currently vying for a crack at national honors, and word has it that it will take a mighty potent outfit to stop them short of this goal.

THE boxing contingent on campus has also brought reams of praise to the college, with one writer going as far as placing the current athletic crop on a par with nearby four-year establishments.

When an institution rises from the very bottom, having consolidated at least six major campuses scattered throughout the city, it has reached a level of which it can truly be proud.

And yet, the all important element is still lacking from the local scene. The college has yet to gain the wholehearted backing of its own family—the students.

Rings On His Fingers Please 'Pyramid' Algy

Diamonds In The Rough Get Expert Handling Via Art

By Arnold Solkov

ALGERNON, the ubiquitous campus character, decided, at the beginning of the semester, to have rings on his fingers and bells on his toes. To accomplish this, he enrolled in Roy Walker's jewelry making course, or Art 11b, as it is known in registrars' circles.

First, Algy checked with Walker to see if he was eligible. He was informed that any student so desiring, could enroll in spangle-making. Walker further explained that although a course in basic design would help, it is not a prerequisite.

"The course is not intended to teach students the intricacies of masterful design, but is simply instruction in logical assembly of silver sheeting and wire. Basic design, of course, is used to integrate the metal into an eye-pleasing object," Walker pointed out.

To this explanation Algy said, "Oh!".

What type of materials are needed to make a thing of beauty? And the most important thing, to the almost paupered student, how much is the stuff going to cost?

The benevolent instructor applied the comforting salve to the money-troubled mind.

"The cost could be considered negligible," Walker emphasized. "The amount of silver used in the most popular object made, a ring, runs from 30 cents to maybe 75 cents."

The stone settings, they being of the semi-precious variety, cost $1.50 at the most, and the tools are furnished.

Our hero found that Walker was a man who knows of what he speaks. After his graduation from USC, Walker was made Dean of Boys at the State Blind School. It occurred to him, and the various brass at Washington, D. C., that craft work would have a tremendous therapeutic value to the handicapped men at the service hospitals. Following a mutual logical conclusion, Walker was made instructor at an Army therapeutic hospital.

After a few lessons in silver pounding technique, which is how rings and things are made, Algernon posed a poser to the instructor. What could a student do with his new found knowledge? Materially speaking, what's it going to get him?

To this, Walker mentioned the fact that dentists use very fine tools in their work, even as Algy was using in his class work. In fact, pre-dental students are advised to take such a course. In the near future, such courses might become requirements.

Or, if a student is so inclined, he could be an instructor in art metal craft.

(Instead, Algy made a Pyramid Club motif.)

Arterial Sign For Ocean Avenue? A Student Moans; Another Lauds

Letters To The Editor

• Hey, Traffic!

Editor, The Guardsman:

How many more semesters will we have to put up with the deplorable traffic situation which exists on Ocean Avenue?

The street has been a racetrack ever since City College moved to this area. Students crossing over to eat, or even to catch a street car, more often than not take their lives in their hands.

The lower part of the Avenue, beyond Phelan and turning down in the direction of the athletic field, offers practically no visibility to the motorist at all.

For the most part he is traveling at a high rate of speed coming up, and by the time he is at the top it is too late to visualize any pedestrian who happens to be passing.

City College has had the proverbial "luck of the Irish" in regard to traffic accidents in the past, but fate must be holding her tongue in her cheek these days.

How about a big, red arterial at Phelan and Ocean or at Lee?

• Student Moan

Editor, The Guardsman:

Since when has the Student Council been a publicity agent for Rampages?

A certain non-council member has taken it upon himself to boost sales at council meetings. Which, in itself, is to be commended, but lime in the council is valuable and above all, limited.

Henceforth if "Mr. Yodeler" would please take his yelling to C.A.B., I'm sure it would be respected and appreciated.

After all, that's where you get your messages back to each individual club instead of to a handful in the council.

• Campus Police

Editor, The Guardsman:

I, being a rare individual who does not enjoy walking through smoke-filled corridors or being hit by a zooming vehicle on the campus, am grateful to the student police for the good job they are doing.

Many students bemoan these so-called "mean" activities of the officials and fail to realize that they themselves will benefit in the long run.

These officials, who do not believe that laws are made just to be broken, are out to punish all student offenders who simply refuse to read and obey some of the rules and regulations around the college.

The excellent training obtained by the student cops here makes their work doubly beneficial to the college.

My hat is off to the student cops, and keep up the good work!

Rams Top Grant 64-55, In Title Quest Tonight

By Bob Quinlan

City College's title-seeking cagers journey to Sacramento for the sole purpose of annexing their second NCJCC championship. By virtue of Wednesday night's 64-55 victory over Grant Tech, the locals have a one game bulge in the current best two-out-of-three games title playoffs.

The Rams needed every bit of forward Dud Truelsen's 24 markers to overcome an outstanding Saracen quintet that shared the lead for the first 32 minutes.

Grant Tech had what seemed to be an unstoppable offensive play consisting of long looping passes resembling shots that fell short of the basket and into the outstretched hands of center Jim Luscutoff, who gracefully tapped him in. The big Russian tallied 12 points in the first half and six quickies at the start of the second half before he met his nemesis.

With eight minutes left Don Payne replaced his brother Bob, who was playing under the pressure of four fouls. Payne succeeded in keeping Luscutoff out of the hole and while doing so tanked six important points in the final rally.

Tennis Opener Tomorrow

City College's tennis team meets Stockton Junior College at 10:30 tomorrow morning on the Golden Gate Park courts, in its first NCJC conference game of the season, rain permitting.

Helmsman Hillsman, A 'Silent Hero' Type

RAMblings . . .

By Clarence R. Hurlbert

LEST we forget, the times are with us for a well deserved opus directed toward the fellow behind the City College quintet's unprecedented catapult to best-ever status.

The pat on the back accolades are herein extended, of course, to personable Ralph Hillsman, mastermind of the Ram hardwood avalanche now involved in a do-or-die best of three game NCJCC title series with northern finisher Grant Tech.

Linked with the triumphal march woven by the locals in a continuous pattern over the fast-closing swish-bucketing, with 26 conquests in 27 all told, and 11-1 for the southern division crown, this soft-spoken, easy going individual has been duly acclaimed in his hour of success.

Fact is, as some diehards are wont to argue, Hillsman's guiding efforts might be accredited on the players make-the-team-basis, with the coaching regarded as incidental, and not vice versa.

While we can't deny this oft-repeated theory, what with the likes of Matheny, Duggan, Truelsen, et al, a blessing indeed to any college roster, we'll string along in neutral with a solid vote for the said gentleman's know how and court acumen as a big factor in the splurge.

The records'll bear us out. In his first season as helmsman, '46-47, the ex-California guard and captain of this institution's first championship cage squad back in '36, annexed the state invitational at Modesto, finished a close second behind Sacramento with 10-4 in league play, with an overall slate of 14-4. Next time around, with not too much to work with, he brought his hoop troops home with a final 11-12 count, good enough for another second at 7-8 in their bracket of the loop.

As for this campaign, another state annual, an enviable consecutive skein of 20 straight in a near sweep of all opposition, southern branch supremacy, and possible chimancy to national junior college laurels, supply more food for thought in the "we're for Ralph" soapboxing.

An obliging tip of the sombrero is the least gesture of praise that could be shown our modest hero

Let's face it gang. Sure our lads are good, but so's the guy who makes 'em go.

THE ONE-TWO PUNCH on City College's Southern Division NCJC Conference champs are Bob Matheny, left, with a 10.3 average to his credit, and Dud Truelsen, high scorer, who sports a 13.5 mark in the Rams' 27 regular season games. Truelsen potted 337, while Matheny finished with 258.

Rain Slows Track, Baseball

Lack of condition and intermittent rains during the week forced track Coach Klemmer to cancel the Rams' first meet of the season, originally scheduled for tomorrow against the Stanford Frosh.

In the two weeks since sign-up time, the cinderpath men have yet to become acquainted with a track, having worked out slightly on Balboa Park's grass, while the weightmen exercised in the men's gymnasium.

The latest report received from baseball Coach Bill Fischer revealed that signups had soared beyond 100. Never before in the college's history has there been such an inspired student interest in this sport.

As yet, a diamond for the Ram home games has not been selected.

The Rams were scheduled to meet Hamilton Field yesterday at the airbase. A return match between the two teams is set for Wednesday, March 16.

Boxers Hop South For San Jose Meet

Pitting their talents against the best, the City College boxing team invades San Jose tonight for the annual invitational tugfest open to statewide squads.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's pugilists making the jaunt are bantam Ed Sate, string-bean featherweight Len Garcia, welter Jerry Stern, 145 pounder Roy Damas, middleweight Jack Bettencourt, light heavies Ed Jackson and Dean Bender, and heavyweight Frank Sueugh.

Swimmers Meet OC Reserves Wednesday

City College's swimming team gained a respite from the beginning of their crowded schedule with the cancellation of their first meet with the U. S. Navy at Treasure Island last Wednesday, until a later date in the season.

The next scheduled meet is Wednesday, March 9, with the Olympic Club JV's at the Olympic Club.

Round 'n About

NOW that our world-traveling editor is back from his mission down Sooth, Florida that is, things are at normality again at The Guardsmah.

As he skipped to his paper-cluttered desk early Monday morning, phrases of "Powder Your Face With Sunshine" rolled out of his red, somewhat cheery noggin.

"The only thing I don't like about Florida," the Little Flower stated, "is that you don't see any California license plates!" According to the able editor, Florida outshines our Golden State in this department.

Florida license plates are cast out of dried orange and grapefruit peelings, trimmed with palm leaves. Numbers, made of fluorescent date skins, add colorfully to the already green, orange, and yellow effect given by the picturesque plates.

Lemon juice is used for petrol by most Floridians—something is sour in the state of Florida!

Novel Fad Seen In License Plates; New Clubs May File Charters Today

An official college hour will be held today enabling student club officers a chance to file for new club quarters and meeting rooms. All clubs are urged to be represented.

Alpha Gamma Sigma, an organization for students who have nothin' but brains, will have the first meeting of the semester in Room 204, main building today. All members are requested to attend with brains sharpened.

City College Drama Society, the emoting set on campus, announces officers: Don Landers, president; Dave Irwine, vice-president; Barbara Andress, secretary; and Pat Paulson, treasurer.

An organization started last semester, now making mucho progress is the City College Debate Group. The group is searching for prospective orators in an effort to make the organization a strong representative of the college. The debaters are looking forward to a successful season, with a trip to the Redlands Tournament as a finale in April.

Mu Iota Psi, local music club, announces spring officers: Eileen Scott, president; Jack Aaroe, vice-president; Odine Eelanne, secretary; Joe Chow, treasurer; Nancy Durkee, program chairman; and Gene Dupignac, Publicity manager and CAB representative.

First night meeting of the group off campus is set for Friday, March 11, instead of previously announced date of March 4. This club is open to any student interested in music.

Tau Chi Sigma, last year's intramural football champs, announce spring officers: Antonio Bruno, president; Franklin Patterson, vice-president; "Dawn" Richards, secretary; Donald Paff, treasurer; and Rodney Lossburger, sergeant-at-arms.

Election of officers by Theta Tau was held recently, resulting in Betty Cartwright, president; Rosemary Furtado, vice-president; Dorothy Jordan, treasurer; Ronnie Morrison, recording secretary; Dolores Mahoney, corresponding secretary; and Nancy Loughlin, historian.

First rush tea of this semester was held by Zeta Chi last Sunday, February 27, at the home of Lucy Wilson. Tea was served!

Straw Hat Revue To Return

Straw Hat Revue, with its hilarious satirical skits in Out of Order, will return again to the Marines' Memorial Theatre Friday, March 11, for a three week run, the American Veterans' Committee stated today.

Skits, including, Pinole Choral Society, Report from Makapau, Foreign Movie, Sunday Song, and Cornelius Poppin', will star a former City College drama student, Chuck Huise.

Other numbers of the zany musical revue include Sweep, Sweep Nice to Come Home To, Mexican Hat Dance, Ode to a Tree, and Dolly Brine.

The AVC publicity director announced that City College students will be admitted to the Saturday matinee for $1.00 with an Associated Student card.

Admission for night performances are $2.40, $1.80, and $1.20, and may be purchased from Dale Butterfield at The Guardsman office.

Honor Society Sets Membership Record

An important meeting of Alpha Gamma Sigma will be held during college hour today in Room 204, for the election of new officers, according to Bob Jonjock, last semester's president.

Membership in this scholastic society has reached an all time record of 111 members who have attained the required B average.

All new and prospective members are urged to attend this meeting, as it is very important, Jonjock said.

Those students who desire information concerning membership, coaching service or scholarships should come to Building 5, Room B during the office hours of the sponsor, Don Jensen.

New Car Tickets Now Being Sold By Bank

City College's bank will be open from 9:45 a. m. to 11:10 a. m. and 12 noon to 1:15 p. m. this semester, according to O. E. Anderson.

Car tickets are now available and may be obtained for 50 cents with an Associated Student card. Each ticket entitles the owner to ten rides. They will not be honored, however, on weekends or holidays.

The regulation allowing only students under 18 to use the car tickets has recently been revised, so it is now possible for any cardholder, regardless of age, to take advantage of this privilege, Anderson said.

College Daze Proceeds Go To Auditorium

In order "to do the best for the most" here at City College, a motion was passed recently by the Faculty Association to earmark funds for curtain rigging and orchestra lights in the auditorium.

Funds donated for the auditorium accessories are in part the proceeds gained from the successful faculty show of last semester, College Daze, proceeds of which were for college benefit.

By procuring orchestra lighting and pulleys, tackle, and curtain rigging, the donation, approximately $300, will facilitate campus productions, William Culver, committee head, said.

Library Asks Student Help For Inventory

Student help is badly needed in the library during the spring inventory which will begin next week, Katherine Pedley, librarian, announced today.

Any student who wants to help is urged to go to the main library for further information, Mrs. Pedley added.

Last semester Delta Psi Sorority devoted much of its time to helping the library.

Student Council Approves Funds For Planned Opera

Appropriations totalling $2400 were passed by the Student Council for the forthcoming productions of Naughty Marietta and The Marriage of Figaro by the music and drama departments.

For the production of Naughty Marietta $1800 was appropriated, and $600 was advanced for The Marriage of Figaro.

Five evening performances of Naughty Marietta are being planned instead of the four of last semester, but there will be no matinee performance.

Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, in urging that the council pass the appropriation, asserted that the council should "encourage balanced musical performances."

He also stated that in future years he expects the college will see an increased number of performances and that these performances can continue to command respect from San Francisco citizens.

In urging passage of the additional six hundred dollars to be used for the production of The Marriage of Figaro, Oscar Anderson, controller, warned that if the Associated Students did not support the performance, it would be necessary to accept aid of outside organizations, and that offers of backing had already been made.

The council voted passage of the budgets unanimously.

Farm Garb, Square-Dancing Set For AMS Barn Dance Next Friday Night

A Barn Dance, sponsored by the Associated Men Students, will be held Friday, March 11 in the campus auditorium from 8:30 p. m. to midnight, Harry Williams, Associated Men Student president, announced recently.

The dance is free to all holders of Associated Student cards.

"Students should wear levis and plaid shirts or some type of farmer costume, so that everyone will be in the spirit of the affair," Williams said. A square dance is promised as one of the high points of the traditional affair.

"Entertainment will be presented from 8:30 to 9 and during the intermissions," Urb Cummings, entertainment chairman, said. Student talent will be from the Talent Placement Bureau.

Chairman of the decoration committee is Steve Mayfield; publicity chairman is Frank Bayaol; and refreshment chairman is Emile Urbizando.

Deadline Is Set For Graduation Petitions

Final day for students to remove previously incurred incomplete grades and for petitions for June graduation, will be Friday, March 11, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced today.

"This is the official deadline and the registrar's office will accept no petitions or grade make-ups after this date," Miss Learnard said.

Movies Shown Today

Two movies entitled Aloha Land and Through the Grand Canyon, will be given today during college hour in Room 136 of the main building, Madison Devlin, audio visual aids head announced.

Tickets For Alumni Dinner Ready Soon

Tickets for the City College Alumni Association Charter Day Dinner, to be held on the west campus Thursday, March 31, will be on sale soon. It was decided to advanced the day of the dinner to that date at a recent meeting of the Alumni Association.

Two dollars will be the price of tickets. Attendance will be limited to the capacity of the dining room. Preference of attendance will be given to members of the Alumni Association.

Immediately following the dinner, members will attend the Opera Workshop production of The Marriage of Figaro at 8:30 p.m. in the college auditorium.

Debate Team Argues Federal School Aid

Discussion of a resolution advocating Federal Government aid to tax supported colleges was the subject of a March 2 meeting here, of City College's debate team.

City College's debaters held the affirmative view after the initial statement by Michael Griffin, coach of the team.

Speakers who took the lead for the college's squad were Andrew Ferrari and John Mix.

Future plans with the debate team include debates with San Mateo, Marin and Santa Rosa Junior Colleges. Also scheduled are matches with San Jose State College, the University of California and St. Mary's lower division debate team.

Plans to send the team to the state tourney at Redlands University have been made.

Cagers To Participate In Sacramento Tourney Thursday For Nationals Bid

By Bob Quinlan

Not content with merely winning the Cow Palace's Junior College Tournament, the Modesto State Tourney, the NCJCC title, and 28 out of 29 games, City College's ambitious eagers will now participate in the second annual Sacramento Junior College Invitational Tournament commencing Thursday. The booty: An invitation to compete in the national finals in Hutchinson, Kansas.

Eight teams in all will take part in the meet: The three top teams in the Northern division, Grant Tech, Santa Rosa, and Sacramento; the three leading quintets in the Southern division, City College, Modesto, and Menlo; plus College of Marin and Visalia.

Marin will be the Rams' first opponent Thursday at 10:30 p.m. If victorious the locals will face the winner of the Santa Rosa-Sacramento game Friday at 7:30, and the finals will be played Saturday at 9:30 p.m.

The Hillsmans have defeated every team in the tourney except for Sacramento (which team they haven't played) at least once this season. Menlo, however, defeated the Rams once.

The tourney will be broadcast by Tony Koester, Sacramento Solon announcer, over station KFBK, 1500 kilocycles.

Besides a bid to the national finals, the winning club will receive a trophy and 12 gold basketballs. The second place outfit will be awarded a trophy and 12 silver basketballs, the third and fourth place and the consolation teams also receive trophies.

According to present plans, the team representing Region 2 will travel to Hutchinson, Kansas, on a chartered Pullman, leaving Friday, March 18. Arrival in Hutchinson is scheduled for Monday afternoon, March 21.

Librarians Here Internal Revenue Experts, Live On Borrowed Overdue-Book-Collecting Time

MARCUS SKARSTEDT, head librarian, wonders what to do with the students who failed to return books on time.

By Adolphus Thomas

The nerve-racking job of collector of internal overdue book revenue is a great hazard to City College librarians, says Eleanor Blinn, one of the college's library assistants.

Miss Blinn named numerous "underhand methods" employed by students which cause red tape in bookkeeping and extra nervous strain on the keepers of the books.

First, a student fails to return a book when due, and must be sent an overdue notice. He disregards the first notice, sometimes the second, but usually responds to the third with a declaration that his book was in a week ago, and what is the big idea, anyhow?

Funny thing, the student maintains he is right until the patient librarian calmly confronts him with the records.

Next day, the same student sneaks into the library, slips the late book (overdue a week) on the librarian's desk, and pussyfoots out—hurriedly.

"I guess that is human nature," comments Marcus Skarstedt, head librarian. "But I wish students would turn library books in on time. After all, we are not interested in collecting late fees just for the levenue. We do desire to give every student equal access to library material."

Meanwhile, in answer to the library's request for help, Delta Psi members will give 34 hours of aid per week, Martha Scott, adviser, said today.

The 34 members will each work one hour a week to ease the pressure on the six librarians during inventory. Active members and pledges helped the library last semester.

Forum Extends Friendship To College In Bavaria

By Bob Lachmann

From City College of San Francisco to Teachers' Training College at Memmingen, Germany, a country town in South West Bavaria, a program of mutual correspondence and friendship has been established by the Forum Club, a discussion group, through the U.S. Army German Youth Activities Offices at Augsburg, Germany.

The purpose of the correspondence program is to exchange first hand information on various phases of life in our respective countries.

With the object of demonstrating democracy in action, Forum Club is preparing to send to Memmingen a typewritten transcript of its debate on "The House Un-American Activities Committee."

It is learned through letters from Germany that the youths of that country have an amazing thirst for knowledge of the outside world, especially of Americans. They want to know what Americans believe in, how they live, why they think and act as they do. They are looking to Americans for example and help.

The U.S. Army GYA program is one of educational reorientation in democratic principles. Such subjects as social science had no place in the school curriculum under the Hitler regime.

In addition, the GYA plans full time recreational programs for off hours which include sports, dancing, the theatre, and handicrafts.

Play Matinee Up To Student Demand

A matinee for the coming drama Blithe Spirit may be held providing an interested student will officiate in receiving the signatures of 100 other interested persons, Producer Paul Ellison said yesterday.

Ellison stated that the student interested in contracting the names of the other students should see him in his office in Building 19 as soon as possible to get the procedure under way.

The scheduled dates for evening performances are March 18, 19, 21, 22, and 23.

Whether the matinee will be held will be determined by the number of students showing interest by signing a request.

Council Fills Post Vacated By Strong

New appointments were the main topic of discussion at Thursday's Student Council meeting when Shirley Maritson was unanimously elected by the council to replace the recently vacated freshman council seat.

Miss Maritson, next in line because she tallied second highest in the freshman voting, took over Gardener Strong's position. Strong had recently resigned his seat in the council.

Robert Loberg was voted in as vice-president of the Sophomore class upon the suggestion tendered by Dale Butterfield, Sophomore class president.

Money matters were also highlighted as Hewitt Kendall, head of the Talent Bureau; gave his financial report for the bureau's recent show, Love Again. Discussion followed but action was tabled.

Harry Williams, Associated Men Student president, asked the council for necessary funds to produce the AMS barn dance. After short debate, the councilmen agreed to the sum of $185.

Johnstone Heads Campus Police; Isola Urges Student Cooperation

Leland Johnstone, sophomore law enforcement major, was unanimously elected campus police chief last week.

After transferring last year from the San Jose State Police School, Johnstone proved himself to be an invaluable factor in the City College police setup.

Exercising his appointive powers, the new chief selected as his lieutenant, Garret Kyle, who handles all special assignments.

To date both Johnstone and Kyle have done an excellent job, according to Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement instructor.

The newly appointed head of the campus police will, in conjunction with his staff, carry out the orders of the administration in regard to the recently enforced no-smoking ruling. Also included in the detail's functions is the enforcement of parking regulations.

PETE ISOLA backs up the campus police in a recent statement.

In a statement released from the Associated Student office yesterday, President Pete Isola urged complete student cooperation concerning the Campus Police situation.

The Campus Police, who started their tour of duty March 1, have been the topic for discussion and argument at City College as a result. Last week local students were warned to follow smoking regulations in the main building.

Smoking is permitted only in the basement of the main building, and any student found smoking elsewhere will have his name taken and recorded with the department.

"Campus police," Isola said, "is a law enforcement course taught here at City College, comparable to the Hotel and Restaurant Division. Don't take your troubles to the individual, consult the department."

SMILING CORINNE LAMBERT, Associated Student Vice-President, makes plans for future Associated Student dances.

Social Chairman Releases Dance Dates

With the statement that any club or organization wishing to hold a dance during the spring semester must file the intended dates with the Social Committee, Corinne Lambert, Associated Student vice-president and committee chairman, today posted the up-to-date social calendar.

Campus dances are the AMS Barn Dance, Block SF Hop, Alpha Sigma Delta dance.

Hotel dances are the Freshman Class, Beta Phi Beta, and Gamma Phi Ypsilon.

Latin-American Club and intersorority dances are listed also.

Rally Committee Lines Up Talent For Friday College Hour

Preparations for the forthcoming college hour rally this Friday, March 11, have been started by members of the Rally Committee, Laine Currie, Rally Commissioner, announced yesterday.

Committeeman Jim Fernhoff has interviewed a group of well known entertainers and is attempting to secure their services for this and other rallies this semester. Committee members hope to make this rally as much of a success as was the appearance of Slim Gaillard two weeks ago.

Regarding restriction of club meetings during college hour rallies, Currie stated, "this ruling will be beneficial to everyone concerned and college spirit, as a result, will be the theme."

The committee has been busy for the past two weeks attempting to stimulate interest in basketball games.

Committee members currently assisting Currie are Bill Hansen, Chuck Van Avery, Chuck Murphy, Emmet Thompson, Bob Bomgardner, Pete Kringkel, Frank Rivers, Dave Irvine, Jack Mix, Harry Williams, Danny Lagen, Dave Strauch, Larry Weber, Steve Norris, Steve Mayfield, Barney Howell, and Fernhoff.

Levis And Plaid Shirts Needed For AMS Barn Dance Here Friday Night

Garbed in Levis and plaid shirts, City College Associated Students will realize the first social benefit on their membership card at a dance in the campus auditorium Friday, March 11, from 8:30 to 12 midnight.

Associated Men Student President Harry Williams revealed that a novel name for the traditional dance, "r-AMS", is a mild corruption of the name of the official college mascot.

The auditorium will be decorated as a typical hayloft, and a farm atmosphere in general will prevail, according to Williams.

Walt Tolleson and his orchestra will furnish music for the long planned affair, which should prove successful.

An Associated Student card is the only admission fee, Williams added. Plans have been made by the committee to set up a coke both.

Entertainment will be provided by students from the Talent Placement Bureau. They will perform both at 8:30 and during the intermission, entertainment Chairman Urb Cummings said.

Some lucky couple will be awarded a door prize during the evening's festivities. Associated Women Students are in charge of the check room for the night.

Pacific Opera Offers Student Matinee Friday

Satisfying popular student demand for grand opera at a reasonable price, the Pacific Opera Company will present a special student matinee of Rossini's comic opera The Barber of Seville, under the direction of Arturo Casiglia, Friday, March 11, at 1:30 p.m. in the War Memorial Opera House.

Second balcony seats are priced at $.80, with dress circle and main floor seats at $1.20. Boxes for this performance are available at $1.50.

Student Interests Should Be Prime Objective Of Student Councilmen

FOLLOWING semesters of witnessing Student Council meetings which have been confusing if not amusing, it is gratifying to see the present council take a step along the road to clearing up the business end of their meetings.

The recent adoption of an official Agenda Committee by the council should do much to alleviate the cumbersome manner in which past meetings have been conducted.

The purpose of this Agenda Committee is to supply members of the council with information as to what issues will be on the floor at the following meeting.

In this way, because the members will be able to obtain advance knowledge concerning any problems they do not understand, the council will be in a position to intelligently discuss any issue which may arise during the session.

The time saved by this system, if it is properly operated, will be invaluable, not only to the council, but to campus organizations seeking immediate action as well.

The functions of the committee do not hamper or limit the duties of the council, however, for a provision has been made giving the president "the power to introduce motions, bills, and recommendations needing immediate action without the consent of the agenda committee."

The method should indeed prove beneficial to student government, unless, as in past semesters, the system is taken advantage of by any one group striving to promote its own interests.

Should one group of council members hold a pre-meeting session and decide how they will vote on a certain issue—in other words, bring block voting back into the council—then the purpose of the Agenda Committee will have been defeated before it has had a fair trial.

If the Spring '49 council is to accomplish anything worth while for the Associated Students who voted them into office, they should set a precedent for future councils by acting as individuals in the interests of all students on campus and disregard group objectives.

Accent On The Affirmative

EVERYONE is writing poetry these days. The lover still composes sonnets to his love . . . and anyone with a problem or a conflict (and what healthy young avant-gardist hasn't?) is using poetry as a means for self expression.

Consequently, the literary scene is bound to be over-crowded. Much of the material recently put out by the smaller publishing houses and university presses has consisted largely of esoteric flights of fancy by younger writers.

Apparently imbued with the pessimism of a "decadent era," they are wont to mimic such disillusion-frustration poets as T. S. Eliot and Robinson Jeffers.

SOME WILL LAST

It can be logically assumed, however, that from this tremendous output there is certain to be much that will be influential and some that will last.

The accent is being placed on an expansive style of verse, eliminating the incommunicable from that which is meaningful and understood.

The brilliant pen of a Britisher, Cecil Day Lewis, has produced Poems, 1943-1947, an anthology of his verse during this period.

The Song of the Cold, by Edith Sitwell, is all that its name implies. Miss Sitwell's latest volume of verse is the song of a shattered world—cold and despairing. However, her faith in God and in man raises her work above that of the more embittered souls whose pessimistic attitudes make their verse over-bearing and pedantic.

Good, singing verse by Louis MacNeice is found in his new volume of poems, Holes in the Sky. An English lyricist who is neither vague nor abstract, he has an uncommon fallacy for the definite—he calls a tree a "tree."

JOYFUL POETS FEW

Joyful poets have been few of late, but Seigfried Sassoon fits into the category—"the love of life is my religion still." In his Collected Poems is found such diverse of his subjects as war, British country life, and the ghosts of his own happy past.

Kenneth Fearing is an American by birth and recognizable as such by his verse—a non-conformist, he breaks away from prescribed limitations—"the entire bag of conventions and codes usually associated with poetry."

His poetry is exciting and the subjects varied—charwomen, gangsters, fifth columnists, business executives, and A Stranger at Coney Island—his latest. In this, Fearing displays his love of New York in his own unorthodox style.

RAMifications

IN the exclusive set (nobody with three left arms allowed) in which we travel, a certain book is considered essential. Written by one Mrs. Oliver Harriman, it is called Etiquette, A Modern Guide To The Best Social Form.

For Rams and Ramettes with social aspirations, herewith a sample.

Mrs. Harriman devotes one of the sixty chapters in the book to those poor souls who must struggle along without servants. This will give you some idea of the tone of this important volume.

PYRAMIDS AGAIN?

It is obvious that Mrs. H. has more than we could shovel in two weeks with two shovels. If her vast fortune were converted into one dollar bills and placed end to end, they would stretch from the icy campus of the University of Alaska to sunny campus of old CCSF.

In the chapter on invitations, Mrs. Harriman says that it is usually preferable to have formal invitations delivered by liveried footman. (You can look this up yourself.)

The liveries of different families are well known, says Mrs. H.: maroon for the Vanderbilts, deep blue for the Belmont servants, and black and white for the Harrimans.

Socialites! Take Note Of Exclusive Set Rules

On the interesting subject of visiting bachelor apartments, Mrs. Harriman has this to say. It is perfectly permissible for a well mannered girl as long as she leaves at an early hour. The stroke of ten means the zero hour. (All Ramland women know that men turn into roaring beasts at the stroke of ten.)

In the chapter entitled Casual Meetings, Mrs. H. says that if a man wants to kiss a woman's hand, she should extend it as gracefully as she can and keep it still while he implants a kiss on the back.

DIAMONDS OUT

Skipping over to the chapter on men's clothes and accessories, we find this priceless information. Solid gold cuff links and studs are always in good taste and a gold cigarette case is permissible, but diamonds are absolutely out. You hear that, men, absolutely out!

Speaking to the women again she says, "when you are ready to leave for a dance, glance at yourself in the mirror. Take a good look. Are you satisfied with your appearance? Is everything in place?" (How's that again?)

Well, as we say in English 36, Radix malorum est Cupiditas. (That's Latin for who's got a buck till Saturday.)

There Are Better Things Than Dish-Washing

Thirteenth Year Of Pioneer Hotel-Restaurant Group

By Palmer M. Cramer

NOW in its 13th year, the Hotel and Restaurant division of City College pioneered in its form of Industrial Education for two year colleges; although several others now offer similar courses.

No snap course, only those students considered most apt are chosen, and a continuous waiting list testifies to the high esteem held by many potential students.

In fact, students from all over the world have taken, or are taking, the course. A few countries which have contributed students include England, Czechoslovakia, Germany, and our own Hawaiian Islands.

BLUE SERGE WAITS

Instructors soon let it be understood that the blue serge suit and red carnation, to which most students of the course aspire, come after such fundamentals as food preparation, serving, conserving, and cost accounting are understood.

Largest enrollment in the course comes from the sons of hotel and restaurant men. This, the faculty considers, is the highest form of acceptance.

As nearly as possible, industrial conditions are simulated in the educational program so that students get a well rounded view of the entire field, including dish washing.

To graduate with an Associate of Arts Degree, the same requirement prevails, 60 units, as with regular college training, with about 50 courses covering almost all types of hotel and restaurant positions, offered to assist the student achieve his goal.

From City College, graduate students can proceed to Cornell University to obtain their Bachelor of Arts Degree in Hotel- Administration should they so desire.

SOCIETY ORGANIZED TOO

Sporting its own society, the Hotel and Restaurant Division offers to all students engaged in this field of education, membership in the Hotel and Restaurant Management Society.

Activities arranged by this society are such affairs as the annual spring formal dance, the fall picnic supper, informal dances in the student lounge, group luncheons and dinners at down town restaurants and hotels, and other social events which provide relaxation and opportunities for pleasant social contacts.

Through the society, contact with alumni and prospective employers is also readily maintained with consequently broadened employment possibilities.

• Why College Hour?

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why should the class schedules of the majority of the students be disrupted because of a tradition which benefits only a minority group?

By this I mean the Friday morning college hour.

I will concede that club members find the college hour beneficial to their needs, but the question at hand is—is it really necessary? I don't believe that it is.

Clubs hold enough meetings at private homes and during after-school hours to eliminate a need for these short meetings during college hour.

These meetings during college hour are not even long enough to warrant the cutting of other students' programs who do not attend college hour meetings.

In considering those students whose schedules are disrupted, I have in mind those who have 3-hour morning labs. As much as half an hour is lost by college hours. This may not sound like much, but when there is a required amount of work to be completed in a certain length of time, the tension of hurry further increases the confusion.

Every student in the college is affected by such a schedule. Students are invariably late, and the classes are shorter. Both factors lessen the time instructors have to put their work across.

• Faculty Praise

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a regular patron of the campus student coffee shop, I should like to express my appreciation of the courteous service I have always received from the employees there.

Theirs is a difficult job, yet they cheerfully do their best to serve everyone as promptly as possible. I believe that such a cooperative attitude should not go unnoticed.

Maurice Power

• Sore Spot

Editor, The Guardsman:

Isn't there enough contempt for the local police department by the adults of the community without instilling more contempt in the youth of the city by inflicting a factor which not only will breed more contempt but is already making a joke of what should be a respected position in society?

It is my firm belief, and the belief of all those I know on this campus that there must be a more intelligent, a more satisfactory means of meeting the problem that confronts this campus than that of using uniformed S.S. troops.

Rain Halts Tracksters, Fischermen, In Workouts

By Gene Van Dyke

Heavy early morning rains, coupled with comparatively light afternoon showers, were responsible for the cancellation of the City College-SF State and Hamilton Field baseball games, scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, respectively, of last week.

Coach Bill Fischer has processed all of his applicants on a parallel basis and will name them to positions according to the ability they displayed in the various intersquad games.

Unnecessary haste will not be stressed by Fischer in trimming his squad to a minimum; for he feels that all students trying out should be allowed an equal opportunity to exhibit their best possible effort.

Tom Bournellis, who hit .286 and drove in 10 runs last season, along with Ray White (.279) and Emmet Lynch (.115) are among the candidates.

Deadline For Intra Hoop Signup Tomorrow

Tom Wilson, intramural director, announced today that no additional basketball signups will be accepted after 3 tomorrow afternoon.

Some of the teams which have handed in early applications are Gamma Phi Epsilon, the C.C. Red Hots, the Rossi Mohawks, and the Latin-American Club.

Racketeers, Mermen, Putters Await Openers

By Walt Heil

Hindered by continual rains that turned the running track into a muddy mess, City College's ambitious track team continued with impromptu workouts on Balboa Park's spacious lawn and in the men's gymnasium last week.

If the torrential downpours do not abate, Coach Grover Klemmer's athletes will not round into shape in time for the tentative meet with Menlo on Saturday. A possible three way meet with Menlo and San Francisco State on the State oval is in the offing on Wednesday, March 16, if the weather changes for the best.

Dan Chan and Francis Hurlbert, high jumpers; Lynn Chapman, 880; Bob Baker, miler, and Ray Mason, discus thrower, will be expected to carry much of the load when the season swings into high gear.

City College's swimming team, coached by Roy Burkhead, opens its season with a meet against the Olympic Club junior varsity at the Olympic pool tomorrow afternoon.

Only two practice sessions per week were alloted to the Rams in the Jefferson High plunge, with the practice schedule slowly coming into focus. During the remainder of the week the mermen must practice on their own in the various pools in the city.

Burkhead indicated that he could use more men, especially in the long distance events. Breast strokers and back strokers are also needed.

Despite the prevailing rains, City College's netmen have been practicing earnestly on the Golden Gate Park tennis courts.

Under the piloting of new Coach Harry Buttimer, ace swatsmen Stan Smith, Fred Rodgers, Ed Jacobson, and Pete Brady will form the background of a capable group.

City College's golf team will have a chance to prove its ability when the men tangle with the San Francisco Police Department's team Monday, March 21.

Cagers Annex NCJCC Title As Payne, Matheny Pace 60-45 Win Over Grant

By Bob Quinlan

City College's greatest basketball team brought back to the local campus its first NCJCC title in 13 years Friday night as it defeated Grant Tech, 60-45 at Sacramento.

Although the first half was a see-saw battle that found them leading at the intermission, 26-24, the champs outclassed the Saracens in every way in the second half to win by a convincing 15 point margin.

Whenever forward Bob Matheny had possession of the ball, the partisan Grant crowd would let out a loud groan, for Matheny seemingly could not miss as he tallied 17 points to become the game's high scorer.

The main difference between the squads was the outstanding play of guard Bob Payne. Payne held Grant's star center Jim Loscutoff to a mere three points and also forced the big Russian to foul out midway in the second half. On offense he tanked 12 points for the Hillsmans and was constantly high on the boards to give forth a rebounding exhibition.

Center Kev Duggan played perhaps his greatest game of the season as he continuously foiled Loscutoff out of position and sank his favorite hook shot. While scoring 11 points, the rangy Irishman, along with Payne, kept both backboards in control.

Captain Jim Caldwell was easily the game's defensive standout.

THE SHOOTING of Kev Duggan has pulled many games out of the fire.

Regional Tourney May Be Financial Flop

CITY COLLEGE journeys to Sacramento Thursday to participate in the second National Junior College Athletic Association Basketball Regionals.

The big question concerning all colleges involved is, "Will the tourney turn out to be a financial flop like last year?"

Here is the situation and a possible solution:

Last year the tournament was held in the capitol city, and it turned out to be a financial flop. The sum of $2400 was to be turned over to Marin, regional champs, to travel to the nationals, but only a meager $600 was offered.

The Mariners had to raise the rest of the tidy sum themselves to go to Springfield, Missouri, and compete for the junior college national title. Ironically enough, the Kentfield squad took the national championship after raising the traveling expenses at the last minute.

One of the reasons that the tournament turned out to be a loss is that Sacramento is located in a region in which only three nearby two-year colleges are located, these being Grant Tech, Sacramento, and Stockton. Adequate student backing in attendance is therefore lacking. General public interest was also at a low.

If a financial loss is suffered again, a bid should be made to bring the Pacific Northwest Regionals to San Francisco. The Bay Area can provide the facilities that Sacramento indicated once it cannot maintain.

RAMblings . . .

By Walt Roessing

City College Could Win Sacramento Title

First, the bay city is surrounded by five two-year colleges in Marin, Vallejo, San Mateo, Menlo, and City College. Student interest would produce a fair-sized throng at all games.

Secondly, cage interest rides high in this sector, and a large turnout would be assured at either the Cow Palace or Kezar Pavilion.

City College could win the tourney this year and go back to the Nationals at Hutchinson, Kansas. If the locals don't get the sufficient funds from the Regionals, the college will back up the Rams by sending them back to Kansas.

But, suppose a poorer college wins. They can't afford the trip without a little help, and if they don't get any, a second or even third choice team would make the trip.

Main Cast Now Chosen For Marriage Of Figaro Opera

By Terry Ryan

Eleven main roles for the forthcoming City College Opera Workshop production of The Marriage of Figaro were announced by directors, Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler this week, with some parts double cast.

Heading the cast in the title role of Figaro are Jack Aaroe and David Arrillaga, and playing their sweethearts in the role of Susanna will be Irene Sherman and Lorraine Dyrness.

Other double castings include Eileen Scott and Jean Burlingham in the guise of the Countess; Roy Barnett and Gerald Lustig as Antonio, and Dorothy Mix, Gladys Amburn, and Nancy Durkee, as Barbarina.

The rest of the cast includes Gerard Hadda as Count Almaviva; Martin Clark as Cherubino; Elizabeth Pharris as Marcellina; Jackson Barrows as Bartolo; Robert Way doubling as Basilio and Don Curzio.

Figaro as played by Aaroe will have a background of many years music experience. Aaroe, a former Marine Raider, studied at San Francisco Music and Arts school and at the S.F. Conservatory of Music.

Figaro by Arrillaga will be aided by past experience in The Vagabond King, of last year, as well as Opera Workshop study here.

Both Mrs. Sherman and Miss Dyrness have had college musical studies, Miss Dyrness at Seattle College for two years, Mrs. Sherman at Converse College.

Hadda, Count Almaviva, was born in Germany and has had experience in that country as well as England and the United States. During the war he conducted a refugee choir and two dramatic groups for over a year during his internment in England. During this time he spoke several parts for the BBC. In 1947 he came to San Francisco and one of his first artistic appearances in this country was in a concert version of The Marriage of Figaro.

Miss Burlingham and Mrs. Scott, who portray the Countess, are both students of voice and have between them a vast world of experience in radio opera and concert work. Miss Burlingham is a member of the S.F. Opera Company and studied for a time at the Julliard School of Music in New York.

Miss Pharris, Marcellina, is also a member of the San Francisco Opera Company and has had solo work with the Forest Grove Gleemen in Portland.

Way and Barrows, who play Basilio and Bartolo respectively, and Barnett and Lustig, who double in the Antonio role, are also well voiced in experience.

Applications Taken For Student Ushers

Student ushers during the current opera season may see the performances free of charge, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, said today.

Applications for ushering should be submitted in Dean Dougherty's office, Building 2. Invitations for these jobs are open to new and returning students alike.

Leave Granted To Assistant Counsellor

Leave of absence beginning March 1 and covering the rest of the semester was recently granted to Alice Castro, assistant to F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of counselling at the college.

Mrs. Castro, now residing in San Jose, joined the counselling staff as the first veterans counsellor in the history of the college. Commenting on her leave of absence, Marsh said, "Her untiring efforts have helped to make the counselling and guidance program here an outstanding success."

CITY COLLEGE of San Francisco will be the topic of a lecture to be given today by Dr. J. Paul Mohr at the San Francisco Exchange Club luncheon.

At the luncheon, which is being held at the St. Francis Hotel, Dr. Mohr will speak and use as illustrations, picture slides taken by faculty members, Madison Devlin and William Bush.

Florists Aim For Third Blue Ribbon At Garden Show

Aiming for another first place award, the Horticulture Society of City College is again entering the California Annual Spring Garden Show to be held in the Oakland Exposition Building and the surrounding gardens during the last week of April.

Competing for the first time with professional nurserymen, the Horticulture Society will build a naturalistic garden of California vegetation surrounding a 500 square foot lake situated on the west side of the Exposition Building.

Last year the society took first place for the second successive year by construeting a garden retreat with a water fall that won a blue ribbon and $240 in cash.

The committee assigned to plan the club's entry includes Charles Paioni, Audrey Bach, Wally Tudor, and John Webber, and is advised by John Herman.

Students Urged To Purchase Ram-Pages

Students wishing to reserve a copy of Ram-Pages are urged to do so as soon as possible, because there are a limited number of copies being sold on the first-come, first-served basis, according to Bob McVey, editor.

Copies may be purchased from the sales table that has been set up by the silver pole or at the student bank. For the convenience of those who never stray from the west campus, salesmen can be found in the fountain, or copies may be obtained in Building 6, Room R. The price is only $2.50 with an Associated Student card, otherwise $5.00.

Those who wish to submit snapshots should turn them in with the negatives to 6R or to the sales table in the main building. The owner's name should be clearly written on the back of each picture. Friday, April 1 is the last day the snapshots will be accepted.

Skiers Swarm To Local Hospitals; Club Officers And Plans Announced

NOW that Dizzy Gillespie and Billy Eckstine have gone back East after a successful west coast visit, popular music is at a lull around these parts.

Rumors are flying, though, that Sarah Vaughan will make her first San Francisco appearance within the next few weeks. Also a Jazz Concert at the Philharmonic is scheduled for Oakland soon, featuring Ella Fitzgerald.

Many City College students spent last week end skiing in the mountains. This is the report. Hospitals are packed! Some skiers arrived at classes Monday morning stiff; from skiing of course!

Of interest to Newman Club members, and others, is the running of Lady Of Fatima, at the Curran Theatre from April 3 through April 10. Tickets are available at Sherman-Clay box office, or by writing to Catholic Theatre Guild, 1100 Fulton Street, San Francisco.

President Harry Williams of the Associated Men Students appointed Charles Murphy, vice-president; Pete Taylor, secretary, and Jack Mix, treasurer, to assist him.

A Cappella Choir, the group that does the purty singing, has elected David Arrillaga, choir manager; Blossom Wickstrom, associate manager; Pat Draper, secretary, and Bob Tyson, properties manager.

Women's Chorus, grown to more than 30 members, announced officers Jackie Deasy, president; Eileen Scott, vice-president, and Nancy Durkee, secretary.

Sophomore Class President Dale Butterfield, has announced Bob Loberg, vice-president, and Carmel Lee, secretary, as his assistants.

The Men's Chorus will make an appearance, under the direction of Harold Cunningham, Wednesday, March 16, for the Unity Lodge. Announcement of officers includes Tony Cuevas, president; Martin Williams, vice-president, and Ed Ganzert, secretary.

Plans are being made for the first affair of Alpha Lambda Chi sorority at the California Club, March 20.

The French Club held a meeting last night at the home of Adviser Doris Hehnried, 851 Fulton Street. For some reason or other, French was spoken!

Plans are being made for Phi Beta Rho's first tea, March 13 at the Western Women's Club.

New Band officers for this semester include Al Parry, manager; Bob Sears, assistant manager, and Christine di Sibio, treasurer.

The Band Association elected Bob Tefft, president; Herb Neumeister, vice-president, and Kent Wilson, publicity manager.

Another one of those "Our-boy-makes-good" shots. Herb Levy, last semester Guardsman Editor, is now working with the staff of The Daily Californian, at Berkeley. A by-line last week!

Giant Two-Hour Rally on Today

Lu Watters, Orchestra, To Entertain At College Hour Cage Team Benefit

Rally Tickets On Sale In College Auditorium

Tickets for the two hour rally today, starring Lu Watters and his band, may be purchased from members of the Rally Committee at the guard shack, student bank, or at the auditorium.

Full proceeds of the college hour affair will be used for sending the basketball squad to the national tourney in Kansas, should they win the current Sacramento tournament which ends tomorrow night.

The day's class time schedule follows:

8 o'clock classes—8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes—9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes—9:50 to 10:30
DOUBLE COLLEGE HOUR 10:40—12:20
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

A gigantic two-hour rally, featuring Lu Watters and his band, and intended through a 25 cent admission charge to help send the Ram cage team to Kansas City, starts at 10:30 a.m. today in the college auditorium.

At the special request of the Rally Committee, Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, cancelled 11 o'clock classes, thus providing for a double college hour time from 10:30 to 12:20 when regular 12 o'clock classes start on the Friday schedule.

The orchestra, more popularly known as the Lu Watters Dixie Jazz Band, is slated to open its program promptly at 10:40 a.m. With its former featured vocalist, Clancy Hayes, present, the band will offer such tunes as Aee In The Hole, Hugging and A-Chalking, sung by Hayes; South, St. Louis Blues, Twelfth Street Rag, and Strutting With Some Barbecue.

The main purpose of the rally, Commissioner Lane Currie said, is to raise extra funds for the basketball team, should the Rams be invited to the National Junior College Tournament in Kansas City.

Thus the rally is directly a benefit for the team, Currie pointed out.

Orchestra members who will appear include Turk Murphy, trombone; Bob Helm, clarinet; Dick Lammi, bass; Harry Mordical, banjo; Bob Scobey, trumpet, and Burt Bles, piano.

ELEVEN COMMITTEE MEMBERS for tonight's AMS Barn Dance met Friday with adviser Tom Wilson to complete plans for the affair. Associated Student members may use membership cards for free admission to the social dance.

Old West Spirit Due Tonight For r'AMS Novel Barn Dance

Gaiety of the old west will be recaptured in the auditorium tonight when the Associated Men Students present their semi-annual Barn Dance, from 8:30 p.m. until 12 midnight, Harry Williams, president, announced today.

A state champion square-dance-caller will be on hand to call the square dances at the "r-AMS" barn dance, the name taken from the official mascot.

Prizes will be awarded to the best dressed farm-hand and the best lady's costume. A new and different door prize will be presented to a lucky barn-dance-goer, Williams declared.

One Associated Student card will admit a couple free at the auditorium which will take on a barnyard appearance for the levi-and-gingham clad dancers.

Walt Tolleson and his orchestra will provide music until midnight for the fox trots, rhumbas, sambas, and square dances.

Also in store for the dancers is entertainment which will be presented at 8:30 p.m. and during an intermission with talent from the Talent Placement Bureau.

A coke booth will be set up, Emile Urbiztando, refreshment chairman, said, and Associated Women Students headed by Barbara McBride, president, will have charge of the check room.

Special Blithe Spirit Matinee Set March 21

In response to student demand, a matinee performance of Noel Coward's hilarious fantasy, Blithe Spirit, directed by Paul Ellison, will be presented Monday, March 21, at 1:15 in the Little Theater, Room 28.

Instead of the five nightly performances previously scheduled for Blithe Spirit, only four, Friday, Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday, March 18, 19, 21, and 22, will be presented, Director Ellison said.

In addition to the regular 75 cents general admission and the 15 cents admission for City College students with Associated Student cards, a special 50 cent rate for other college students with student cards was established.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Names Officers And Members For Spring Semester

At a meeting held last college hour, Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, elected Bob Jonjock, president; Al Abramson, vice-president; Renna Varellas, secretary-treasurer, and Wilber Reuke, Club Activities Board representative for the spring semester.

Any student interested in the coaching service offered by the society, is expected to apply to Don Jensen, faculty sponsor, or Jonjock.

Students who have retained the required 2.3 grade average in Alpha Gamma Sigma for three semesters are Abramson, Jack Bamrud, Andy Butler, John Duchow, William Ernst, Jonjock, Richard Kowalkowski, Raymond Lee, Joanne Perramen, Donald Peters, Gabriel Raab, Malcolm Rainsford, Manuel Soto, Renke, Margaret Jean Vaughan, Miss Varellas, Hans Veter, and Raymond White.

Ram Boosters Organize To Support Activities

Organization Ram Boosters, a newly formed supporting unit on campus, is heading for its first objective, sending the Ram basketball team, if victorious at Sacramento, to Hutchinson, Kansas, for the National Junior College Tournament.

Ram Boosters has been developed by City College students in an effort to support local activities; not only in the National Tournament idea, but for future purposes also.

Membership in the organization is on a subscription basis, with merchants and business men at the top of the list, as supporters.

Organization funds will be handled through the college bank.

This organization was given the official go ahead sign last Wednesday by President A. J. Cloud.

In the minds of Ralph Hillsman's City College cagers, Hutchinson is the casaba Utopia they have been working to reach since the season began last November.

The Hillsmans realize, however, they must win the current Sacramento Junior College Invitational Tourney before they can reach the national finals at Hutchinson beginning March 22.

Under the tutorship of Coach Hillman, the team has compiled an outstanding seasonal record of 28 victories in 29 starts.

The Red and White quintet is now amidst their final requirement, the Sacramento Tourney. If victorious over College of Marin last night, the team enters the semi-finals tonight at 7:30 against the winner of the Santa Rosa-Sacramento encounter.

The finals will be played tomorrow night at 9:30.

Seven Films On Audio Visual Schedule

Release of the schedule of films to be shown during the college hours this semester was made yesterday by Madison Devlin of the audio visual aids department.

The schedule, which includes travelogues, historical, and documentary films, is as follows: March 18, California's Golden Beginning, historical; March 25, Wheels Across Africa, travelogue; April 1, Songs of the Pioneers, historical; April 22, Shortest Way Home, travelogue; May 6, Clean Waters, documentary; May 13, California and Its Natural Resources, documentary; June 3, From Trees to Tribune, documentary.

Figaro Tickets Go On Sale Today

Tickets for the college Opera Workshop production of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro go on sale today in The Guardsman office and through organization representatives, Maurice Power, faculty ticket chairman, announced yesterday.

Performances are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Thursday, March 31; Friday, April 1, and Saturday, April 2, in the college auditorium.

Fifty cents to Associated Student members and $1.00 to the public are the prices established, and only 500 tickets per performance are available. Power therefore advised students to get theirs early.

Flossita Badger, opera music director, and Lloyd Sisler, drama director, acting in the belief that opera is for the public to enjoy and that, in order to enjoy it, they must understand it, are introducing five unique steps in performance of Figaro.

First, the opera will feature spoken dialogue, which is authentic historically, easier on the listener. Secondly, a complete English libretto will be used.

To shorten the playing time reasonably, certain parts of the famous music will have to be cut, a necessity that hurts both directors. "The music is much too good to cut," they say, "but the length is terrific unless cut."

The part of Cherubino, the young page-boy, is usually sung by a woman; however, the habit of using women in men's parts is now outmoded in both opera and Shakespeare, so the directors cast Martin Clark, tenor, in that role.

Student artist, Stan Sadler, designed the sets to conform to modern, simplified staging.

Concert Tickets Available

Available tickets for two additional Beethoven concerts on the evenings of Monday, April 4 and Tuesday, April 12, were announced Tuesday by Meyer Cahn, Symphony Forum adviser.

The price of the tickets for the concerts, featuring Egon Petri and Claudio Arrau, are $1.80 for box seats and $1.50 for orchestra seats.

Orders for seats must be made for any or all of the concerts by Monday, March 14, to Cahn in Building 1, on the west campus.

"Purchase of these tickets plus the tickets for the regular Thursday evening Symphony Forum concerts, will complete the Beethoven cycle for this semester," Cahn said.

City College representative to the Symphony Forum concerts and Saturday morning meetings, is Bill Murray.

Graduation Petitions Must Be Filed Today

All students wishing to remove an incomplete from the previous semester with grades higher than "D", or to file petitions for June graduation are warned by the registrar's office that the deadline is today at 5.

Wednesday, April 6, has been designated as the last day to drop a course, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said.

Before filing graduation petitions, students are expected to check their records for the necessary requirements of 60 units, including physical education, hygiene, English, and 20 units in one major field, Miss Learnard added.

Recreational Leadership Graduates Can Apply For Service Today

Graduates of the two-year college course in recreational leadership here will be eligible to make application today at the city hall for positions as Playground Directors with the Civil Service Commission.

Hope was expressed by Administrator Lloyd Luckmann that all who can qualify will avail themselves of this opportunity. Time is short, however, and the deadline for making application for the examination, which is to be held Friday, April 1, is today, March 11.

The job, should the applicant qualify, will pay 240 dollars entrance salary per month for a six day week of 40 hours per week. The maximum pay will be 290 dollars for a like period.

This is the first time that this college has been specifically named in a Civil Service Official Examination Announcement as being an institution which offers a course that so perfectly meets the requirements of the job.

"This marks the beginning of a realization by the business men of San Francisco that City College produces graduates who are well qualified to hold important and highly skilled jobs," Luckmann said. "It is hoped that this may be the first step toward a recognition that students, if they are informed of the needs of business men in the way of specialized skills, may obtain them at City College."

Forum Extends Deadline For Copy

To stimulate increase in student literary contributions, the editorial board of Forum Magazine, college literary publication, yesterday advanced the deadline date for material from March 25 to Friday, April 8.

This decision was reached at a recent meeting at which the board mapped out a campaign program to solicit the creative writing talents of the college students.

The Forum board offered yesterday to give advice to any student who has ideas for a literary contribution, Business Manager Dayton Lawson said.

Students may call at Room 351 any time before the deadline, Lawson added, explaining that the magazine is designed to be an outlet for student creative writing talents which will run from light, humorous, to serious reading.

Baseball Team May Play At Angel Isle Excursion Picnic

By Bob Thorsen

In the spirit of the younger days of old San Francisco, President A. J. Cloud announced yesterday that City College of San Francisco would enter wholeheartedly into the excursion picnic to Angel Island planned for Sunday, April 24, and that the Ram Baseball Club will be available for a game there on that date.

The day's festivities will be largely the result of the efforts of a citizen's committee, of which President Cloud is a member.

Efforts had been made to arrange a game with State College, but they were unable to enter the date on their schedule, as they are to play a game in Chico on Saturday, April 22, the day before the excursion, Athletic Instructor John Gaddy said, however, that a game will be arranged with some other ball club.

Bus transportation to the island will be available, for those who desire it and for the more hardy, by boat. All that anyone will need will be a lunch, bus fare, and some nice sunny weather. President Cloud said that a large group of San Franciscans will be on hand for the day's amusement.

It's Only Human Nature

EIGHT years ago today the U.S. initiated the lend-lease program, which, many still believe, is a one way proposition in which the U. S. does all the giving but fails to receive.

But getting back to more immediate surroundings we shall attempt to bring to light a little known lend-lease project which operates locally between instructors and students.

It is nothing mysterious or political. Quite to the contrary, it is a thing which, if not discussed, might easily go unnoticed or at least unappreciated.

The foundation of the local lend-lease program is different from the one carried on by the government, in that it is beneficial to both the instructors and the students.

Maybe everyone won't agree that the instructors give the students anything, but in the remainder of this column we will attempt to explain our belief.

Some believe that instructors are put on this planet for the sole purpose of eating, sleeping, and beating irrelevant facts into bone-headed freshmen and sophomores, and later, juniors and seniors.

This is a most unjust assumption, however, and should be dumped immediately—at the nearest waste-basket of course.

Instructors, a remarkable discovery revealed, are actually persons capable of basic human emotions, such as anger, fear, and love, and should be liked, and respected, not worshipped or abhorred.

They spend a great deal of their early life preparing for a job which they know will be underpaid and under-rewarded.

To prove this little fact, just look at the comparison of the earnings of a college educated man in a business occupation with those of a college instructor. The disparity of agreement is striking.

Despite this, it is seldom that one hears them complain, for they feel it their duty to give to the many that which is possessed by the few.

One begins to wonder now, just what the instructors get out of this besides a rather small monetary remuneration? There can be only one answer, and that is, satisfaction of a job well done.

We therefore believe that the college lend-lease program can be summed up in this terminology: The instructors will lease the students their knowledge at minute costs in return for which the students will lend the instructors their time in utilizing said knowledge.

As is evident by now this is meant to be a tribute to teachers and instructors, the world over, for a job which isn't human nature at all.

Key-On-Kite Experiment Leads To Male Quandary

WHEN Benjamin Franklin (played by Don Ameche) sent that key up into the sky on a kite string, he did not know what he was getting the rest of us into. By the rest of us we mean the male contingent who must explain the phenomena of electricity to the weaker sex (loud laughter) when they want to know how come.

When she looks up at you with those big blue eyes and says, "honey, explain about how electricity goes," watch out, friend, watch out. Be careful brother, you are in dangerous territory.

If at all possible avoid the subject entirely. Feign deafness or a sudden dizzy spell. But, if none of these methods work, and you're trapped into explaining all about the intimate personal life of the little electrons, then certain precautions must be taken.

Do not, above all, lose your temper. This can be, as in the case of a friend of ours, the end of a beautiful romance. So remember patience, friend, patience.

"It is really very simple," you may begin. (You may begin this way but you will regret it.) A better way may be to tell about how the cute little negatives are attracted to the great big positives. (You may be surprised what this leads to.)

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

Another way might be to dramatize the whole thing in the manner of a soap opera. Handsome Victor Volt could rescue pretty Elizabeth Electron from the clutches of the villain, Rudolph Resistance. You could even have Willie Watt for comic relief.

If you are a courageous man, you may want to tackle the problem directly. (This requires tackling practice.) Just take a deep breath and say, "the volt is a unit of electromotive force and it causes the current to flow through the resistance."

LADY ASKS "WHY?"

"Why?" she will say. (Women always say why.)

"It is not a matter of why," you say desperately. "It just does."

"Why does it?" (We do not recommend shouting at this point. Women do not like to be shouted at.)

A simple method may be to use the water analogy. Here you start with a large barrel of water—representing voltage, a set of pipes—representing resistance for some reason or other, and the water itself represents current. Some people consider this the coward's way out.

To quote a famous old Latin phrase, magna est veritas, et praevalebit. (Which means, of course, never try to understand women.)

Ram Boosters Receive Green Light; Start Drive To Sign-up Backers

IN an effort to secure financial as well as moral support for any student activities attempted on campus now, or in future years, Dr. A. J. Cloud, college president, approved the adoption of the Ram Boosters as the college's official group of student activities backers, last Wednesday.

The Ram Boosters, guided by campus student organization heads and supported by downtown merchants, are presently engaged in a drive to obtain funds to send City College's conference basketball champions to the Nationals should they emerge victorious in the current tourney being played at Sacramento.

The group has hopes of collecting in the neighborhood of $5,000 and if the basketball team does not qualify as this region's representative to the Nationals, the funds will be turned over to the Associated Students fund.

The Student Council would then appropriate necessary monies to campus organizations who are in dire need of same and participating in an activity favorable to the college.

Tentative plans call for the use of an organized body of student representatives to visit merchants and invite subscriptions to the Ram Boosters' cause.

In return for services rendered, the merchant will receive a sticker bearing the Boosters' emblem and signifying that he is an active member in the group, and as such, deserves the patronage of local students.

THIS past week has been one of petition circulating hereabouts, expressing a desire for immediate paved parking facilities and a request to secure funds for a ski team which is, at present, not included in the college's athletic set-up, but desirous of representing City College in coming conference meets.

The plea for paved parking grounds has much merit, especially now, when local dirt areas, pressed into use as parking places, have become duck ponds as a result of a fresh crop of daily rain.

In the case of the skiers though, how can they expect to receive and spend student funds if they are not recognized as official representatives of the college by the athletic department?

Veteran Instructor Heads Large Photog Group

Pasqualetti Busy In Biggest Lens Turnout In Years

By Arnold Solkov

"TO be a good photographer involves more than just knowing where to point the camera," Bev. J. Pasqualetti, head man of The Guardsman's department-of-the-day, City College's photography department, remarked recently.

"The ability to get along with the boss, or with the clients, and knowing your way around the town is in my opinion, and that of other men in the trade, just as important as knowing what makes a camera click," the photo instructor continued.

However, it is not the department's policy to put the wherewithal cart before the photographic horse. Photography students are instructed in the rudiments of clicking the little button that makes the picture come out on the film.

For the photography majors, who number quite a few on the campus, there is a two year course involving techniques that range from the elemental use of cameras, exposure of film and processing to the highly specialized field of commercial photography.

COMMERCIAL TECHNIQUES

This latter field, a comprehensive course in the field of commercial photography, includes camera and lighting techniques for the rendering of subjects which range from the down-town studio treatment given to portraits to photographing of commercial products.

Art's well established head is reared in this field, also. For with the idea of subject matter, comes the artist's ideas of integration, composition and background selection.

Pasqualetti, who remembers the days when City College was scattered throughout San Francisco, commented favorably on the facilities offered to the students of this course.

"We have plenty of space, but there are signs that we need even more. The equipment which we use is the best that the department can purchase and there is quite a bit of it, too," the affable instructor claimed. However, if the general influx of students to the photo classes continues, as there is evidence of, more supplies will be necessary.

NO MAJOR EXPENDITURES

Incidentally, the chief camera clicker said that it is not essential for the student to purchase a Cadillac-priced camera, as the department furnishes the advance student with the more expensive brand when he is ready for it.

The bit of glamor involved in the course is centered around Iwo Jima-picture-famous Joe Rosenthal, now with The Chronicle, who instructs in newspaper photography, which might include how to wear one's hat with the brim tilted.

Five Cent Java, Game Turnout Rate Orchids; Lockers Nil

• Basketball

Editor, The Guardsman:

As the City College of San Francisco's basketball season slowly draws to a close, I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation to those students who have faithfully supported our team by their actual attendance this season. To those students especially, who attended our two tussles with Grant Tech, thanks.

Friday's appearance at North Sacramento for the conference championship was the highlight of the year. The number of students, their parents, etc. present: The cooperation given the yell leaders was simply amazing. On behalf of the members of the basketball team, I would like to thank each and every one of you.

• Locker Situation

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why in the world can't more lockers be built in this college? Some 900 lockers for an institution of this size certainly doesn't seem plausible, but, believe me, it's possible.

I, being a freshman straight from an out-of-town high school, just can't get used to this inconvenience. On rainy days especially, it's a great nuisance to lug around my raincoat, rubbers and dripping umbrella (California weather, you know) from one class to another on the campus.

My colleagues and I can't understand why this college is one of the few that doesn't have an ample supply of cubby-holes. If someone will please attempt to give me a reasonable explanation to this predicament, I will be satisfied, but until I receive such an answer I shall probably continue griping!

• Nickel Java

Editor, The Guardsman:

I wish to make use of your newspaper at this time to express my sincere appreciation to the Hotel and Restaurant department for reducing the price of coffee to its pre-war rate of a nickel.

Only three cents doesn't seem like much but when you buy several cups of coffee a day, then it really begins to add up, and over a period of say a month, a few dollars has been saved.

It has been brought to my attention by several articles in The Guardsman that the Hotel division has been steadily losing money over rising costs of operation, but despite this state of affairs, they still found it possible to bless the students with nickel coffee.

I think it is high time to give the big-shots of the H and R a well-deserved round of applause for an outstanding job of management.

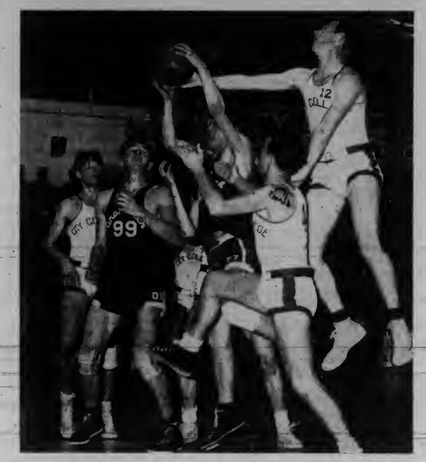
Local Cindermen Prepare For Meet With Menlo, S. F. State

By Walt Heil

Clad in yellow slickers, Coach Grover Klemmer's track squad slogged through a rain muddied track this week in preparation for a tentative three way meet with Menlo and San Francisco State on the State oval next Wednesday, March 16.

Originally scheduled as a tentative meet with Menlo only, tomorrow afternoon, rains forced Klemmer to call off the Oak clash and reschedule it for next week. It was the second session to be called off, with the first being a meet with the Stanford Frosh.

Klemmer, pulling his blond locks in despair over the condition, or lack of it, of his athletes, hopes to persuade State officials to go through with the tentative meet.



Another problem confronting Klemmer is the dearth of field event men on the team. Of the 51 man squad only 13 are out for the field events.

For broad jumpers, Klemmer has Lindberg Low, Allen Rillerva, Rudy Smith, and Bob Bland. Only three shot putters graee the local outfit this season. John Lewis, Morris Feldman, and Chuck Leonhardt compose the entire weight tossing team.

Charles Ryan is the only man out for the javelin toss, while Ray Massoni and Leonhardt are the only discus throwers.

John Smith, Francis Hurlburt, and Walt Willlams will be expected to rack up points in the high jump event.

In the long distance events, Klemmer has veteran Dave Ramos back for the mile, and he is backed up by Don Jones and Bob Baker. Two 880 men are Lynn Chapman and Cliff Brown, both newcomers to the Ram track team. Owen Moore, vet, and Allan Christie consist of the 440 men.

INSTRUMENTAL IN CITY COLLEGE'S 64-55 VICTORY over Grant Tech in the opening tilt of the Northern California Junior College Conference playoffs was center Kev Duggen (12), pictured above by Guardsman Photographer Ken Howe, attempting to steel ball from Sareen forward Bob Steen (44).

Lending a helpful shoulder to Duggen is reserve guard Marty Schneider (4), while City College's forwards Dud Truelsen (5), and Bob Metheny (7), and Grant's center Jim Loscutoff (99), look on. The Rams won the second encounter 60-45, to annex their second NCJCC title.

Stern Stars As Rams Place In Mitt Meet

Coach Roy Diederichsen's pugilists placed second in a triangular invitational boxing meet with San Jose State and Santa Clara last Friday night at San Jose.

Stellar bout of the evening was the toe to toe battle between 145 pounders Jerry Stern of the locals and Tom McInerney of Santa Clara.

Stern knocked McInerney to the canvas for a count of seven with his first blow of the fight, and went the remaining three rounds to take the decision.

Other Ram winners were 145 pounder Roy Damas, who ko'd Bill Sullivan of Santa Clara in the second round, and 165 pounder Ed Jackson, who decisioned Bob Feuererback of Santa Clara.

Fischermen Open Ball Campaign Against Sacramento Nine Today

By Gene Van Dyke

City College's baseball team, currently sporting an unblemished record of rained out games, will climb into their knickers this afternoon and take to the Funston diamond in a non-league engagement with Sacramento, Starting time is slated for 3:30 p.m.

Coach Bill Fischer will open with some of his untested pitchers, each throwing a warmup two or three innings, against the visitors from the capital city.

Whether the Rams will be at their highest peak of perfection for the Sacramento game today is doubtful. Coach Fischer has expected to have a month of training as a foundation at this stage of the season. However, rain forced all of the team's preparations to be crammed into one week of practice.

The college nine makes six out-of-two appearances this season. They face Monterey, Saturday, March 26; Stockton, Saturday, April 2; Menlo, Tuesday, April 5; and San Mateo, Tuesday, May 3. The Monterey and Stockton games are both double-headers. USF Frosh has received two dates on the Fischermen's schedule.

Three Weeks Intramural Basketball Tournament Moves Into Full Swing

Intramural basketball competition got under way yesterday afternoon in the men's gymnasium, and will continue with games played, Monday through Thursday, for three weeks at 3:30 and 4 o'clock, director Tom Wilson announced today.

A few of the teams that have entered in the three week tourney are The Guardsman, the Hillel Foundation, the Perfection A. C., the Goondoos, and the Hotel and Restaurant division.

The record turnout of teams will provide keen competition for the awards which are to be given. Members of the winning team will receive belt-buckles, while the second place team will receive medals with the name of the sport inscribed upon them.

Netmen Host Modesto In Tennis Inaugural

Rained out against Stockton, the Ram netmen will open their NCJC Conference play against Modesto Junior College at 3:30 p.m. on the Golden Gate Park courts, Monday afternoon.

Coach Harry Buttimer will send his ace netters, Stan Smith, Fred Rodgers, Ed Jacobson, and Pete Brady into the fray.

Following the Modesto meet, the locals will play the San Francisco police team, on Monday, March 21.

WAA Forms Teams For San Jose Casaba Tilt

Initial plans for organizing a team for a proposed basketball clash with a Women's Athletic Association squad from San Jose were made last week by Gloria Swiegood, WAA adviser.

In a special session, the first of the semester, Miss Swiegood indicated that three teams will be formed and that all persons interested in the affair should contact her in the women's gymnasium.

Round 'n About

ALL kinds of "Hell" is being raised around this here campoose starting this week, as the local fraternities and sororities project their interpretation of hell week.

In case it isn't known, hell week is devoted solely to giving new members of the organization a bad time—and that's putting it mildly.

Following the traditional week of bad time giving, the outfit takes the supposedly good sports out on an informal initiation, somewhere in the sticks away from any interruption from the civilized world.

Finally, after the new and beaten rushees recover from their outing, formal initiation is extended to the future pin wearers. All in all, it's a lot of fun. Just ask any active!

Beta Tau, local fraternity which ends its hell week today, announces officers Frank Coppel, president; George DeUrloste, vice-president; Al Abramson, treasurer; Wilbur Renke, recording secretary; Jerry Crumpler, corresponding secretary; Andy Ferrari, historian; Dean Perchell, custodian, and Bob McCormick, athletic commissioner.

This outfit will take its 15 rushees, paddles and all, to Russian River this week-end for "informal" purposes.

There will be a meeting today of the Engineering Society in Room 100. All engineering, mathematics, chemistry, and physics majors are invited to attend. Attire for the occasion is a well sliding slide rule.

Latin-American Club will hold a meeting today in Room 346 to discuss plans for a trip Saturday to La Playa. All members are requested to bring 75 cents for expenses.

Future meetings of the Newman Club will be held on the first and third Monday of each month at St. Emydius Auditorium. At a recent gathering new officers were installed which included Dave Healy, president; Carolyn Gray, vice-president; Mary Dowd, recording secretary; Frances McCarthy, corresponding secretary, and Bill McLaun, Sergeant-at-Arms.

Ski-Rams leave tonight for Rainbow Tavern for a week-end of skiing in preparation for a future Junior College meet April 2 and 3.

New officers for this outfit are Vernon Dallman, president; Don Jones, vice-president; Jene Rector, recording secretary, and Mickey Harkens, treasurer.

By the way, these ramskiers are in search for new skiing talent, the only requirement being that a person can ski—hah, hah!

Traditional Hell Week On Campus; New Club Officers Are Installed

College Has Neighbors In Next Door School

Reardon High School, City College's new neighbor, will be completed by the fall of 1949 and will be open for instruction for boys in their first two years of high school.

The school, named after Archbishop Reardon, San Francisco's second Archbishop, will be administered by the Brothers of Mary.

Plans for the school call for a theater with modern equipment, community center and a large up-to-date athletic plant, consisting of a gymnasium and a swimming pool.

The school's administrators plan to increase the instruction so that another year of classes will be added, and Catholic students from the Mission district are expected to attend.

Parking Petition Circulates

High water, high towing charges and high indignation forced City College students to take matters into their own hands last week regarding parking in and about the west campus.

Evidence is in the form of a petition which, it is hoped, will speed action on the building of a parking lot for students.

Recent rains have turned the outside-of-the-fence area into a small lake and has forced more than one student, who must park somewhere, to have his car towed out of the mire.

Towing charges, one unfortunate student said, range from $5.00 to $7.50. "I speak from experience," he added.

Local residents are also hoping the petition will bring forth quick action. A common complaint is that students, parking on the streets in front of their houses, eat lunch in their cars and scatter peelings and wrappers to the four winds.

Service Frat Starts Campus Red Cross Drive Wednesday

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, is sponsoring a Red Cross drive beginning Wednesday, March 16, through Thursday, March 31, on campus, club members reported yesterday.

Collection cans will be distributed in all prominent spots throughout the college—the cafeteria, student lounge, fountain, library and registrar's office. Red Cross buttons will be provided for the donors.

"The drive is backed by the administration, and it is hoped that the students will cooperate and 'Give Gladly'," Alpha Phi Omega members said.

The fraternity, a newly formed club on the campus, has chosen the Red Cross drive as its first project, according to Madison Devlin, sponsor.

Some of the money collected for the Red Cross is used for home service, disaster, accident prevention, water safety, home nursing, staff aid, social welfare, Junior Red Cross, motor service, canteens, supplies, arts and skills service, nurses aides, Gray Lady, first aid, nutrition service, blood projects, military welfare.

Campus Cleanup Holds Campaign Spotlight; Four Smoking Violaters Cited This Week

Smoking and parking still hold the spotlight in the campus police clean-up campaign of City College.

Four violaters were cited for smoking above the basement level earlier this week. The cause of these violations may be attributed to a technicality which has arisen over the smoking zone in the main building.

The question of what constitutes legal smoking zones has been clarified by campus police officials.

Until other arrangements are made, the "basement level" refers only to the basement — not adjacent staircases.

Parking on the north ramp by unauthorized students and faculty members has developed into quite a problem, Fred Fitzgerald, campus police organizer, said Monday.

This ramp is reserved for the physically disabled who have received specific authorization from Controller Oscar Anderson. All others will be subject to police action, Fitzgerald said.

Fewer Summer Positions Available

Because of the late college closing date of June 17, and the return of experienced employees, summer resorts are accepting fewer applications from the college employment group, Joseph Amori, placement director, said today.

Employers have assured Amori that the placement office will be informed if vacancies occur, and he urged interested students to sign up as soon as possible for these jobs.

Positions in forestry service were also announced.

Budget Committee To Cut Semester Requests

The budget committee revealed at Tuesday's Student Counell meeting that it was forced to cut total requests from $31,000 to $25,045 to bring the budget in line with $25,000 alloted by the comptroller's office for this semester's budget.

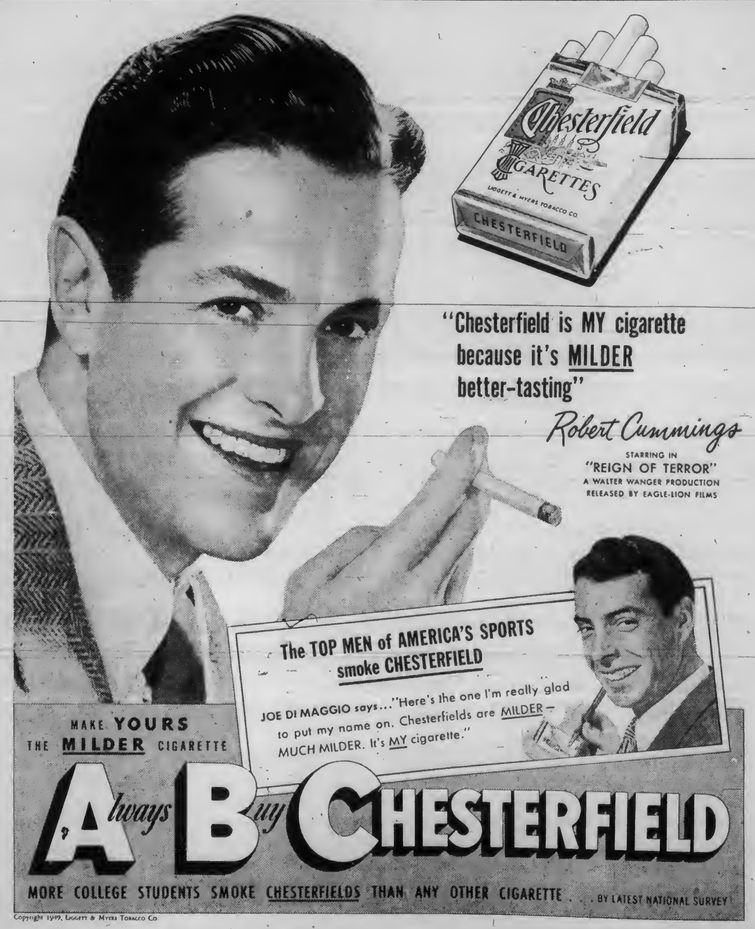
The committee also refused requests for funds by the Athletic Department to send some teams to state and national championship meets.

Explaining the cutting of the budgets for the various departments, Associated Students President Pete Isola said "we're operating on a shoestring."

Garden Show Set For Next Month

Theme for the California Spring Garden show in which City College will take an active part is "California"—a century of gardens. This will be the seventeenth annual garden show and dates have been set for late April.

The Hall of Flowers and Trade Section will again be housed in the Arena of the Oakland Municipal Auditorium and the surrounding gardens.



A varied and brilliant display of cut flowers, floral arrangements and wedding settings is planned as the response in this section last year was tremendous.

The show will open at 8 a.m., Tuesday, April 26, and will end at 10 p.m., Sunday, May 1.

Last year City College's Horticulture Society took first place for the second consecutive time. The prize was $240 in cash. This year's committee is composed of Charles Paloni, Audrey Bach, Wally Tudor, and John Webber, advised by John Herman.

One of the most beautiful floral exhibits ever to be presented by a City College will be shown, Herman said.

Blithe Spirit Opens In Little Theatre Friday

When Paul Ellison's presentation of Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit opens at the Little Theater, Room 28, this Friday, March 18, a group of veteran college players will be presented for public acceptance in a hilarious fantasy of spiritualism.

The cast, now in the final week of rehearsal, is headed by such well-knowns as Don Landers, Mary Cooke, Mary Ann Stewart and a comparative newcomer, Rosalyn Mincer.

Barbara Andress, Jo Ann Setlow and Charles Paniagua, featured players, all appeared last January in Twelfth Night.

The plot involves Mr. and Mrs. Condomine, played by Landers and Miss Stewart. Mr. Condomine has ambitions of writing a book on spiritualism and employs the assistance of Madam Arcati, a spiritualist, portrayed by Miss Mincer.

When Madam Areati begins assisting Mr. Condomine with background material, spirits begin to appear, namely the ghost of Mr. Condomine's first wife, Elvira, played by Miss Cooke.

Elvira reappears at various intervals, visible only to Mr. Condomine, and Madam Arcati keeps the plot progressing with her humorous antics, namely in the form of seances.

Performances are slated for Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, March 18, 19, 21, and 22, with a matinee performance Monday, March 21 at 1:15 p.m. Admission is 15 cents to Associated Students, 75 cents to others.

Block SF Pitches Basket BALL Friday

Date for the semi-annual Block SF Society dance, The Basket-Ball has been set for this Friday, March 18, Al Athanasopoulos, society president, announced today.

This dance has been so named, Athanasopoulos said, in honor of the City College basketball team, who, it is hoped, will soon "take off" for Hutchinson, Kansas, to "take on" the nationals.

Casual dress will be the uniform for this affair, Oliver Bascom, social chairman said.

The dance will be held in the auditorium, where music will be played by Hal Richards and his orchestra from 9 p.m. until 12 midnight. A coke booth will be available.

Ram-Boosters To Aid Basketball Team Trip

Ram-Boosters' committee held their first meeting last Sunday to establish and review a tentative working plan.

Pete Isola, George Capanis, Norman Reger, Roy Pasini, and Dale Butterfield are the Ram-Booster organizers.

The committee appointed a group of organized salesmen to interview owners of business establishments in the West Portal, Mission, Ocean Avenue, Lakeside, and Monterey districts, extending an invitation to join the club in immediate support of the Ram basketball squad's trip to the National's.

A club presidents' meeting was also called last night to present the working plan, giving the Ram-Boosters the fullest support.

Council Approves Half Budget, Ram Boosters

Presentation of a thirty foot petition; passage of $17,000 in budget funds, and approval of the Ram-Boosters were the highlights of the Student Council meeting Thursday.

The petition was unrolled by two members of the Ski-Rams, William Johnson and Vernon Dallman, while President Pete Isola demanded evidence that all the signatures were accompanied by Associated Student card numbers.

The petition when unrolled, spread across the front of the council room, and members reacted in good humor.

The petition, which objected to the refusal of the budget committee to appropriate $100 for the Ski Rams to participate in ski meets, was swiftly removed from the floor and sent to the Agenda Committee for "proper introduction."

The council continued to approve the budget part by part after a motion to consider the budget as a whole was defeated. So far $17,000 of the total has been allocated.

The Publicity Committee budget submitted by Chairman George Capanis, suffered the largest slash before presentation to the Council, then lost another $50 to the Sophomore Week fund.

A full financial report will be published when action is final, Roy Pasini, Guardsman editor, said.

Ram-Boosters was also given approval when the Student Council voted to become the nucleus of the organization.

Purpose of Ram-Boosters will be to extend membership to merchants and businessmen in the college area to support future City College activities.

Enrollment For Term Shows Little Decline

Registration of 5194 students for the Spring semester, as opposed to a total 5244 students who were enrolled for the Fall semester, 1948, shows a decrease of only 50 students, according to an announcement made Wednesday by President A. J. Cloud.

Thirty-five per cent of the enrollment consists of veterans attending under the various public laws. More than 200 of these students make their home on the campus.

The woman shortage is still in existence, with men outnumbering women more than four to one.

This semester's official figures show that half the students enrolled are working their way through college with the help of a part time job.

First semester students number approximately 1200. Twenty per cent of these are veterans, attending under the GI bills.

Foreign students registered at the college number 320.

Campus Auto Club Not College Organization

Campus Auto Club, currently conducting a "membership" drive among students of City College, is strictly a private business promotion with absolutely no connection with the college.

O. E. Anderson, controller at the college, stated today that City College in no way shares in the $2 membership fee being collected with each application. Students were reminded that no money can be collected on the campus without permission from Anderson.

Rate Expert To Speak Here Friday

The recently formed Business Education forum will meet during college hour, Friday, March 18, in the college auditorium to hear Howard G. Freas, rate expert for the Public Utilities Commission.

The forum is under the combined direction of business department head James Hughes and department instructor Glenn Mercer.

Speaker at the last meeting was Dean J. M. Trickett of Golden Gate College. Following Freas' talk, the forum will present the vice-president of Anglo California National Bank, Harry Goodfriend, who will appear Friday, April 22.

Forum meetings are compulsory for students in certain business classes, but anyone at the college may attend.

Designer Sadler, Builder Kendall Study 18th Century, Supply Authentic Figaro Stage Sets

FIGARO stage designer, Stan Sadler.

Under the direction of Lloyd Sisler, college drama instructor, and with the help of Stan Sadler and Hewitt Kendall, on design and construction, sets for the Opera Workshop production of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro entered the final building stage last week.

Four sets, all indicative of a palace scene, are nearly completed for production Thursday, March 31, Friday, April 1, and Saturday, April 2, at 8:30 p.m. in the college auditorium. The opera is directed by Flossita Badger and Sisler.

Sadler, the designer of the sets, spent many hours of preparation studying pictures of 18th century scenes down to the most minute detail in order that his sets would have a true ring of authenticity.

Sadler is well known to students for his work on the sets of Love Again, talent bureau show, and for his mural, The History of Typography.

The sets are done on a black background and are simple in design. Harmonious lighting and shadowing will complete the effect.

Kendall, former talent bureau head, is in charge of construction and is assisted by the stage-craft classes.

Tickets for the light opera went on sale Friday, March 11, for fifty cents to Associated Students and $1.00 to the public. They may be obtained through club representatives, in The Guardsman office, the bank, from the telephone operator, Maurice Power, ticket chairman, said.

SRO Sign Out For Cage Benefit Rally

An audience estimated at more than 1000 students attended the Lu Watters benefit rally last Friday at 25 cents per person.

Approximately $250 was collected to help finance the college basketball team should it go to the Nationals.

The gathering was one of the largest that the college has seen in many a day.

The students attending were not only listening to the music but many showed their talents in the daneing featured as part of the rally.

Ram-Pages Production Under Way, Is Printed By Lithograph Process

Production of Ram-Pages by lithographic offset process, rather than by letterpress, has allowed a freedom of layout design and use of color far beyond that offered by other processes, William E. Bush, adviser, said in an interview today.

Those who wish to submit snapshots for the college life section, must turn them in to Building 6, Room R or to the silver pole sales table before the April 1 deadline. No candids will be accepted after this date, Bob McVey, editor-in-chief, warned yesterday.

It was also disclosed by Bush that on the basis of present sales there will be only 1,500 copies published, thus only those who have receipts can be assured of a book.

Club members and other students who desire to support a club for the club trophy, offered as prize to the club having 100 per cent of its members holding Ram-Page receipts, are expected to reserve their books immediately, according to Jim Fernhoff, sales manager.

Ram-Pages is priced at $2.50 with an Associated Student card and $5.00 without.

Students who have already purchased a yearbook and who wish to add their participation to a specified club's bid for the trophy prize, can do so in the form of a vote in Room 6R, Fernhoff said.

Yearbook reservations are on sale at the silver pole in the main building, in Room 6R, and through staff members.

The yearbook is underwritten by vote of last semester's and this semester's Student Councils from Associated Student funds, and income from sales will offset the cost involved.

Alpha Phi Omega Starts Campaign Tomorrow For Gigantic National Red Cross Fund Drive

Donation boxes will span all areas of the campus tomorrow, when Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, begins a gigantic drive on campus to collect funds for Red Cross relief.

The drive will continue from Wednesday, March 16 to Tuesday, March 29.

Official spokesmen for the organization could not be reached today to estimate possible returns from the campaign.

Money collected through distribution boxes placed in the cafeteria, student lounge, fountain, library, and registrar's office, will be used to aid projects of Red Cross activities, Madison Devlin, club sponsor, explained.

Money collected through the fraternity, which started on campus last semester, is to be used in accident prevention, home service, water safety, home nursing, nurses aides, first aid, nutrition, blood projects, military welfare, and many other aids which branch from Red Cross services.

Forum Editors Will Discuss Literary Work

By Dick Briggs

Forum editors will meet in conference tomorrow to determine the policy and discuss art work and written material for the college literary magazine, now tentatively scheduled for publication in May.

Staff members, in conducting their second meeting of the semester, plan to organize a campaign designed to encourage talented writers to submit their manuscripts. In compliance with this program, the deadline date for material was recently moved from March 25 to Friday, April 8.

The staff, headed by Editor Roy McCoy, whose 1947 Forum article, Let's Burn the Books, was reprinted in a Berkeley publication, has offered to aid all authors with advice and suggestions for preparing their articles.

Articles of light, humorous, and serious reading in prose, poetry, or short story form are desired, and should be submitted to faculty advisers Dorothy Mercer or John Gerstung. Material may be sent to Room 251 or 4K, and students are urged to release manuscripts at the earliest time. Articles must be limited to 1,500 words.

The staff consists of Editor Roy McCoy; Dick Brennan, assistant managing editor of The Guardsman; David Hansen, former Forum associate editor, and Dayton Lawson, columnist for The Guardsman.

Staff member Lawson invited student writers to call at Room 351 any time before the deadline.

Accent On The Affirmative

FRENCH Art of the Book, an exhibit of contemporary books produced in France in the period 1900-1947, is at present on display at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor.

Slated to remain at the Palace until March 30, the exhibit holds much interest for the art student because of its artistic mediums employed and to the lover of beauty and literature for its fine illustrations, paper-makings, and bindings.

The 255 books illustrate perfectly that particular tendresse which the French have with producing such luxury items. Published in limited quantity, most of them have been put out under the 350 copy quota. Needless to say, they are restricted to the wealthy and the initiated.

An important phase of the exhibit is the depiction of the actual layout and printing methods in the books' production. For instance, a panel demonstrates by photos the production stages of a book on Sarah Bernhardt by the French lyricist, Jean Cocteau. Displayed are the first sketches of the layout, the original water color illustrations, to the final printed page complete with initial letters and illustrations.

Not only would the art student be interested in these production methods, but the printing student, for the typography employed is varied and outstanding.

Showcases display examples of illustrations and fine printing found in the finished volumes. On display are the works of Auguste Renoir, Pierre Matisse, Ram Rischmann, Hermine David, Robert Bonfils, and others. A striking illustration is that for Jazz by Mare Chagall. Colors are limited to black, white, yellow, royal blue, and red.

Other outstanding examples are the new Candide with lithographs by Clave, a translation of Hamlet by Andre Gide with engravings by Albert Decares.

A title page from a book by Gertrude Stein is illustrated in a manner befitting the subject matter. Miss Stein's own inimitable talent accounts for the title "A Book Concluding As a Wife Has a Cow a Love Story." (Something lost in the translation, perhaps.)

Mention must be made of the finished products. The bindings are beautiful, something rarely found any where other than in an exhibit of this caliber.

Tooled morocco is much in evidence. Of all colors—green, violet, pink, garnet red, a preponderance of black—they are lined with silks, suedes, and calfskins.

Whirling designs, cross gilt fillets, mosaic patterns, rays of gold and all-over patterns (one of butterflies on a raised surface is particularly eye-catching) comprise the cover designs.

Take Note! Courage Needed For Studying

WITH this, the sixth issue of the semester, it is time we took up the subject of studying (the most horrible word in the English language).

Sometimes known as noodlework, skulldragging, or just plain book larnin', this is an activity that requires a good deal of courage and stamina.

There are several different methods of approach to this difficult phase of college life. Personally, we are in favor of the slow and easy system. This is the painless method described in Alex Zzyd's famous book, How To Win Grades And Influence Instructors.

THE EASY APPROACH

First, place all books and papers on the table or desk. Then adjust the light. (This can take quite a long time if you are good at it.) Next, sharpen several pencils to fine point. This writer has one of the finest collections of sharpened pencils in all California.

It might be better about this point to take a break as there is no use burning ourselves out. Remember, we have our health to think of, too.

If, after turning the radio off and on a few times, reading the morning paper again, and playing a couple of games of solitaire, you can think of nothing more to do, it is time to face the situation squarely. (Or, if you prefer, roundly.)

Care must be taken in the selection of subjects to be studied. Do not, for instance, try to study economics and philosophy at the same time. The two subjects are incompatible, and we have seen some terrible results from this lack of foresight. English literature and engineering are another bad combination.

THE RADIO PROBLEM

There are two schools of thought on the controversial subject of having the radio on while studying. There are those who say they can't study without it and those who say they can't study with it. Television will, of course, take care of this problem, and we won't study at all.

The next important step is taking notes while reading. (This is not necessary if you belong to the mark-up-the-book-school of note takers.) Some students believe in copying every tenth sentence. Others prefer to copy one sentence per page. We believe that the only important thing is to be consistent.

For this profound study on the art of studying we are in debt to the following source of material: Encyclopedia Brittanica, Reader's Guide To Periodical Literature, The Telephone Directory, and the bartender at Joe's.

All those in favor of quitting early today, raise your right hand.

Editorial: Council Action Leaves College Publicity Director Penniless And Powerless

STILL as confusing, but growing less amusing are the twice-a-week Student Council meetings. At last Thursday's session, the councilmen pulled their biggest faux pas yet of the still new Spring semester.

In the midst of an energetic budget cutting sitting, the voting members of the student government gathering ran into a problem which, if carefully digested, was simply—Which is more important, a successful campaign to promote the college's coming activities, or devoting more attention to one particular event?

The council's vote ruled in favor of the latter, but not unanimously, thereby leaving a faint hope for improvement in things to come.

The one event, which received the council's blessings, was the Sophomore Formal. Running a poor second, was the newly formed Public Relations Board.

The PRB, which handles all campus publicity, was the victim of a "cutting blow" in more ways than one.

First, the board had submitted an original operating budget of $1,310.00 with which they planned to publicize the college's operatic productions, all athletic activities, social activities, plus additional academic programs scheduled for this semester.

Secondly, the budget committee was forced to cut this budget in two, leaving Publicity Director George Capanis with a working capital of $600 and the same list of objectives.

Thursday's meeting put the finishing touch on Capanis' plans as the predominantly Student League council cut an additional $50 from his meager total and added it to the Sophomore Formal.

This gives the Sophomore Class $450 for their dance and leaves the publicity with $550 to promote all of this semester's activities, including the Sophomore Formal.

There are those who feel that, because the dance will bring back a financial return, the move was a justifiable one, but they have entirely overlooked one point—favorable publicity is a priceless asset to any institution.

Man Tries To Solve Celestial Puzzle In Vain

Astronomy Scoffs At Psuedo-science Idea Of Astrology

By Paul M. Cramer

EVER since man first walked upright and was able to gaze in awe and wonder at the skies above his head, the sun, the moon and stars have held an inexplicable fascination.

Even today at City College, man gazes at the heavens in awe, and with the feeble tools at his command tries to pierce the gleaming blanket above in an effort to solve the puzzle that surrounds him.

Where does it end? Does it end? And, of course, the puzzle of man himself, because somewhere in that blanket may lie the answer.

It is common knowledge that the ancients searched the skies in a vain effort to find the answer to "What lies beyond?"

Following in the footsteps of these ancients, City College offers an opportunity for the more intrepid, the more curious, to observe, plot, and perhaps marvel at the wonders that man's mind has helped unfold, but never fathom.

Six courses are open for those students who would look beyond the reaches of his own eyes. SIX courses which will only whet his curiosity for more.

There are two parts offered in astronomy here; one, the solar system, which presents a microscopic point of view; and two, a macroscopic, or over-all, point of view which reaches out a half billion light years.

The solar system is called a microscopic point of view. Louis Berman, instructor, explains, because taking into consideration the magnitude of the cosmos, the solar system is, indeed, microscopic.

There are, too, courses in Marine and Air Navigation designed for students in pilot training and training for the merchant marine and other maritime services.

Primary function of the courses offered, Berman said, is to instill in students a wonder at the natural order of the solar system and to help counteract fear, ignorance, and superstition about this quite natural phenomenon.

The Orson Welles story of a few years back could have held no fear for the layman had he possessed a smattering of the knowledge of astronomy, Berman said.

Ignorance and fear also, could be uprooted and the psuedoscience of astrology, fortune telling by the heavenly bodies, would be scoffed at and forgotten, he added.

Through the medium of science the fact that there is human life on one of the planets has been established. Which? The Earth.

THERE'S HUMAN LIFE on one of these planets, kid, but where?

Letters To The Editor

Not Napa, Merely Hell Week; Police And Parking Praised

(Editor's Note: Letters to the editor may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman editorial office in Building 12. Deadlines are noon on Monday and Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld but the author must be known to the editor.)

• What's Up, Doc?

Editor, The Guardsman:

What's doin' with the lads in the hats?

I wandered around this campus all week long contemplating calling a Napa intern in regard to some of these local characters sporting tin helmets, jockey caps, and striped berets when someone put me wise to the reason for such a condition.

Hear ye, hear ye, it's some sort of collegiate doin's known as Hell Week. You can say that again, brother! It sure is hell to look at them in those goofy outfits, but it seems that the poor fellows are going through the worst of hell, themselves!

I've got no complaint at all about this procedure. I think it's great . . . lots of old collegiate spirit, brotherly love, and all that sort of stuff. Even if you can't move when you enter the student store for a cup of coffee due to the admiring crowds watching the antics of a group of pledges, you've got to admit it is rather amusing. I hear complaints all over the place regarding "the fool pledges" but, as for me, I take off my Frank Buck helmet in humility to them. That these fellows can go through such a harrowing experience for a whole week causes me to extend them my admiration.

D.S.

• Sore Spot Reply

Editor, The Guardsman:

In reply to the recent "Sore Spot" submitted by D.D.B., I would like to clarify a few of his accusations. It must be remembered that contempt for the police department by the adults has its foundations in their attempts to get away with acts that would justify court action.

Similarly, the youth of the campus has this same apathy in lounging in the halls with cigarettes drooping from their lips or parking where the police department prohibits a bonfire-neck of cars. The offenders are the loudest and the most belligerent people, while those who conform to the standards of the community can justify some protection that is due them.

By the way, the S.S. Troops wore black shirts, our men are wearing blue shirts.

Florence Brakovich

• Grateful Guy

Editor, The Guardsman:

Orchids to the powers-that-be (thank-you, Dean Sandys), and I stand in awe of The Guardsman. Within two days after the complaint was registered in The Guardsman's Ram's Horn about the Tank-Traps in the dirt lot parking area, a man with a shovel filled them with some beautiful geological specimens (rocks, to you).

After a few trial hops, my Adagio Six has pronounced the entrance as comparable to the gateway to heaven.

Now it wishes to express its heartfelt thanks down to the last throbbing piston . . . thanks.

ORANGE Blossoms and Chapel Bells: Fred Antroll, erstwhile writer and bon vivant of Ocean Avenue, took unto himself a bride the 25th of last month. The starry-eyed partner in the merger is the former Rita Guinasso, an Oakland lass.

The pair slipped off to Reno in the dead of night and turned the trick, with none the wiser. The Home Sweet Home placard now hangs in Hurley Village.

Success Story: When Khan Mihan, the happy peanut vendor, first set up shop on the campus a couple of years ago, he was relegated to the lower part of Phelan Ave., and couldn't bring his wagon any closer to the main building. Customers were not too plentiful either, and a couple of ice cream cones in an hour was a terrific sale. Now, two years later, the amiable popcorn merchant has the S.R.O. sign out daily, as witness the lineups every hour on the hour. (His wagon has also moved a couple of notches up the hill.)

Frustration Dept.: Those auto parking permits, long an easy mark for anyone who wanted to slip one off someone else's windshield, are now fixed so that you have to carry around a glass cutter, Steam, oil, hot water, and other old standbys won't do the trick.

City College Boxers Seek National Recognition

Win Over California Might Send Diederichsens To Pasadena Finals

By Frank Monte

Another advancement to major sport recognition of boxing at City College will be made at 8 p.m. Thursday, when Roy Diederichsen's mitmen compete against California at the Bears' gymnasium in the first official boxing meet ever staged between the two colleges.

With victories over San Francisco State, and Santa Clara, and the team's only loss to San Jose State, the number one college squad on the Pacific Coast, a triumph over California would help clinch an invitation to the National Junior Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament in Pasadena in April.

Among the Ram pugilists who will fight at Berkeley are Jerry Stern, lightning fisted 135 pounder, who boasts a decision over Pacific Coast Intercollegiate champion, Dave Grey of San Jose State; 145 pound Roy Damas, winner by a KO in his last bout, and hard hitting heavyweight Frank Suegua.

Mainstay for the Bears is 175 pounder Jack Lamke, who will clash with Dean Bender of the locals, in the feature bout of the match.

Other Ram contestants are Ed Sato, 125; Len Garcia, 130; Jack Bettencourt, 155, and Ed Jackson, 165.

Grant Upsets Injured Rams 56-50, Gains National Bid

By Bob Quinlan

Although City College of San Francisco won the NCJCC title, Grant Technical College, defeated twice previously by the Rams, will represent this region in the national finals in Hutchinson, Kansas, by virtue of their "home town" 56-50 victory over the locals last Saturday night in Sacramento.

Besides poor officiating, the main factor in the Rams' loss was the two costly victories earlier in the tournament. In the 73-47 win over Marin, forwards Dud Truchsen and Bob Matheny received "knees" in their thighs, which caused severe "charley horses" and forced them to miss the Santa Rosa game and greatly handicapped them in the Grant tilt. In the 62-50 romp over Santa Rosa, Bob Payne, who tallied 26 points, was forced to leave the game with a nose injury and Les Brilliant received a dislocated shoulder.

The Hillsmans never gave up as they rallied in the last eight minutes to cut an 18 point Sarcen lead to four. Payne received a berth on the all-tournament team and a trophy denoting him as the outstanding eager. Each player received a silver ball—purple hearts would be more appropriate.

Single Intra Sports Open For Signups Now

Signups for individual intramural sports are now under way in the men's gymnasium and applications will continue to be accepted until Tuesday, March 22, Mentor Tom Wilson announced yesterday.

The list of sports will include tennis, badminton, ping-pong, horseshoes, and basketball free-throw shooting. Times for the games will be arranged to suit the persons competing, with any hour from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday available, Wilson added.

OC Reserves Sink Local Swimming Team

City College's swimming team was defeated in its first encounter of the season last week by the Olympic Club reserves 56-13, in the victors' pool.

Three returning veterans on the mermen squad were among the locals garnering points. Bill Nelson, Art Swartz, and Max Siegel were the vets trying to bring home a Ram victory.

Coach Roy Burkhead's debut as Ram swimming mentor was disappointing, but the locals hope to do better April 5 when they meet the strong Treasure Island natadors.

Diamondmen Battle State Nine Today

By Gene Van Dyke

Just as the rains had subsided and baseball coach Bill Fischer was preparing to pit his squad against the San Francisco State reserves at Lake Merced last Wednesday, an early morning earthquake upset enough dew from the sky to force postponement of the game to a later date.

Today the college nine faces Washington High on Ocean View playground at 3:30. The Eagles were defeated by California Frosh, an opponent of City College Tuesday, April 19, by an 8-2 count.

Hamilton Field will play the Fischermen tomorrow at Father Crowley Park in the city. Starting time is 3:30 p.m. City College and Hamilton Field will meet again Monday, March 28, with the site of the tilt still undecided.

In the soldier's game with California they came out on the short end of a 13-3 score. The airmen reportedly operate in a loose fashion. They were guilty of ten errors in the Bear game. California's pitchers allowed them only three bingles. The Hamilton Field hurlers, six of them, permitted 13 batters to reach base.

Oaks, Gators, Test Rams

After two weeks of rain, rumors, and runarounds, City College's still-to-meet track squad finally engages in a track session with San Francisco State and Menlo Junior College on the Gators' Lake Merced oval tomorrow afternoon.

Festivities are scheduled to get under way at 4 o'clock, with the Oaks journeying up from Menlo Park to participate.

Time trials are the order of the day and Ram Coach Grover Klemmer emphasized that it will be an informal meet only, and no points will be kept.

Planning no immediate cuts in the hulky squad, Klemmer plans to get as many men as possible into the sessions and give the runners a chance to get the winter knots out of their muscles.

When the weather permitted, Klemmer-held workouts on the track and in the pits for the high jumpers, broad jumpers, and shot putters, last week.

Following tomorrow's meet, the locals take a two week layoff.

How Modern can "Jazz" get?
Listen to Skitch Henderson's latest waxing of "CRAZY RHYTHM"—a Capitol Recording ...and you'll know the answer!
One of the hottest of the oldies, "Crazy Rhythm", comes back with a sock, the way Skitch and his band revive it! Skitch Henderson is great at putting a smooth-modern touch on an old favorite. And when it comes to cigarettes, Skitch has another long-time favorite—Camels! Here's how Skitch plays it: "Camels are mild and full flavored. I've smoked Camels for years."

It's real harmony when Skitch Henderson and lovely Nancy Reed, his featured vocalist, get together and sing the praises of Camel mildness.

How Mild can a cigarette be?
SMOKE CAMELS FOR 30 DAYS —and you'll know!
In a recent coast-to-coast test of hundreds of men and women who smoked only Camels for 30 days—an average of one to two packs a day—noted throat specialists, after making weekly examinations, reported
NOT ONE SINGLE CASE OF THROAT IRRITATION due to smoking—CAMELS
Money-Back Guarantee!
Try Camels and test them as you smoke them. If, at any time, you are not convinced that Camels are the mildest cigarette you've ever smoked, return the package with the unused Camels and we will refund its full purchase price, plus postage. College Second Team Debaters Issue Challenge To First Stringers Here

Irwin Phillips and Joseph Schwab, former Lincoln High School debaters and currently on the City College second debate team, offered a challenge yesterday to the first debate team of the college, composed of John Mix and Andrew Ferrari.

This debate will determine who will represent the college in the debate with the University of San Francisco, sometime during the week of March 14, according to Michael Griffin, sponsor of the debate teams.

Griffin also stated that Corinne Lambert, Associated Student vice-president, will be an alternate on the second debate team.

JOHN MIX, expert debater, defends position against local students.

Low-Level Jobs Get Rebuff

Reluctance on the part of college students to apply for jobs on any level because they feel they are qualified for higher positions is the general consensus found throughout the college's retail management program.

Samuel Ziegler, retail program chairman here, explained that employers feel it is necessary for employees interested in retail promotion to learn from the ground up, and if proved satisfactory on lower levels there is a better chance of their assuming responsibilities on higher levels.

Keeping in mind the idea of mutual investment, the employer feels that it is costly to completely train a new employee, therefore his salary is considered in terms of this cost.

Alumni Invites Mayor To Charter Day Dinner

Elmer E. Robinson, Mayor of San Francisco, was officially extended an invitation this week to attend the Alumni Association's Charter Day dinner, which is to be held Thursday, March 31, in the student lounge.

Mayor Robinson received the request for his attendance from Edwin A. Frediani and Dr. Richard Kelly, who represented the association directors.

Tickets for the affair will be two dollars each and will go on sale today at the information desk in the main building and the student bank.

Nelson Jones, Alumni liaison officer, announced that the Charter Day program includes attendance at the opening night of the Opera Workshop's Marriage of Figaro.

JACK HAGAN, last semester's Alumni liaison officer, has passed both the mental and physical examinations in preparation to entering the Navy's NAVCAD pilot training program. He will receive training at Pensacola.

Committee Named To Select Eastwood Floriculture Scholarship Winner

Faculty members of the Alice Eastwood floriculture scholarship committee were revealed recently by Harry E. Nelson of the floriculture department.

They are Dean Margaret Dougherty, Dean Edward Sandys, and Assistant to the President Lloyd Luckmann.

The Alice Eastwood scholarship is to be awarded by the San Francisco Garden Club in honor of Miss Eastwood, well known botanist and curatomeritus of the Academy of Sciences in Golden Gate Park.

The recipient of the first Alice Eastwood Scholarship is to be announced soon by the scholarship committee.

The scholarship was established last semester.

Class Distribution Set For Mid-Terms

Grades for the first mid-term period, which ends Friday, March 25, will be released on Monday, March 28, and Tuesday, March 29, by class instructors instead of being given out at a special college hour, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, counsellor, revealed today.

The change, he said, was prompted by the great inconvenience of assigning rooms, posting notices, and arranging a program whereby faculty members could distribute the grades on a College Hour schedule.

VA Provides Counsel Aid To College Vets

Veterans attending City College were reminded today by T. F. Humiston, veteran counselor, that complete vocational counseling without charge is provided at the Veterans' Administration Guidance Center, Building 3, on the west campus.

"Many veterans have found that vocational counseling increases their self-knowledge and insight as to chances of success in several major fields of work," Humiston said. "There is nothing to lose; there is everything to gain by taking advantage of vocational counseling now."

Alpha Gamma Sigma will meet Friday, March 18, in college hour in 5K.

Human interest. Last Saturday, WAA sent two basketball teams to San Jose, where they participated in play from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Radio Students Plan Quiz Show Here

Radio City may be dismayed to learn that it also "Pays To Be Intelligent," or so City College students will attempt to prove during a 30-minute radio quiz show, in Room 126, from 2 to 3 p.m., Tuesday, March 22.

Script for the program, which features Jerry Miller, Ed Hayden, and Hewitt Kendall as announcer, was written by Art Chames.

Roy Story is the director under supervision of Henry Leff, radio instructor.

Meanwhile, City College's Radio Club recently received an official license from the Federal Communications Commission which enables them to broadcast, Louis Berman, astronomy instructor and sponsor of the club, announced yesterday.

Berman added that the objective of the club is to establish communication with amateur radio operators throughout the country.

The club will begin transmitting shortly from the fourth floor of the main building. Their call letters are W-6-F-J-L.

Any students who are interested in receiving amateur radio operator's licenses, may join the club by applying to Berman in Room 400. There are no dues.

Basket BALL Honors Ram Cagers Tonight

Block SF Presents Semi-Annual Dance

Block SF Society members present their semi-annual dance, The Basket-Ball, tonight in the college auditorium at 9 o'clock, Al Athanasopoulos, president of the society, announced today.

Oliver Bascom, social chairman, said that the dance is named in honor of the Ram basketball team, currently the Northern California Junior College champions.

Admission is 50 cents per person, and the affair is stag or drag with the dress set as casual.

Jimmy Blass and his orchestra will play until midnight.

Social committee workers said that the auditorium will be decorated in red and white, the college colors, and a coke booth will be set up in the usual location.

"It is hoped that this semester's ball will be one of the most successful affairs ever put on by the Block Society," Athanasopoulos added.

Two door prizes will also be given.

The first Spring, 1949, Associated Student dance, admission free to members, is scheduled next Friday night, Corinne Lambert, Social Committee chairman, said yesterday.

TOP FIVE of the Ram basketball champions, in whose honor a Block SF dance is scheduled tonight, interrupt a chat with their coach to check with Guardsman Photographer Kenneth Howe.

Because they were instrumental in leading the college to its present NCJCC championship and a thirty-win, two-lost season record, Block SF leaders devised the name Basket-BALL for their dance.

Radio Department To Hold Quiz March 24

An audience participation quiz, entitled Intelligence Pays Off, will be held in Room 100 of the main building on Thursday, March 24, between 2 and 3 p.m., Henry Leff, radio instructor, announced today.

The show, which the radio department will attempt to transcribe and rebroadcast to the college over the public address system, is open to the public, and doors close at 2:40 p.m.

The program is directed by Roy Storey and includes Jerry Miller, Ed Hayden, and Hewitt Kendall as chief announcer.

Machine Age, IBM Test Brand, Makes A Lily Of Frankenstein

By Keith Gardner

Frankenstein's monster was a lily compared to the IBM (International Business Machines) test correcting machines used by Harold Weeks' testing group.

All the fabled monster could do was strangle a few people a day. The IBMs are more efficient; they can spew out 400 to 500 corrected answer sheets per hour.

"We score about 35,000 answer sheets a semester," Weeks said, "which works out to a neat seven tests a student each semester."

In addition to the regular classroom tests, the testing staff, which is a part of the counselling department, handles all the entrance examinations.

Weeks, who has been with the college two years, thinks that an insufficient number of students are taking advantage of the aptitude and vocational interest examination, and he maintains that many more could be handled.

It is necessary, however, for testees to see their counsellors first because the testing and counselling staffs work hand in hand in order to give the student the best possible opportunity to determine his abilities and future vocation.

Students Must Pay Cost Of Vandalism

A bill for $260 was received Tuesday for the paint job on St. Matthews Church in San Mateo, caused by an act of vandalism when raiders from City College missed San Mateo Junior College but found the church.

A reserve fund of $300 was set aside by each college at a joint meeting of their student councils last semester to cover the expense of future artistic endeavors by students. Liquidation of the fund was proposed at a recent Student Council meeting.

Council Approves Total Spring Budget

Passage of the Spring budget by the Student Council was completed last Tuesday, when final appropriations were made to bring the budget to a total of $26,345.29.

Returned income, in addition to membership dues, includes $1,000 from Guardsman advertising; $2,400 expected from Marriage of Figaro and Naughty Marietta; $400 expected from Forum magazine; $450 from Sophomore Week.

Former Student In Straw Hat Revue

Continuing his acting career in professional life, past City College drama student, Chuck Hulse, is now making his debut with the Straw Hat Revue in the satirical, hilarious Out of Order, which is staged for a three week run at the Marines' Memorial Theatre.

Hulse, who was active in dramatic productions during his stay at the college, played the part of a Hollywood actor in last semester's production of The Man Who Came to Dinner.

Ray Lapin, publicity director for the American Veterans' Committee, sponsor of the revue, stated that tickets for the Elizabeth "Bye" Berryhill arrangement sell at $2.40, $1.80 and $1.20. Students holding Associated Student cards may see the skit for $1.00 on Saturday matinees, Lapin stated.

Tickets may be purchased from Dale Butterfield in The Guardsman office.

Journalism Majors Urged To Write For Forum

Forum Magazine in Relation to Journalism was the subject of a short speech made last Monday by Dayton Lawson, Guardsman columnist and Forum business manager, before the introductory journalism 31 class.

The purpose of the speech was to acquaint students with the spring literary publication.

Lawson spoke at the invitation of Instructor George Mullany and in conjunction with Forum's current campaign to develop writing talent among students of the college.

"It is an assumed duty of journalism students to contribute to Forum," Lawson told the class, "because one learns to write only by writing."

Contributing to the magazine will be good experience for students who plan to do feature writing later, Lawson continued. Material does not necessarily have to be on subjects concerning the college, Forum will also publish snappy slogans, he added.

As an example of literary writing, Lawson read a humorous article from the spring '41 issue of Forum entitled, A Minor Point of Interest.

Lawson reminded the students that the Forum board will give advice to any student who has an idea for the development of a literary theme.

Blithe Spirit Begins Five Performance Run Tonight

Blithe Spirit, Noel Coward's rollicking comedy of spiritualism, produced by Paul Ellison, opens at 8:15 tonight in Room 28.

When a zany spiritualist is employed by the refined Mr. Condomine to supply background material for a potential best-seller, a comic reign of terror involves a husband, his second wife, and the ghost of his former wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Condomine are portrayed by Don Landers and Mary Ann Stewert, with Mary Cooke as Elvira, and Rosalyn Mincer as Madam Arcati.

Others featured in the cast are Jo Ann Setlow, Barbara Andress, and Charles Paniagua.

Students are requested to secure tickets, if possible, for the matinee performance to be presented Monday, March 21, at 1:15 p.m. Four evening performances are scheduled, tonight, Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday, all at 8:15 o'clock.

Tickets are 75 cents; students from other colleges, 50 cents; with Associated Student card, 15 cents.

Figaro Ticket Sales Machinery Completed

Tickets for The Marriage of Figaro, scheduled Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 31, April 1 and 2, are available through club representatives, at The Guardsman office, student bank, student store, and telephone booth.

Associated Student admission price is 50 cents, while general admission is $1.00

The few club representatives who have not obtained tickets requested can get them in The Guardsman office, Maurice Power, ticket chairman, said. Ninety per cent have already been allotted.

Historic Gold Rush Film Slated Today

California's Golden Beginnings, a historical film, will be shown today in Room 136 at 10 a.m. and during college hour, Madison Devlin, audio visual aids director, announced yesterday.

The film depicts the California Gold Rush from the time of the discovery of gold on Sutter's Mill at Coloma, California.

Clubs Meet Today In College Hour; New Rooms Listed

Room numbers for college meetings in college hour, effective today, were released yesterday by Jack Brady, assistant dean of men.

"This list," Brady said, "is official. Any organization whose name does not appear on the list does not, as yet, officially have a room for college hour meetings."

The listing is as follows: Engineering Club, 100; Tri-Epsilon, 111; Cosmopolitan Society, 113; Alpha Phi Omega, 132; Delta Psi, 132; Women's Athletic Association, 140; The CCSF Band Club, 190; Tau Theta Tau, 193; Collegiate Christian Fellowship, 200; Kappa Pi, 205; Pi Mu Gamma, 211; Ski Rams, 212; Young Progressives, 213; Latin American Club, 255; Graduate Statesmen, 256; Alpha Sigma Delta, 257; French Club, 311; Hillel Foundation, 335; Pick and Hammer, 345; Club Activities Board, 23; Chinese Student Club, 4D; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 5K.

Any organizations desiring a meeting room must file an application with him in Building 2, Room 2, Brady declared.

Howard G. Freas, a rate expert for the Public Utilities Commission for 20 years, will speak in the college auditorium during college hour, under the auspices of the Business Education Forum.

Freas will discuss the importance of transportation and traffic in business and its job situation.

Civic, Music, Education Leaders To Participate As Figaro Patrons

Forty distinguished Bay Area civic, education, and music leaders will act as patrons for the college opera workshop's first production, Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, March 31, April 1 and 2, in the college auditorium.

Headed by Albert Elkus, head of the UC music department; Roger Sessions, composer and UC professor; Jan Popper, Stanford opera workshop director; William Knuth, head of State College's creative arts department; and Hans Leschke, Municipal Chorus director; the patrons represent civic interests as follows:

Eugene Fulton, Mme. Alma Michelini, Easton Kent, Mabel Riegelman, Laurence Strauss, Corinne Williams, S. F. voice teachers; William Chamberlain, concert manager; Carl Hague and Gladys Steele, performing artists; Leonard Martin, Calvary Church music director; Cantor Reuben Rinder, Temple Emanuel music director; Ann Holden Minton, radio producer; Mrs. Stanley Hiller, Jane Hofeld, Mrs. M. C. Sloss, and Mrs. Sigmund Stern, well known music patrons.

Joseph Alioto, Mrs. Clarence Coonan, Adrien Falk, George Johns, Bert Levit, Mrs. Richard Nason, Jr., Dr. Karl Schaupp, members of the S. F. Board of Education.

Mayor Elmer Robinson; Mrs. Mary Cheatham Denman, Judge William Denman, donors of the college's Denman scholarships; Dr. Richard Kelley, college Alumni president; college President A. J. Cloud, Vice-president J. Paul Mohr; and Superintendent Herbert C. Clish, Dr. Edwin C. Browne, Louis G. Conlan, Music Director Charles M. Dennis, E. E. Nicolls, Ward Nichols, Edward H. Redford, administrators of S. F. Public Schools.

Dorris

It's Only Human Nature

"A LITTLE learning is a dangerous thing; drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring: there shallow draughts intoxicate the brain, and drinking, largely sober us again."

Pope wasn't just talking for the pleasure of hearing himself heard when he uttered these famous lines, and examples of its truth are to be found in any college.

As an illustration of this assertion, let us take the religious and political changes which commonly occur to students during their early years of college life.

STUDENTS CHANGEABLE

It isn't uncommon for a student to enter college with profound religious and political views, and to change them drastically within the space of a few months. The sadness of the situation is that many of the changes are for the worse.

In cases where the changes are political, the result is usually for the good as they occur because the individual discovers facts which enable him to think more clearly on the subject of politics.

However, on the subject of religion, the picture is not nearly so pleasing; the changes here in many cases are for the worst.

Students usually enter college at an age when their minds are still young and pliable, capable of being moulded easily to one idea or another, and when they are brought up against such subjects as science and philosophy, they find many thoughts, theories, and facts, contrary to earlier training.

If the student's early training has been of a not too intensive sort, he is very apt to accept fully these new ideas, because they are new, and discard previous beliefs.

And even if an individual's early training has been intensive, he can fall into a realm of indecision, in which he doesn't know what to believe.

Should these persons for one reason or another be unable to finish college, they might easily miss forever the ability to correlate the many and varied ideas of early college.

(For in the last years of college, we've been told, one comes to see that many theories and philosophies can be traced to normal human heings, capable of erring just as everyone else.)

It all boils down to this: "The truth shall make you free" only if you get the whole truth, and not just a particle.

Existentialism Not New Laundry Soap!

BESIDES the frailty of women in general and City College women in particular, one of the most profound subjects of conversation on campus is something called existentialism.

Contrary to some rumors, this is not a new kind of laundry soap. We would like to say at this point that we are considered the outstanding authority on this subject. We would like to say this but we can't because it is not true.

After numerous requests (2) to do a piece on this subject, we have spent many diligent hours on research and herewith report our findings. Existentialism is, and you may quote us, a philosophy. Beyond that it is dangerous to go.

We did find that existentialism is an old but currently revived philosophy of pessimism. Its followers believe that the world is bad rather than good and that existence is an evil. Many college students are ready to believe this about mid-term time.

The leader of the present French existentialist cult is the playwright and novelist, Jean-Paul - Sartre. Sartre derived his philosophy from the founder of existentialism, a man named Soren Kierkegaard, and if you can pronounce that one you are better than we are.

OBSCURE PHILOSOPHY

It is a complex theory, well concealed by yards of almost impenetrable dialectical jargon. After a couple of long hours in the library, we have decided that the existentialists don't want us to know what they are talking about.

One approach to an understanding of existentialism is to define what it is not. It is fatalistic because it is the belief that man is plastic, and it is up to each of us to create our own finished character. Of course if your character is already finished then this is not for you.

Known as the philosophy of despair, existentialism sees man existing in a world fraught with terror and anxiety. This is certainly true of college students, but we doubt whether this applies to ordinary people.

FREEDOM, TOP GOAL

Without a program, it is difficult to distinguish the existentialist from people. One sure way is by his worried look. The highest and ultimate goal of existentialism, Sartre says, is freedom. This may also be said to apply to most college students.

Do not worry about not understanding any of this. We don't either, and if they are going to be so secretive about it, let's join the Elks or the Rotarians instead.

Editorial: College Foots Church Painting Bill; Publication Board Takes First Official Action

NO sooner had the issue of "who spends how much and on what" been settled in the council chambers, than the Associated Students were presented with a $260 bill for damages inflicted upon a church in San Mateo last semester by a local group of highly spirited paint splashers.

The intellectual group of raiders, who couldn't tell a church from a campus building, or even find the campus, picked the second rate medium of paint for expressing their rah rah spirit, the net result being the $260 till shocker.

Not only does the bill for damages take the fun out of splashing paint carelessly about someone else's property, but it also illustrates how expensive the price of college spirit can become, if not directed through the proper channels.

Because the act was performed last semester, the college had set aside $300 to handle the estimated repair costs, so looking at it from a lighter side, $40 was saved and returned to the treasury.

An ideal way to spend the unexpected return seems to be the addition of said amount to the needy Public Relations Board. In that way, the college might yet gain some favorable publicity from the otherwise tainted episode.

AMONG the list of campus organizations which perform appointed duties hereabouts, is the Publications Board.

The main function of this group is to approve all publications for campus distribution, and those bearing the name of the college, before they are distributed off campus.

No organizations may legally post or distribute any literature of any type about the campus without the approval of this board.

To date, the judiciary committee, which enforces the board's rulings, has taken official action once, that being in the case of restricting the activities of an organization which was operating without official approval. Similar action will be taken against any other groups which violate the ruling instituted solely to protect the name of this college.

'Decalcomania' No Disease, Common Ad Process

Advertising Group Demonstrates Art Methods Employed

By Arnold Solkov

WE recently visited William Eckert's advertising art classes to get a little insight on the activities of future advertising artists. We saw that Joe Addiego, a talented art student, had designed a decalcomania to be placed on the windows of local merchants' establishments who have agreed to support City College through the newly organized Ramboosters.

Mr. Eckert explained to us the decal process used, which involves quite a few steps.

"First of all, all art creations made here are produced on a professional basis using the same methods and techniques used in professional studios," artist Eckert said. He acts in the capacity of the studio are director.

After Addiego submitted the rough layout, professional talk for tentative design, to the art director, the job was finished in colors the artist wanted to use.

The work, and us, were then taken to the typography lab to have the type set so as to complete the art work. This group, figuring out the best type to be used on the art specimen, placed a proof of the letters on a black-and-white drawing.

Everything up to this point was simple to understand, but that reproduction system was a dilly.

This falls under the jurisdiction of a third department, the lithography department. Mr. Eckert took us there to show and describe how the difficult, to us, is made easy.

"A negative is made from the original drawing and transferred to a special silk-screen process film," he said. This necessitated a definition of that oft-to-be-used phrase, silk-screen process. "Silk-screen is merely a stencil process which can be carried out as either manual hand cut stencil or as a new photographic stencil method."

The processes, we found out, consist of a piece of silk stretched across a frame, a very basic explanation. Then the artist's handiwork is placed on silk so as to block out the area not to be filmed.

Oil paint, lacquer, or water colors can then be forced through the silk cloth onto paper stock underneath the cloth with a rubber squeegee, similar, we thought, to squeezing wine through cheese cloth, only the results differ.

Between this squeezing process and placing the finished decal on the windows come a series of photographing, bringing a negative into close contact with a special film and then putting this onto the, at long last, silk-screen.

The result of this work was the Rambooster symbol above, and proof that all is not in hooks in college.

Campus Police Go Appreciated! $64 Question; Bank To Change?

(Editor's Note: Letters to the editor may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman editorial office in Building 12. Deadlines are noon on Monday and Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld but the author must be known to the editor.)

• Again?!

Editor, The Guardsman:

The ~~imbuh~~ which has been rampant on this campus of late regarding the newly-inaugurated campus police reached its justification during the past two weeks.

Undoubtedly there are those who will disagree with me, but I believe that the need for campus police has now been demonstrated. At the AMS Barn Dance the police were much in evidence, partly because of their official attire, the guffaws that greeted them, but more important, because of the duty they performed.

Proof of their need was demonstrated in their request that students did not smoke in the wooden auditorium. Surely, far-seeing students could see the justification in such requests.

Another example of their need was shown when parking rules necessitated the campus police citing numerous motorists for rule-breaking. At such a crowded affair, the possibilities of accidents are endless, and the job performed by the campus cops eliminated any such accidents.

It seems to me that it is time that the students of this college recognized the accidents possible in their law-breaking, and the need for such official action to forestall such possibilities.

• $64 Question

Editor, The Guardsman:

Unfortunately enough, I have a free hour between 11:00 a.m. and noon and at this time I would like to buy my cartickets, etc. But can I? Well, that's the $64 question!

As it is, the student bank is open so few hours each day, that I just can't understand why it should close an hour daily for lunch. There certainly must be enough enthusiastic students and instructors who are willing to relinquish one hour of their time towards relieving someone in the bank!

It's kind of tough on some of us who begin classes at eight in the morning and only have one free hour during the tedious day. Why doesn't a student funetion like this, which is supposed to be for the student and his financial dealings, be operated conveniently for the students to meet their needs, too?

• Forum Mag

Editor, The Guardsman:

I have heard it rumored around that the Forum Magazine, the college literary effort, will arrive soon on campus.

Past issues have shown that students are capable of writing in a worthy manner without descending to the vulgar, contrary to the popular opinion of people not in college.

Without sounding as if I am rushing the season, I extend to the magazine an earnest welcome and congratulations.

Untested Rams Face Modesto In NCJC Conference Opener

Fischer Nominates Keifer, McGovern To Start On Mound For The Locals

By Gene Van Dyke

An untested Ram baseball team, after undergoing a three week filibuster of rain, opens its quest for the NCJC Conference title against Modesto tomorrow in a doubleheader at Funston playground.

The first half of the double bill is scheduled to start at 12:30 p.m. with the ensuing contest slated to get under way immediately following the close of the opener.

Coach Bill Fischer has assigned veteran Ron Keifer to toe the mound in the first game. Rookie Jim McGovern, a right hander, will make his first pitching appearance for the local nine in the seven-inning nightcap.

John Burkhead and Bob Friedman will compose the receiving end of the college battery. Friedman operated behind the plate last spring.

Fischer has material that could easily develop into an air-tight infield. Of his four inner ball-hawks three are vets. The initial sack will again be occupied by qualified Ray White. White banged out an impressive .279 last season.

Assists are likely to be plentiful from the capable glove of short stop Jack Bukowatz. Tom Bournellis, RBI king in '48, will operate from third base.

Neil Decker will be expected to cover a lot of territory from his second base post. Fischer has extended only two of the three outfield spots.

Students interested in attending the games Saturday may reach the Funston ball park on an F street car.

Baseball Club Scores 4-2 Win Over Flyers

Lone runs produced in the fifth and eighth innings broke a 2-2 deadlock and provided the college nine with a 4-2 win over Hamilton Field on Father Crowley playground Wednesday.

The team gained its winning run in the fifth when Jack Bukowatz received passage to first on a fielder's choice, stole second and was forced across the plate with the deciding score on Bob Friedman's single to right.

Led by Tom Bournellis, he collected three for four, the Rams opened their season with an 11-6 victory over Mission High Tuesday, March 15. Coach Bill Fischer sent his reserves to Ocean View Tuesday, where they licked Washington 15-4.

Score by innings:

Sacramento Debacle 'Fatal' To Hillsmen

By Clarence R. Hurlbert

SO near but yet so far, City College's right to compete for national junior college basketball superiority faded in last week's heartbreaker loss in the finals of the Sacramento regionals.

Grant Tech's surprising, but not entirely unexpected, upset of the Rams' apple cart couldn't have come at a more crucial juncture.

Local Netmen Drop Opener To Modesto

Harry Buttimer's netmen were defeated in their first tennis conference meet of the season Monday by Modesto Junior College, 5-0 in the singles matches, and were rained out in the doubles.

Stan Smith of the locals looked impressive in his defeat to Canadian national champion, Loren Main, taking the first set 6-2, and losing the other two, 8-6 and 6-2.

Over the regular campaign, the Rams literally ripped through their opponents and stood shoulders and heels over their NCJCC brethren, in waltzing to the conference championship.

With the exception of an off-night performance against Menlo, a pair of closies with Modesto's Pirates, and two heated duels with the Saracens in the title playoffs, the locals didn't have to work up much of a sweat in disposing of most of their foes.

Going into the Sacramento affair, the City College eagemen knew the sledding would be tough with more talented company to take on, but it was agreed that they would wrap up the qualifier.

Well, events turned otherwise, with the Saturday spoiler about as hard to take as is possible, for a gang of guys who had their hearts set on proving their class as one of the country's foremost two-year college squads.

Trackmen Prepare For Stockton

Having spent only five days on a dry track, varsity cindermen will go through two weeks of intensive preparation for the Stockton meet a fortnight hence, on Saturday, April 2.

In a statement released by Coach Grover Klemmer, the former California sprint star said that his ace miler, Dave Ramos, will be ineligible to compete this season because of academic reasons.

"Ramos is three units short, and word came down from the registrar that we won't be able to use him," Klemmer moaned.

Workouts will continue on San Francisco State's oval for the next two weeks in order to make up for lost time when rains washed out all activities.

Klemmer said the workouts will be for time trials and hard work for the weightmen. Yesterday, the Rams engaged San Francisco State and Menlo Junior College in an informal meet, which gave Klemmer an idea of the capabilities of his athletes.

Rams Boxers Host Broncs In Rematch

Coach Roy Diederichsen's boxers will climb into the ring Wednesday night at 8 p.m. to compete against Santa Clara in the men's gymnasium.

With eight bouts scheduled, the campus battlers will be out to make it two in a row over the Broncos, previously defeated in a three way meet at San Jose, 3½-1½.

Roy Damas, welterweight, will meet a familiar foe when he tangles with Bill Sullivan of Santa Clara, whom he ko'd in their last engagement, while Jerry Stern will be looking for another victory over Tom McInerney. Dick Sparco, flashy 130 pounder, will make his debut on the Ram team and should prove a main threat.

Other Rams who will compete are: Ed Sato, 125; Len Garcia, 130; Ed Jackson, 165, and Dean Bender, 175.

Giant Turnout Starts Intra Hoop Campaign

After a delay of two days, intramural basketball got under way last Monday, and will continue for the next two weeks, with games being played every day of the week in both the men's and women's gymnasiums.

The increase in playing days and courts was necessitated by the record turnout of 49 teams.

Teams will not be allowed to warm up on the courts while other games are being played, and players will not be able to wear black-soled gym shoes, Director Tom Wilson said.

Babe Ruth, at Wrigley Field, in 1927 hit 125 homers in one hour. The Babe stood at bat while several of the same team's pitchers tossed the balls to him.

Casabans Battle 'Spoilers'

THE STERLING PLAY of big Bob Payne (10), in the Sacramento Regional Tournament, won him the honor of being a member of the all-tourney team and named him the meet's outstanding player. Payne played terrific ball throughout the tournament, although he broke his nose in a spill in the Sacramento game. The injury, however, did not sideline him for keeps, and he came through in the clutch for Coach Ralph Hillman's quintet.

In addition to being named top player of the Capitol City's sessions, Payne was also chosen top player in the Junior College division of the Pacific Coast Conference Tournament, held in the Cow Palace in December.

Pictured with Payne is his brother, Dick (15), who is easily the tournament's best relief man. When the locals' regular stars were injured, both brothers were highly instrumental in helping the Rams capture a 30 to 2 game record for the season.

Round 'n About

Week End Initiations For Frats; Club Meetings And Teas Planned

AFTER a rough week end of informal frat initiations out of town, many local actives came back more beat than the pledges —all goes to show that "We Ain't Gettin' Any Younger!"

For information concerning club meeting rooms used by local organizations in today's college hour, see story on page 1 in today's paper.

Alpha Phi Omega announced new officers: Howard Strauss, president; Nathan Green, vice-president; David Auyong, secretary; Tom Dietz, treasurer; Albert Flores, corresponding secretary, and Jack Loftin, CAB representative.

Cosmopolitan Society, an organization of all races and creeds, will appoint committee chairmen at today's meeting.

Newly elected officers for Le Cercle Francais include June Howarth, president; Jerry Kollman, secretary-treasurer; Alan Bonapart, CAB representative; Elva Lambert and Michael Cohen, publicity agents.

The Latin-American Club took part in the Sixth Monthly Lecture of the Pan American League recently at the Canterbury Hotel. Main speaker at the event was Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to President A. J. Cloud here at City College.

The Engineering Society will meet today with election of officers on the agenda.

Pick and Hammer Society, local geology club, "picked" new officers Ronald E. Vreeland, president; Robert V. Hiller, secretary-treasurer, and Charles D. Hall, chairman of planning committee.

First affair of Alpha Lambda Chi is a tea this Sunday, March 20, at the California Club. Sorority pledge week for all sororities will be April 18 through 22. "Tea For Two" is the theme.

The Forum Club will meet tonight at 8 p.m. at 2251 Jackson Street, apartment 4. Topic of discussion will be, "What is the purpose or function of Art?" All interested students are invited to attend.

Phi Beta Ilho had their first joint meeting of the semester with Beta Phi Beta, March 9, at the home of Barbara Thompson.

Ram Cam, the cats with the cameras, invite all students interested in photography to join their club. Members are requested to appear at today's meeting with clean lenses!

College Leadership Majors Apply For Playground Post

Some 250 persons applied for positions as playground director with the San Francisco Civil Service Commission last Friday.

Out of this total more than one-third listed City College's two year course in recreational leadership as their educational requirement. Assistant to the President Lloyd Luckmann announced yesterday.

The Civil Service Official Examination Announcement has specifically listed the college for the first time as being an institution which offered a course that so perfectly meets the requirements of the job. Jules Fraden is in charge of the program.

Those, who upon passing the examination which is to be held Friday, April 1, that are accepted, will receive a starting salary of 250 dollars per month, and may receive, upon promotion, a maximum salary of 290 dollars per month.

Luckmann expressed hope that City College would realize a greater position of recognition with the business men of San Francisco through the complete fulfillment of the job offered by the Civil Service Commission.

You pay for what you eat and also the crockery you use.

This truism of modern living was made pictorially pertinent to the college recently in an effort to clarify the relationship of cafeteria costs to breakage costs.

Instructor Lawrence Wong's restaurant operation class designed a chart this semester in the cafeteria depicting the cost of each piece of crockery.

The chart, located across from the dish washing unit in the entrance hallway of the cafeteria, includes a reproduction of each dish used in the course of a meal with the corresponding price of all crockery listed below each item represented.

Ned Kendall Named Director Of Talent Placement Bureau

The college's Talent Placement Bureau changed hands this week, but it's all in the family.

Ned Kendall has assumed the responsibilities of talent director, a job that his brother Hewitt has handled for the past semester.

The policy of the bureau will remain unchanged, Kendall said, with organized college functions and worthwhile benefits topping the list of projects again this year.

In the past the college has furnished entertainment for rallies, dances, clubs on campus and outside shows and acts for veterun and service hospitals.

Talent, ranging from folk singers to opera groups, is in the placement bureau's files and may be obtained for college activities by applying to Kendall at the bureau office in Building 2.

Requests for acts must be filed at least two weeks in advance.

Local Club Ships Soap To France

Le Cercle Francais, college French club, joined the "merci" movement today in a life-supporting attempt to bring better relationship between France and America.

The 26 pounds of luxurious soap, which was obtained as an admission fee to last semester's club drama: Le Cuvier (The Washtub), is being shipped to French hospitals.

The club, after a quiet debate, decided that it would send 13 pounds of the soap to Hopital des Enfants in Paris (The Children's Hospital). The remaining 13 pounds is being sent to L'Insitut des Aveugles (The Institute For The Young Blind).

Students from the University of California, along with student leaders here, shared in providing the soap. The soap, which will help young people in France, is one way of expressing good will toward man.

Future Doctors May File Deferment

Students intending to enter the California Medical School, College of Dentistry, or the School of Veterinary Medicine, in the fall of 1950 or 1951, may apply for a temporary deferment from the draft while attending any of these specialized courses, the Office of the Director of Admissions of the University of California announced today.

The Director of Admissions added, however, that because of the large number of expected applications, no student will be considered whose college or university scholarship is below a "B" average.

Applications and interviews for the recommended deferment from military service may be obtained from F. Grant Marsh, head of this college's counselling department, in Building 3, and must be filed before Friday, April 1.

Only those students who are both citizens of the United States and legal residents of California should apply, Marsh said.

Merchants Donate Prizes For Quiz

Audience To Participate In Novel Radio Department Show Thursday

Five Ocean Avenue merchants donated prizes for the audience participation quiz show to be held this Thursday in Room 100 in the main building at 2 p.m., Henry Leff, radio instructor, announced yesterday.

The merchandise to be given away as prizes is from the El Rey Theater, the Robin Hood Cafe, Union Oil Station, at Ocean and Phelan Avenues, the Ram Shack, and the College Book Store, who are jointly sponsoring the quiz.

Putting the finishing touches on this quiz show, Intelligence Pays Off, Roy Storey revealed that while all students are invited to attend the show, any classes who might desire to hear the rebroadcast should inform the radio department as soon as possible.

The experiment the radio department is attempting, he added, is to make a recording of the show and rebroadcast it simultaneously as it is made.

The show which is written and directed by Storey, features Hewitt Kendall as announcer and Jerry Miller and Ed Hayden as masters-of-ceremonies.

Club Presidents Will Discuss Alumni Plans

An important Club Presidents' meeting has been called for Thursday, March 24, at 3 p.m. in the student lounge, by Associated Student President Pete Isola.

Purpose of the meeting will be to sign up members from each campus organization to attend the Alumni Charter Day dinner, Thursday, March 31, to act as official college hosts and aid in bringing the alumni members up to date on current campus activities.

College Of Pacific Choir To Present Concert Here

College of Pacific's A Cappella Choir will visit here and present a one hour concert in the auditorium, on Monday, March 28, at 12 noon.

The concert is open to all students who are interested in attending, music department members in charge of the affair, said.

This appearance will be one of many given by the College of Pacific group, for they plan to tour as far north as Oregon and Washington, following their concert here.

The choir is under the direction of J. Russell Bodley, well known composer, and featured soloists include Arlene Weigum, Doris Cummings, and Christine Klamroth.

Immediately following the performance, the choir will be entertained at a luncheon. Students acting as hosts are Jacqueline Deasy, Tony Cuevas, and David Arrillaga, and faculty hosts are Flossita Badger, Gertrude Norgard, and Harold Cunningham.

"Many of the young soloists have appeared in summer operas which I have heard, and I certainly recommend attendance at the performance for all students who are free at this hour," Miss Badger said.

Art Book Exhibition Is On Display Today

An exhibition of books dealing with all forms of art objects will be on display today in Room 206, Assistant to the President, Lloyd Luckmann, announced yesterday.

The display is the property of the Samuel Hacker, Artbook Imports Company of New York, and is being shown under the direction of West Coast Representative Sidney Vereker from Los Angeles.

The presentation may be viewed any time between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. and should be of great interest not only to the art student, but to everyone, Luckmann stated.

College Life Is Snapped In Color

All phases of activity at the college are being photographed in color by William Bush, instructor in color photography, and his staff, it was learned recently from Madison Devlin, audio visual aids director.

The photographs, of classroom scenes, equipment, facilities, displays, and exhibits, will be used to advertise the college in high schools and before civic groups.

Nearly 300 pictures will constitute a permanent collection for instructors to use.

Instructors who have suggestions for additions to the collections should notify Devlin in Room 148 in writing as to time and place that photographs may be made. It is planned that the collection will be ready for use during the current semester.

Law Enforcement Class Will Hear Lecturers

In an effort to give law-enforcement majors some insight as to their future work, District Attorney Edmund G. Brown is choosing representatives with experience in the field from his office to give weekly guest lectures on various aspects of criminology and related problems, campus police head, Fred Fitzgerald, stated today.

These lectures will be coupled with a firearms training program.

Forum Adds Three Artists To Staff

Forum, college literary publication, yesterday added three artists to its staff, Roy McCoy, Forum editor, revealed yesterday.

The three men from William Eckert's art class are John L. Crane, George N. Smith, and Neal Shelmerdine. They will design the cover, do story illustration, and handle advertising art. Some of Forum's pages will be devoted to art for "art's sake," McCoy said.

Main business of the Forum board's last conference was the reading of manuscripts submitted by the literary-minded students of the college. The entire staff hopes to have the magazine ready for publication by late April or early May, McCoy added.

Ram Boosters To Be Inactive

Contrary to rumors about the campus, the Ram Boosters will not be dissolved but will become an inactive unit until next semester, Fred Kelly, faculty representative, said yesterday.

This action was brought about because of the belief that the incentive for merchants and business men to subscribe in the organization was lost when the Ram basketball team was defeated by Grant Tech in the Junior College Regional Tournament finals at Sacramento, thereby eliminating them from the Nationals at Hutchinson, Kansas.

Administration Approves

The committee has the approval of the administration to seek subscribers only when an immediate incentive is evident.

Although the boosters will not function actively, they will retain Student Council recognition, members said. They were given the approval of the council at a meeting Thursday, March 10.

To further stress his point that the boosters are still a reality, Kelly also stated that the committee is contemplating having the booster's name copyrighted in Washington, D.C., to protect the college.

Rally Nets $200

Proceeds from the rally, Friday, March 11, amounting to approximately $200, will be kept as a reserve fund until it is needed, Laine Currie, rally commissioner, revealed yesterday.

The rally itself was a success, and the committee hopes to make the next rally, Friday, April 1, as much of a success as have been the past rallies this semester.

Entertainers Sought

Currie also stated that plans are being made this week to line up a group of top entertainers for the April 1 rally.

Currie added that the committee intends to add new members to its roster in hopes for development of greater student interest in college activities.

Figaro Ticket Sales Routine Steps Up Pace

Tickets for The Marriage of Figaro, scheduled Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 31, April 1 and 2, are available through club representatives, at The Guardsman office, student bank, student store, and telephone booth.

Associated Student admission price is 50 cents, while general admission is $1.00.

The few club representatives who have not obtained tickets requested can get them in The Guardsman office, Maurice Power, ticket chairman, said. Ninety per cent have already been allotted.

Orchestra Group Tackles Mozart In Preparation For Marriage Of Figaro

Because of three practices per week and strict indulgence in volunteer rehearsals, music for the Opera Workshop production, The Marriage of Figaro, is progressing satisfactorily, Meyer M. Cahn, college music director, stated yesterday.

Performances scheduled for the opera are Thursday, March 31; Friday, April 1, and Saturday, April 2, and will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the west campus auditorium. Tickets may be purchased in The Guardsman office or from individuals selling them about campus.

Seven hours a week the familiar strains of the Mozart music waft from the auditorium, while under the baton of Cahn, 35 orchestra members practice diligently.

Monday and Wednesday afternoons from 1 to 3 o'clock, and every Thursday evening for the past nine weeks, orchestra members have been working. Nine volunteers who are not connected with the college have joined in to fill in spots because they "like to play." The Thursday night rehearsals are community music nights.

From Sunday, March 27, when the complete opera will be recorded, to Saturday, April 2, the night of the last performance, the group will practice the complete score daily.

"Orchestra in this type of opera is far more than accompaniment; playing must be accurate and beautiful and fulfill Mozart's intention, because part of the development of the story depends on the music," Cahn said, emphasizing the importance of close coordination between music instruments and singers.

PERCHED ON HIS rehearsal-conducting stool is an informal pose, capable orchestra conductor Meyer M. Cahn, is shown rehearsing music with the orchestra in his efficient manner for The Marriage of Figaro.

Ram Baseball Club And Band To Contribute To Excursion Picnic On Angel Isle April 24

Music and a baseball game will be City College of San Francisco's contribution to the excursion picnic to Angel Island planned for Sunday, April 24, according to an announcement made yesterday by President A. J. Cloud.

The Ram Baseball Club is still looking for a willing opponent however, as San Francisco State College could not enter the date on their schedule, Athletic Instructor Bill Fischer stated that efforts are now being made to arrange a game at the island with The Jeffersons, a North Beach club.

Music at the game will be provided by the college band which, according to Instructor Meyer Cahn, has long looked forward to an opportunity to meet in some sort of informal manner, and will welcome the picnic.

The day's event is being sponsored by a committee of citizens of San Francisco, one of whom is President Cloud. It is the committee's aim to arouse public interest in the city's purchase of the island as a general recreational area. In the event of its purchase, a hotel, playgrounds, camping areas, and other facilities may be erected, and will be available to citizens of the Bay Area and tourists.

At the present time it seems quite likely that the city will purchase the island if the public shows enough interest in the project, Dr. Cloud stated. Some 15,000 people from the surrounding Bay Area are expected to attend the outing.

Charters Must Be Approved For Clubs To Use Facilities

Campus organizations that have not had their new charters approved by the Club Activities Board will have room assignments for college hour meetings declared void, and be denied use of Associated Student facilities, Frances McCarthy, CAB vice-president, announced yesterday.

Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, announced that assignment of rooms to campus groups for meeting purposes was done strictly on the basis of organizations holding charters last semester, and are permanent only to those groups receiving new charters this semester.

Simultaneously with Dean Brady's announcement, Miss McCarthy released the names of 22 clubs which filed petitions for charters. Action on clubs failing to file for charters will be considered at the Presidents' meeting Thursday, Miss McCarthy added.

Petitioning clubs are as follows: Ram Cam, Student League, Chinese Students' Club, Tau Chi Sigma, Beta Tau, Hillel Foundation, Gamma Phi Upsilon, Theta Tau, Le Cercle Francais, Tri Epsilon, Latin American Club, Men's Glee Club, Ski Rams, Phi Epsilon Rho, Women's Athletic Association, Delta Psi, Pick and Hammer Society, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Business Education Forum Club, Cosmopolitan Society, Young Progressives of America, and Alpha Sigma Delta.

The CAB met last Friday to consider charter petitions.

Absences In First Midterm Set Record

Absences this year reached a record high for any first midterm period to date, Edward E. Sandys, dean of men, said Friday.

According to the college catalog, a student is allowed absences for emergencies other than illness to equal the number of meetings of the class each week. (e.g., English 21a—3 absences.)

If a student's absence is due to verified illness he is allowed (in case of English 21a) three additional absences before he is disqualified. The maximum number of absences allowed in this case will not exceed six.

Associated Student Hop Is Friday

Beginning their social affairs of the semester, the Associated Students offer an informal dance in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel Friday evening, March 25, Corinne Lambert, Associated Student vice-president, said yesterday.

Maurice Wolohan and his orchestra will play from 9 to 12 p.m.

Street dress will be appropriate for the semi-annual dance sponsored by the Associated Students. Admission is free to all Associated Student card holders and their dates, Miss Lambert added.

Assisting in making the dance a success are Dale Butterfield, Sophomore president; Jack Kearns, Freshman president; Harry Williams, Associated Men Student president; and Barbara McBride, Associated Women Student president.

Miss Lambert concluded, "It is hoped that all Associated Students will be at this first hotel dance of the semester.

Refreshment service will be maintained at a coke bar, enabling some diversion for campus socialites.

Accent On The Affirmative

THAT California is fast becoming a mecca of dramatic art might be proven by the weekly marshalling of talent from a number of local little theater groups.

No longer is the playgoer dependent on professional offerings . . . with a little theater group in every community and half-a-dozen of them in San Francisco there is no dearth of dramatic art.

As far as the acting itself is concerned, the young actor today has put the emphasis on self-training and experience. The stage has become a studied profession.

San Francisco's Bay Theater, continuing its run of classic productions, concluded its two-week end run of John Van Druten's drama, The Druid Circle, the past week end.

The Bay group has presented opportunities to younger actors, hitting home on this dramatic trend, we note that past and present performers of City College's Little Theater group are now active with the Bay group. Tony McGrath, Shirley Wingate, Dave Huenergardt, and Jack Jones are included.

Chuck Huise, popular in last semester's The Man Who Came To Dinner, is affiliated with the Straw Hat Revues, presented under the auspices of the American Veterans' Committee.

The Straw Hatters are now showing Out of Order for a three-week run.

Similar in production—that of variety revue type—to the presentations of the Straw Hatters is the Ricky-Ties, a new group featuring much local talent.

Good-bye Broadway, Hello Montreal was the latest venture of this amateur group. City College representation includes Pat Paulsen, Loren Paulsen, Carolyn Reiss, and Art Chames, all established performers in Little Theater groups.

City College's own Little Theater group concludes its five-night run this evening of Noel Coward's comedy of manners, Blithe Spirit. Don Landers, Mary Ann Stewart, and Mary Cooke star in the fantasy.

A highly-polished selection of amateur performers puts San Francisco's Theater Arts Colony in top brackets of amateur groups. A recent success was the comedy, You Touched Me by Tennessee Williams and Donald Windham. This group operates at their playhouse at 1725 Washington Street.

Deviating from the local scene of drama, one notes Stanford's little theater production of a famous Restoration comedy of manners, The Relapse, by John Vanbrough. The "Fop," a favorite figure in Restoration drama, is played by William Vorenburg, a junior artist in residence.

Attention! Cribbing Technique Revealed

LIFE is just a bowl of mid-terms these days. In an effort to cut down on the number of suicides, we herewith present a few simple rules. This is the introductory chapter of a book to be entitled, The Theory And Technique of Cribbing.

1. Do not copy your neighbor's mistakes. This rule is essential under the honor system.

2. Do not flip coins during a True and False examination as this is likely to give the instructor the wrong idea.

3. Do not mark both the True and False area on a machine scored test. Remember the machine is smarter than you are.

NO WHITE CUFFS

4. Large white cuffs, when worn on examination days only, are likely to create suspicion.

5. The essay, or quantity-counts-so-write-like-mad, type of test is to be preferred over the Fill-in or True or False type as the latter requires some knowledge.

6. Be sure to answer every question. We know a student who wrote the preamble to the Constitution in answer to a chemistry question and he got half credit.

7. The National Rules Committee frowns on wearing dark glasses to class during Mid-Terms. It is not considered cricket.

8. It is also considered bad form and crude to bring candy and flowers to the instructors on examination day. It's too late.

9. If you should happen to know the answer to a question, be sure to conceal it well. After all, this is the class average or every man for himself system. As they say in Latin, lex non scripta. We are not sure what this means but it sounds nice, and we intend to look it up before this gets into print.

AVOID NON-CHEATERS

As for those students who do not cheat, and oh, there must be some, avoid them. After all people are judged by the company they keep.

(Note to all instructors: This essay on the art and skill of cheating was compiled in the interest of science.)

In our next chapter we will take up the subject of Term Papers—the two most unpleasant words in the English language. We have done a good deal of research into this horrible phase of modern education, and it will be examined in detail. Those with weak nerves had better skip it.

Well, as they say in the society pages, tres gai. Whatever the heck that means.

Editorial: All Hope Gone For Shot At Nationals; Weather Or Not, Students Start Spring Cutting

ALL hope for a crack at National Junior College Basketball honors faded at noon last Friday as Coach Ralph Hillsman spent a morning of futile and fruitless waiting.

Had one of the California entries withdrawn from the tourney, the Rams would have been offered the vacancy by Chick Holeman, Tournament chairman.

The faint light of hope had flickered in local quarters until Friday, when Hillsman received official word that all qualified teams had accepted their invitations, thereby putting the quencher on all such flames.

So tonight, in Hutchinson, Kansas, the "spoilers," Grant Tech, will take to the floor to do battle with the Joliet, Illinois, entry in an effort to bring the West its second straight National title.

The Rams, the best in the college's history, have hung up their suits until next year, when they will be back in the thick of things again and gunning for top billing in the Nationals.

FROM the counselling office comes word of another change in the method of distributing mid-term grades. One of the many problems which face this office, the grade distribution issue has at last met its master.

Grades will be distributed to students in each class by the instructor. Under this system the student can not fail to receive his grade as long as he is enrolled in the class and attends classes with some regularity.

Going along with the matter of class attendance, a statement from the Dean of Men's office rates cutting at an all time high this semester.

The Spring semester usually draws the largest number of cuts, but the days of sun and fun at the beach have not, as far as weather goes, arrived. This brings up the perplexing question of whether or not the weather has anything to do with cutting and also that, weather or not, students shall continue to draw upon their meager number of unofficial absences.

A practice which met with unanimous student approval last semester, and no doubt increased daily attendance, was that of holding classes outdoors which allows the student as well as the instructor to air his problems.

More Needed For Radio Than Honey Toned Voice

No Mr. Anthonys Trained Locally, Strictly Business

By Palmer Cramer

THE sparkling charm, or perhaps the droll humor of a radio announcer's voice, is as vitally important to him as the twinkling toes of Gene Kelly, well known movie star, are to him.

More is required than just a honey-toned voice, full of charm and humor, to make a place in radio. There is a great deal to know about the operation of a station, because, in many stations, the smooth-toned voice is often the owner, operator, engineer, and manager.

To offer each student at the college an opportunity at finding his nitch in the world, a radio department is located in Room 147, where students interested in radio can try their hands at the various forms of radio work.

For example, script writing, where minutes and seconds count in dollars and cents. Minute divisions of time are figured in fractions, the script writer must fit a story into a time limit. And these stories must fulfill everything the sponsor demands. That includes singing commercials.

Or radio production, where whole shows are produced, featuring all types of broadcasts from "soap operas" to comedy programs. The producer has the most headaches of anyone, for the responsibility of smoothness and timing are his.

Students of the course in radio production gain much practical experience producing shows at local studios.

Often, as stated previously, the entire task falls upon the announcer. A foundation course in the multiple problems facing the radio announcer, too many to mention, is offered here too. To handle the situations that might arise in a small station, as far as can be simulated here, artificial conditions are set up to give the student all the knowledge he might require in actual operating procedure.

In fact, Henry Leff, instructor, pointed out, even more experience in these phases of radio work is offered, than one would ordinarily find necessary. Students must, he added, be given as varied an experience as we can simulate here at the college.

"Many programs will be offered in the future," Leff said, "that will offer many opportunities for students in the radio division here to broaden their knowledge."

A quiz show will be presented soon which will feature audience participation, and prizes will be awarded winners, just as the shows of national "hook-ups" do. The date of this and other shows will be announced soon.

Mincer, Stewart, Landers Lead Laughs, Take Blithe Spirit Production Honors

By Dick Briggs

Paul Ellison's peak caliber production, Blithe Spirit, gushed-up three hours of giggling mirth to student audiences last week when Little Theater Players performed with elegance in adapting to character roles with the perception of professionals.

Tonight at 8:15, English instructor and former actor, Ellison, leads his performers in the last curtain call of their four night production which commenced last Friday.

The performance won for student lead players, Don Landers and Mary Ann Stewart, high praise for extraordinary poise and acting ability, and to Rosayln Mincer, who may not have stolen the show but certainly the laughs, goes a four-bell cheer for characterization of a part difficult to portray.

Canadian-born Landers, in depicting the distraught Mr. Condomine, who is visited from the spirit world by his dead wife, Elvira, acts with an assured, confident ability, that stems from his experience with the special service branch of the U. S. Army.

Miss Stewart, winner of the annual actress "oscar" while at Polytechnic High School, plays Ruth, the aggrieved Mrs. Condomine, such that her performance stands out among the excellent acting of the entire cast.

When not conjuring up spooks, Miss Mincer, as Madame Arcati, provides unusual humor by falling in and out of trances, and by failing to disintegrate "malignant" ghosts at the opportune time.

Usurper in the Condomine home is the ghost Elvira, played by Mary Cooke (a talent and beauty contest winner of Oakland), with a vivacious grace, and talented acting ability. Dual starred as Elvira is LaVerne Benstock, promising new actress to the Little Theater Players, who was favorably received in her first role.

Jo Ann Setlow, past performer in four college productions and singer, acts the visiting Doctor's wife with sophisticated dignity. Miss Setlow and Miss Mincer have the more difficult character parts in the cast, though each has performed with an excellent individual technique in acting her role.

Known to Twelfth Nighters for his hilarious antics as the clown in last semester's Shakespeare comedy, Charles Paniagua plays the more serious part in Blithe Spirit of Dr. Bradford, intimate friend to Mr. Condomine. Paniagua's abrupt manner of speech simulates an English accent, and ties in uniquely with the England setting. Bill Hanson is dual cast as Dr. Bradford, and imitates well the actions of a city doctor.

One of several more prominent in last semester's Twelfth Night play was Barbara Andress, who handles ably the part of Edith, the sensitive, nervous young Codomine maid. Gerry Schmale, dual cast as Edith, plays the role in a more reserved manner than Andress.

CAUGHT IN ONE of their less active moments, the athletic department's staff of sports tutors lines up for inspection.

Klemmer Muses Over Bad Weather While Trackmen Prepare For Season

By Walt Heil

Track Coach Grover Klemmer leaned back in his seat, slid his long fingers through his hair and groped for words that would express his feelings about the weather in general and rain in particular.

He wound up by uttering a non-committal, "It's a great season, isn't it?"

At the moment Klemmer's charges are in daily workouts on San Francisco State's track, preparing for the strenuous weeks not far on the horizon.

Starting on Saturday, April 2, when they meet Stockton, the Rams embark on eight consecutive week ends of track. Activities do not come to a halt until Saturday, May 21, when the locals engage in the nationally known Modesto Relays.

Following the Stockton sessions, City College travels to Santa Rosa on April 15. Next on the crowded schedule the Rams participate in the Southern sectionals at Salinas on April 23.

Jim Jensen, former local cinder mentor, sends his Cal Poly athletes against the Rams at San Luis Obispo on April 30. The Northern California Junior College Conference meet will be held at Modesto on May 7.

A night meet is slated for the evening of May 14 when the world famous Fresno Relays are held. The locals will send representatives to the festivities. Concluding the hard eight weeks, the college will have men in the Modesto Relays the following week end.

Racketmen To Compete In Berkeley Netfest

Four Ram netmen will journey to Berkeley, March 24, 25, and 26, to compete against Northern California junior colleges in a tennis tournament sponsored by the Northern California Tennis Association.

Stan Smith, Fred Rodgers, Ed Jacobson, and Pete Brady compose the group that will attempt to bring single and doubles match play victories to the college. The only action that the racketmen encountered so far this year was against Modesto.

Smith, number one man on the team, made good showing with Canadian national champion, Loren Main, and could take the tourney's singles, Coach Harry Buttimer, said yesterday.

Ace Guardsman Sports Scribe Wins Plymouth

Walt Heil, Guardsman sports writer, was floating on cloud nine today, after official announcement came through that he was the lucky winner of a brand new 1949 four-door Plymouth sedan.

Heil won the new automobile in a raffle given by the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers) on Sunday, March 13, in the California Hall.

Accompanied by the entire family, Heil made his selection of the car and color on Sunday.

When last seen by members of The Guardsman staff, Heil had that feathery feeling on his face.

All-League Cage Soon

The Guardsman all-conference basketball team will be published in the next edition, Walt Roessing, sports editor said today.

Statistics are now being compiled by the staff, Roessing added.

Intra Cage Conflicts On; Swim Signups Are Requested

With flying tackles and crushing body blocks, intramural basketball blossomed forth in the men's gymnasium last Monday, and will continue for the next two hectic weeks.

In one of the "closer" games played during the opening two days, the Balboa Buccaneers ran rough shod over the Alpha Phi Omega, 120-18. Andy Divoll was high point man for the winners with 46 points, while Ernie Domecus scored 36, and Bob Goncalves garneder 26.

In other games, the Mustangeers, led by Don Silliwell's 16 points, beat the Rah Rah Boys 44 to 14.

Stan Bacon netted 21 points to lead the Perfection A.C. to a 62-37 victory over the Basketeers. The Crusaders edged out Beta Tau 21-18 while the Goondoons sunk the Pirates, 42-21.

Signups for intramural swimming are now open and will continue until Tuesday, March 29, director Tom Wilson announced yesterday.

Students may sign up as individuals or represent an organization, and will be allowed to enter as many as three events.

The events are the 150 yard medley three-man relay, 125 yard individual free style, 50 yard individual free style, one meter diving, 100 yard free style, 50 yard backstroke, 50 yard breaststroke, and 200 yard free style four-man relay.

The meet will be held Tuesday, April 5, at the Jefferson pool.

Ball Games Postponed, Team Meets Gaels Today

By Gene Van Dyke

Impressing Coach Bill Fischer in its opening games, the college nine seeks its fourth non-league win against St. Mary's at Moraga today. Wet grounds forced postponement of the Modesto JC games Saturday.

St. Mary's was given a hasty brush-off, 14-2, by the San Francisco Seals early in the season. Two hits and a pair of scores were collected by the Gaels off the combined pitching of Con Dempsey, Cliff Melton, and Ken Gubies.

Coach John Verges has a well represented club, which figures to finish in the first division of the CIBA. They dropped a 1-0 decision to the St. Louis Browns rookies and took a 7-3 pasting from COP. Helped along by Danny Galvin's triple, the Gaels oozed by San Jose State, 8-7, Friday.

A joint pitching gem by Ron Kelfer and Lee Jones provided the Rams a 4-1 win over San Francisco State on the losers' freshly christened Thomas Maloney Field Thursday. The two dependable chuckers extended the Gaters four paltry scratch singles.

Tom Bournellis' timely tap to the right field patch in the bottom half of the fourth drove Rod Losberger home with the game's initial score. Three blows by Jack Bukowatz, Bournellis and John Burkhead, followed by Lou Williams' line drive two bagger into deep center accounted for the remaining Ram markers.

Saturday the team travels to Monterey to meet the local junior college club in a doubleheader.

Line score total for three games:

		R.	H.	E.
CCSF	120 438 010	19	22	6
Opponents	400 401 000	9	13	7

Boxers Meet Santa Clara; Rams Lose To California

By Frank Monte

Boasting a fistic victory over Santa Clara, Roy Diederichsen's boxers will play host to the Broncos tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

It will be a battle with familiar faces when Roy Damas, Jerry Stern and Ed Jackson step into the ring to mix punches with Bill Sullivan, Tom McInerney, and Bob Feurerback in that order.

The boxing team will be minus the services of Frank Sueuga, heavy fisted light-heavy, who has been ill the last two weeks and is not in condition to fight.

The next stop for the locals after Santa Clara will be the Northern California Junior College meet at Modesto on April 15.

California defeated the local scrappers Thursday night at the Berkeley gym, 4-2, with two draws in a dual boxing meet. The only Ram victories were by two knockouts.

Lou Garcia, 135 pounder, daneed around Ed Griffin throwing left jabs for about sixty seconds of the bout and then unveiled a short right cross on the chin that sent his opponent into dreamland.

Frank Suega, heavyweight, fighting after two weeks' layoff because of illness, staggered Dick Pullsen with a right hand in the early seconds of the fight, and then unbolted a vicious left hook that sent Pullsen bouncing on the canvas. It took five minutes to revive the Bear boxer. Garcia and Suega were the only local winners.

WAA To Fete Villagers With "Family" Night

Paternal duties of the Hurley Villagers will be relieved when the Women's Athletic Association presents a family night complete with movies and refreshments for the vet-Frans and their children Thursday, April 7.

Jean Sliter, president of the WAA, has planned an evening of relaxation which will include baby-sitting for the younger members of the Hurley Village set, while their parents enjoy a few hours of pleasure.

Deadline For Ram-Pages Informal Snapshots Nears

Snapshots for the college life picture section of Ram-Pages, college yearbook, will be accepted up to and including Friday, April 1, but no later, Bob McVey, editor, warned yesterday.

The college life section will consist of 13 pages of informal photographs taken around campus by staff photographers, and the pictures that students turn in. Any snapshots taken on vacations, ski trips, parties, dances, picnics, games or on-campus activities are wanted.

These pictures should be turned in with the negatives to Room 6R now, McVey added.

Price of Ram-Pages is $5, or $2.50 to Associated Students.

Council Refuses Ski Ram Money Request

Request for reinstatement of their budget by the Ski Rams was refused at the Student Council meeting Thursday, when Associated Student President Pete Isola pointed out that there is no money to be appropriated.

The council, however, passed a motion allowing students who lose their student body card to obtain a new one by paying a dollar at the bank and receiving permission from one of the deans.

Circulars, Papers Need Official Okay

Any organization or individual who plans to circulate advertisements, bulletins, or printed or mimeographed publications of any sort on the campus must first have it approved by the Publications Board, Chairman Roy Pasini said yesterday.

Material to be submitted to the board should be brought to The Guardsman office, building 12, west campus, Pasini stated.

Publications to be circulated off the campus which bear the college name or that of any organization therein are also subject to regulations.

The board's purpose is to protect the name of the college.

Ectoplasmic Phenomenon Scares Algy

By Jack Bukowatz

A thick, wet, misty smog which seldom envelopes the campus, blotted out the sun's rays, making the day seem cold, empty, and dismal.

As Algy sat in the student fountain gazing aimlessly through the window —two ghostly figures riding bicycles appeared on the protective roofs which hovered over the walkways.

Algy asked himself, who were these figures that dared to drive upon such a restricted and dangerous spot never before traversed by any human being?

Stunned, Algy gazed into his coffee cup, but he was positive he had only asked for cream and sugar. Slowly as Algy raised his head, and once again peered cautiously outside, he saw it again. Algy wasn't dreaming; it was true! Where had they came from? Surely they weren't ghosts.

The thoughts of ghosts echoed through Algy's mind, and as it dawned on him, he dashed through the door, up the hill, and into Campus Police Head Fred Fitzgerald's office. Breathlessly Algy managed to tell his story, and when he had finished, Fitzgerald decided to send five of his most experienced men to investigate.

One hour went by. Then two. There was no signs of trespassers. Fitzgerald angrily scolded Algy that his experience seemed impossible. He finally convinced Algy that the ghosts were only those which escaped from Blithe Spirit.

Stork Dive Bombing Hurley Village; Frat Finds Pledges Tough In Spots

"WHEN My Baby Smiles At Me," is the song of the week at Hurley Village.

The stork brought to Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wilde of Hurley Village at 10 p.m. Sunday, March 13, an eight pound baby girl. Wilde is majoring in retail baking through the Hotel and Restaurant Division. The parents will name the baby Kathleen.

On the waiting list are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Denton, who are expecting duals, twins that is. Denton is also a Hotel and Restaurant major.

Beta Phi Beta held its semi-annual informal initiation at Fran Stell's cabin in Boulder Creek last week. Paddles were broken all over the place.

Pledgemaster Ted Quandt announces the following pledges who pulled through the ordeal, and are awaiting formal initiation. They are Olen Jones, Bob Ryan, Dave Utter, Carl Petterson, John Webb, Bill Shipp, Don Clark, Al Winkler, John Hostman, and Bill Ward.

Pi Mu Gamma, an outfit for medical majors, will present at a meeting Thursday night, March 24, the films, New Frontiers of Medicine, and Animal Life. The meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m., Room 136 in the main building.

Next meeting of the French Club is slated for Monday, March 28, at 7:30 p.m., at the home of President Jane Howarth, 2126 Judah Street. All French students are invited; mercy buck up monsewer!

Tau Chi Sigma interrogation was held Wednesday, March 16, at the home of Don Richards, where fifteen pledges were "indoctrinated." Hell week for the outfit is tabbed for the first week in April, when the traditional Turk fezzes (hats) will be seen on pledges.

With such "all-stars" as Rod Losberger, Joe McCann, Money Hickman, Herb McGraw, Frank Kennedy, Larry Lerda, and John Sailor, the Tau Chi's hope for a successful intramural basketball season.

Collegiate Christian Fellowship meets every Tuesday in Room 4R, featuring discussion by prominent business men and ministers concerning Christianity and the outside world.

Men's Glee Club, under direction of Harold Cunninghnan, gave a forty-five minute program Snnday, March 20, at the First Christian Church in San Francisco. The group is now rehearsing for future appearances in the Bay Area.

The college band will entertain an audience of 1,500 people at Angel Island Sunday, April 24, the occasion being an excursion picnic from the mainland.

Band members will give performances as a regular, concert, and dance band in the future; this is not known as "band-aid"!

Lost, Found Office Reaps Bumper Crop

The college's Lost and Found office is reaping a bumper crop this year. Scores of articles, ranging from lipsticks to raincoats, have been found and are now waiting to be claimed.

The current assortment of fountain pens, text books, scarfs, purses, gloves and other accessories is almost sufficient to outfit a variety store.

Lost and found items are available to the men and women who can properly identify them in Room 4, Building 2. This office is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

All articles not claimed within the college year will be put at the disposal of the American Red Cross, a spokesman from the deans' office said.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Tags 87 New Club Members; Prep School CSF Gold Seal Graduates Eligible

Students eligible can still apply for membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, Don Jensen, faculty adviser, said yesterday.

Requirements for membership are a B average, at least 12 units totaling 30 grade points, and no grade lower than a C. To graduate with honors, it is necessary to be a member for three out of four semesters with a 2.3 grade point average.

An associate membership is offered to all new students who graduated from high school with a California Scholarship Federation Gold Seal diploma for their first semester at the college.

Information concerning scholarships may still be obtained from Jensen in 5B.

New members for the spring semester are: Joe Addiego, Dick Allman, George Anderson, Lois Arfsten, Joseph Azzolino, Anthony Bagatelos, David Bailey, Richard Bentley, Lee Beydler, Charles Boatmun, Edward Boetyman, Alan Bonapart, Glorin Bonitz, Gerald Brady, Marjorie Brownwood;

Associated Students Hold Informal Dance Tonight; Terrace Room Of Fairmont Hotel Selected As Site

First off-campus Associated Student dance of the semester begins at the Fairmont Hotel at 9 o'clock tonight.

Corinne Lambert, Associated Student vice-president, announced yesterday that the dance, an informal in the Terrace Room, is free to all Associated Student members and their escorts.

Music will be played for students' enjoyment until midnight by Maurice Wolohan and his orchestra.

"All Associated Students attending this first free dance of the current semester will be sure to have a satisfying evening," Miss Lambert added.

Helping to make this affair a success are social committee members Harry Williams, Associated Men Student president; Barbara McBride, Associated Women Student president; Dale Butterfield, Sophomore president; Jack Kearns, Freshman president, and Miss Lambert, chairman.

Miss Lambert pointed out that corsages are optional for this type of street-dress dance.

The faculty is invited to attend, committee members added.

Ranch Manager Interviews Job Seekers Today

John Newbauer, managing owner of the Coffee Creek Ranch, Trinity Alps, California, will interview applicants in the placement office at 10 a.m. today for summer positions in recreational leadership.

The following jobs are open to qualified applicants: Life guard and swimming instructor, with senior life saving certificate; photographer; rifle instructor; riding, canoe and archery instructors.

In addition, Joseph Amori, placement director, reported other summer openings are available with the Forestry Service, Bureau of Agriculture, Division of Highways and Public Roads, and with both boys' and girls' summer camps.

There is a special need for faculty members to work in administrative capacity on various projects, Amori said.

Midterm Exams Cut Today's College Hour

All college hour activities for today will be cancelled because of mid-term examinations, according to Jack Brady, assistant dean of men.

A rally is scheduled for next Friday's college hour and rally committee members have been working during the past week arranging a line-up of entertainment.

Rally Commissioner Lane Currie revealed yesterday that the committee is planning to have a series of exchange rallies with nearby two-year colleges.

College of Marin will host the San Francisco Rally Committee at Marin Wednesday, May 25, and the Marin group expects to appear in a program here at some date in the near future.

Currie also explained that he has been attempting to arrange a series of similar exchange rallies with Santa Rosa Junior College.

The purpose of these rallies, Currie declared, is to create inter-college spirit and better feeling among different schools.

Friday Figaro Ticket Quota Reached

Tickets for the Friday, April 1, performance of The Marriage of Figaro hit their set quota yesterday, and 200 were set aside for Charter Day dinner opening night guests, Thursday, March 31.

Faculty members and children may purchase tickets at student rates, 50 cents, while general admission is $1.

Tickets are available through club representatives, at the bank, Guardsman office, telephone booth, store, and City of Paris.

Performances are all at 8:15 p.m.

Debate Team Matches Wits With USF

By Dick Williamson

The college's first debate team will meet a team from the University of San Francisco in a match on Thursday, March 31, in Building 19 on the west campus, Michael Griffin, English instructor and debate team adviser, announced Tuesday.

Subject of the debate, which starts at 2 p.m. and is open to all students, is the currently controversial topic, "Resolved, That the Federal Government Should Equalize Educational Opportunities in Tax-Supported Schools by Means of Annual Grants."

First Team Wins

The college first team, composed of John Mix and Andrew Ferrari, was recently victorious over the second team-in a match for the title after the winners had to rewrite their whole case in the face of the tough opposition from the runners-up.

Griffin has arranged for the second team to meet the Dons at a later date, probably early in April, to contest the West Point question.

Also scheduled for matches at later dates is the Ram third team, composed of Corrinc Lambert and Armond Magid.

Phi Rho Pi Back

Phi Rho Pi, national honorary forensic society for junior colleges, will also reinstate a chapter at the college this semester, Griffin said, adding that 15 Associated Student members must apply before it will become a recognized campus organization.

The orders of membership offered by the society are the Orders of Debate, Oratory, Extemporaneous Speaking, and Public Speaking. Degrees of Fellowship, Honor, and Highest Achievement can be won by students in each order in national debates, Griffin pointed out.

COP Choir In Guest Appearance Monday

College of Pacific's A Cappella Choir is due here Monday for a guest appearance in the college auditorium from 12 to 1 o'clock.

The program will include featured soloists who are known in the Stockton college's opera productions, and also groups of choir selections.

All students who are free at this hour have been invited to attend the songfest.

A luncheon in honor of the visiting choir is scheduled for the cafeteria, with local A Cappella Choir Men's and Women's Chorus members acting as hosts.

The College of Pacific choir is directed by J. Russell Bodley and featured soloists are Arlene Welgum, Doris Cummings, and Christine Klamroth.

Alumni Fetes Charter Day

College alumni members, students, and faculty members to a maximum of 200 will be guests at the Alumni Association's Charter Day dinner Thursday, March 31, in the student lounge at 7 p.m., Nelson Jones, alumni liaison officer, said yesterday.

Dinner guests will proceed to the opera workshop's opening night performance of Mozart's The Marriage of Figaro at 8:15 p.m. in the college auditorium.

The occasion marks the college's first Charter Day celebration, Jones declared.

Trev Burrow, alumni director now at Stanford University, and slated for the dinner's master-of-ceremonies spot, reported yesterday that Mayor Elmer Robinson is expected to appear as guest speaker at the festivities.

Former college Dean of Men, Edwin C. Browne, and Superintendent of Schools Herbert C. Clish are guests of honor, and President A. J. Cloud will give the closing speech before the group moves to the auditorium for the 8:15 curtain.

Tickets are available at $2, Jones said.

FORMER CAMPUS "WHEELS" set things rolling again when they meet as Alumni Association directors to complete plans for the Charter Day dinner that precedes opening night of The Marriage of Figaro, Thursday, March 31.

Inset above is Dr. Richard Kalley, president; from left to right are Jack Hagen, Fall '48 liaison officer; Don Jansen, former Associated Student president; Peggy Logan, alumni secretary; Trev Burrow, student president and Guardsman editor successively; Don Mix, Guardsman editor and student president successively, and Don Burger, President's Award Plaque winner, Spring '48.

Mix is the husband of Dorothy Mills Mix, who sings the Barbarina role in Figaro.

AWS Schedules Tea Here In Honor Of Freshman Women

Freshman women students will be honored at an Associated Women Student tea in the student lounge Thursday, March 31, from 2 to 3:30 p.m.

Barbara McBride, AWS president, said that the tea is held for the purpose of welcoming new women students to the college.

Working with Miss McBride as official hostesses are Doris Diffin, vice-president; Betty La Vasser, secretary, and Teddy Deckert, treasurer, under the supervision of Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

"All women Associated Student members are automatically Associated Women Student members and are invited to the tea," Miss McBride added.

The tea is a traditional affair with a let's-get-acquainted theme.

Associated Women Students will act as ushers at The Marriage of Figaro performances, Thursday, March 31, and Friday and Saturday, April 1 and 2, Dean Dougherty said, and those ushering will represent the various college organizations.

April 6 Set As Last Day To Drop Courses

Official deadline for cancellation of any course now listed on a student's spring semester program is Wednesday, April 6, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned yesterday.

Failure to file the official change-of-program card with counsellor's and department chairman's signature by 5 p.m. April 6, results in a grade of F in the course.

Faculty, Student Opera Committees Ready For Figaro Opening Night

Alumni Association Directors rounded out Charter Day dinner plans last night, while 10 committees, composed of faculty and students, worked behind the scenes of the Opera Workshop production as The Marriage of Figaro nears its opening night, Thursday, March 31.

Production managers assisting workshop and musical director Flossita Badger, and stage and drama director Lloyd Sisler, are George Capanis, and faculty members Reg Porter and Joan Nourse.

The other committees are as follows: Tickets: Maurice Power, Roy Barnett, Ken Brown, Jack Diegman, Lou Garavaglia, Bob Hartman, Money Hickman, Harry Kampf, and Jack Sommers.

Publicity: George Mullany and publicity committee. Costumes: Dorothy Luckhardt, Rosalyn Mincer, Bob Sherratt, Bob Tyson; Properties: Gertrude Norgard, George Batlico, Roy Wittker, Donald Snepp, Barbara Ashum, Rose Llnich, and Frances Pearce.

Graphic Arts: William Eckert, Ralph De Rango, Gene Ellison, and Money Hickman. Stage: Paul Ellison, John Allen, Barbara Audress, Barbara Combs, Hewitt Kendall, Donald Landers, Robert O'Rourke, Charles Paniagua, Mary Ann Stewart, and Bob Stranton.

Sound: Mark Sheldon, Orlo Mellon, Calvin Patton, Claus Schumacher, Thomas Taylor, and John Van Derslice. Make-up: Mike Griffin and make-up class. Traffic: Fred Fitzgerald and campus police.

It's Only Human Nature

HORSE racing and spring have once again entered the environment of Bay Area residents, and if the usual spring weather prevails, Golden Gate Fields will probably take ample advantage of that proverbial person born every minute.

Many persons who have heretofore been unable to find the last few dollars necessary to pay their weekly bills, will for the next month and a half come up consistently with from two to ten extra G. I. Biller's excluded.

S'funny how in times of pressing need people seem to always come up with just that little bit more necessary to tide them over, so funny in fact that S. Chase wrote a book entitled Where's The Money Coming From?

In it he explains, through the use of a few dried up potatoes and prehistoric men, how easy it would be for everybody to have plenty of money.

The only prerequisite to this theory is a willingness to work, with a resultant compensation directly equal to the labor output, for, he reasons, whatever a person accomplishes through his labors should, in large part, be returned to him, minus small overhead charges, of course.

Which brings up the question, why does everybody have solutions to problems except those persons in a position to put said solutions to test?

This is as true in horse racing as it is with anything else; anybody can beat the races except those people actually doing the betting.

The answer to this problem could be that those persons of High Place are in reality trying theories all along, but fail to put them in nicely written rhetoric for fear of having them thrown back in their faces if they prove false.

From all this double talk evolves a moral, of a sort, which could be stated something like this: Shallow water makes much noise, but can hardly be expected to do any work.

Although it isn't the purpose of this column to effect any drastic changes in human nature, but only to point out little human frailties, this moral can be used in pointing out a few simple doctrines.

When treading the rocky road of life, failure should be seen as effort, for to fail means to have tried, and no man should be condemned for doing the only thing in the world which accomplishes something.

When looking upon the mistakes of other men, armchair solutions should be lightly put, for it takes courage and convictions on the part of anyone to place untested theories into practice.

Taking leave of today's lesson in philosophy, we find there is just time to make the last race at Golden Gate Fields.

Term Papers Take Top Spot In Life's Woes

DEATH, taxes, and term papers are three of life's most wearisome burdens. The last of these is the subject of today's mournful epic.

Grief, misery, pain, and woe is the theme for today. Students with weak nerves had better skip to something cheerful.

After a good deal of research we have found that term papers were invented in the year 1873 by one Oswald L. Lovelost, an early American school teacher. From what we were able to discover, Mr. Lovelost was never known to have smiled in his entire life.

Besides pulling the wings off butterflies and torturing little children, Oswald spent most of his time perfecting his most diabolical invention, term papers.

At the time of his death, he was lynched, Mr. Lovelost was working on what he claimed was an even more sadistic weapon. Unfortunately, or perhaps fortunately, his papers were burned in a mysterious fire and this new monster was lost to the world.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS

In an effort to minimize the wearisome struggle of writing term papers, we herewith present a few helpful suggestions.

Physical and mental exertion can be kept to a minimum if the student is able to indulge in just a little bit of plagiarizing. Remember to steal from only the best writers because if you're going to steal an idea or expression it might as well be a good one.

A little learning is a dangerous thing, Alexander Pope or somebody once said. Therefore do not, under any circumstances, read any of the books listed in the bibliography. We know a student who did this and he has not been the same since.

QUANTITY COUNTS

It is important to remember that the grade on a term paper is directly proportional to the length of the manuscript. Do not worry about quality. In fact, many instructors are known to weigh rather than read the student's work. For instance, 8 ounces is a C, 12 ounces is a B, and 16 ounces and over is considered an A.

If at all possible, get a hold of an old and obscure book on the chosen subject and copy a few chapters at random. Divide this into about six or seven parts, add an introduction and an impressive bibliography, think of some original title and turn it in.

For further information on this subject we recommend Alex Zzyd's famous book. The Plagiarist Handbook or Term Papers The Easy Way.

Editorial: Alumni Group Makes Bid For Tradition; Students Fail To Back Local Red Cross Collection

CITY College's Alumni Association will hold its first official general gathering Thursday, March 31, when it meets to commemorate the adoption of the college charter nearly fourteen years ago.

Honored guest at the affair will be President A. J. Cloud, the college's first and only head man.

The association, newly formed on campus and in its second active semester, is currently working around a nucleus of 25 active members. The dinner will be the first observance of Charter Day on campus, and it will become an annual part of the alumni group's future plans.

Not only will the event aid in furthering the cause of the association, but it is also a step toward establishing a much needed annual traditional celebration at the college.

Without tradition to hold it together, any academic institution falls short of becoming a true college. Similar institutions throughout the country are steeped knee-deep in tradition, the result being a well established and respected college.

It is gratifying to see an organization step forward and make an honest effort to better the college and make it a place of which its graduates may be proud to remember.

ANOTHER organization which recently made a bid to help someone else, Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, met with little student cooperation in their Red Cross drive which ends Thursday, March 31.

In three days, according to a letter appearing in today's Ramshorn, the outfit's collection canvas reaped the infamous total of FIVE DOLLARS.

It is not necessary to enumerate the many tasks performed by the Red Cross. Every student on campus is well aware of the work this group performs. Of course, because many have had no personal need of aid, or have heard various tales of "misused funds" which they promptly parrot to others, they turn their backs to the still empty collection vessels.

Five dollars is certainly a figure of which 5,200 students can justly be ashamed.

'A Doctor In The House?' Plenty Of Nurses

Student Nurses Figure High In 'Potential' List

By Arnold Solkov

CITY College abounds with potential chemists, artists, bank presidents and coffee tasters, and now we found out that there are quite a few apprentice nurses here, too.

A number of local hospitals discovered that they just did not have the facilities to give adequate lab science training and they also discovered that the college did have such facilities. So now the hospitals' student nurses are in attendance in the natural science department.

There is more to modern nurse's training than learning how to change bed sheets while the patient is still lying in them. The purpose of this fairly-recently installed training program is to give instruction to student nurses in the fields of physiology, human anatomy, psychology, nutrition, bacteriology and a little chemistry.

And all the while that the women are taking these courses, they are still doing work at the hospitals.

Kenneth Hobbs, coordinating director for the program, explained that the women students involved in the course live at the hospitals where they chose to take their training.

"But, Miss Nightingale, weren't you supposed to change while I'm in it?".

Hospitals which send nursing students to the college's cooperative program include Children's Hospital, Franklin, Mary's Help, Mt. Zion, St. Francis, and St. Luke's Hospitals.

"During this semester we have approximately 40 resident student nurses attending science courses here. In the past, last fall, for example, the college had around 200 extra students here, enrolled in this program," Hobbs said.

Because of this extra fine staff and the fact that there are a comparatively large number of hospitals knitted into this plan, the course is recognized as the biggest cooperative training plan in the state, and the college is gaining plaudits as one of the best nursing schools in the Bay Area.

This recognition aids greatly in increasing the college's prestige, and the name City College in hospital circles is beginning to mean something.

"Students who are interested in this vital work—and figures show that today there is an acute shortage of nurses all over the country—should inquire at the hospital of their choice for information about this new and modern method of hospital training," Hobbs added.

Which goes to prove that there may not be a doctor in the house, but there sure is a nurse here.

Student Reaction Sets In; Praise Versus Complaints

• Legitimate Moan

Editor, The Guardsman:

Thanks to some excellent publicity from The Guardsman, and cooperation from the faculty, Alpha Phi Omega's Red Cross drive started off with a bang March 16. At least we though it would be a bang. Instead, it turned out to be a dull, sickening thud.

We of Alpha Phi Omega didn't know just what to expect. We figured we should consider the drive a success if we averaged a dime per student. That seemed like a conservative estimate, don't you think so?

In cold hard figures, we had not collected FIVE DOLLARS from the first three days of our drive. It is practically impossible to miss one of our collection jars. They are distributed throughout the entire campus. The most convenient spot for main building students is the phone booth at the main entrance.

We are really shocked at the lack of cooperation. Is ten cents per student asking too much?

• Pledge Talks Back

Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to thank one D.S. for his extraordinary insight into the woes of the fraternity pledge during Hell Week. His sage observations were printed in last Friday's issue of The Guardsman.

From D.S.'s understanding of the pledges' situation I would say that the man definitely knows whereof he speaks. If more people did not condemn the pledges because of their antics, but accepted Hell Week in the humorous, friendly manner in which it is planned Hell Week would not be such an embarrassing experience for the pledges.

I am firmly of the belief that independents should not feel any antipathy towards fraternity members. This fellow is a good sport!

• Pleased Reader

Editor, The Guardsman:

With the emergence of each issue of The Guardsman, I sincerely look forward to reading the Ramifications column written by Dick Brennan. That boy not only has exceptional ability, but a delightful sense of humor as well.

He seems to concoct some seemingly incidental topic and turn out an excellent feature. His witty little maxims particularly send me into gales of laughter which perturbs my instructor as I always read his column to brighten up a boring lecture. (Not intended as a slam toward any particular instructor.)

I especially enjoyed his column about Mrs. Oliver Harriman, socialite, giving her rules for etiquette. I sometimes wonder where he picks up his clever little phrases and name like Alex Zzyd?

Here is one talented writer, who in my opinion, will go far in the field of journalism. Keep up the good work, Dick!

City College, Grant Tech Dominate NCJC All-Conference; Matheny, Truelsen, Payne Head Southern-Division Cage Five

By Walt Roessing

Having conducted an official poll of the NCJCC college newspapers and coaches, The Guardsman released today the all-conference basketball team.

Racking up the highest point tabulation on the southern division's "dream" five, Bob Matheny, Ram forward, was named captain. Dud Truelsen, leading scorer of the league, joins his teammate at the other forward spot. Bob Payne, City College's dependable guard, and a first string repeater from last year, is the third Ram to place on the squad.

Joining the locals on the all-conference cage team are two sparkling Modesto cagers, Lee Wade and Johnny O'Boyle.

The Northern Division team is dominated by three Grant Tech cagers, Ed Rueda, Carl Youngstrom, and Jim Loscutoff. Youngstrom was the man, whom the Saracens depended upon most for a scoring output, while Loscutoff usually controlled both backboards.

Captain of the northern division basketball squad is Lee Deming, Napa's capable come-through performer. Fifth man on the honorary five is Bob Peters, Santa Rosa's sharpshooting forward.

Six of the ten members of the all-conference team are former San Francisco prep players. Payne and Peters formerly played for Abraham Lincoln, Matheny and Truelsen for Lowell, Loscutoff for Commerce, and Rueda performed for Mission.

Three other locals received votes in the race for league laurels. Kev Duggan, red-and-white center, just missed making the "dream" five and heads the second string contenders. Jim Caldwell, the Rams' outstanding defensive guard grabbed a third string berth, while Al "Frenchy" Athanasopoulos garnered honorable mention.

Intra Casaba Leagues In Final Round Monday

Intramural basketball began its second round of play Monday at both gymnasiums, and will continue for another week, followed by the championship playoffs, director Tom Wilson stated yesterday.

In this week's contests in the American and National Leagues, the Pyramid A.C., Goondoons, and the Cavaliers were favored over the Mustangs, Basketeers, and the Pirates respectively. The Guardsman was given the edge over the Rangers, and the Loopsters over the Beavers.

Two of the Balboa teams dominate the scene in the Pacific Coast and the Bush leagues. The Buccaneers were heavily favored to beat the Underdogs, and the B.A.A.C. was favored for an easy victory over the Hillel team.

RAMblings . . .

Fischer May Field Pennant Contender

By Roy Hurlbert

SPRING, when young man's fancy turns to many things, but mostly baseball, is upon us and pennant-picks the topic of chatter.

What kind of club has Bill Fischer gathered for the NCJC title chase? Taken in the light of their few practice tilts, as a whole, the Rams are a good-hit-good-field team with pitching the only question mark!

Down the "middle" where defensive strength is a must, the locals are well stocked with an all rookie force of Bob "Hook" Arata ballhawking ex-Balboa centerfielder, and a snappy double play duo in Jack Buckowatz and Neil Decker. Buckowatz, all-city timber out of Balboa also, provides the outfit with a needed lift, for the redhead covers a lot of ground and swings a hefty bat.

Catcher John Burkhead is another green prospect and gives Fischer a good backstop twosome, with dependable Bob Friedman alternating behind the dish.

If Ron Kiefer and Bob McGovern, who figure to be the Pic and Pat of the moundstaff, come through with winning slants, Fischer stands a chance of winding up high in the league standings.

Then with fixtures Ray White and Tom Bournellis leading the heavy stick work, it could be another flag snatching season for the Rams.

Fischer's diamondmen fared quite handsomely in their short "spring training" sessions.

A 1-1 victory over San Francisco State's highly rated all-veteran squad a week ago pushed hopes even higher.

Baseballers Face Monterey

McGovern Slated To Open For Rams In NCJCC Doubleheader Inaugural

RAY WHITE, one of the few returning veterans from last year's team. His hitting will be a great help in the City College lineup.

By Gene Van Dyke

Automobiles will be used by the college basketball team tomorrow in order to reach Monterey for their scheduled 12:30 o'clock meeting with the local junior college nine. A second game of seven innings duration will follow the opener.

The two contests open NCJC Conference festivities for the Rams.

Coach Bill Fischer has nominated Bob McGovern, a rookie, to pitch in the noon game. McGovern is serving in the Coast Guard stationed at Monterey. Fischer will meet McGovern in Monterey, give him a uniform and start him pitching, provided the ex-Balboa righthander secures leave.

A "Golden" infield composed of Ray White, first; Neil Decker, second; Tom Bournellis, third, and Jack Bukowatz, short, can be depended upon for able fielding of enemy grounders.

In their three winning performances, the college club has come up with five double plays. Against Hamilton Field they manufactured a trio of twin killing, a representable day's work for an almost unpracticed infield.

Probable starting outfielders will be Hook Arata, center; Fred Payne, left, and Lou Pisani or Jim Hamman in right field. John Burkhead is slated to catch the initial game with Bob Friedman situated behind the plate in the nightcap.

To date, 18 runners have been stranded on the bases by the college batsmen. Opposing pitchers have been tagged for seven extra base hits.

Tom Bournellis leads the hitting department with a lusty .666, collected on six hits in nine journeys to the plate. Bournellis also leads in RBI with six.

Catcher Bob Friedman is the only batter who boasts a triple. He has caught along with Burkhead, half of the college games.

Pitching Records:

	IP	Runs	Hits	BB	SO	WP	HP
Pisani	3	2	1	3	2	0	1
Athens	3	0	1	1	1	0	1
Mooney	3	0	3	1	1	2	0
Keifer	3	0	2	3	0	0	0
Jones	4	1	2	1	2	0	0

Fischer Names Squad

Coach Bill Fischer, in a bulletin posted on the blackboard of the men's gymnasium Tuesday, named 30 players to this semester's college baseball roster. The team, incidentally, meets Monterey there in a doubleheader tomorrow.

A little over half the squad will participate in the Ram varsity games, while the remaining members will take part in JV reserve games.

Players listed on the bulletin were Hook Arata, Tom Bournellis, Jack Bukowatz, John Burkhead, Neil Decker, Bob Frazier, Bob Friedman, Pete Gonzales, Lee Jones, Jong, Rod Losberger, Emett Lynch, Bob McGovern, Chris Makras, Tom Natsus, Charley Overstreet, Fred Payne, Lou Pisani, Rich Welch, Ray White, Lou Williams, Hammann, Ron Kelfer, Mooney, Russ Dunn, Hanson, Walt Cotton, Greggans and Al Athens.

Of the group picked by Fischer, seven were pitchers, who are expected to carry the Rams through a 12 game NCJC Conference schedule.

Tennis Squad Blanks Hartnell Netmen 7-0

Harry Buttimer's netmen swept Hartnell College off the courts last Monday at Salinas in a dual tennis meet, taking the single matches 5-0 and the doubles 2-0, in their second NCJC Conference match of the current season.

The Panthers didn't come close to defeating the Rams, winning only one set out of seven matches, 6-3, against Ed Jacobsen, who took the remaining sets 6-4 and 6-0.

Track Performances Give Klemmer High Hopes As Moore, Kellog Win Events

By Walt Heil

With several men giving outstanding performances, the college's hustling cindermen finally competed in a track session last Thursday in an informal meet with San Francisco State and Menlo, on the Gators' home oval.

Coach Grover Klemmer's face was wreathed in smiles over the efforts of Owen Moore, who ran the 440 in 51:08 and broad jumper Jim Pallaby who soared 21 feet. Tom Kellog, vet from '46, looked good in the half mile, Klemmer added.

In over-all competition the Rams copped the mile, half mile, quarter mile, 220 yard dash, and the relays.

Promising new men also aided in putting a radiant glow on Klemmer's face. Irv Belltrame, sprinter; Morrie Feldman, shot putter; Bill Walti, high jumper, and Chuck Leonhardt, all fresh from bay area high schools, will be expected to carry much of the load.

Two meets were stricken from the Rams' traveling schedule, Klemmer said. The Cal Poly meet, set for Saturday, April 30, at San Luis Obispo was cancelled with the locals probably engaging the Stanford Frosh instead.

Lack of money forced the Klemmermen to abandon thoughts of participating in the National Junior College meet at Phoenix, Arizona late in May.

Mid-Terms Over; Easter Vacation Social Activities Take Spotlight

NOW that mid-terms are over and Easter vacation is staring students in the face, social activities take the spotlight this and next week.

The last day of classes, Thursday, April 7, before students knock off for a week of Easter relaxation, Alpha Sigma Delta presents the annual "Carrot Top Dance" in the college auditorium. All kinds of "peculiar" prizes will be given away by the outfit at the affair.

Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Sigma Delta, and Tri Epsilon begin their Hell Week next Monday, March 28. With these three groups going wild together, next week should be a "colorful" one!

Gals and guys got together last Sunday as Beta Rho and Beta Phi Beta threw a "mixed" baseball game on the Marina Greens. According to latest reports, not much baseball was played!

Next affair for Beta Rho is scheduled Monday, April 4 at St. Francis Church.

Newman Club will have a Communion Breakfast Sunday, April 3, following 10 o'clock Mass at St. Emydius Church. At the breakfast, Dr. Herbert Clish, Superintendent of San Francisco schools, will be guest speaker.

All bowling enthusiasts are welcomed to join the Strike and Spares Club, an informal co-educational organization dedicated to the advancement of better bowling. Interested students are urged to inform either Roy Burkhead or Gloria Swiegood of the physical education department.

Officers for the outfit are Christine Disibio, president, and Florence Loo, secretary.

All Graduate Statesmen of this college are requested to attend a meeting Monday evening, March 28, in the student lounge at 7:45 p.m. Interested students are urged to attend.

Omicron Phi Pi, open to economics majors, will hold its next meeting Wednesday, March 30 at the home of Michael Zarchin, club sponsor. Topic for discussion will be Cause of Depression. Everyone is requested to bring money!

If the hot and cold running weather permits, Ram Cam clubbers will go horseback riding next Wednesday, March 30. A special darkroom will be carried on an extra horse!

Pi Delta Koppa will present something that has never been attempted before on this campus, but has been successfully done over the entire country. This new form of entertainment is tabbed for some time in May.

What is it? Seems it's a mystery, they won't even tell us!

Foreign Passports Require Renewal, Registrar Warns Visa Holders

Foreign students who are attending the college with nonquota visas, were warned today by Registrar Mary Jane Learnard that application to renew such passports must be made at least 30 days before the expiration date which is noted on the individual visa.

"Nonquota passports are those that are issued for the purpose of visiting this country for a certain period of time and, as in the case of students, are issued over and above the number of people allowed by law to enter the country permanently," Miss Learnard stated.

Instructions received from the San Francisco Office of the United States Department of Justice, Immigration Service, state that all applications should be mailed to their office at least 30 days prior to the expiration date listed on the visa.

Forms for application for renewal have been received by the registrar's office and are available, together with information on their use, at that office in the main building.

Miss Learnard advised everyone to check his passport carefully and, should there be any doubt as to the length of time left before the document becomes invalid, to report to her office for guidance.

Red Cross Drive Collectors Disappointed With Results

With four days left in the college's Red Cross drive, Alpha Phi Omega members, the collectors, revealed disappointment in the returns of the collection campaign.

The Red Cross fund raising drive ends Thursday, March 31, and a fraternity spokesman said that it is hoped that the students will cooperate in the remaining few days and "give gladly" to the cause.

Red Cross funds are used in military welfare, blood projects, nutrition, first aid, nurses aides, home nursing, water safety, home service, accident prevention, as well as numerous other Red Cross services.

Alpha Phi Omega, the fraternity inaugurated on campus last semester, is a chapter of the national service fraternity composed of college men who are or have been previously affiliated with the Boy Scouts.

To assemble college men in the fellowship of the Scout Oath and Law, to develop friendship and promote service to humanity is the purpose of the organization.

Madison Devlin, sponsor, said that social fraternity members are eligible for membership.

Future services include assisting Associated Women Students as ushers for The Marriage of Figaro, and assistance for the city's Boy Scout program, Scout-O-Rama, to be held at the Cow Palace, April 22 and 23.

Service to the Associated Students, the administration, youth and the community, the members, and the nation is the aim of the fraternity, Howard Strauss, president, added.

There are 167 chartered chapters throughout the United States.

Studying Gets Endorsement As Mid-Termitis Cure

By Keith Gardner

Outside of the three R's—the razor, the rope, and the revolver—there is no sure method for avoiding "mid-termitis" when the time approaches for receiving mid-term grades.

Cold feet, rubber knees, and trembling hands are the most easily recognized symptoms of "mid-termitis," that terrible disease that periodically attacks the student bodies of the nation's colleges.

Though the "mid-termitis" virus, like the common cold, has never been isolated, a precautionary system that shows great promise in easing the effects of the disease has been developed. This system is virtually unknown to students, but in scientific circles it is known as "studying."

Not very long ago a noted instructor let it be known that he had conducted some experiments in "studying," and he endorsed it most heartily.

It is recommended, however, that students disregard this as the instructor is a notorious member of the school of thought that maintains college is for education, which will probably be proved next Monday and Tuesday when instructors give out mid-term grades during regular class periods here.

It is suggested to students who survive the present outbreak of "mid-termitis" that they do not grow overconfident. The disease is recurrent, and will continue to appear three times each semester unless some such method as "studying" is used as a preventive.

Forum Editor Invites Student Art Sketches

Neal Shelmerdine, newly appointed Forum Magazine art editor, yesterday invited artistically inclined students to submit black and white sketches to the literary journal.

Sketches should be brought to Room 251 before the April 8 deadline, and may be of any size, for the copies can be reduced to fit the magazine. The originals will be returned to their owners.

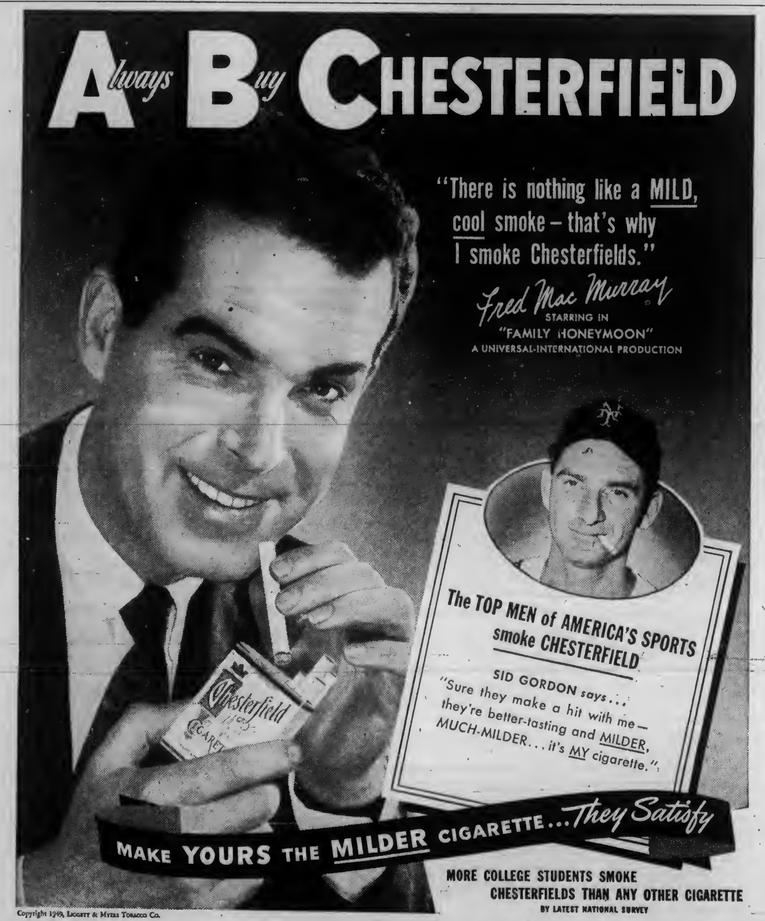
Faculty To See Opera For Student Prices

Faculty members may attend the opera workshop presentation of The Marriage of Figaro at student prices, the Student Council decided Tuesday.

The move was made with provision that faculty members have honorary Associated Student cards, to which each faculty member is entitled.

Also passed by the council was $500 to pay for medical treatment of injuries to the football team and $90 to supplement the Alpha Gamma Sigma budget.

Associated Student President Pete Isola stated that he was instructing the Judiciary Committee to enforce the recent ruling by the Student Council forbidding the Talent Bureau to operate without a sponsor approved by the council.



Isola stated that the bureau had been unable to obtain a sponsor since the resignation of Flossita Badger, college music director.

Nine Clubs Fail To Renew Charters

Some nine campus organizations, chartered last year, have not re-applied for charters this semester, Frances McCarthy, Club Activities Board secretary, said yesterday.

Delinquent organizations are the Masonic Club, Block SF, Phi Beta Rho, Drama Club, Alpha Sigma Delta, Strikes and Spares, Pi Delta Koppa, Kappa Phi, and Alpha Lambda Chi.

"Clubs that have not filed for charters are not officially campus organizations," Miss McCarthy pointed out. "If a club wants a charter now, the club president must appear before the next CAB meeting during college hour and give reasons for not having filed," she added.

Mozart Opera Opens Here Thursday Night

Aaroe, Dyrness Head Cast For Figaro Premier

By Dick Allen

Culminating weeks of work by members of the Opera Workshop, The Marriage of Figaro will be staged for public approval during a three performance engagement starting Thursday evening in the college auditorium.

First act curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m. on Thursday, March 31, Friday, April 1, and Saturday, April 2.

Presentation of the Mozart opera by the college group is based on the unique belief by Flossita Badger, workshop and musical director, and Lloyd Sisler, stage and drama director, that opera need not be a stuffy affection for a select few, but rather a vital, interesting art form appealing to all persons.

Instrumental music for the presentation will be played by a 35 piece orchestra conducted by Meyer M. Cahn, college orchestra director.

Revolving around the love of Figaro for Susanna, the plot relates the rollicking complications which manage to keep the two young lovers apart, in the best Hollywood tradition, at least until the final scene.

Members of the cast for the Thursday performance include Jack Aaroe portraying Figaro, Lorraine Dyrness as the lovely, Susanna, Count Almaviva, sung by Gerhart Hadda, Eileen Scott as his Countess, the husband-hunting Marcellina, sung by Elizabeth Pharris, and Martin Clark as the love-stricken page boy, Cherubino.

Other members of cast will be Jackson Barrows, Robert Way, Roy Barnett, Gladys Amburn, Dorothy Mix.

Ticket Returns Due

Club representatives selling tickets to The Marriage of Figaro are expected to turn in money or any unsold tickets to Maurice Power, ticket chairman, or George Capanis, opera student manager, today in The Guardsman office.

Club Presidents Join In First Nighter Alumni Charter Dinner

Projected aims of the Alumni Association were outlined by Trev Burrow, Alumni director, at a meeting of Club Presidents for completion of Charter Day Dinner plans last Thursday.

Club representatives present indicated that they plan to attend the Figaro first nighters' dinner held on Thursday, March 31, at 7 p.m. in the student lounge, where they will serve as official hosts to visiting alumni.

According to Burrow, the Alumni Association will supplement college placement services by securing key contacts in the San Francisco business world, will spearhead a drive for needed college facilities, and will provide a social link for alumni and the college.

The dinner will be highlighted by Mayor Elmer Robinson, Superintendent of Schools Herbert C. Clish, President A. J. Cloud, and former Dean of Men Edwin C. Browne as featured speakers.

Included in the price of a $2.00 dinner ticket will be the opening performance of The Marriage of Figaro, Burrow said.

Alpha Sig Holds Carrot Top Dance

Alpha Sigma Delta takes the carrot from the proverbial bunny Thursday evening, April 7, when it springs its informal dance, traditionally labeled The Carrot Top, in the college auditorium, from 8:30 p.m. to midnight.

Bids are $1.25 per couple, and tradition has been changed so that men are to wear bouquets, a vegetable boutonniere, according to fraternity president, Danny Lagan.

Music will be played by Bob Greenwood and his orchestra.

"The door prize will be something new and unusual that has never, yet, been given away as a prize at a college dance. This unique prize will be awarded for the most artistically arranged corsage and for the most withered looking greens," Dick Hallbeck, dance committee chairman, said.

Social committee members working with Hallbeck to make this semi-annual event a success, are Harry Williams, Al Chapin, Charles Murphy, Charles Van Every, and Bob Myers.

AWS Host Women Students Thursday

In honor of freshman women students, Associated Women Students will entertain at tea Thursday afternoon, March 31, in the student lounge, from 2 to 3:30 p.m.

AWS President Barbara McBride said that all women members of the Associated Students are invited to this traditional welcoming tea.

Under the direction of Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, official hostesses are Miss McBride, Gloria Galli, Jeanne Marsh, and the AWS officers, Doris Dirito, Betty La Vasser, and Teddy Deckert.

Tea, coffee and cake will be served!

Local Delegation Leaves Thursday For Conference

Santa Rosa Junior College hosts the third annual California Junior College Student Government Conference, scheduled this Thursday through Saturday inclusive.

City College's delegation to the meeting will be composed of Associated Student President Pete Isola, Vice-president Corinne Lambert, Associated Men's Student President Harry Williams and faculty sponsors, Dean Edward E. Sandys and Assistant Dean Jack Brady.

The purpose of the conference is to discuss various problems confronting any of the colleges, and the local delegates hope to secure information which can be applied to the college as well as aiding other colleges.

Speedsters Burn Bay Bridge Paths; Careless Drivers Swamp Patrolmen

By Russ Wood

Highway patrolmen on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge today are willing to bet when they stop a speedster trying to burn up the bridge before 8 o'clock in the morning, that he's a fugitive from City College.

"You City College students trying to burn up the bridge give us more trouble than everybody else combined," a highway patrol officer told a City College student yesterday.

One officer, after stopping another "low flier" was quoted as saying, "Fast ride, bub, let me guess, you go to City College and you're sorry, honest, but you didn't realize you were doing 65—what's your name?"

Another officer gave a short but true lecture, "You know, we don't dislike you guys, we dislike your driving. I don't know why, but you guys never learn, look in the newspapers and see how many people are killed and injured in automobile accidents.

"They were people like you, that got a heavy foot on the gas, or just innocent people who got hit by someone like you.

"But it's no use lecturing you guys, you never learn until someone is hurt, and then it's too late."

Nine Local High School Choirs Give Two Hour Concert Here On April 5

Choirs from nine San Francisco high schools will present a two hour concert here on Tuesday, April 5.

Starting at 2 p.m. in the auditorium, the program will be open to the public as well as to all students interested in attending, music department members said.

Master of ceremonies for the affair will be Charles Dennis, director of music for San Francisco Public Schools.

More than 500 students representing Lowell, Washington, Lincoln, Galileo, Commerce, Mission, Polytechnic, Balboa, and Girls' High Schools will be accompanied on a tour of the college being planned by Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to President A. J. Cloud, and entertained at a buffet supper, prepared by the Hotel and Restaurant Division, following the performance.

In the evening a joint concert for the visitors will be given by the college A Cappella Choir, Men's Chorus, Women's Chorus, and the band, under the direction of James Turner. Hosts for the event will be student choir managers and faculty advisers.

This event marks the first high school choir festival held at the college, under the sponsorship of the music department.

Students Must Make Ram-Pages Reservations By April 7 Deadline

By Bob Thorsen

"Woe betide the person, who doesn't, in one way or another, place his order for Ram-Pages before Thursday afternoon, April 7, because that date marks the final chance to place a reservation for the college year book," Bob McVey, yearbook editor, said yesterday.

There are only 1,500 copies for Ram-Pages on order so far, he declared, and only enough copies are planned to fill the requirements of persons holding receipts on April 7.

Disappointment Predicted

Anyone expecting to reserve a copy after the original order is printed will be out of luck, and some 3,964 students, at present indications, will not be among the happy ones to obtain a copy of the colorful Ram-Pages.

"Luckily, there is some advice which can be offered to these poor unfortunate people," says McVey. "For those who must climb to the upper regions of this fair campus, there is a silver fluted pole, against which they may have at times been crushed as they valiantly battled through the entrance of the main building.

"If it can be arranged, the next time this pole is passed, grab it, for there will be a Ram-Pages' salesman, and with an Associated Student card plus $2.50, one can order a copy immediately."

Those who are too frail to climb to "Silver Pole" can report to Room 6R on the west campus. For there one may find, between cups of snack bar coffee, another reliable representative. He, too, will gladly take the money; $2.50 with an Associated Student card, and $5.00 without.

Hope Hangs High

There is still hope even for those who have finally become stuck to the red leather upholstery on one of the chairs at the snack bar.

All members of the Ram-Pages staff are salesmen and take subscriptions. All one need do is shout.

Accent On The Affirmative

IT used to be that the words, French novel, called to mind a picture of Gallic wit and sex.

Not so any more. There is no humor in the current French writings and what is left of sex in writing reflects an attitude of bored resignation.

Other than the shining examples of Andre Gide, most of the writings of the French novelists is dominated by a tone of antipathy toward life. Gide's latest work is his Journals, the first volume of which may be obtained at the college library.

A theme of love dominates the new French films, Devil in the Body, which is enchanting New York audiences. It is adapted from the novel by Raymond Radiguet, who wrote it at the age of 17, and ended his potentially brilliant career three years later in 1923.

T. S. Eliot, while not standard reading material in every U. S. home, is still making news.

A volume of his controversial poetry is due this month, as is a new prose work.

Still identified with the Monterey rocks and sea, Robinson Jeffers is preparing a new narrative poem in his tower home on the coast. It should be out this spring. For a complete collection of this major poet's works Random House's Selected Poetry of Robinson Jeffers is not wanting.

Although Clifton Fadiman calls its author "a poor man's Proust," The Dukays, by Lajos Zilahy, is topping the fiction best-seller lists in San Francisco. The setting is Hungary at the beginning of the century, and the civilized tone makes it an absorbing novel of Hungarian aristocracy.

Perenially a favorite, John P. Marquand has written Point of No Return, acclaimed by reviewers as his best work to date. A very sensible, entertaining, and understandable novel. Marquand's tale will please those whose tastes deviate from experimental fiction.

Marquand is unafraid to court the scorn of the avant-gardist; his novel is a satisfying, wholesome picture of a life as many know it.

RAMifications

Gold Corn Cobs Go To Year's Best And Worst

WITH a fanfare of off-key trumpets and a roll of flat drums we herewith present the Ramification awards of the year.

Hollywood has its Academy Award Oscar, Look and Redbook magazines have their medals, but all of these pale besides the big Ramifications' gold corn cob.

The first gold corn cob award, for the dullest movie of the year, goes to Joan Of Arc. To be more precise this award is only for the first half of this movie, as no one has ever been able to stay awake until the end—if it has an end.

YEAR'S WORST ACTRESS

The second gold corn cob goes to the worst actress of 1948. This was a hotly contested award. Dorothy Lamour, Jane Russell, and Hedy Lamarr were the top contestants. After much consideration we herewith present the award to Miss Lamar.

Lil' old dead pan never changed expression in three movies. Of course, with a face like that, it probably is not necessary to change expression.

A special gold corn cob goes to Dry Gulch Action starring Tex Ritter. This was the most honest picture of the year. It wasn't any good but it didn't pretend to be.

Alan Ladd and Errol Flynn were the two top contestants for the worst actor of the year award. After due consideration we find that Alan Ladd wins hands down (or if you prefer, hands up).

The award for the worst comedy of the year goes to something called, John Loves Mary, and the least said about this the better.

DOUBLE-BILL

One local neighborhood movie house may be starting something by billing their latest show as the worst double-bill of the year. Their choice was a thing called Winter Meeting plus a monstrosity known as Texas, Brooklyn, and Heaven.

Any poor soul who had to suffer through either one of these will not ask why they were chosen. A twin pair of gold corn cobs then to this double-bill.

A recent poll of movie fans showed they want more movies in color. "If they are going to be such stinkers," one man said, "they might as well be technicolored stinkers."

We hereby disclaim any responsibility for the opinions expressed in this column. It was actually written by George Durand's guide dog, Mitzi. (She can't type, of course, but she dictated it.)

HURLEY Village Notes: The whole hamlet is waiting with bated breath for the big event. A gal named Belle is the star attraction. If it doesn't happen soon, Hurley's personnel will be rehearsing for a nervous breakdown. Last Wednesday's grapevine had it that Belle was still holding her own. Who is Belle? Why, Roy Williamson's dog who is long overdue with those quintuplets. Cigar smokers form on the right. . . .

Sights That Impress: That big firewagon that slides in and out the South Gate every so often, with the fireladdies, chin up, head erect as though they were taking a trial cruise on the HMS Pinafore.

Frat Notes: Gamma Phi Ypsilon, popular campus Frat, is about to buy property up at Clear Lake. Reason given is to have a rendezvous for tired members after midterms. A better guess is it will be the happy (?) hunting ground for new members to take their first lesson in discipline.

Boris Orloff would like all and sundry to know tht the track leading down from the main building to the men's gym shouldn't happen to a dog, especially on rainy days. The Mad Russian goes on to say that the traction is really for the birds and anyone keeping his feet on the long journey down in the rain must be part mountain goat. He'd like some steps, if you please. . . . And if Jimmy, the squirrel, hasn't been seen for the last few days, it's because of the blackbirds. They keep him cornered.

Editorial: Mardi Gras To Bring Show Outside; Marriage Of Figaro Should Pack People Inside

BIG things are in store for the college come May 27 if everything runs according to plan for the proposed Associated Men Student semi-annual Mardi Gras.

At present, AMS President Harry Williams and his committee are working on plans for an outdoor Mardi Gras, the first of its kind in this locale, and following last week's council meeting the boys have an additional $170 in their pockets to promote such an affair.

One of the main objectives of bringing the affair out of doors is that, in so doing, the group also hopes to bring the name and position of the college into the open.

In order to accomplish this end, the AMS has plans for a citywide publicity campaign and hopes to draw a sizeable portion of its crowd from the nearby populace.

Included in the plan of attack are a parade, a traveling sign board, and an intensified newspaper and poster campaign, all of which, the committee hopes, will make the affair worthy of citywide, if not national, attention.

The west campus parking area has been chosen as the site for this local take-off of its New Orleans namesake and the grounds will be well lighted by floodlights.

The traditional booths for campus organizations will again be in evidence, and, as in the New Orleans production, costumes will add color and informality to the occasion.

THURSDAY of this week, the citizens of San Francisco will once again be able to taste the fruit of the Opera Workshop's endeavors at the opening performance of The Marriage of Figaro in the college auditorium.

The past success of The Vagabond King has insured the production of packed houses for each presentation.

Patronage of these performances is naturally a product of a good publicity job, but more important still is the fact that the department has sold its product to the people of the city mainly on merit.

Hopefuls Try Home Economics Folk For Handout

What's Cookin'? Swedish Dinner Arriving Soon

By Palmer M. Cramer

IT was with eager anticipation that we looked forward to bringing you the story about the Home Economics course. You know how it is, some people are always looking forward to a handout.

Something happened though. Nothing was cooking last week—but literally. The schedule for last Tuesday included a field trip to obtain meats for future classes in cookery, darn it.

"We are planning a smorgasbord, though for Thursday, March 31," Mrs. Rose Kraft, instructor, said when she noted our crestfallen faces, "and you may consider yourselves invited."

At that, Algy, the college slope-head, stated brightly, "I know what smorgasbord is. That's hash—before."

After Algy had been forcibly ejected and the door locked, the interview continued in a more serious note with Mrs. Kraft deploring the lack of culinary knowledge of modern American women.

"It's tragic," Mrs. Kraft said, "that there are so many women that know absolutely nothing about cooking. Some can't even boil water! That's no joke," she added, "I've seen them in my own classes here at City College."

"Fudge . . . Yummm Yum Yummy!"

The class in Introductory Foods supplies the remedy for that lack, it was noted. Judging from the extremely modern kitchen appliances in the laboratory, no one should flunk this course.

But this is only one of many fascinating courses offered by this department. Equally interesting proved the courses in clothing and textiles. These courses are especially planned for those students without previous experience in dressmaking.

Elementary problems regarding simple dressmaking and selection are brought to light and solved. Hand sewing and machine sewing too, are studied, as well as the care and use of equipment and materials involved.

"These courses are not specifically constructed for homemakers, as many students seem to think," Mrs. Kraft said. "Many of these courses present splendid opportunities in businesses with above average salaries."

"The field of home economics," she continued, "is wide open to interested women. There are positions as dieticians, in the Army, Navy and the Public Health Service. Opportunities for home economists with large companies are tremendous. General Mills, for example, is constantly searching for capable women and teachers of these subjects are assured of immediate placement upon graduation."

G.I.'s Bemoan Lack Of Summer Session; Petition Circulates

(Editor's Note: Letters to the editor may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman editorial office in Building 12. Deadlines are noon on Monday and Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld but the author must be known to the editor.)

• Petition Plea

Editor, The Guardsman:

That dark cloud labeled "No 1949 Summer Session," that has been lingering over the City College campus, may soon be destroyed by many petitioners, who have been out among the students trying to multiply their number to 800.

The petitioners believe that if they can get some 800 signatures on their petition, they will convince the college authorities that there are enough scholars wishing to attend to justify the continuance of the summer courses. In other years, the college had instituted a summer quarter, which was designed in the shortest period of time possible. Previously those attending these summer sessions were able to gain a maximum of nine units of credit.

Veterans attending the college under the G.I. Bill are particularly interested in summer sessions, for they would be able to continue school without a break in their subsistence allowance from the Government. With the situation as it now stands, the Veterans will have their subsistence cancelled until they resume classes in the Fall, or they must seek attendance at another institution during the summer months.

The Summer Quarter normally begins in July and ends early in September.

• X Has Woes

Editor, The Guardsman:

Friday night, March 18, X, among many, many other students, attended the Block dance in the west campus auditorium. The music was fine and X had a good time, BUT, like many others beside myself, X noticed that the ventilation was terrible.

After about a half hour there, X thought that the auditorium was so stuffy and hot, that the rest of my evening was spoiled because of this.

X was not the only one there that noticed this. X overheard others also commenting on this. X does hope that in the future this fault will be taken care of OR an excuse given for the cause of this trouble.

• A Reader!

Editor, The Guardsman:

May I take this opportunity to give praise to the excellent manner in which The Guardsman is being handled this semester!

I noticed that many more departments are being mentioned in their achievements, and especially good is the publicity the important college functions are receiving. Also the college operas and plays always get the publicity which they deserve.

The Round 'n About column certainly covers the club doin's very well and in an interesting fashion, and your columnists Dorris, Loughlin, and Brennan, are especially swell.

Rams Drop Lobos, 4-0 And 10-2; Lee Jones Hurls Two-Hitter, Fans 13

By Gene B. Van Dyke

Under the sun lamps for the first time this season, Coach Bill Fischer's college nine tasted NCJC Conference victory twice Saturday as they put down Monterey, 4-0 and 10-2, in the Lobos crudely constructed and inhabited City Park.

Pitching was at its tops in the opening game, Monterey's Gordy Miyamoto and local starlight, Lee Jones, fanned 14 and 13 batters, respectively. Miyamoto, an erratic, irregular right-bander, recorded all of his strikeouts through the timely use of his most potent weapon, the fast ball.

Jones was moving toward the collegiate "Hall of Fame" when he was rudely tapped for two shameful bloopers in the sixth by Jack Duckworth and Bob Bell. Only three men reached base against him. The smooth, control-plus hurler now has a string of 13 scoreless innings.

Fred Payne was a big man in the Ram nine hit attack. He rapped out three-for-four and drove in one run. Payne scored the Fischermen's first and winning marker when he was forced home on Jones' infield single.

In the seven inning nightcap, settled by darkness after five, Ron Keifer also fashioned a neat two-hit pitching performance. Keifer allowed a duo of runs in the fourth.

Truelsen Top Ram Cage Scorer With 13.8 Tilt Average

By Bob Quinlan

Forward Dud Truelsen won high scoring laurels for the 1948-49 Ram basketball season by tallying 392 points in the 29 games.

Truelsen averaged 13.8 points per game and was closely followed by Bob Matheny, Bob Payne, and Kev Duggan with averages of 10.3, 10. and 9.2, respectively.

Payne's 26 digits in the Santa Rosa game was the season's high for one game. Don Payne was the only player to appear in all 32 encounters.

Captain Jim Caldwell, besides scoring 125, served as the squad's playmaker.

The final scoring:

Player	Games	Points
Dud Truelsen	29	392
Bob Matheny	29	298
Kev Duggan	30	277
Bob Payne	26	259
Don Payne	32	161
Jim Caldwell	29	125

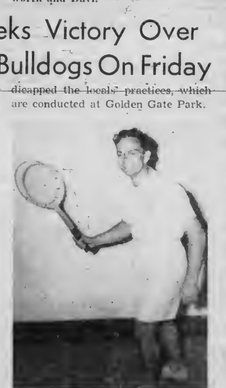
Tennis Squad Seeks Victory Over Weak San Mateo Bulldogs On Friday



Seeking its second victory in three starts, the varsity tennis team invades San Mateo Junior College's courts Friday, April 1, at 3:30 p.m. to engage the Bulldogs.

Impressed with the showing the Rams made last week against Hartnell College, winning 7-0, Coach Harry Buttimer stated that Stan Smith, Ed Jacobson, Fred Rodgers, and Pete Brady have a good chance to down the Mateans.

The doubles combinations of Smith-Rodgers and Jacobson-Brady were rained out in the Modesto meet, so still boast an undefeated record. Against Hartnell, the doubles teams did not play the allotted three sets, taking their opponents in the first two sets.

Next conference meet for the locals will be against Monterey Peninsula College at home, April 23. Two practice meets will be played between now and the Monterey meet, but the dates, places and teams have not been decided upon as yet.

Lack of a home court and the inconsistency of the weather have handicapped the locals' practices, which are conducted at Golden Gate Park.

COUNTED UPON AS Coach Harry Buttimer's number one racketman in the NCJCC net campaign is Ram standout Ed Jacobson, who flashed in top form in the locals' victory over Hartnell. Jacobson is a holdover from last season.

Wilson Concludes Intra Swim Signup Today; Extends Casaba Season To Nine Weeks Of Play

By Bob Goncalves

Intramural swimming signups will be concluded today, and no late signups will be accepted, mentor Tom Wilson said yesterday. The swimming meet will be held at the Jefferson pool Tuesday, April 5.

The basketball schedule has been increased to nine weeks of play, Wilson added. This increase has been caused by the large number of teams in each league.

In games of last week, the Perfection A.C. rolled to an easy 72-12 victory over the Worldbeaters. Art Clayton and Walt Thompson were high point men for the winners with 20 and 19 points respectively. The Mustangeers, led by Don Stillwell's 14 points, beat the Ringers 29-22.

The Loopsters, one of the best teams in last semester's play, won their third game in a row by virtue of a 39-14 victory over the Balboa Castoffs, and the Rangers edged out the Guardsman five 39-35.

Wilson has issued another plea for the teams to stay off the courts when not playing in the games.

Damas Leads Boxers In Win Over Santa Clara Broncos

Led by Ram Roy Damas, 145 pounder, who sent Bill Shumbacker to the canvas in the second round with a vicious body blow, the college scrappers whipped Santa Clara Thursday night, 5½-2½, for the second time this year.

Damas pounded his opponent, who had a ten pound advantage, to both sides of the ring in the first round. Early in the second he sent a right hand into Shumbacker's stomach, knocking him to the floor for a seven count.

The Bronco got up in vain only to be put down with another blow to the solar plexus. Referee DeWitt Portal, San Jose boxing coach, stopped the fight before Shumbacker could get up.

In the light heavyweight bout, Dean Bender of the locals battled a former stablemate, Bob Toquinto, and won the decision. Toquinto was quarterback for Grover Klemmer's championship football team last season and moved to Santa Clara this spring.

Jerry Stern, 140 pounder, garnered his second decision in a row over Tom McInerney of the Broncos. Aware of Stern's powerful fist, McInerney fought a cautious and defensive fight. Ed Jackson, 165, decisioned Paul Conn of Santa Clara.

The next fight scheduled for the varsity will be Friday, April 1, against Modesto Junior College here.

Thinclads Workout On Gators' Oval For Conference Opener At Stockton

Unable to hold much in the way of workouts in early March, the Ram thin-clads are rapidly rounding into shape for their heavy April schedule with practice being held on San Francisco State's track.

Heavy rains, almost twice the normal rainfall, ruined early season activities and drove Coach Grover Klemmer to the heights of despair. Klemmer, breathing easier now, is putting his charges through stiff workouts in order to shed excess weight and loosen taut muscles.

On Saturday, the locals trek to Stockton to engage the Tiger-Cubs in a dual meet. It will be the Rams' first formal meet after a month of training.

Poppin New Aide Here

Highly reputed for his coaching prowess, George Poppin, tutor of talented Ollie Matson in his prep days at Washington High, is now serving as an alternate instructor here between grid seasons. Poppin was assistant to Joe Verducci as backfield mentor last Fall at St. Mary's College.

Local Orators Prepare For Double Debate

IRWIN PHILLIPS, Joseph Schwab, John Mix, and Andy Ferrari seated, all carry City College colors in the Seventh Annual Hearst Oratory Contest.

First Contest With USF; Then Hearst Nationals Follow

While the college's first team debaters are preparing their cases for the meet with the University of San Francisco team on Thursday, March 31, they also are preparing for the Seventh Annual Hearst Newspapers' Tournament of Orators honoring Alexander Hamilton.

The subject of the meet with the Dons is the national college question concerning Federal aid to tax-supported schools. John Mix and Andrew Ferrari will present their case at 2 p.m., Thursday, in Room 19a.

By the week of April 18, when the final eliminations in the Hearst contest start, the college debaters must have their cases prepared on the subject of Hamilton.

From this contest one debater must be selected to represent the college in the city finals on Thursday, May 12, and try for the Pacific Coast finals on Monday, May 16, and the national finals to be held in San Francisco on Thursday, May 19.

Prizes in the national finals run from $1,000 down, while the city contest prizes are as follows: First prize, $200; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $25.

Entrants in the Hearst contest are Mix, who went into the semi-finals in last year's competition, and Lee Perkins, Rosalyn Mincer, James Anderson, Joe Schwab, Irwin Phillips, Olivia Clement, Joe Cochrane, Arniond Magid, Antoinette Chestang, Marcella Lewis, and Ferrari.

Flower Shop Preparing For April Garden Show

A 25-foot adobe wall, made of plaster, will serve as background for the college Flower Shop's floral exhibition at the California Annual Spring Garden Show in Oakland the last of April.

John Lawrence, instructor, said, "We are working on forms which will eventually be an adobe wall. The plaster covering will be made to look like adobe brick. In each arch of the wall will be a display of flower arrangements."

"This year," Lawrence continued, "again we are going to have a 'floral action.' That is, several students will be working on our flower arrangements all during the exhibit."

The garden show is to be held in the Oakland Exposition Building, and the surrounding gardens, beginning Tuesday, April 26.

Intelligence Pays Off To Winners At Campus Student Radio Quiz Show

A battle of wits took place on March 24 when the radio division presented Intelligence Pays Off, the first in a series of programs, which featured audience participation and awarded prizes to the winners.

The grand prize, which was two tickets to the Straw Hat Review at the Marine Memorial Theatre, was won by Lillian Fleight. The other three contestant runners up, Howard Strauss, Jackie Apfel, and Al Cattan, were awarded Winston Dictionaries contributed by the College Book Store.

Other prizes awarded at the main show were passes to the El Rey Theatre, a 3-meal order at the Robin Hood Cafe, free milk shakes by the Ram Shack, and College Book Store respectively, and a free lube job by the Union Oil Station.

Eight contestants were chosen from the audience by masters of ceremonies, Jerry Miller and Ed Nayden.

The contestants advanced, if victorious, from kindergarten, grammar school, high school, college, and until reaching post graduate categories.

Hot Time On Tap For Hell Week; Ski Rams Call Off Race—No Loot

HELL week again rears its devilish head on the Ram campus these days, as three local fraternities attempt to "burn up" the place.

This redhot trio, composed of Tri Epsilon, Tau Chi Sigma, and Alpha Sigma Delta, are combining efforts to make this week a colorful one, both for students—who observe, and for pledges—who accept!

To start things off, Tri Epsilon had second interrogation last Sunday night at the home of Bob McVey. Informal initiation is scheduled for this week end at Russian River—the water is fine!

Second interrogation for Tau Chi Sigma was held Sunday night at Don "Fratface" Richard's quarters. Fezzes and scarves were passed out to the 14 pledges, who will wear them as uniform of the week.

Informal initiation for the outfit is slated for this week end at some convenient location.

Because of the lack of funds, Ski Rams were forced to call off their four event ski races at White Hills, April 2 and 3. The group sent letters to the 14 coniference schools notifying them of the action.

Pledge-master Theodore Quandt, of Beta Phi Beta, announced last week that the semi-annual formal initiation of the organization will be held Saturday evening, April 2, at the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley.

Coming out of inactivity to the Beta Phis are Dick (I'm from St. Louis) Edwards, and Paul '35 Ford.

Chinese Students' Club is having its first general meeting of the semester this Friday, April 1, during college hour in Room 4D.

Officers for this outfit are Henry Chin, president; Pearl Fong, vice-president; Edward Ching, treasurer; Loris Chinn, recording secretary; Joseph Keh, corresponding secretary, and Betty Lee, CAB representative. Faculty adviser is Lawrence Wong.

Second affair for Theta Tau happens tonight, as the gals have nothing other than a Hawaiian dinner, chopsticks will serve as dinnerware!

Tomorrow night, Wednesday, March 30, Alpha Lambda Chi presents its second affair. "Ski Jumps," according to the gals, is the theme.

A luncheon at Rickey's Town House highlighted the second affair for Zeta Chi last Saturday, March 26. The theme was "Cash."

A reminder to all organizations. Groups wishing to have announcements and general information in this column, are requested to meet deadlines by noon Monday for Friday's edition, and Wednesday noon for the following Tuesday's paper.

College Hour Friday Features Club Meeting; Rally On Deck For April 7

Because the stage will be set for The Marriage of Figaro performances Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, the auditorium will not be available for a rally during college hour this Friday. Instead, college hour will be devoted to club meetings, Jack Brady, dean of men, said recently.

An Easter send-off rally is planned for Thursday, April 7, during a special college hour, Lane Currie, rally commissioner, announced yesterday.

College talent, plus outside entertainment, is being selected now, Currie said. Announcement of the entertainment will be made when the selection is completed.

There will be no classes Friday, April 8, which will start Easter vacation. Classes will resume Monday, April 18.

Red Cross Drive Ends Thursday—Give Now

Final day for contributing to the Red Cross drive on campus is Thursday, March 31, Howard Strauss, Alpha Phi Omega president, announced yesterday.

All students are asked to give in the final two days of this fund-raising campaign for the Red Cross.

Collection jars and posters have been placed in prominent spots throughout the campus, with Red Cross buttons for donors.

College Plans Biggest Mardi Gras In History

Plans to make the traditional Mardi Gras one of the biggest affairs in the history of the college were approved unanimously by the Student Council when it passed an additional $170 appropriation for this celebration.

Harry Williams, chief planner for the May 27 Mardi Gras, revealed that plans for this outdoor festival, to be held in the west campus parking area, include a parade up Ocean Avenue, a ferris wheel, a merry-go-round, and dancing to an eleven-piece orchestra.

It was emphasized that if the affair takes on large enough proportions, nationwide publicity might result.

Playing Pin-ball Machine Just Part Of Job In Physics Class

By Kenneth Wong

Physics department head, Alfred P. Agosti, explained yesterday, that a toy airplane, a gyroscope, a magnetic horseshoe, and countless other toys are essential in demonstrating phenomena in physics.

These "thing-a-ma-jigs" are constructed and repaired in the workshop in Room 114, and at present Agosti is working on a pin-ball like machine.

Touch a lever and a steel ball tumbles into an inclined plane, lighting a row of lights as it rolls by. A metronome times its velocity. This experiment demonstrates the acceleration of gravity.

Agosti estimated that 800 students are currently enrolled in physics courses.

Students keep away from physics for fear of mathematics, but for them, he said, there is Physics 30, a three unit course. A non-mathematical presentation, it is described as "physics with novocaine."

"I enjoy teaching physics," Agosti said, "even when I have to lug these demonstrations in and out of the storeroom." He put away a bicycle wheel, flexed his biceps, and said, "boy, feel them apples."

Clubs Meet Today, Rally Due Thursday

Club meetings are scheduled for today's college hour, 10:40 a.m., in rooms previously assigned, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, said yesterday.

Brady also announced the following additions to the list of clubs applying for college hour meeting rooms: Beta Phi Beta, 133; Phi Beta Rho, 194; Hillel Foundation, 312; Pick and Hammer, 45; Drama Society, 28; and the Masonic Club, 4A.

Because of the Teachers' Institute, student-holiday next Friday, April 8, the college hour rally scheduled for that day will take place Thursday, April 7, Rally Commissioner Lane Currie stated.

Both Currie and the Rally Committee members are of the opinion that a rally at this time will set off Easter vacation in good style.

Figaro Headliners Alternate Roles

FIGARO HEADLINERS who won acclaim in last night's opening performance of the Mozart opera are Eileen Scott, soprano, and Gerhart Hadda, tenor, the Count and Countess Almaviva. Second and third performances are scheduled at 8:15 p.m. tonight and tomorrow.

Sherman, Arrillaga Head Opera Casts

Second Opera Workshop performance of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the auditorium demonstrates a wealth of talent when Irene Sherman sings the role of Susanna, Jack Aaroe is Figaro, Roy Barnett is Antonio, and Dorothy Mix is Barbarina.

These roles were all double cast, and other singers, Gerhart Hadda, Eileen Scott, Martin Clark, Elizabeth Pharris, Jack Barrows, and Robert Way, continue in their respective roles.

Tomorrow night's performance casts David Arrillaga as Figaro, Mrs. Sherman as Susanna, Gerald Lustig as Antonio, and Gladys Amburn as Barbarina.

Maurice Power, faculty ticket chairman, and George Capanis, opera student manager, requested all ticket salesmen to report immediately to the ticket desk in The Guardsman office and turn in any unsold tickets.

Such tickets if outstanding will be needed at the door, Capanis declared. The limit of 500 per performance has been extended because of demand, Capanis said, and all available tickets are needed.

Coming Events Listed As Vacation Days Near

Because of the break in the college schedule occasioned by Easter vacation, and since the next issue of The Guardsman will not be published until Friday, April 22, the schedule of coming activities is listed below:

April 1-2 — (Opera) Marriage of Figaro, Auditorium, 8:15 p.m.
April 6—Last day to drop a course.
April 7—(Dance) Carrot Top.
April 7—Deadline for Ram Pages, and Forum.
April 7—(Rally) Campus Auditorium, 10:30 a.m.
April 19—Sorority Hell Week begins.
April 22—Freshman Dance, Palace Hotel.
April 22 — (College Hour) Club meetings.

High School Choirs To Join Festival Here Next Tuesday

Nine San Francisco high school choirs will visit here to present a two hour concert in the auditorium at 2 p.m., Tuesday, April 5.

The program will feature choir specialty numbers with Charles Dennis, music director of the San Francisco Public Schools, acting as master of ceremonies.

Hosts for the day are local A Cappella Choir and men's and women's chorus members. This will give them an opportunity to welcome students from their old high schools and conduct them on a tour of the college.

Following the concert a buffet supper, to be provided by the Hotel and Restaurant Division, is scheduled in the cafeteria.

Some 600 students attended College of Pacific's A Cappella Choir presentation, directed by J. Russell Bodley, last Monday in the auditorium.

Chemistry Instructors Attend Convention

Six members of the college's chemistry department participated in the 115th national meeting of the American Chemical Society which ended today.

Serving as speakers at divisional meetings were Drs. M. J. Polissar and A. Furst; S. K. Wilson, and S. J. Tomer. Also in attendance were M. Joseph and M. Mueller.

Unusual numbers such as the Brazilian Psalm by Jean Berger, and The Luckless Fisherman by Edelman were included in the program.

A luncheon for the visitors following the program was hosted by the college A Cappella Choir, and members of the Men's and Women's Chorus.

Fraternity Offers Car As Prize At Novel Carrot Top Hop Thursday

An "automobile" as prize will be offered by Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity at its semi-annual dance, The Carrot Top, Thursday evening, April 7, to be held in the campus auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

Fraternity President Danny Lagan said yesterday that bids are $1.25 a couple. Tickets may be bought from fraternity members, pledges, or at the door.

Bob Greenwood and his orchestra will provide music from 8:30 p.m. until midnight.

The prize "car" will go to the man who wears the most attractive vegetable boutonniere. A second prize, which, as yet, has not been disclosed, will be awarded for the dropiest-looking corsage, Dick Hallbeck, dance committee chairman, said, adding that tradition has been changed and "each man must wear a vegetable boutonniere."

Carrying out the theme of the affair, members will turn the auditorium into a "Under the Carrot Top" dance.

Social committee members include Harry Williams, Al Chapin, Charles Murphy, Charles Van Every and Bob Myers.

CAB Formulates Policy For Club Recognition

CAB VICE-PRESIDENT Frances McCarthy moved in on this picture with Helen Stoker, secretary.

Formulation of the college's policy toward clubs is the job of the Clubs Activities Board, Frances McCarthy, CAB vice-president, said recently.

Carrying out these duties, the CAB is meeting today during college hour to formulate policy toward clubs delinquent in petitioning for new charters.

Six campus organizations, which were chartered last semester, have not reapplied for charters this semester, and such clubs will not be recognized as official campus organizations.

Present at the meeting today will be Bob Selby, president of CAB; Miss McCarthy, and Helen Stoker, secretary, and on the agenda is clarification of delinquent club status.

Delinquent organizations that have not applied for charters are the Block SF, Alpha Sigma Delta, Strikes and Spares, Pi Delta Koppa, Koppa Phi, and Lambda Chi.

Scott, Hadda Score Figaro Triumph

A capacity first night audience paid tribute to the college Opera Workshop's production of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro last night, with special acclaim going to Eileen Scott and Gerhart Hadda.

Mrs. Scott, who sang the role of the Countess Almaviva, was teamed with Hadda as the Count, and both gave every evidence of vocal ability that will carry them far in operatic careers.

Jack Aaroe and Lorraine Dyrness were equally convincing vocally and in character as Figaro and Susanna.

Elizabeth Pharris not only proved herself a splendid singer, but "flounced" around as Mercellina to the complete approval of the audience.

In the role traditionally cast with a soprano, Martin Clark, tenor, more than triumphed over die-hards, and this realistic casting, plus English libretto and spoken dialogue, won more approval for opera than has been accomplished in this vicinity in a long time.

Heart-warming and whole-hearted approval went to workshop and musical director Flossita Badger, and stage and drama director Lloyd Sisler. Conductor Meyer M. Cahn came through magnificently with a City College symphony orchestra of which any conductor can well be proud.

No less praise, although their roles were smaller, was won by Roy Barnett, Dorothy Mix, Jack Barrows, and Robert Way, who never lost their characters, and gave full sway to the excellent humor.

Student Council Seeks Clue In The Mystery Of Missing Amendments

Lost and found entered the Student Council Tuesday when Associated Student President Pete Isola told the council that certain amendments and by-laws to the constitution had been lost.

The amendments, Isola said, would have to be declared unconstitutional since he had been unable to find the originals or any of the copies of the year-old documents.

Another matter brought before the council was whether complimentary tickets to Associated Student activities should be given out.

The council voted to approve the complimentary tickets already given out for the Marriage of Figaro but ordered that all future complimentary tickets must be presented to the council for approval.

Proposals to give a banquet for the basketball team was presented to the council but was removed to the Agenda Committee for proper introduction.

Forum Changes Contribution Deadline; Drive For Advertisements Starts Soon

Deadline for literary material for Forum Magazine, college literary journal, is April 7, and not April 8 as previously announced.

A good profit should be returned to the Associated Students on the $400 recently allotted to Forum Magazine, if the spring literary publication parallels last year's success, Dorothy Mercer, Forum faculty adviser, said recently.

Last year, Forum made $100 for the college. Of 1,000 printed copies of the magazine, only 30 were not sold, Miss Mercer explained. The Forum board recently fixed the price for this semester at 40 cents per copy.

Forum, currently conducting a literary and art contribution campaign, will soon open a drive to get advertisements, — Dayton — Lowson, Forum business manager, said.

Clubs To Be Rewarded For AS Membership

First club to attain one hundred per cent Associated Student membership will be awarded $20, Pete Isola, Associated Student president, said yesterday.

Clubs should notify Isola at the Associated Student office when they obtain one hundred per cent. The $20 will be given out at the next Club President's meeting.

New Registration Plan Set For Fall Semester

Registration for the fall semester will be by numerical order rather than alphabetically, as before, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of counselling, revealed yesterday. Students will receive numbers when they file next semester's program with their counsellors.

The new plan is on a first come, first served basis. Those first to see their counsellors will register first. Counsellors will begin giving out numbers Monday, April 18. Students are urged to make appointments before the Easter vacation in Building 3.

This change is one of a college modernization program.

Eight Hotel Students On Easter Week Tour

Eight student candidates from the Hotel and Restaurant Division are presently being selected to take the Division's annual tour of Southern California hotels and restaurants which is scheduled for the week starting Friday, April 8, to Friday, April 15.

Each individual chosen will be sponsored by a different hotel in San Francisco and will have his expenses entirely paid by the hotel which he represents, division heads said.

While on tour in Southern California, the eight representatives will be the complimentary guests of the Southern California Restaurant Association.

Harry Troupe, Executive Secretary of the California Northern Hotel Association, is working with the hotel and restaurant administration in planning transportation and reserving accommodations for the eight visitors to the Southland.

Accompanying the eight selectees will be two instructors, who have not been selected as yet.

It's Only Fumin' Nature

IT isn't every day that an editor is allowed to lower his barrier of well developed dignity and return to the life of a cultured columnist.

This is the ideal time for taking advantage of the proverbial knock of opportunity, so herewith is an account of the woes which befall an enterprising young reporter—a tidbit we have yearned to unfold for many semesters now.

The average reader of the timely, vital and informative is aware of at least one handicap a reporter is constantly working under, using the English language correctly.

Yet, how many readers take such a technicality for granted as they skim over these pages.

They don't stop here, however, but become more demanding, particularly in regard to the method their pet little social cult is covered in the paper. It takes just one small slip for a chorus of unified growls, but reams of nice words very seldom add up to a pat on the back for the reporter, at least in the eyes of the reader.

The crop of external obstacles may be very evident, and likewise, often overlooked, but it's the internal problems that make for much combustion. Take the case of the writer who is covering a dance scheduled on a Friday.

By Tuesday noon the story must be written and turned into the copy desk in order to make the Friday issue. After the creator has spent many valuable moments dreaming up an ideal approach and interesting angle for the yarn, he proceeds to turn out a colorful story, full of "it will be the best—committee has promised orchestra will play in tune—and the like," but what happens:

By Wednesday afternoon, the committee has started to formulate last minute plans, making a change here, another there, until by dance time Friday the reporter is lucky if the same outfit is still giving the dance.

This all makes for a very embarrassed reporter when the Friday issue hits the street and has led to the downfall of more than one prospective journalist.

But, the unfortunate yarn-spieler has still another fate to deal with, a fate much worse than public scorn. He too is a product of the modern educational system, and therefore, must account for his actions to a higher authority—namely a Faculty Adviser.

But, in order to cut down on the rate of suicides, the administration has blessed The Guardsman with a Faculty Adviser who is an advocate of the "It's Only Human Nature" school and therefore deals gently with her proteges, saving face for many local journalists.

I.B.M.s Break Down; Midterms Over Again

(Editor's note: Now that we have managed to get rid of Brennan, this column will be on a higher plain.)

FIRST item on the agenda for today is an unhappy one. As a matter of fact all students had better sit down before reading the rest of this mournful news.

Usually reliable sources have reported that there has been a breakdown in the office I.B.M. machine. This is the machine that has been recording the midterm grades. Unfortunately this means that all midterms will have to be taken over again. Disaster is the only word to use in describing this unforeseen and ruinous calamity.

Instructors have been told to provide new tests and next week is designated as midterm week number two. There is a silver lining to this dark cloud, however. Those of us who did not do too well will have the opportunity to try again.

CHEERFUL NEWS

The second item of the day is a bit more on the cheerful side. It gives us great pleasure to announce that as of April 18th, all classes will be held out of doors. Full credit for this revolutionary change in our education system must go to the Editor of The Guardsman.

It is due to the work of this outspoken writer of outspoken editorials for our outspoken college newspaper that we are able to go back to nature. It was his original suggestion and his fearless work that will make it possible for us to wear bathing suits to class in the near future.

As was pointed out in the fearless editorial of the issue of March 22nd, this system will allow the student as well as the instructor to air his problems and will no doubt increase the daily attendance.

NEW FAD

The last and most appropriate topic for today is one concerning a new variation on pyramid club fad. This new twist works the same way as the old pyramid club except for one slight change. A change, we might add, that is more appropriate for college students.

No money is involved in this new system. One merely puts one's name at the bottom of the pyramid list, delivers his best girl to the name at the top of the list, and then waits twelve days.

At the end of this time the lucky man will receive 2048 beautiful coeds. In order to test this new pyramid club idea we are starting a new list today. Oddly enough my name happens to be at the top of the list.

OFFICIAL!!! Straight from the horse's mouth we have it that the famed Dr. Kinsey plans to complete research for his second book on this campus. The Doctor will visit women's hygiene classes to conduct his inquiries and will set up his office adjoining the student fountain in the West Campus . . . there he will conduct on-the-spot research.

Roy Pasooni, a local lad, will play host to Kinsey as the learned investigator plans to room in the Waldorf.

Hearts and flowers department . . . Dan Druff and Velvet Knight have been taking in the Friday night dances regularly . . . only objection to the attachment comes from the boys in barracks 7 . . . seems that the lads maintain that Druff and Miss Knight desert the dances early to bill and coo beneath their windows . . . if the parties concerned didn't catch the water bombs from barracks 7 windows it's time they realize that privacy is unavailable on the West Campus.

Those intimate little booths in the student store are due to go . . . a new movement afoot plans that everybody be friends . . . with the elimination of the booths the officials hope to eliminate that ugly word—SEGREGATION.

Editorial: Publication Board Chairman Places Two Week Ban On Guardsman; Staff Fights Back

EVERY editor patiently waits for the day when there will be a general uprising over some action taken by his publication, but few expect to be handled in so immature a manner as befell The Guardsman the other day.

Acting solely on his own incompetent judgment, the Chairman of the Publications Board, Roy Pasini, banned The Guardsman from the campus for a two week period effective immediately.

Reasons given for such action are based on a technicality which Pasini has interpreted to justify his own means and which he maintains The Guardsman has completely disregarded.

The "ruling" which The Guardsman has been accused of breaking is one which states that "all publications bearing the official name of the college must be approved by the Publications Board Chairman before being distributed."

Overly impressed with his position, Pasini has declared that, "because The Guardsman has not submitted each issue to the Board's office for approval before distribution," it is guilty of an infraction.

NEVER IN THE HISTORY OF THE COLLEGE HAS ANY ONE PERSON, OTHER THAN THE GUARDSMAN EDITOR, HAD A FINAL SAY IN WHAT SHOULD APPEAR UPON THESE PAGES.

It is for this reason that The Guardsman is editorially FIGHTING BACK, instead of taking this "punishment" lying down.

We are appealing to the students for their unified support in our move to unseat Pasini from his pious perch and place the chairmanship in the hands of a more mature and qualified person.

Because we are unable to contest this decision as long as this self-made egotist holds the chairmanship of the board, The Guardsman will be forced to discontinue publication until after the Easter vacation.

Therefore, we ask that all students interested in the preservation of a publication on campus which bows down to no one, to join in this move and flood the AS President's office and also The Guardsman office with letters protesting the action and demanding immediate reinstatement of The Guardsman and the recall of the Publications Board Chairman to his editor's desk in The Guardsman Building.

Anyone Interested In Helping Little Kids?

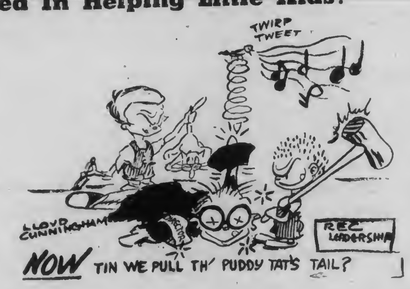
Fearless Fraden Teaches Students To Teach Kiddies

By Arnoldski Solkovich

WE found Jules Fraden of the recreational leadership department sorting through the paraphernalia used by the department in its training program. The equipment did not include baseball bats to discourage over-exuberant children nor quick-blowing whistles used by the students in the referee training.

Fraden spoke through the pile of equipment, explaining the purpose of the department. "We plan to train interested students in the art of playground and gym direction," he said. The unique idea in college curriculum has already netted quite a few instructors, as the department has been functioning for about four years.

Field work is included in the duties, such as running various Y.M.C.A. groups, scout work and the like. There is no financial return for this, but the student does receive two units.



Students also learn how to direct children's games, run-sheepy-run, ring-around-the-rosy, how to act as moderator in any dispute arising from these games—here is where the ball bats might come in handy. The art of metal, leather and paper work is taught so that the students can teach the children how to make things out of metal, leather and paper.

This course is taught by Laurine Bergin and Wallace Welk. Tom Wilson instructs in coaching and refereeing technique. The "blind-toms" who referee intramural sports are products of this segment of the program.

"Our students graduate as persons qualified in organizing kiddie games and in instruction in primary dramatics, which is handled by Ruth Somers," Fraden continued.

This work ties in handily with the city's civil service test for intended playground directors. As a matter of fact, one such test comes up for hopefuls on April 8. The application examinations states that only persons who have met certain requirements or successful completion of the two-year college course in recreational leadership given by the City College are eligible.

Explaining that the department is operated on a co-operative basis, that is, all the instructors contribute ideas on how the courses should be run, Fraden gathered up his equipment—which did not include whistles and hall bats.

Letters To The Editor

Local Student Has Rough Time; Guardsman News Not Complete

• Not Good Enough

Editor, The Guardsman:

Three months ago I was a happy go lucky young man with no worries in the world to bother me, but alas the roof of my dream house has fallen down.

It was in February that my sad day with no evident let-up in sight, dayq with no evident let-up in sight.

I finished my two years at City College in only two and half years and feeling I had the world licked and on a down hill pull, off I went to register at another college for the finale of my intellectual career.

Not having any college particularly in mind, only knowing for sure that I didn't want to go to "Cal," I wrote letters to several different colleges asking for information concerning entrance as an upper division student.

The answers weren't long in coming, but the news they brought was anything but encouraging.

Their contexts can be generally summed up as something like this:

"We don't want you, but if you insist on coming you might just possibly get in as a high freshman or low sophomore. But we suggest that you finish your education at California."

It seems they have found through experience that City College "grads" just don't make very good students, and would rather not have their students contaminated.

If this sort of thing happens to most students, maybe City College had better close its doors.

• Student Sees Red

Editor, The Guardsman:

I have been here at this school now for seven semesters and I am making many new friends. I like the school real good, but I don't like your newspaper. Now you may not think I know what I'm talking about, but I'm no fool when it comes to school papers—when I was a freshman in high school I was a good friend of the feature editor.

Well, here is what I don't like about your paper: First, you did not give my fraternity a good write-up when we had a swell picnic last week out at the beach. We thought it was a good time but when we try to find a story about it we couldn't. Kids would like to read about these things. Second thing I don't like is your new style. Too radical.

Guardsman SPORTS

Varsity Foxing Squad Will Be Disbanded

BECAUSE the varsity foxing team was not considered one of the major sports of the college, the athletic department, because of lack of funds, reluctantly voted in favor of completely disbanding the touching sport from the college's athletic program.

In fact, the whole athletic department is in mourning today.

Not only was foxing entirely abolished as a college sport, but also the athletic fund was cut in half.

This big slice out of the sports budget means that all the major sports of the college such as shuffleboard, rowing, spin-the-bottle, etc., will not be included in any more games outside of the city limits.

Formerly, when one of the teams played an out-of-town game, players relied on the college funds for gas (private cars were used), eating, and sleeping quarters while on the road. Because of the lack of funds, this will now be a thing of the past.

From now on all the college games will have to take place within the city limits.

Now a new problem arises. Can the college sports department arrange all their games with the other colleges so that they will be played at home fields?

This brings up still another problem. Where does the college have its own field?

Formerly when the teams engaged in home games, they usually played at various places throughout the city.

Going back to the matter of the varsity foxing squad, from now on there only will be foxing instruction given in the regular gym classes and that's all.

As far as foxing Coach Toy Iledeclerkson is concerned, the college will have to switch his coaching talents to another sport.

This cut in funds of the athletic department will not be just for the next couple of semesters, but may be permanent until a new set of sports is added.

College Nine To Meet SF Seals In Sport Staff's 'Utopian' Benefit

By Salt Dressing, sprout editor

Bill Fischer and Lefty O'Doul will match wits Monday night, April 31, in Seals Stadium, when City College meets the minor league San Francisco Seals, in a benefit contest for the building of a new campus stadium.

The highly regarded Coast League manager will send mighty Con Dempsey to the mound to oppose local southpaw twirler, Charley Overstreet, in a pitching duel that is expected to attract 10,000 customers, to the 16th and Bryant Stadium.

Southpaws have been the nemesis of the Seals' nine, year after year, and Overstreet is a semi-pro veteran of many stadium hurling duels.

Confident Fischer has no fear of future major leaguer Dempsey. "We'll hit him just as hard as St. Louis, Pittsburgh, and Cleveland did. He'll be no problem to our heavy strikers Tom Bournellis, John Burkhead, and Lefty Arata."

Mastermind O'Doul hopes that he receives a much needed right-handed hitting outfielder, before he tackles the Ram nine. Regardless, though, the Seals will use their regular Coast League lineup, with either Reno Cheso or Dick Lajeskie holding down the keystone sack.

Paul Fagan and Charles Graham Jr., Seal bigwigs, have been a great help in scheduling this benefit tilt. Eager to aid the locals in obtaining their 50,000 seating capacity stadium, they arranged the special Monday night meeting between the two baseball squads.

Pre-game ceremonies will be provided by the regular Stadium band and City College's red-and-white clad players.

A set price of $1.00 will be charged all students, since the game is being played for the new stadium benefit.

This baseball tilt is the first in a series of benefit contests to raise sufficient funds for the erection of a howl type arena on the grounds, where the practice field is now located.

(Editor's note: Once in seven years a sports staff can write of Utopia if not bring it home.)

Fight Tonight Will Prep Team For Shot At Nationals

In their last fistic dual meet, before they converge on Modesto to take part in the Northern California Junior College regional tournament, April 15-16, to determine who will represent the section in the nationals at Pasadena, Roy Diederichsen's scrappers will don the gloves with Modesto Junior College tonight in the men's gymnasium at 8 p.m.

The dual meet tonight is an advantage to both teams, because Modesto and City College possess possibly the two strongest aggregations in northern California, and this engagement will match prospective entries in the regionals.

Carrying the bulk of local hopes will be Jerry Stern, 140 pounder, who boasts a decision over Dave Grey, PCL champion from San Jose State, and Roy Damas, 145 pound kayo artist, who has won two of his last three bouts by knockouts.

Ed Jackson, 165 pounder, and Len Garcia, fancy featherweight, are solid contenders to sweep their weights at Modesto. Ed Sato, 125, and Dean Bender, 175, have also been nominated to make the trip.

Locals In Conference Track Opener With Cubs

In pursuit of their initial win, Grover Klemmer's untried trackmen travel to Stockton tomorrow morning to open the NCJC Conference campaign on the College of Pacific oval.

Klemmer announced that he will take a 15-man traveling squad along in private cars. Those selected to make the journey will leave San Francisco at 10 a.m., arriving in the port town in time for activities that begin at 2 p.m. Field events get under way at 2 while the mile run starts at 2:15.

Although he would rather take along the full team, Klemmer sadly shook his head and said that lack of sufficient funds prohibits taking 51 men along.

Klemmer was vague about the potentialities of the Tiger-Cubs and merely indicated that Stockton and Modesto were the teams to beat. Both outfits are loaded with talent but the tall blond refused to elaborate on the Rams chances against them.

The meet means the start of a strenuous April schedule for the locals that doesn't come to an end until Saturday, May 21.

The 15 man traveling squad: Irv Delframe, Marv Hoffman, Bill Bland, Owen Moore, Don Christe, Jim Palaby, Al Rillerva, Jack Hurst, Tom Kellog, Morrie Feldman, Lindy Low, Chuck Leonhardt, Ray Masoni, Ken Fogerty, Bill Waltl.

Woman's Athletic Association Basketball Teams Meet Two High Schools In Playday

Woman's Athletic Association basketball teams will compete with Lincoln and Saint Paul's high school teams today in a playday at 2:30 p.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Family night, with the Woman's Athletic Association hosting Hurley Village parents and their youngsters, is slated for Thursday, April 7, at 7 p.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Christine Disibio, chairman of the affair, has planned an evening of games for parent-participation.

Golf Team Meets Mateo

Coach Ralph Hillsman's golfers began their league play Thursday, March 22, with a 25½-1½ victory over Hartnell College at Del Monte, and will try for their second win in a meet with San Mateo today.

White Smacks Homer, But Rams Lose Three

Ray White billy-clubbed the college's first home run of the season with two mates aboard as the Rams were losing to USF Frosh 5-4 Tuesday. Chris Makras, third base, hit two for four.

While being nipped by Hamilton Field in the tenth 10-9, Monday, the Rams were guilty of ten miscues. Tom Bournellis clouted five for six.

In the third gloomy encounter of the week, the Rams lost to S.F. State 18-3, last Wednesday.

Rams Engage Stockton In Doubleheader Test, Hold NCJC League Lead

By Gene Van Dyke

Going after their third and fourth NCJC Conference victories, the college nine journeys to Stockton tomorrow where they will face the local junior college in a double header.

At present Bill Fischer's nine is in the lead of the Southern division along with San Mateo.

Last Saturday, Stockton was spilled by San Mateo, 9-0 and 9-3. The Cubs gathered 11 hits off two Bulldog chuckers. Stockton's moundsmen were tapped for a combined two game total of 21 hits.

City College swept a twin bill from Monterey last week-end and appears to have a comparative edge over Stockton. Although the Rams were held to 15 hits, they came at the right moments and produced winning runs.

Lee Jones will be a tentative starting pitcher for the Rams in the first game. Ron Keifer may gain the nod in the nightcap.

The infield will be as it has been in previous games: Ray White, first; Neil Decker, second; Tom Bournellis, third, and Jack Bukowatz, shortstop.

John Burkhead and Bob Friedman will alternate behind the plate.

Schedule for Easter holidays:

April 5—Menlo at Funston
April 9—Menlo at Menlo
April 19—California Frosh at Berkeley.
April 20—St. Mary's at St. Mary's

Outer gardeners Fred Payne, Lou Pisani, and Don Losberger, are going full blast in contesting starting outfield jobs along with Lefty Arata, centerfielder.

Military Training Starts Here; Males Must Register

Strict enforcement of a new campus military program, demanding participation of all able-bodied students and instructors, will take immediate effect when a new 800 yard obstacle course is completed, and night swimming classes, and a 30 mile field hike, are arranged next week.

This plan was released to The Guardsman by a special bulletin sent to all colleges and universities in the Twelfth Naval District.

All men must contact Dean Jack Brady before April 7 to receive their college service numbers, make appointments for typhus shots, and apply for I.D. cards.

Emphasis will be placed on an arduous body building program including participation in an 800 yard obstacle course, qualification in long distance swimming, and, each semester, a supervised 30 mile hike with full infantry pack.

Activation of the program begins when all students and instructors in the first group march with full army pack, in military formation, to and from Petaluma, April 9-10. Military regalia is being borrowed from the California National Guard. Those assigned to the first section must be present under the Ram by 5:30 a.m., Saturday, April 9, or face removal from the college.

Men with flat feet will be excused on presentation to Dr. Brady of a statement signed by four qualified doctors. Three groups will be divided by alphabetical order. Group 1, A through I; Group 2, J through R; and Group 3, S through Z.

The 800 yard obstacle course, consisting of rope climbing, high wall scaling, and escape through barbed wire entanglements, will be completed in time for opening of this phase of the program, April 7.

All groups are under supervision of the campus police who are authorized to use force on those participants failing to show maximum effort in running the course. Course hours are as follows: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, Group 1, 6 to 7 a.m.; Group 2, 5 to 6 p.m.; Group 3, 6 to 7 p.m.

A swimming obstacle course which accentuates long distance and underwater swimming is set up at the Ocean Plunge to accommodate the college military schedule. Swimming hours are as follows: Tuesday and Thursday, Group 1, 7 to 8 p.m.; Group 2, 8 to 9 p.m.; Group 3, 6 to 7 p.m.

Staff Fools Around

Guardsman staff members rushed Faculty Adviser Joan Nourse to Mission Emergency Hospital (at Lake Tahoe) late yesterday afternoon when she collapsed from shock after reading the copy for today's issue.

Lest any members of the Associated Students suffer a similar fate, we recommend a glance at today's date line.

Bunnies Needed For Easter Jobs

Part time jobs may be hard to find during normal times, but Assistant Dean Black Lady has announced that at present there is a large demand for male Easter egg distributors.

In order to prepare any interested men students for one of these openings about the city, Lady will conduct an "Easter Bunny Training" school next week from 1 to 3 p.m. dally.

The course will include egg dyeing, egg distribution, and make-up techniques for dressing as an Easter bunny. Those who pass the course and qualify as bunnies will be placed in local grammar schools and nurseries where they will plan and supervise Easter egg hunts for the children during Easter vacation.

The prevailing wage scale for this work is $1.10 per hour, but Lady added that there are a few openings for just egg dyers which pay as piece work.

Applications for enrollment should be filed in Lady's office in Building 2 as soon as possible because the first class will be held Monday afternoon and the size of the class is limited to 20 students.

Canna Tuna Aday Plans Fishy Fandango In April

Plans for the most unusual dance of the Spring semester, to be given on April 10 by the Canna Tuna Aday fraternity, are being rushed to completion, Clyde Randolph Dimitri, president of the fraternity, announced yesterday.

Music will be by Harry Fishbone and his Sea Gull Seven.

"The fraternity has obtained the use of an abandoned LST anchored past the three mile limit for the site of the shindig," Dimitri said. Water taxis will transport couples to the ship every half hour.

"Water skis can be used if the couples so desire," he added.

The idea that makes the dance really interesting is that the men will not have to pay. The group is going to call the dance "The Woman Always Pays."

Dancing to the Sea Gulls Seven's music will start at six and end at twelve. The garb should conform to the fishy atmosphere.

With Ham 'n Eggs

Campus Socialites Plan Novelties; Members, Like Bunnies, Lay Eggs

ACCORDING to latest rumors and boarders, or boarders and roomers, and vice-versa, this column was changed to Ham 'n' Eggs because it was written when we were fried!

Speaking of eggs, there will be a joint meeting of all fraternities and sororities during Easter vacation for a day of intra-mural egg gathering; get the yoke?

This is so foolish, but again on the other hand, she had a wart!

Ski Hams are again planning a slippery week-end at Rainbow Tavern, April 8, according to Vernon Ramski, president.

Alpha Stigma Pelta is really going hole hog in the throwing of their semi-annual Carrot Top Dance; redheads get in free, if accompanied with red hair! For additional information see Hairy Skilliams, also known as Mardi!

One of the door prizes given at the ball, will be a 1912 DeSoto, with a 1914 floor mat.

A joint picnek was recently held by Beta Taw and Beta Taw Omegga at Tilden Regional Park in Oakland. The place was packed, and so were the lunches!

Try Pepsilon, or any other if you can, held a joint meeting with Zeda Guy recently at the home of Lucy Wilson. Twas quite a meeting, according to Ray Beaverboard. Try Pepsilon president.

Taw Guy Stigma is now in the process of arranging a rendezvous for informal insichiation, according to who has the Toni Brunovich!

Potato Fi Potato, local vegitarian group, is planning a week-end of intra-mural gardening, according to Igor Spade, their digging president.

Pike and Slammer Society, local sadistics, plan a holiday on the Farllone Islands surveying sea gull-formations; von mirage lads!

Tappa Keg, prohibitionists co-operative, take off next week for a few days orange juice drinking down sooth. The group hopes to come back completely sunkist!

You Hit Pie, and little Lambdas eat ivy, or something to that effect, have halted plans to join the Ancient Order of Grape Viners, widely known group with headquarters in Lodi.

My Ioughta Try, recently organized club for advanced introverts, have opened their new cabin in the mountains, with specially construcied lounge chairs facing blank walls. Each member is furnished wire recorders, giving him a chance to strike up a stirring conversation with himself.

Row A Boata, whose theme song is "Do I Oar You?" are intending to spend vacation fishing at Mud Lake, located twenty ax-handles east of the west campus gate.

As a closing thought, be healthy, wealthy, and crazy; it's more fun just ask us!

Figaro Receipts, Manager Capanis Missing

Hot on the trail of the person, or persons, who absconded last Tuesday with ticket receipts from the Opera Workshop production of The Marriage of Figaro, campus police were today investigating the strange disappearance of George Capanis, student manager of the opera.

Capanis was last seen leaving the campus last Tuesday after ticket collections for the show had been completed. Witnesses said that Capanis was seen carrying a "mysterious" black bag which may have contained the missing funds or possibly his press-clippings from recent issues of "The Guardsman."

"We are not as yet prepared to officially charge Capanis with the crime," Ed Fritzgerald, campus law enforcement director, said yesterday. "However, it is significant that the money and Capanis both disappeared simultaneously."

Concerning his alleged motive, it was reliably reported that Capanis recently has been overheard in bitter denunciation of the Student Council for failure, as he put it, "to vote enough money for my publicity board . . . the cheap-skates!" Witnesses to these tirades reported that he vowed vengence on the council and members of the Associated Students for not giving him the recognition and praise to which he felt entitled.

Boxing Team Bids For U.S. Championships

Council Indicates Fund Approval When Athletic Department Files Request

Fate of the Ram boxing team's bid in the Pasadena Nationals next week was to be determined at yesterday's Student Council meeting, too late for publication in this issue of The Guardsman.

At its meeting Tuesday the council was unable to appropriate money to send the team to the nationals, but at the insistent demands of Roy Pasini, Guardsman editor, and George Capanis, publicity director, the council did pass a unanimous vote of confidence in the team.

Associated Student President Pete Isola told the council that it would be impossible for them to appropriate funds for the boxing team until Coach Roy Diederichsen revealed the amount needed.

The Ram Booster fund contains two hundred dollars which the council may use towards sending the boxing team to the National Tournament.

In criticizing the slow progress of the necessary machinery of the council, Editor Pasini said that if the council did not pass an appropriation immediately the boxing team would be without publicity.

Before a vote of confidence was taken, Isola told the council he was confident the boxing team would receive enough money to go when the council met Thursday.

Before the debate on the boxing team took place the council was told that only 2,633 Associated Student cards were sold this semester.

The council was told that unless sales increased the college would be forced to operate on a tighter budget.

CURRENTLY UNDERGOING INTENSIVE WORKOUTS in preparation for their shot at National Junior College boxing crowns next week in Pasadena, are the above five Ram boxers who qualified for the finals in matches at Modesto, April 15.

From left to right are Roy Damas, 145, undefeated in five starts; Len Garcia, 125, flashy boxer; Dean Bender, 175, slugging specialist; heavyweight Frank Sueuga, Ram KO artist, and Jerry Stern, 135, boasting a decision over PCI champ Dave Grey of San Jose State College. The Ram squad will entrain for the south Tuesday, arriving one day before the first bout is scheduled, allowing the boys a full day of workouts before entering the ring.

Coach Roy Diederichsen has announced that the five red and white standard bearers are in top shape and anxious to throw leather with the nation's best.

Students Must Secure Number To Register

Students planning to register in City College for the fall semester, 1949 are advised by F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Counselling and Guidance, to see their counsellors before the end of the present semester.

Because registration for the fall semester will be by numerical order rather than alphabetical, it is important that each student make an appointment with his counsellor for purposes of program planning and acquisition of registration numbers, Marsh said.

Civil Service Talk And Documentary Movie To Be Co-Featured During Today's College Hour

Various college activities, other than the regular club meetings in assigned rooms, are planned for today's college hour at 10:40 p.m.

A talk on Civil Service Employment Opportunity, sponsored by the Business Educational Forum, will be delivered in the campus auditorium, while a Pacific Gas and Electric documentary film is being shown in Room 136.

Civil Service Employment Opportunity is the subject of the talk to be given in the auditorium by Dr. Benjamin Mallory, currently with the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Business department head, James Hughes, announced.

The Business Eduentional Forum, which sponsors these lectures, is co-directed by Hughes and business instructor Glenn Mercer.

Mallory will discuss the general classifications of positions open and the advantages and opportunities for advancement.

Professor at the University of California and member of the State Personnel Board are two positions that Mallory, who is the fourth speaker to appear before the college's Business Education Forum, has formerly held.

Electricity in heavy industry will be depicted today in a Pacific Gas and Electric documentary film entitled Whirling Wheels, according to Madison Devlin, of audio visual aids.

Attendance is open to all, and the film will be shown at 10 a.m. and during college hour in Room 136, Devlin said.

During a press conference, Dean Brady stated early yesterday that the date for the next college hour rally had been set for Friday, April 29.

Rally Commissioner Lane Currie, commenting in regard to this rally, disclosed that the College of Marin rally group will appear with a program of entertainment in the campus auditorium on the scheduled date.

This appearance of the Marin unit will mark the first of a group of exchange rallies planned for this and future semesters.

Currie added that plans to have the Santa Rosa Junior College rally group appear at the college this semester have been postponed because of the limited number of dates remaining for college hour rallies.

Sherratt And Williams Share Marietta Lead

Tentative casting for Naughty Marietta, next college opera production scheduled for presentation the first week in June, is nearing completion, and rehearsals have already begun, according to Flossita Badger, college music director.

Co-directors of the forthcoming light opera are Miss Badger, and Lloyd Sisler of the drama department.

As has been the custom here, all parts for the opera will be double cast, each cast to play at alternate performances.

Members of the cast as now scheduled are as follows:

In the part of Captain Dick, Bob Sherratt and Harry Williams; as Marietta, Joan Welton and Luba Schubin; Lt. Governor, Jack Barrows; Etienne, Palmer Cramer and Roy Barnett; Adah, Patricia Fitzgerald and Velma Webster; Emile, Gerald Lustig and Edward Hayden.

Included in this light opera presentation is a chorus of 50 members from the A Cappella Choir.

Long a favorite of audiences, Naughty Marietta features such perennial song hits as Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, and I'm Falling In Love With Someone.

Other cast members will be announced at a later date.

Angel Island Day Features Ram Band

A concert by the college band, and a baseball game between the Rams and the San Mateo Jeffersons, highlight the program for "Angel Island Day," a day of recreation proclaimed by Mayor Elmer Robinson, slated for this coming Sunday, April 24, college administrators said yesterday.

The affair will also include a parade of more than 600 yachts and motor boats and will feature tennis matches, fishing parties, bus tours of the island, picnicking and dancing.

Mayor Robinson has urged the citizens to participate for their own enjoyment and recreation in the entertainment offered this Sunday.

Beta Tau Fraternity Wins A.S. Cash Award

Presentation of a $20 cash award for being the first organization to obtain 100 per cent Associated Student membership, was extended by AS President Pete Isola to Beta Tau Fraternity at the regularly scheduled Club Presidents' meeting yesterday.

Mail boxes for the various organizations and clubs on campus have been installed in the student lounge on the west campus.

Sophs To Elect Rulers Soon

With the traditional election of the Sophomore King and Queen scheduled for May 11 and 12, all contestants must have their pictures taken by 4 p.m. Friday, April 29, Dale Butterfield, Sophomore class president, announced today.

Pictures will be taken free of charge at A. McMurray Studio, 1401 Van Ness Avenue between April 25 and 29, but appointments must be made first, Butterfield said.

Before making appointments, contestants must turn in their name, Associated Student card number, and total of accumulated units to him at The Guardsman office. Contestants must have a minimum of 30 units, Butterfield explained, and all are asked to participate.

College Conference To Meet Here

At its meeting on April 1 at Santa Rosa, the California Junior College Student Government Conference voted to hold its fall meeting at City College of San Francisco.

Associated Men Student President Harry Williams was elected president of the AMS Presidents' Council.

The secretarial work of the next conference will be handled by students from Lux College.

Other matters of importance discussed at the conference were as follows:

1. The conference voted to present to the State Legislature a bill proposing the legalization of compulsory purchase of Associated Student cards at public junior colleges. Most of the larger colleges in the state are now hampered by lack of funds stemming mainly from poor card sales, the conference learned.

2. The conference voted not to endorse the National Students Association after some of the colleges which had joined the organization stated they did not feel they received enough in return for the dues they paid. Los Angeles City College is the only California junior college now a member of the association.

3. A motion to forbid the payment of athletes throughout all the California junior college athletic conferences failed after an attempt to get all the attending colleges to pledge they would not grant athletic scholarships, was unsuccessful.

4. A proposal to standardize Athletic Awards was lost in what local Associated Student President Pete Isola told the Student Council recently was the "biggest hokus pokus."

AWS Tea To Honor High School Senior Girls

High school senior women will be honored at tea in the student lounge from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 28, Associated Women Student President Barbara McBride, announced recently.

The tea is a semi-annual affair which includes all San Francisco public and private high school high seniors.

Official hostesses are AWS officers Doris Dirdo, Betty Lu Upson, Teddy Decieri and Miss McBride, under the guidance of Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

"Purpose of the customary tea is to acquaint the incoming women students with the college," Miss McBride said.

All prospective freshman women students are invited to attend and stay for tea, coffee, and cake, she added.

Women students from Washington, Lowell, Lincoln, Balboa, Mission, Commerce, Polytechnic, Galileo and Girls' High Schools have been invited, as well as students from Notre Dame, Paris Dirdo, Betty Lu Upson, Teddy Presentation, Notre Dame des Victoires, St. Brigid, St. Peter, St. Rose Academy, St. John, St. Paul, St. Vincent, Star of the Sea, and Immaculate Conception Academy.

Forum Magazine Work Nears End; Ram-Pages May Release Date Set

This year's Forum Magazine will probably be put on sale during the week of May 16, Dorothy Mercer, Forum adviser, announced yesterday, while Ram-Pages, the college yearbook, will be distributed during the final week in May, staff members said.

On Monday, April 18, the Forum Magazine editors had a meeting to prepare the copy for the typist and make the layout for the 32-page magazine.

An abundance of good material was submitted this semester, according to Miss Mercer, and arrangements are underway for its printing. Price of the magazine has been set at 40 cents, and 1,000 copies are to be printed.

The 1,000 copies of last year's publication went fast, and sales brought in $100 profit to the Associated Student treasury.

All copy and photographs for the yearbook have been sent to the printer; all last minute difficulties were successfully overcome, Editor Bob McVey said.

Because the deadline for reserving books fell during the Easter vacation, there are still a few copies being sold by staff salesmen and at the student bank.

Yearbooks are $2.50 to Associated Student members, or $5.00 to others.

Frosh Host Dance At Palace Tonight

Students will have a chance to wear new spring outfits at the informal dance tonight, sponsored by the Freshman class, and to be held at the Palace Hotel.

Roy Stefani and his orchestra will play at the cotillion from 9 to 12 p.m. in the Gold Room.

Admission to the cotillion is free to all Associated Students with membership cards, which will admit one couple, Jack Kearns, class president, announced.

Assisting Kearns are freshman social committee members, Chairman Marsha Weilar, Patrick Corley, Lois Negal, and Mary Cooke.

Kearns added, "This is the opportunity for the women to show their new spring attire and the men to don their new suits."

Cokes will be sold to the cotillion dancers, Kearns said, pointing out that Freshman class officers are working diligently to make this semi-annual, traditional class dance a success.

It's Only Human Nature

JACK and Jill went up the hill to fetch a pail of water, but Jack fell down and broke his crown, 'cause someone spilled the water.

In California this story would conclude with Jack going to a lawyer and in the end collecting a rather large sum of money from someone; strangely enough this very thing could happen at City College.

For many a day now there has been a leak from an underground water pipe, be it the sewer or otherwise, and the ground surrounding the spot is continually in a watery and soggy condition.

HUSH-HUSH CONDITION

It has become something of a joke about the campus, with aspiring reporters being offered all sorts of rewards if they would only expose this condition to the world, but alas no takers.

So, making sure that our blackmailing file is amply stocked to thwart any attack from higher-ups, we are setting out to get this condition corrected.

Until now the possibility of getting corrective action has been nil, as there was no way in which it could be proved that the pipe was leaking, and the "swamp" not just a left over from the rains.

But, the day has come!

Strike while the iron is hot, the saying goes, and notice is hereby given to the powers-that-be that they have been struck at.

The danger of this deplorable condition is not to be over-emphasized, for this leak not only endangers life and limb, but is apt to mess up nice shoe-shines, as well as make it tedious work walking on the grass.

Another possible consequence, which might result, is easily seen; such as, sucking local students into the sewer system, that is if the pipe happens to be a sewer.

SEVERAL REMEDIES

This state of affairs could probably be altered simply by giving orders to a resident gopher to deposit used gum at the aforementioned spot, thus utilizing a favorite fix-it method of house-wives.

If, however, this remedy doesn't work, a request might be given to the next highway crew that tears up the hill to stick their old match sticks in the offending hole.

As a last resort the sewage engineer or water commissioner, whichever owns up to the pipe, might be cajoled into sending out a crew of maintenance men to repair the horrid thing.

Those are only suggestions, however, and officials may feel free to use any means at their disposal for corrective measures, but it is only natural for local Alpine artists to resent this obstacle in their uphill pull for knowledge.

Lost Art Of K Car Riding Herein Told

RUGGED is the word to describe the exciting and dangerous sport of riding the K car. A cross between football and prize-fighting, the game requires hard muscles, fast foot work, and quick reflexes.

Like other contact sports, riding the K car successfully is largely a matter of conditioning and natural co-ordination. The rules of the game are simple (there aren't any). It's every man for himself and may the best man get a seat.

The basic fundamentals of the sport, kneeing, elbowing, and kicking, can only be mastered after much practice. Any novice to this exacting sport is advised to perfect these fundamentals before going on to the finer points of jostling, bumping, and pushing.

Roughly speaking—and there is no other way when describing this pastime—the game is divided into three stages: First there is the getting on or power-counts-so-charge stage. Next comes finding a seat, and here is where the skill and fast footwork is needed. The last, or getting off stage, is comparatively easy. Strong muscles and a loud voice is all that is needed.

MANNERS NOT NEEDED

It must be pointed out to all tyros that courtesy and manners are a definite handicap to this sport. Of course, if you have no manners to begin with it is a big advantage.

Let any thought of politeness or kindness enter into your attitude and the jig is up. Above all, the novice must be warned against showing any diffidence towards women. The weaker sex—bless all their icy little hearts—are fully capable of taking care of themselves. If any thing, their natural irascibility makes them better than men at this sport.

To become a first-rate or professional streetcar rider one must go beyond the few fundamentals mentioned above. A top notch rush-hour performer is one who is naturally aggressive, callous, and possibly even a bit sadistic.

KEEP IN SHAPE

Continual practice is an absolute necessity and we recommend a few home exercises to keep fit. First, practice snarling and growling before the mirror until this is perfected. Then develop a skill at gouging, tripping, and biting. All of these are necessary if one expects to get beyond the amateur stage.

As that great Italian philosopher, Pasini, once said, fate ben per voi. Which as any Italian student knows, means getting on a streetcar is a great art.

Editorial: College's Athletic Teams Must Defeat Local Red Tape As Well As Conference Opponents

DEPRIVED of a crack at national recognition in the sporting world when its basketball team suffered a heartbreaking setback during final qualification rounds, City College will send its equally competent boxing team to Pasadena next week to compete in the National Junior College Boxing Tournament.

But, as is usually the case hereabouts, the final and official OK was long in coming, causing much uneasiness in most quarters.

A week ago the boxing squad had qualified five men for the Pasadena finals, but it was not until late this week that the boxers definitely knew they would represent their college in the Nationals.

In fact, when the boxers entered the ring for their respective bouts during the qualifying round at Modesto, they had no official assurance that they would be sent to the finals should they win and thereby qualify.

In a college of this size, and one which has gained recognition in academic, as well as other, fields, it seems a definite step in the wrong direction when, even though they are qualified, its athletic squads must depend upon a basket full of red tape before they are given the full backing of the college—something they should have had all season long.

It must offer a great incentive to the individual participant to achieve greatness in his particular field when he knows full well that there are not more than a handful of supporters behind him.

And yet, when a team does reach the top in its sport and has finally received the blessings of the powers that be, people flock to its side as though they were blood relations.

In past seasons, the college has produced many high caliber athletic teams, but as yet, none of these squads has been treated as the champions they have proved themselves to be.

It seems ironic enough though, that following years of concentrated effort to establish the college under the grown up name of CITY COLLEGE the college is currently on the road to labeling itself as a comedy of errors—and during Public Schools Week yet.

Kiddies Learn The 'How' Of Birds And Bees

Floral Department Known Nationwide As Tops In Field

DAY and night and even Saturdays the Floriculture Department of City College is busy following the philosophy of the birds and bees, propagating plants and flowers, that is.

Days are mainly devoted to students in regular attendance, but not entirely, because many who are interested only in furthering their knowledge in the fields which they are already engaged also attend during the day sessions.

Evening and Saturday classes are held for full time workers in the floriculture field and others interested in the field as a hobby.

Many social groups in San Francisco avail themselves of the department and the week ends will find them grubbing industriously in the gardens of the East Campus.

At present there is but one greenhouse available to the many students, but plans for the future call for another, adjacent to the one on hand.

The space where the greenhouse will be built is not being wasted by any means. Right now, row after row of beautiful blossoms are being grown on the site. In effect, the future greenhouse will be built around the blossoms now growing.

Two of the many social groups meeting on the campus here to discuss their favorite subject, floriculture, are the San Francisco Braneh of the National Rose Society which meets once a month, and the National and California Herb Society which has a garden on the campus in which are grown medicinal and culinary herbs.

Divided into what is known as a Two-division Trade terminal course the classes here for regularly attending students lead either to placement in the industry, or students may go to obtain a four year degree in Ornamental Horticulture at California Polytechnic School.

Much more liberty is available to floriculture students than is readily available in other courses. The department recognizes the fact that abilities vary in individuals and each student is permitted to follow his own interests and abilities.

"Job opportunities in all branches of the trade are good," says Harry Nelson, instructor, "whether as a florist in a flower shop, an operator or manager in a greenhouse, retail and wholesale nursery practice, or garden maintenance."

"In fact," Nelson said, "the possibilities in civil service, whether it be local, State or Federal, may be classed as excellent."—P. M. Cramer

April Fool Kid Complains; Top-Notchers Extend Thanks

(Editor's Note: Letters to the editor may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman editorial office in Building 12. Deadlines are noon on Monday and Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld but the author must be known to the editor.)

• April Fool!

Editor, The Guardsman:

Your last issue of The Guardsman sure made a monkey out of me! I breezed through all the front page articles without a qualm and then received the shock of my life when I saw headlines proclaiming that all City College men students had to register for military training on this campus.

Great idea! Only I fell for it! I packed my little briefcase and hustled over to your editorial offices to get the real scoop. There a number of jokers (staff, maybe?) kidded me along until I could picture myself in an R.O.T.C. uniform parading the West Campus. That was too much!

I decided to consult the higher-ups about the situation. It was then that I discovered the date of the issue—April 1. I must say that I was relieved.

• Marriage of Figaro

Editor, The Guardsman:

As faculty adviser to the ticket committee for the Marriage of Figaro, I desire to express my appreciation of the cooperation and assistance we received from all those who helped us in this project.

The members of the committee—Lou Garavaglia, George Capanis, Money Hickman, Roy Barnett, Bob Hartman, Ken Brown, Jim Ramsey and Jack Deignan—all devoted much of their valuable time to this production. Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Morton, Miss Nourse, and Mr. Schoon of the faculty all helped materially and deserve our thanks.

To the many student organizations and their representatives who stood by us loyally I extend my heartfelt thanks and congratulations. I know that, with their help, we can put our next college production, Naughty Marietta, "over the top" in ticket sales and attendance.

• Party Time

Editor, The Guardsman:

We of the basketball team wish to express our most sincere appreciation for the banquet given us at the Veneto Restaurant Thursday, April 7, which was provided through funds appropriated by the Associated Student fund here at the college.

The success of the team can be largely contributed to the support rendered by the Associated Students. A team can do only its best, but with student support behind it, it can and does do better.

Again, may I say that the banquet was a very fitting climax to our season.

Baseball Nine Faces Cinnamon Bears Tomorrow; Hold Second Place In NCJCC

By Gene Van Dyke

Coach Bill Fischer's college nine resumes baseball play tomorrow when it faces the California Cinnamon Bears at Berkeley, starting at 10 a.m. Sunday the Rams will play the Jefferson's at Angel Island.

Stockton knocked the Rams out of a first place tie Saturday, April 2 while splitting a doubleheader 9-3 and 3-4. Stockton employed the bunt play in excess to catch the local collegiates napping. Although the Rams outslugged the Cubs 11-9 in the hitting department, three untimely errors added weight to the Cubs' nine run effort.

Ron Keifer turned in a five hit pitching performance in the seven inning nightcap to help down the Cubs 4-3. Keifer became shaky in the sixth and Bob McGovern was inserted.

Bob McGovern gained his opening hurling assignment against Menlo, Tuesday, April 5, and he turned it into a successful one by pitching eight hit ball leading the Rams to an 8-4 win. Tom Bournellis tripled home two runs and Lou Williams' two for three produced three runs batted in.

Lou Pisani led the Rams to a 19-7 win over Menlo Saturday, April 9 by scoring three runs, knocking in three tallies and hitting two for three, including a double. Rod Losberger got three hits.

Pitching records for first six games:

	W	L	IP	H	ER	BB	SO	AB
Keifer	3	0	19⅔	17	9	6	12	72
McGovern	1	0	10⅔	10	4	6	6	50
Jones	1	1	16⅔	9	7	5	16	64
Mooney	0	0	3	2	2	1	3	15

WIELDING A POTENT bat in the current NCJCC baseball chase is "Little" Lou Pisani, outfielder on the second place Rams.

Cindermen Take On NCJC Foes In Southern Sectionals At Salinas

By Walt Heil

Pointing for their first win, City College's small band of trackmen travel to Salinas for the southern sectionals of the Northern California Junior College Conference track meet tomorrow afternoon.

First trials begin at 1 p.m.

Over the last three week ends, the Rams were bowled over in every one of their sessions. On April 2, Stockton buried the locals 102½ to 33½ with little Yuba finishing last with 16½ points.

In a quadrangular meet with the Cal Frosh, San Mateo and Santa Rosa, the college wound up last, totaling 39½ markers. In a dual meet held in Santa Rosa, at night, on April 15, the Rams lost to the Cubs 75 to 58.

Although his squad has lost every meet on the schedule, Coach Grover Klemmer is highly pleased with the efforts of the 15 man traveling team.

Klemmer was especially happy over the efforts of Irv Beltrame, Owen Moore, and John Hurst, who are carrying the brunt of the load for the locals. Beltrame is yet to be defeated, and Hurst and Moore are running both the high and low hurdles, and the sprints.

WAA, Phi Epsilon Rho Sponsor Swim Show Today

Demonstrative swimming, sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association and Phi Epsilon Rho, women's honor society, is scheduled for 2 p.m. today at the YWCA, 620 Sutter Street.

Participating in aquatic exercises will be eight representatives from each of the following San Francisco high schools: Balboa, Mission, Commerce, Washington, Lincoln, Galileo, Polytechnic, Lowell and Girls' High.

A half-hour swim clinic for the purpose of criticising technique and stroking will be the afternoon's procedure.

Roy Burkhead, local mentor, will act as a judge.

Ram Netmen, Golfers Ready For Loop Tests

On the rebound after a brief respite from action, Harry Buttimer's net team resumes its NCJCC milling tomorrow against Monterey on the Golden Gate Park courts.

The Rams' best performance to date was a 7-0 rout of Hartnell in the conference opener, a few weeks back.

Coach Ralph Hillsman sends his linksmen to Harding Park to match shots with Modesto's golfers this afternoon with the tee-off at 2 o'clock. Tuesday the Rams took on the USF Dons in a return engagement on the same greensward. Earlier, they swamped the hilltoppers in a dual session, 23½-11½.

Boxers Win NCJCC Regionals; Garcia, Stern, Damas, Bender, Sueuga Qualify For Nationals

By Frank Monte

Sparkod by welterweight Roy Damas and heavyweight Frank Sueuga, the college boxing team annexed the Northern California Junior College crown at Modesto last Saturday, winning five of the eight bouts, qualifying the winners for the Nationals to be held at Pasadena, Wednesday, April 27.

Leu Garcia, Jerry Stern, Dean Bender, Damas and Sueuga will travel to Pasadena Tuesday, April 26, to represent the college and Northern California against the nation's best in the National Junior College Boxing Tournament, sponsored by Pasadena City College.

With five men out of the allotted eight in this region from City College, Roy Diederichsen's pugilists will probably form the strongest aggregation entered from any one college.

At the Modesto meet, Roy Damas stretched his kayo record to four out of five fights this season, knocking out John Ronnoni of Placer Junior College in the first thirty seconds of the match. Damas sent his opponent to the canvas at the opening bell for a nine count, and two punches later the referee stopped the fight with Ronnoni on his back.

The heavyweight clash was a battle of two powerful sluggers with Sueuga's power laden fists proving too much for Dick Burns of Hartnell College, who fell to the canvas three times. Sueuga was the victor.

Len Garcia, Ram 125 pounder, gave the out of town fans a fine display of his excellent boxing ability, slapping Harry Fujimoto of Modesto Junior College around at will, taking the decision.

135 pounder Jerry Stern kept both fists flying steadily against Charles Burnett of Modesto to gain a decision, while Dean Bender took the light heavyweight spot.

Early Signups For Intra Soccer, Volleyball Urged

By Bob Gonealves

A plea for early signups in intramural soccer and volleyball was issued this week by Director Tom Wilson. The deadline for soccer, which is being presented for the first time, will be Friday, April 29, while signups for volleyball and touch football will continue until Friday, May 6.

Free throw shooting, which is now in play, must be finished by Tuesday, May 17, to enable other sports to get under way, Wilson added.

Intramural basketball returned to the scene this week with the cutting of 14 teams from league play. Failure of these teams to appear for their games is the reason for this cut.

Competition will prove to be far keener than it has been for the past few weeks, because many of the remaining teams are still undefeated and will be fighting hard for the college cage championship.

Director Tom Wilson has stated that the present tournament should end within the next three weeks.

The standings at the end of the third week of play are as follows: In the American League the Cavaliers have five wins and no losses while the Perfection A.C. has four wins and no losses. River Rats and Vagabonds are leading the Pacific Coast League with five wins and no losses each.

In the National League the Loopsters and Rangers each have six straight wins. Balboa Alumni A.C. is in possession of the Bush League leadership.

Campus Tree Planting, Garden Show Fete Spring

Old California Theme Of Flower Shop Exhibit

Spectacular beauty and romanticism, which characterized California in earlier days, relives in exhibits of the Flower Shop and Horticulture Society, both representing the college in the Seventh Annual California Spring Garden Show in Oakland, April 26 through May 1, according to instructor John Herman.

Coinciding with the theme of this year's show—California—the Flower Shop exhibit utilizes a realistic 25 foot adobe wall, of plaster, as background for its floral exhibit.

In the archways of the wall hang reproduction in flowers of the old Mission bells. Against this setting, a central display of various floral arrangements occurs, John Lawrence, flower shop instructor, said.

The college Horticulture Society, in quest of its third consecutive first place prize, displays a naturalistic garden surrounding a peaceful lake.

Against a background of pine trees, and decorated with attractive rock, the lake, situated west of the Exposition Building, where the show takes place, is the setting for two large California Ceanothus, blue Blossoms, various California ferns, six inches to four feet in diameter, and many other native state plants. Water lilies are growing in the lake.

While in session, the show is open daily from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Nelson said.

Air Force Recruiting Drive Begins Monday

Eligible young men will have an opportunity to earn wings in the United States Air Force when that organization conducts a three day recruiting drive here beginning Monday, April 25.

Captain William A. Ham, Fourth Air Force Headquarters, Hamilton Field, California, will be in Assistant Dean Jack Brady's office, Building 2, through Wednesday, April 27, to interview and give mental examinations to those interested in the United States Air Force Pilot Training Program.

Student Double Parking Creates Major Problem

Double parking on Ocean Avenue in the vicinity of the college Student Store has become a major problem, Dean Edward Sandys said Tuesday.

Complaints from neighboring home owners have also been filed recently with the city's food and sanitary inspector citing instances of students disposing of lunch in a careless manner, Sandys explained.

These reports were forwarded to Superintendent of Schools Herbert C. Clish and in turn sent to President A. J. Cloud in an effort to remove this sore spot from the campus.

The resentment of many is exemplified by one who wrote that "the orange peels, apple cores, banana peels, milk cartons, and all kinds of filth 'is' more than I can stand."

"For students who are apt to be violators, we're giving sufficient warning that action will be taken to alleviate the trouble," Sandys warned.

Law enforcement facilities will be used on the students parking in that area if the warning is not heeded, for students must keep the property clean or expect punishment, he added.

Floriculture Department Completes Plans For National Arbor Day Ceremonies Here

National Arbor Day, Friday, April 29, will mark the beginning of a floriculture department plan to plant 200 native California trees and shrubs on the campus, instructor Harry Nelson said yesterday.

Brief ceremonies to be conducted on the slope east of Hurley Village will initiate the planting of the first half dozen trees.

Assistance for the project was obtained from the California Spring Blossom and Wildflower Association, and a number of nurserymen located in the Bay Area donated plants.

The Forestry Department of the University of California turned over sufficient seeds to triple the number of plants available for planting, said Nelson, who has led the floriculture department since its beginning in 1940.

April 27 Deadline Set For Debaters' Entry In Oratory Contest

First elimination contest for college debaters wishing to enter the seventh annual Hearst Newspapers' Tournament of Orators, is Wednesday, April 27, Michael Griffin, English instructor and debate team adviser, announced Tuesday.

Starting at 2 p.m., 19 entrants will submit their cases on Alexander Hamilton in Room 204 to a board of judges composed of President A. J. Cloud, Lloyd Luckmann, and Dean Edward Sandys. The winner selected at this meet will be eligible to represent the college at the city finals on Thursday, May 12.

Pacific Coast finals are to be held on Monday, May 16, Griffin pointed out, and National finals, offering prizes from $1,000 down, will be conducted in San Francisco on Thursday, May 19.

While debaters prepare for this contest, they are also studying for meets in the near future with teams from University of San Francisco, San Mateo Junior College, Marin Junior College, and University of California.

On Monday, April 18, the Dante Society was to oppose the college team in Building 19, but its representatives did not appear, and there was no one to judge the match scheduled with the University of San Francisco on Thursday, March 31.

Eight Restaurant Representatives Visit Southern California Hotels

After spending seven informative and enjoyable days touring Southern California hotels and restaurants, eight representatives from the Hotel and Restaurant Division arrived home last Friday.

Among the places visited were the Biltmore in Los Angeles, Hotel Lafayette at Long Beach, Hotel Miramar in Santa Barbara, Hodys' restaurant in Los Angeles, and Apple Valley in Victorville.

The eight students who made the trip were Bill Bryant, originally from Florida; Bill Mullins from New York; Mortimer Hall, Massachusetts; Thomas Adolphson, Oregon; Dick Beers, Honolulu; Ed Jung, Robert Smith, and Raphael Michilette from San Francisco.

Former Dean Edwin C. Brownie, now Personnel Coordinator of San Francisco Public Schools, and Hilda Watson, chairman of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, accompanied the "motorized" group.

AWS Hosts City High School Seniors At Traditional Tea In Students Lounge Thursday

Seniors from 20 public and private high schools of San Francisco will be guests of the Associated Women Students Thursday, April 28, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the student lounge, AWS president, Barbara McBride, recently announced.

Purpose of this semi-annual event is to honor these prospective women students. All future women students and Associated Women students are invited to attend, Miss McBride said.

Tea, coffee and cake will be the refreshments served to the guests of the Associated Women Students, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, declared.

Campus tours will be conducted from the Student Lounge every half hour, and guests will be shown through the various buildings by their hostess guides.

Officers of the AWS, who will serve as official hostesses, include Doris Dirito, Betty La Vasser, Teddy Deckert and Miss McBride.

While the campus tours are being conducted, arriving guests will be entertained in the lounge with refreshments and music, Miss McBride added.

Decorations, in honor of the visiting students, will be arranged by John Lawrence, Flower Shop instructor, and flowers for the occasion have been obtained by the AWS.

"Since the tea is held to honor all high school high senior women," Miss McBride said, "it is hoped that all AWS members will come."

Council Reorganizes Publications Board

In an attempt to amend the by-laws of the Associated Student constitution dealing with the Publications Board, the Student Council voted Thursday to reorganize the membership of the board as follows:

1. The Guardsman Editor, who is chairman.
2. Associated Student President.
3. An appointed student-at-large.

In proposing the compromise amendment, Councilman Jack Gallsdorfer failed to state how the student member was to be appointed.

The amendment as passed was a compromise after the original proposal by Gene Ellison was defeated because it would have placed two members of The Guardsman staff on the board.

The duty of the Publications Board is to protect the name of the college in printed and poster material.

According to some council members, the amendment will be ineffective because it fails to specify how the third member of the publications board is appointed.

The member-at-large of the Publications Board is to serve from the middle of one semester to the middle of the next.

Hawaiians Will Hold Sway At Club Dance This Friday

In an atmosphere of hula skirts, sarongs and leis, Beta Phi Beta will sponsor The Holiday Hula dance this Friday from 8 to 12 p.m. at the Aerial Rowing Club.

Bids are $1.80 per couple, Peter Perkins, fraternity president, said, with Russ Bennett and his orchestra providing music.

Hawaiian shirts and cotton dresses will be appropriate costume.

Heading the dance committee are Chairman Paul Ford, Perkins and Tagi Kitehner. Refreshments will be served to the "Hula" dancers.

"It is hoped that the South Seas effect will make this the best dance ever put on by the fraternity," Perkins added.

College Lauds Public School Week Tomorrow

City College will observe Public Schools Week with a meeting held tomorrow night at 7:30 in the student lounge, Assistant to the President Lloyd Luckmann, who also serves as Chairman of the Speakers' Committee for Public Schools Week, announced recently.

President A. J. Cloud will preside over the event which will feature Controller Oscar Anderson, who is to address the group.

In addition to the meeting, the college has contributed to Public Schools Week through the efforts of the students of Instructor William Eckert's Advertising Art Class, who designed the cover of the bulletin which announces the event.

Howard Play, Marietta Due Soon

Opera Workshop Student Joins SF Opera Chorus

Joan Welton, opera workshop student and alternate with Luba Shubin in the lead role of Naughty Marietta, withdrew from the cast yesterday when she was named a member of the San Francisco Opera Company Chorus.

The Opera Company's rehearsal schedule conflicted with that of the Naughty Marietta productions, slated for June 1 through 4.

Joan Anderson, whose vocal talent was discovered in voice classes last semester, and who played a principal role in last semester's production of The Man Who Came to Dinner, was named to alternate with Miss Shubin.

Directors Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler announced.

Miss Welton enrolled in the Opera Workshop when it was inaugurated here last fall, and she also sang in the concert presented in November.

Christopher Bean First Show On Schedule Here

The Late Christopher Bean, Sidney Howard's popular Broadway and London stage success, is campus bound.

Although the play will not start its six day run until Thursday, May 12, casting has been completed and the Little Theater Group is undergoing the first phase of production, Paul Ellison, English and drama instructor, revealed yesterday.

Set in New England, the comedy revolves about the Hagett family and their stay in a home once owned by Christopher Bean, a noted artist whose paintings have suddenly become extremely valuable.

"It is two hours of excellent entertainment with a surprise ending," Ellison said.

Because of a large tryout, a great deal of new talent has been revealed, and, consequently, this will be the first time on the stage for many of the cast.

The cast will include Rosalyn Mercer, Ilse Faltin, Gilbert Mitchell, Jeanne Zumwalt, Mary Ann Stuart, Jacqueline Apfel, Mary Cook, La Verne Benstrock, Robert Jones, Hewitt Kendall, Donald Landers, Arnold Solkov, William Zamora, David Irvone and Bill Hansen.

Tickets will be available at the college bank on or about the first of May.

Ringmen Leave Today For Pasadena In Try For National Boxing Championship

By Frank Monte

Coach Roy Diederichsen and his five national title seekers boarded a train at 8 o'clock this morning and headed south to compete against the nation's fistic talent in the National Junior College Boxing Tournament being held at Pasadena City College in Pasadena tomorrow through April 29.

Funds for the trip were voted at last Thursday's Council meeting.

Jerry Stern, Roy Damas, Frank Suenga, Len Garcia, and Dean Bender, who comprise the first group of City College pugilists ever to enter the event, qualified to represent this region and the college when they won the Northern California title for College crowns in their weights, April 16, at Modesto.

The five men, who probably represent the largest and strongest aggregation to enter the tourney from any one college, will meet their toughest competition in the likes of Pasadena City College, Compton College, and the team entered from the Louisiana region.

Suenga, hard fisted heavyweight, has five victories to one defeat this season, and with the lethal wallop that he carries in either hand could bring home a title. Last year Suenga fought to the finals in the Olympic Boxing Tryouts at Sacramento, but could not fight the final bout because of a broken thumb.

Damas, 145 pounder, the little man with the big punch, has won his four scraps this season by knockouts or technical knockouts. His left hook or savage right cross may send many of his rivals to the tourney to the canvas.

In the 135 class, Stern will give his opponents a new experience in ring tactics. Stern capitalizes on his solid right cross and keeps both hands pumping in his opponent's face for the whole three rounds. Tall and powerful, he has the advantage over most lightweights who have to look up at him and to him.

Garcia, who usually fights 130's, has his weight down to 125, and with his superior boxing ability and aptness to be where he is least expected, he will provide his foes with a good night's work.

Bender, light heavyweight, has three wins to one loss this season. Bender likes, to come up with his punches and hooks with either hand. Possessing a stiff right, he may put his enemy on his back at any time.

Friday Last Day To Have Pictures Taken For Soph King And Queen

Final deadline for Sophomore king and queen contestants to have pictures taken at the A. McMurray Studio, 1401 Van Ness Avenue, is Friday, April 29, at 4 p.m., Dale Butterfield, sophomore class president, announced yesterday.

Appointment must be made with the studio beforehand. Contestants must turn in their name, Associated Student card number and total number of accumulated units to Butterfield in The Guardsman office before making appointment. Candidates must have a minimum of 30 units to be eligible, Butterfield stated.

Vice-president Robert Loberg added pictures are being taken free of charge. Contestants will be told the type of sitting by the studio when they make an appointment.

The studio can accept no appointments after the April 29 date, Butterfield warned.

Students To View World's Largest Plane In Flight Overhead Monday

By Roy Pashil, Editor

Uncle Sam's Navy will bring its newest baby to town next week in order to give local college students a first hand look at the latest addition to its already enormous family.

Far from being a baby in size, but still in its infancy as far as tested airplanes go, the Navy's monstrous plane, the Lockheed "Constitution," will be flown over the campus next Monday morning, May 2, and, after touring the other colleges in the Bay Area, will be on display at Mills Field.

The Navy has extended an invitation to all interested City College students to go aboard the plane Monday afternoon at Mills Field and inspect the world's largest plane.

Designed to carry as many as 180 troops, the plane has a wingspread of 285 feet and is 150 feet long. A four engine job, it will be flown at 1,500 feet above the campus, thereby allowing students to obtain a birds-eye view of Lockheed's latest creation in the way of space filling airships.

Tentative plans to allow sufficient time for students to see the plane are at present being given consideration by college administrators.

Marin College To Entertain At Rally

Feature of the college hour rally this Friday, in the west campus auditorium, will be the College of Marin rally group, Lane Currie, Rally Commissioner, disclosed yesterday.

This appearance of the Marin unit will mark the first of a group of exchange rallies planned for this and future semesters.

Entertainment will include a group of popular singers known as the Ink Spots, plus a ten minute program by the United States Navy in a prelude to the Constitution's appearance above campus next Monday.

Call Out For Ushers At Heifetz Concert

Ushering positions are open for the evening appearance of Jascha Heifetz, noted violinist, on Wednesday, April 27, at the War Memorial Opera House.

Students desiring to take advantage of this opportunity should see Dean Margaret Dougherty in her office for further information.

Merchandising Students Apply Now

Students planning to enroll in the retail merchandising course for the fall semester are requested to consult with Virginia Gohn, business education instructor, before registration.

Applicants may make an appointment with Miss Gohn in Room 222 at 11 a.m. daily. Those interested are urged to inquire now and avoid confusion later, Miss Gohn said, since there is a possibility that students may enroll in the wrong classes.

Arbor Day Starts Tree Planting Here

National Arbor day, this Friday, will make the beginning of a program to plant 200 trees and shrubs native to California on the campus.

The program will be carried out by the Floriculture department in conjunction with the California Spring Blossom and Wildflower Association, Floriculture instructor Harry Nelson said recently.

The first few trees will be planted on the slope east of Hurley Village, immediately following a brief opening ceremony.

A great deal of assistance for the project was obtained from the California Spring Blossom and Wildflower Association from nurserymen in the Bay Area who donated plants and from the Forestry department of the University of California, which turned over a number of seeds that are expected to triple the amount available for planting.

Eviction Notices Sent To Local Males

Eviction notices effective through the summer vacation were sent to campus residents last week following administration decision, Fred MacFarland, campus housing director, announced yesterday.

Cancellation of a college summer session, originally instituted as an emergency measure to speed veteran education, necessitated the action, MacFarland indicated.

More than 100 student veterans, housed in Buildings 7, 8, and 13 are affected by the order.

Final deadline for Sophomore king and queen contestants to have pictures taken at the A. McMurray Studio, 1401 Van Ness Avenue, is Friday, April 29, at 1 p.m., Dale Butterfield, sophomore class president, announced yesterday.

Appointment must be made with the studio beforehand. Contestants must turn in their name, Associated Student card number and total number of accumulated units to Butterfield in the Counterman office before making appointment. Candidates must have a minimum of 30 units to be eligible, Butterfield stated.

Vice president Robert Lobero added pictures are being taken free of charge. Contestants will be told the type of sitting by the studio when they make an appointment.

The studio can accept no appointments after the April 29 date, Butterfield warned.

Arbor Day Starts Tree Planting Here

National Arbor day, this Friday, will make the beginning of a program to plant 200 trees and shrubs native to California on the campus.

The program will be carried out by the Floriculture department in conjunction with the California Spring Blossom and Wildflower Association, Floriculture instructor Harry Nelson said recently.

The first few trees will be planted on the slope east of Hurley Village, immediately following a brief opening ceremony.

A great deal of assistance for the project was obtained from the Californiae Spring Blossom and Wildflower Association, from nurserymen in the Bay Area who donated plants, and from the Forestry department of the University of California which turned over a number of seeds that are expected to triple the amount available for planting.

Eviction Notices Sent To Local Males

Eviction notices effective through the summer vacation were sent to campus residents last week following administration decision, Fred MacFarland, campus housing director, announced yesterday.

Cancellation of a college summer session, originally instituted as an emergency measure to speed veteran education, necessitated the action, MacFarland indicated.

More than 100 student veterans, housed in Buildings 7, 8, and 13 are affected by the order.

Christopher Bean First Show On Schedule Here

The Late Christopher Bean, Sidney Howard's popular Broadway and London stage success, is campus bound.

Although the play will not start its six day run until Thursday, May 12, casting has been completed and the Little Theater Group is undergoing the first phase of production, Paul Ellison, English and drama instructor, revealed yesterday.

Set in New England, the comedy revolves about the Hagett family and then stay in a home once owned by Christopher Bean, a noted artist whose paintings have suddenly become extremely valuable.

"It is two hours of excellent entertainment with a surprise ending," Ellison said.

Because of a large turnout a great deal of new talent has been revealed, and, consequently, this will be the first time on the stage for many of the cast.

The cast will include Rosalyn Mercer, Ilse Faltin, Gilbert Mitchell, Jeanne Cornwall, Mary Ann Stuart, Jacqueline Apfel, Mary Cook, La Verne Hemstreet, Robert Jones, Hewitt Kendall, Donald Landers, Arnold Solkov, William Zamora, David Irvone and Bill Hansen.

Tickets will be available at the college bank on or about the first of May.

Accent On The Affirmative

MARIN County's Centennial comes up this year with the thirty-second annual Mountain Play scheduled for May 22.

Starring a City College thespienne, Mary Ann Stewart, the original comedy was written especially for the event by Dan Totheroh.

PAST PERFORMANCES

"Miss Stewart," the prototype of sophisticated womanhood in her roles of Maggie Cutler in The Man Who Came To Dinner and Ruth Condomine in Blithe Spirit, City College Little Theater productions, will portray a gold-digging queen of '49er days.

The original and amusing plot includes a play within a play evolving from a lost company of road actors, with most of the action centered around Miss Stewart's role of the errant wife looking for gold—not in "them thar hills" but in "them thar men."

Barbara Andress, City College Collegienne, who amusingly portrayed Edith, the maid, in Blithe Spirit, will lend a comic interest in her role of Jane Carter, a Mormon wife.

Such gold mining days characters as Bret Harte and Comstock are included, portrayed by supporting players, Robert Bidleman, Jay Clark, Elmer Collett, Helen Elliot, and Walter Fell—acclaimed "well-known Bay Area thespians."

OPERA WORKSHOP 'GREAT'

Hailed as a testing ground for talented young vocalists, City College's newly innovated Opera Workshop program was a leading feature in the rise of Melva Niles, the star of San Francisco's Light Opera Company's 1949 season production of The Great Waltz.

Miss Niles left this college in June, 1946, having worked with Flossita Badger, Opera Workshop head, in productions on the campus. Auditioning in San Francisco, she was first "discovered" by Ed Lester. A rapid rise to fame has culminated in the female lead in the '49 season premiere production.

DESERVED PRAISE

All of this praise to the Opera Workshop program and the stars resulting from said program is deserved. Marjory M. Fisher of the San Francisco News recognized City College's opera schedule in a feature article of a recent issue.

It may be "old stuff" to readers of The Guardsman and devotees of opera, but the Opera Workshop program is a facet of the varied City College curriculum which has expanded to rate far-reaching attention.

Magazine Discloses Levels Of Culture

WHILE browsing around our local corner store for a penny's worth of candy and some colored bubble gum, we came across a rather obscure magazine, Life we think it was called. (Note to the printer: check that spelling.)

This magazine contained an article about the cultural levels of American life. For the benefit of those who could not read, there were pictures and a chart on which one could find one's own cultural classification.

There were four main classifications: Low brow, lower middle brow, upper middle brow, and high brow. It seems, at least according to this article, that if one listens to the juke box, reads comic books, enjoys western movies, wears comfortable clothes, or in any other way enjoys life, that one is a low brow. An uncultured lout, so to speak.

OTHER EXTREME

If on the other extreme, one is a devotee of classical and experimental music, "little" magazines, abstract art, and stuff like that there, then one is a high brow. A superior being, but superior.

We were somewhat chagrined (a high-brow word) to find that we checked right down the line as an A-number-one, first class low-brow. We find our cultural enjoyment in western movies (all right Louey, put down that gun), comic books, but only avant-garde comic books, and juke box jive.

As City College of San Francisco is an institution of—please excuse the expression—higher learning complete with hot and cold running instructors, we are interested to know the percentage of high-brow and low-brow students.

BIG CONTEST

In an effort to determine this we are starting a contest. For the best letter on the subject of high-brow vs. low-brow received by our letters to the Editor department we are offering two grand prizes.

First prize in this magnificent contest will be a season pass to the 1938 World's Fair on Treasure Island (only slightly used). Second prize will be an autographed picture of the Editor of The Guardsman or four cents in cold cash.

This contest will be over in about a fortnight or we may possibly extend it to a fifth night, so get to work now and tell us about your own private cultural activities. An invaluable book by Alex Zzyzl is entitled The Cultural Habits of The American Male or How To Roll A Natural Seven. As they say in Latin (abeunt studia in mores) which means baby needs a new pair of shoes.

Editorial: 'Ignorance Pays Off' Theme Prevails As Student Council Continues To Confuse Issues

IT will be some time before a more sublime display of incompetency is paraded before the assembled students, than that which was witnessed at last Thursday's student council meeting.

Of the fifteen voting members, elected to represent the students as a whole, fourteen took their jobs so seriously that they entered the chambers totally unprepared to discuss intelligently and vote upon an issue which was to be brought before them.

If the issue had been one which was sandwiched into the agenda at the last minute, the council's action might have been excusable.

But, in Thursday's case, the council was entirely to blame through their individual disinterest in the problem—a problem which they had been informed, at a previous meeting, would be discussed at the Thursday fiasco.

In fact, the issue involved a constitutional by-law change, and still not one member of the voting body, other than the member who proposed the amendment and President Pete Isola, was interested enough to investigate the situation on his own.

To our way of thinking, this is a gross state of misrepresentation on the part of the councilmen who have rapidly and conveniently forgotten why they were voted into office.

As a comedy act in vaudeville, the present council would go far. As a legislative body—h'm.

To date the present council has done more harm than good and, at the rate they are going, are a sure bet to set a new high in merry-go-round politics.

If the council employs the trial and error method and believes that one learns by making mistakes, then this group should emerge as the college's most astute group at semester's end.

Nevertheless, while the council is furthering its education, at the students' expense, we recommend that they add a touch of the original to the proceedings and make a new batch of errors rather than repeating the same time worn miscues.

Dorm Storm Finds Algy Ready For Tent Pitching

Barrack Dwellers To Be Displaced In Summer Months

By Arnold Solkov

EVER since the college moved into the west campus, in the fall of 1946, there have been three barracks open for resident students. However, with the new ruling stating that there will be no summer session this year, the line will be broken.

Those affected by the displacement will number approximately 100 men. Where they will go or what they will do is anybody's guess.

In the fall of '46, when the campus was expanded to include the area formerly occupied by Navy Waves, many of the features were kept intact.

Among these were the Navy barracks, originally four, now three. They are Buildings 7, 8 and the Waldorf, or Building 13. Building 6 also was used. They are designed to hold around 240 occupants.

In Buildings 7 and 8, living space is divided into locker and bunk room, a la Army barracks. However, the Waldorf, named in honor of that sumptuous New York hostelry, is separated into individual rooms, two resident-students to a cubicle.

Since the initial inundation of students on the west campus, education has made inroads into the dormitories. Building 6, long a retreat for campus residents, was recently converted to class rooms.

This major reduction of living space naturally decreased the amount of bunk room available. It also brought about the long waiting list and the winnowing of applicants.

Some student who finally made the grade said that what was needed to get the desired bed was a letter of recommendation from the Army chief-of-staff. That might be an exaggeration, but those who do want rooms must show reasons why, such as coming from out-of-state, from out of the country, or possible financial difficulties.

Financially speaking, residents on campus do spend less than those living in rooming houses. The cost for one month in the doorless quarters, barracks 7 and 8, is $11.50, while the cost for a room in the Waldorf is $12.50. Sheets and towels are supplied, as well as showers and other necessary conveniences.

Student proctors keep decorum and order in the dormitories. They issue the supply of linen, see that lights are turned off at the appropriate time, radios turned down so as not to create a nuisance. For this work, they are paid a nominal fee plus free rooms.

Fred C. Macfarland, manager of the barracks, said that all efforts will be made to locate adequate lodgings for those who live in inaccessible regions.

Many of the occupants are from the Philippines and Hawaii. There are a couple from Arabia and Palestine. It would be a bit of an inconvenience for them to return home for the short summer vacation.

Mechanical Brain Outlaws French-Cuffs

By Bob Lachmann

This is the machine of omnipotent wisdom. It knows all the answers, including correct usage of French-cuffs.

Every time a student puts a little black mark on an answer sheet during midterm period, he is subjecting himself to the cold, calculating justice of the IBM test correcting machine.

The face of Edward Ruegg, assistant in the testing department, cannot be seen in the picture here, because he is intensely busy correcting a recent batch of test papers.

When Ruegg presses the large, rectangular button to the left of the indicator dial, the machine will do its stuff. Electricity will flow through the blackmarks on the answer sheet in the slot to his right, and the results will be recorded on the dial in front of him.

Ruegg can run 400 to 500 papers an hour through the machine. Not only does the machine correct papers, but it counts the number of students who missed certain questions so that an instructor may analyze a test. It can divide an examination into parts and grade each part separately.

The testing department, under the direction of Harold Weeks, is especially busy when new students are taking entrance examinations. Results of tests are turned over to counsellors so that they may know how to place new students.

The giving of aptitude and vocational interest tests is another job of the testing department. Much time is spent in studying and analyzing tests for increased accuracy and efficiency. Now the department is preparing for next semester's entrance examinations.

Aptitude tests, entrance examinations, midterms, and finals make a busy time for the machine. As yet, it is not known whether the complicated mechanical creation of the 20th century can distinguish between them.

CONTEMPLATING THE MYSTERIES of that machine of Draculan dilemmas, student Edward Ruegg tinkers with the dials and knobs that determine the futures of City College students—test grades, that is.

Intra Race Nears End; Plan New League

Tilts Are Closer In Final Stages; Passamaquoddy Five Upset Leaders

By Bob Goncalves

Tenseness, hard fighting, and heartbreak will be the theme of games played at the men's gymnasium during this week, as the top teams of the leagues meet in the final rounds of play to determine the college intramural basketball championship.

Unlike the first few weeks of play, which consisted of high-scoring, one-sided games, the final weeks have brought forth many close and lower scoring tilts. Proof of this is recorded in the scores of games played early last week.

The Balboa Alumni A. C. edged out the Newman Club by a 44-42 score, after the Newman Club had heaten the Hotel and Restaurant team, 38 to 37.

The Balboa Pirates posted a 37-35 victory over the Bucket Brigaders.

In other games, the Basketeers beat the Bruins, 42-37, and the undefeated Passamaquoddy five upset the Loopsters, who were also undefeated, 31 to 30. The Loopsters played the game without the services of their star player, Larry Baldocchi.

Schwartz, Knapp Pace Intra Mermen

A college intramural swimming meet, held April 5 at Jefferson High pool, proved to be a hotly contested affair, although there was but a meager turnout.

Art Schwartz, college sprint star, was the competitive king-pin of the afternoon. He took part in all the events, which ranged from backstroke to relay, and came up with three first places.

Bob Knapp, 100 man for the Ram swimming team, also stole individual honors by placing first twice and second once. Steve Mayfield, Ron Cutler and Terry Ryan all finished in first and second spots.

Highlight of the day was the 50-yard breaststroke in which Jack Parson hooked up with Ryan and Ben Hurling in a sprint finish duel. Parson finished strong to edge his two competitors.

Mentor Hillsman Seeks Talent

Coach Ralph Hillsman announced today that he will begin an intramural league for prospective basketball players after the finish of the present cage league.

Students who are interested in playing basketball next semester are urged to compete in this tournament, which is being held for the purpose of finding new men for the coming casaba season.

Ram Harriers Engage In Triangular Clash

Santa Rosa Junior College and City College combine today to take on the Stanford University Frosh thinclads at 3:30 p.m. on the Stanford oval.

The test was added recently by Track Coach Grover Klemmer after he was forced, from lack of funds, to cut his traveling squad to ten men and cancel the Cal Poly and National Junior College Meets.

Santa Rosa, who previously defeated the local runners, 75 to 58, will be called on to carry most of the load if a win is in the offing. They line up as one of the toughest teams in their division and while they do not boast many stars, they do have depth and can usually be counted on for a couple of places.

For the Rams, Owen Moore, John Hurst and Irwin Beltrame will be counted on to carry the bulk of the load. Beltrame, in the sprints, and Moore, in the 440 yard dash, are undefeated thus far in league meets. They have proved themselves against the Bear frosh, St. Mary's and Santa

Fischermen Edge Cal Frosh, Lose 6 To 5 Decision To Gael Varsity

By Gene Van Dyke

Ron Keifer had a five-hit pitching show practically packaged when he faltered momentarily in the last of the eighth and balked across a run that issued St. Mary's a 6-5 decision over the college nine at Moraga Wednesday. Tuesday, the Rams knocked off the Cal Freshmen, 9-7.

The stocky Ram righthander who has a three and zero record in the NCJCC, walked Ceasar Candiotti to open the eighth. Dwayne Kling singled Candiotti along to second. Gael hurler Carroll Canfield grounded out from short to first to advance the runners a base. Will McLaughlin hounced out short to first for the second out and it appeared for a moment Keifer would escape the stanza untouched.

But then came his fateful balk. Keifer challenged plate umpire Ray White's decision profusely, but to no avail.

City College picked up four of their runs off Jack Rial in the second. Five successive blows, two of them triples by John Burkhead and Neil Decker, punched aeross Jack Bukowatz, Chris Makras and Keifer, all of whom gained base on singles.

"Hitting pitcher" Keifer rapped out two for four, while catch Burkhead collected three for four and two RBI's.

Mills College Unit To Stage Revue

Demonstrative dancing by the Mills College Dance Group is scheduled for presentation Thursday, April 28, at 10 a.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association and Women's Physical Education department of this college, the dance group have extended invitations to the music and drama departments. According to Gloria Swiecgood, women's physical education instructor, all students are invited to attend the dance demonstration.

Netmen Await Two Tourneys In May

With nothing but a "makeup" engagement with Stockton remaining to be settled on their regular slate, Coach Harry Buttimer and his tennis Rams are pointing toward post-campaign tournaments which are set for next month.

Sporting a not-too-impressive record of one win and two setbacks going into last Saturday's net duel with Monterey, the locals hope to salvage some of their prestige in the NCJC affair to be held at Menlo in May.

Later Buttimer will send at least four of his best to the national junior college championships in Modesto.

The Rams thumped Hartnell in their only triumph thus far with their twin losses coming from highly rated Modesto and San Mateo. A previous match with Stockton, postponed by inclement weather, is to be played as soon as arrangements are agreed upon.

Placement Service Offers Summer Jobs

Working in conjunction with the college's business department, the placement service is selecting and referring transportation majors to the various airlines for summer work as reservation clerks and cargohandlers.

When selected by the airlines, these transportation majors will be trained for reservation clerks or cargo handlers in the various airline centers in the United States.

Many good summer jobs are open to qualified applicants, it was revealed by placement director Joseph Amori.

Among the diverse types of workers needed are those students interested in engineering, nature, guidance, counseling, and forest preservation.

Qualified applicants are also needed to fill positions in a 1700-acre boys' camp, located 55 miles from San Francisco.

There is also a need for students familiar with crafts, kitchen work, or all-around handy work.

Friday Deadline Date For Mardi Gras Booth

Clubs participating in the outdoor festival of the Friday, May 27, Mardi Gras must enter petitions for booths and descriptions of parade floats by noon Friday, April 29, Harry Williams, AMS president, revealed yesterday.

Williams emphasized that it is essential that clubs meet this deadline so that plans to make this west campus celebration the biggest in the college's history will materialize.

Deadline for pictures of candidates for a Mardi Gras king and queen is Wednesday, May 3. Candidates are not required to have any club affiliations, but must possess an Associated Student card, Williams pointed out.

Counsellors Meet To Discuss Fate Of Intelligence Tests Thursday

Continuance of group intelligence tests in public schools will be discussed at 8 p.m., Thursday, April 28, when Harold Weeks, research and testing director here, meets with a group of leading educators at Galileo High School, to weigh the question in a panel meeting.

The panel, brought together through joint sponsorship of the Northern California Guidance Association and Head Counsellors' Association of the San Francisco School District, does not claim power to act, but their findings are invaluable in helping establish future policy of the school department.

All persons interested in guidance are invited to attend and participate in the discussion.

Educators comprising the panel group include: Chairman, John L. Roberts, Coordinator of Child Welfare, S. F. Public Schools; Dr. Merle H. Elliott, Director of Research, Oakland Public Schools; Harold Weeks, Director of Research and Testing, City College; Dr. James B. Enochs, Associate Professor of Psychology, S. F. Panel discussions, organized by the Northern California Guidance Association and S. F. School District, are expected to continue on their present monthly schedule.

Round 'n About

SORORITY rush season, more commonly known as Hell Week, is over, so here's the latest. As of Friday night, April 22, when the gal pledges turned in their hats, pins, and demerit cards, "hell" froze over and the traditional week of bad time giving was complete.

Just to mention a few names, Alpha Lambda Chi's new members are Carol Thomas, Josephine McCarthy, Ruby Connolly, Jean Roberts, Kay Risdon, Marlene Greenblat, Mary Brownrigg, Lorraine Carberry, and Barbara Goodwin.

Theta Tau announces new members Pat Kelly, Peggy Rutter, Shirley Wentzel, Helen Smirnoff, Virginia Griffin, Carolyn Brett, Pat Lanthaeaume, and Nadia Labbe.

Taken into the ranks of Phi Beta Rho are Beverly Freide, Sunny Hadley, Donna Hardy, Doris Pappas, Phyllis Sowder, Fran Pierce, Maureen Stewart, Carol Tindell, and Marilyn Chance.

On their way to activity in Zeta Chi are Rose Mary Seaman, Pat Patterson, Virginia Papys, Joan Marinda, Kit Sornberger, Sharon Hoskins, and Karla-Jo Hennington.

Detal Psi, which held its mock initiation on the week end of the 23rd, pledged Gladys Andreas, Pat Flynn, Joann Knight, Marilyn Stout, Barbara Walker, Doreen Mannion, Rita Pitts, Joyce Tizzo, Anita O'Connor, Bevelooree Olinsky, Nannette Burket, Marie Ahern, Francis Silvas, Loren Yearsley, Regina Geany, June Welch, Jessie Taylor, Dorothy La Rocca, and Janett Cirenelle.

Tau Chi Sigma announces the loss of Don MacKenzie to the outfit, leaving college to accept a position in Seattle. A going away party for MacKenzie was given Saturday, April 23, at the home of Dianne Alexander, local Kappa Phi.

Guest Lecturers Highlight Classes For Men In Blue

Three new names are being added to the campus police roster of guest lecturers as law-enforcement instructor Fred Fitzgerald continues his policy of offering first hand experience to the students.

James Minah, fingerprint expert with the Sixth Army at the Presidio, has been granted a temporary teaching credential and is now instructing criminology classes each Tuesday and Thursday morning.

Thomas Hunter, Senior Modus Operandi Technician with the State Division of Identification and Investigation, will speak today on methods of police operation.

Thursday, April 28, Lieutenant George Hippely, Director of the Bureau of Criminal Information with the San Francisco Police Department, will describe the police records system.

"The value of this type of instruction may be seen in the fact that City College law-enforcement students are qualifying themselves for positions throughout the state," Fitzgerald added.

Matthew O'Conner was appointed to the State Bureau of Narcotics in February.

Dean Davenport and Morris Hazen both qualified for the job of Deputy Sheriff of Alameda County.

Scores of others have passed Civil Service examinations for the Richmond and San Mateo Police Departments.

Shiny Pins Await Sorority Pledges As Six Groups Complete Hell Week

The Tau Chi's are still looking for a place to hold their long delayed informal initiation—how about the campus fountain?

Plans for a picnic at Adobe Creek during May were discussed during a recent meeting of Newman Club. After business was taken care of, the group was shown movies of the S.-Manhattan basketball game.

Lana Lindgrens acted as hostess last night to Le Cercle Francais, when the club met at her home at 150 Dolores Street, Apartment 3; no phone number given!

Next meeting of Masonic Club will be this Friday, April 29 in Building 4-A. All members are requested to attend.

For those who know, or don't know, Stan Kenton's All-Stars are now jumpin' and boppin' at the Barbary Coast Club in the International Settlement—he goes to college too!

College Floral Display Entered In Garden Show

The Seventeenth Annual California Spring Garden Show opens in Oakland today from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., with City College entries from the Flower Shop and the Horticulture Society billed as strong contenders for first prize honors.

The Flower Shop has high hopes for its exhibit of a realistic 25 foot adobe wall, with floral reproduction of mission bells in each archway, as background for its more elaborate central display.

The Horticulture Society, on the other hand, exhibits a naturalistic garden of California vegetation surrounding a lake with a background of Pine trees.

New Debate Team To Faces U.S.F. Today

Joe Schwab and Irwin Phillips, the college's new first team debaters, meet a team from University of San Francisco today at 1:30 p.m. in Building 19, west campus, Michael Griffin, debate team adviser, announced Thursday.

Subject of the debate, which is open to all students, is the currently controversial topic, "Resolved, That the Federal Government shall provide a system of medical care to all citizens at public expense."

Phillips and Schwab recently won the position of first team debaters from Andy Fergari and John Mix in a contest over the question of Federal aid to tax-supported schools.

While preparing their cases for today's match with the Dons, these debaters have also worked on speeches for the first elimination contests of the Hearst Newspapers' Oratorical Tournament.

Although 19 were to compete in the first eliminations, several have dropped out, leaving 10 entrants, Griffin said. They are as follows: Corinne Lambert, presiding; Rosalind Mincer, Armond Magid, James Anderson, Marcella Lewis, Charles de Witt, Jay Stovall, Mix, Schwab, and Phillips.

Marin Stages Rally Here Today

Latest Reports From Nationals Posted Here

Blow by blow coverage of the National Junior College Boxing Championships at Pasadena will be posted in the windows of The Guardsman editorial office.

Frank Monte, Guardsman, representative, reported late yesterday afternoon from the Southland that complete results will be available for publication in next Tuesday's issue.

Monte further said that the City College squad is co-favorite to win the title along with Pasadena and Compton colleges.

Today, Last Day For King-Queen Pictures

Candidates who wish to enter the Sophomore King and Queen contest were reminded yesterday by Dale Butterfield, Sophomore president, that applications must be turned in and pictures taken by 4 p.m. today.

Butterfield stated that there is still time for contestants to turn in their Associated Student card number, name, and total number of accumulated units (which must equal 30) to him in The Guardsman office.

No pictures will be taken by the studio after the 4 p.m. deadline, he warned.

Any contestant who does not turn in the required information before having his picture taken will be disqualified, Robert Loberg, Sophomore vice-president, added.

Pictures will be taken free of charge at the A. McMurray Studio at 1401 Van Ness Avenue up to the 4 p.m. deadline today, Loberty emphasized.

All are asked to participate in the royal event. Elections will be held Wednesday and Thursday, May 11 and 12, in the student lounge, but no campaigning will be allowed until 9 a.m. on Monday, May 9. All posters, cost not to exceed $15, must be approved by the Publication Board chairman in The Guardsman office, Butterfield said.

Quartet, Quiz Show, Navy Program, Featured Events

Highlight of the college hour rally today in the auditorium at 10:40 a.m. will be the College of Marin rally group with a well rounded program of entertainment, Rally Commissioner Lane Currie, said yesterday.

Featured in the program will be a quartet from Marin, known as the Ink Spots, who will be accompanied by the 12 piece orchestra of Tom Chesnut which will also play a few popular and jazz selections. Tenor vocalist Pete Marcopolous will sing a few numbers with the accompaniment of the band.

Added attraction on the large program will be Dave Ford, announcer on radio station KTIM, The Voice of Marin, who will present his regular radio show entitled The Mental Wizard, an audience participation show.

Also included in the rally is a ten minute program sponsored by the United States Navy, which is a preview to the Navy's Lockheed "Constitution" arrival over the campus on Monday.

The Navy's new training program will be explained to interested students attending the rally and a talk on the "Constitution" will also be included in the program.

Tree Planting Highlights Arbor Day Ceremony

DEPICTING THE SCENE which will take place here this afternoon in mass production during Arbor Day ceremonies are three Floriculture Department students, left to right, Bill Irvine, Diane Macario and Henry Curlis.

Brief Arbor day ceremonies at 1 p.m. today will herald the planting of the first three of a projected series of 200 plants native to California, floriculture instructor Harry Nelson announced yesterday.

Present at the ceremonies, to be held just east of Hurley Village, will be President Archibald J. Cloud, who will be a guest speaker; Dr. J. Paul Mohr, who will also speak; Dean Margaret Dougherty, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar; Lloyd Luckmann, and numerous other members of the college's administration and faculty.

Prunus ilicifalia, castanopsis chrysophylla, and libocedrus decurrens, and the botanical terms for the initial three plants. In the same order they read: Catalina cherry, giant chinquapin, and incense cedar.

The Forestry department of the University of California turned over a number of seeds that are expected to triple the amount for planting.

Assistance for the project was also obtained from the California Spring Blossom and Wildflower Association and from various nurserymen throughout the Bay Area.

Crowd Expected At Mills Field To Board, Inspect Constitution

Going along with its program "to acquaint the public with their Navy," the Navy yesterday issued a blanket invitation to City College students to go aboard its giant Constitution at Mills Field from 2 to 4 p.m., Monday, May 2.

Students unable to reach Mills Field will get a glimpse of the Constitution around 11:30 a.m. Monday, when the plane will fly overhead and circle the campus. Aboard the plane will be Dean Edward Sandys and Guardsman Editor Roy Pasini from the college.

As a means of providing as much transportation as possible for anyone interested in the Mills Field trek, a car caravan will form on campus at 2:15 p.m. Monday, according to a statement from Associated Student President Pete Isola.

Because of previously scheduled midterm examinations, classes Monday afternoon will not be dismissed, President A. J. Cloud announced.

At the same time he urged students to take advantage of the opportunity to inspect the world's largest cargo plane, and indicated that plans may provide for classes to view the plane above campus.

Because, as this issue of The Guardsman goes to press, plans are still in the tentative stage, Isola added that final arrangements for the college's participation in this event will be revealed at today's rally.

The appearance of the Constitution serves as a climax to the Navy's get-acquainted plan which began when editors of California colleges were flown to Pensacola, Florida last February for a first-hand look at the Naval Air Force training program.

A Navy spokesman will speak at this morning's rally, giving attending students background material on the Constitution as well as the Navy's training program.

Guardsman Again Wins Top Honors

The Guardsman swept top honors for the fourteenth time out of its 16 semesters of membership with the Associated Collegiate Press in a late critical analysis by judges, awarding it the All-American Honor award for the fall semester 1948 volume.

This is the tenth straight semester The Guardsman has been named in the All-American classification.

The vital, timely and informative organ achieved its honor through the staff supervision of editor-in-chief, Herbert M. Levy; executive editor, Jack Hulse; managing editor, Herb Bishop, and staff editors, Bill Franklin, Dale Butterfield, and Roy Pasini. It was rated in the four-year college, two-and-three time weekly newspapers.

A semestrally rating is given to each newspaper by ACP, a nation-wide association of college newspapers, with headquarters at the school of journalism in the University of Minnesota. The judges evaluate the complete semester file of each college's publication, then assign a rating.

Judges are newspaper men and women who consider news importance, news writing, and editing, feature articles, editorials, sports, headlines, makeup, and typography.

Members under the editors who helped keep The Guardsman on this high journalistic level are news editor, Roy Pasini; assistant, Arnold Sokow; feature, Ed Roper; assistant, Nancy Loughlin; sports editor, Larry Baldocchi; assistant, Walt Roessing, and business manager, Ken Brown.

Special approval was noted of the present horizontal type makeup instituted in the January 25 issue by Editor Levy.

Flower Shop Cops First Place In Garden Show; Horticulture Second

First place honors in the Seventeenth Annual California Spring Garden Show went to City College's Flower Shop entry, judges decided Tuesday.

The college furthered their achievements, as the Horticulture Society walked off with second place laurels, marking the third consecutive year local entries have taken top honors in the annual affair.

A citation, given by the Garden Show designer, was presented to the Flower Shop because of their blue ribbon winning Mission floral display. This marked the first time in the seventeen-year history of the show that such a citation was given.

Making the local victory possible was John Lawrence, flower shop director, who brought three tons of adobe brick from his Walnut Creek farm to help in the construction of the floral display.

In addition, Lawrence designed a plastic substitute adobe brick to complete the Mission floral idea.

Pre-Registration Rush Swamps Counsellors

With approximately 4000 students to be pre-registered by the new number system for next semester, an average of over 100 students a day are receiving their numbers, Coordinator of Counselling F. Grant Marsh reported yesterday.

In the first week of issuing numbers, the counselling office in Building 3 has approved more than 750 programs.

Counsellors report an appointment schedule of two weeks in advance, and urge all students to make early appointments to secure their registration numbers as soon as possible.

Registration procedure of the Fall semester will have numbers one to 2300 register the first day, and 2301 to 4100 the second day.

Vet Counselling Bids Farewell To Campus

This is the last semester that the veterans' counselling service, located on the second floor of Building ... will be maintained at City College, T. F. Humiston of that department announced recently.

The job of the counselling service is to help the veteran choose the type of work he is best fitted for. "Any veteran who desires this service should make an appointment before the end of the semester as we are going to consolidate with the main branch at Galileo High School," Humiston said.

The City College branch was opened two years ago as a convenience to student veterans.

Cast Changes Announced Here For Naughty Marietta Opera Production

Cast selections for Naughty Marietta, scheduled for June 1 through June 4 production here, underwent some change this week, when Harry Williams was shifted to alternate in the role of Etienne, and Phil Plansky was named lead alternate with Bob Sherratt.

This change in casting, Director Flossita Badger said, was due to the withdrawal of Palmer Cramer from the Etienne role, and the resultant rearrangement for best vocal suitability.

The part of Lieutenant Governor, played by Jackson Barrows, has tentatively been changed to include Tony Cuevas, who will alternate with Barrows in this character role.

Production of the Victor Herbert opera marks the fourth event in which faculty and student committees, representing in large part application of departmental curriculum, work together in all production phases other than actual direction, coaching, and staging.

George Capanis again heads the student production staff, with Reg Porter, Faculty Association president, again as faculty manager. Maurice Power will direct ticket sales.

This procedure was inaugurated for last year's The Vagabond King, and continued for College Daze, last fall's faculty show, and Marriage of Figaro.

Opera Star Finds Mysterious Bouquet

Pretty Regina Warchot, affectionately known as the "Lost Lady Mary" through her excellent portrayal here of that part in The Vagabond King, received a large bouquet of flowers mysteriously left for her in the orchestra pit during the performance of Marriage of Figaro.

The card was addressed, "To Lost Lady Mary from past and present collegiates." Unable to ascertain identity of the gift bearers, Miss Warchot has extended a cordial "thank you" through The Guardsman to her bashful admirers.

Miss Warchot, although graduated from the college last June, returned to play in the violin section of the orchestra during the Figaro performances. Note to flower courting bon vivants: Miss Warchot is expected in the orchestra pit for Naughty Marietta June 1 through June 4.

REGINA WARCHOT, former student, extends "merci" to unknown admirers.

Club Members Prepare To Sharpen Wits In Scholarship Competition

Passage of a scholarship competition for the various clubs on the campus was completed by the Student Council Tuesday.

The measure, introduced by Councilman Jack Gallisdorfer, provides that any club except a scholastic honor society which attains the highest grade point average for the semester shall have its name engraved on a plaque awarded by the Associated Students.

The grade point averages will be compiled by the registrar's office, and can not be used for any purpose except in awarding the winner of the competition. Individual grades will not be revealed.

The competition is under the supervision of the Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society.

Accent On The Affirmative

(Today's column was written by Walt Heil)

LATE last December, while San Franciscans were shivering in their topcoats from icy Arctic blasts, big bow-tied Arthur C. Jenkins began a survey of the city's transportation problems as consulting engineer.

It cost the city a neat little $20,000 to finance the survey for four months, it was reported; and last week bespectacled engineer Jenkins came up with an eight-point program designed to save San Francisco a lot more than that.

JENKINS' EIGHT-POINT PLAN

Among the eight points advised by Jenkins were the abandonment of the cable cars, fewer buses, and more streamlined trolleys, and a nickel run on Market Street to Twin Peaks. Jenkins claimed that his program would save the city two-and-a-half million dollars a year.

The number one item on the survey, however, concerned the inner workings of the Muni Railway. Jenkins recommends drastic changes in the Public Utilities' management, policies, services, and facilities.

A general manager, responsible to a three-man commission, would have full control over the railway. This would eliminate overlapping and provide a smooth functioning body to govern the line.

The railway could then be run as a big business without having certain unqualified persons in charge. Jenkins also recommended freedom from other city agencies and their unending red tape. The road would run its own purchasing, legal, personnel, and accounting department.

OF LOCAL INTEREST

If the program goes into effect, City College may be blessed with better service on the K line and 36 shuttle bus, both of which would make harried students happy.

The Public Utilities Commission would be removed from the transit setup in the event the program is adopted by the city fathers, with the three-man commission in control. The commission would be appointed by the mayor and each member would receive a salary of $200 a month.

As mentioned above, the present condition of the railway is the result of overlapping, unqualified persons in high places, and a series of inconsistencies.

Should the sweeping program go into effect, big Art Jenkins can take full credit as the man who helped San Francisco pull out of its transportation rut.

Art Of Committing Faux Pas Revealed

THE alert readers of this column have requested another essay on the finer points of manners as described in Mrs. Oliver Harriman's valuable book, Etiquette, A Modern Guide To The Best Social Form.

In our exclusive set, nobody but people, this book is considered essential. Surprising as it may seem, there are a few students who still do not know which faux pas to use at a formal dinner. Hence, a few more tips from the inimitable Mrs. Harriman.

Mrs. H. considers it a great lark to struggle along without servants for a day or two, and she devotes one full chapter to the best method of announcing the President of the United States when he comes to dinner. This should give one some idea of the universal appeal of this book.

RED VELVET CARPET

It is no longer necessary, Mrs. Harriman tells us, to have an awning-covered red velvet carpet spread over the sidewalk in front of the town house. This is a blow, we realize, but henceforth we must dispense with the red velvet carpet.

In the chapter on formal dinners, Mrs. H. tells us that, in town, a butler opens the front door for arriving guests, but in the country there are generally two men on duty at the street entrance. She fails to explain why—possibly country doors are heavier than city doors. Now we don't want to catch any local students opening their own front doors—this is simply not done.

FORMAL ENTRANCE

In entering the drawing room, Mrs. Harriman goes on, a wife always precedes her husband. If the butler at the door recognizes the guest, he announces the wife's name first, then her husband's. Otherwise he asks, "What name please?" Either husband or wife answers, "Mr. and Mrs. Throckmorton." Then the butler steps inside the room and says softly and distinctly, "Mr. and Mrs. Throckmorton."

Now this is all well and good, but it is not explained what to do if one's name is Smith or Jones. If any student knows the answer to this question of etiquette, please write in and tell us.

On the interesting subject of finger bowls, Mrs. Harriman has this to say. The finger bowl should be less than half filled with cold water, and there is often a sprig of rose geranium in it. A slice of lemon is absolutely taboo. How about a large dash of Scotch?

For further information on the subject of servant management and other esoteric information, a thorough reading of this book is recommended.

(Editor's Note: After re-reading his column of last Tuesday, Brennan has decided to enter the contest on the subject of the high brow and low brow element on campus. At present he is touring the college in an effort to pick up enough information on this perplexing problem to enable him to pen a prize-winning letter. We hear he's after the second prize of four cents in cold cash.)

Editorial: College Offers Understanding And Education, Makes Public School Week Year-Round

(Former editor Herb Levy returns to the editorial page today in a guest role. Levy is currently a member of the Daily Californian staff.)

GUEST writing on the editorial page offers an excellent opportunity for observation of the college, in that such observation can be made from an objective viewpoint. The college still seems to be passing through a period of readjustment that was so prevalent during the first three post-war years.

Integrating observation of the college and its participation in Public Schools Week, that ends today, the college offers a growing monument to the citizens of San Francisco.

The post-war years, and the troubled world situation that hangs over this readjustment period, bring to the citizenry an institution that is serving the needs of students, who are searching for understanding and education.

City College, limited because of circumstances, must also limit in scope the amount of education it can offer. However, the degree of understanding in human relations that this college offers is not abridged.

Compared with other area college and universities, City College, by its mere cosmopolitan nature, is in the position to guide and aid students in their desire for knowledge.

THOUGH Public Schools Week is set in the terms of days, the college gives a-year-round interpretation of the meaning of Public Schools Week. The end result is the release of City College students into the social and business structure of the city. Whether they succeed in becoming useful citizens depends in great part on the training they have received while at the college.

It is apparent that continual public schools week is in operation here by the citizens' scrutiny of the students who attend and who are graduated from City College.

Because of success in its tremendous task of post-war adjustment, City College has reached a high level of city-wide recognition. It has faced squarely the challenge given it by the on-rush of increased enrollment.

The college has taken the thirsting students and has turned them back to society as educated citizens with an understanding in human relations so necessary in these unsettled days.

Public Schools Week ends today only in name; City College permeates the spirit of public education through the years.

City College Hill Dubbed No. 29 By S.F. News

'Brains' Attempt To Solve Local Uphill Workout

By Bill Thomas

WHEN San Francisco was officially "mapped" as the city of 40 hills by the San Francisco News recently, City College came out as Hill No. 29.

For many years the students have been "taking" the hill daily and, it will be reassuring to these athletic intellects to know that they aren't climbing just any old hill, but more specifically—City College Hill, or Hill 29.

"Why did they build it on a hill?"

Ever since the day when the Board of Education decided on the site for City College of San Francisco and architect Tim Pflueger designed the first building the question, "Why did they build it on a hill?" has been a major topic at the college.

At 8 a.m. January 20, 1938 four students and a Guardsman reporter climbed a muddy slope and watched as workmen began excavating the foundation of the main building.

Reporter Dick Simpers, currently on the Call-Bulletin staff, described the location as the "windy hill," a name which it has always lived up to.

Perhaps it was poetic justice that almost two years later the dedication ceremonies were held at the gymnasiums and members of the Board of Education were required to climb the steep hill to the main building.

Since then many generations of students, climbing up the long steep slopes, have devised many ways of ending their toil.

In 1943 The Guardsman published plans for a ski lift running from the men's gymnasium to the main building. The plan never materialized however, and the idea was forgotten.

Later, the interest of the hill-climbers was transferred to cable cars. It was suggested that a cable car run up and down the hill to the gym; that the college purchase the remaining equipment of the defunct Clay Street line. But the Emporium hoisted the last car on to its roof with nary an apology to the hill-climbers.

Another idea in the minds of some was to construct a tunnel underneath the main building. This would save students climbing up and around the hill to reach the west campus. Junior scientists pointed out this tunnel would make an ideal shelter in case of an atomic war.

However, ideas come and ideas go, and the hillclimbers still sweat up the long trails muttering, "Why did they build it on a hill?"—and nobody answers them.

"And I Play The Piano, Too"

Local Band-Within-A-Band Lends Instrumental Talent To College

By Dick Williamson

THE young man to the left reaching for his tenor saxophone and clarinet is Al Parry, member of the college orchestra and band manager, who is described by the orchestra's head man, Meyer M. Cahn, as the "perfect music major student."

Besides being proficient in three instruments, Parry has taken nearly every music course offered at the college, from appreciation to zither. He likes the clarinet much better than the latter, however.

The only reason the aspiring Benny Goodman started playing this instrument, though, was his being drafted into the position on a junior high school band. Since his graduation from Mission High, Parry has also learned to play the sax, which goes with the clarinet, he explained.

". . . And I play the piano, too," he said.

What does Parry plan to do with his abundance of musical knowledge? Not start a college of musical knowledge, but teach it to others, just the same. In his own words, his ambition is "to travel from town to town with a small dance band before I start teaching." Not that he has to leave a town after playing, however.

San Francisco State College is where this band-within-a-band expects to get his teacher's credentials.

As if playing three instruments and taking all music courses aren't enough, Al has started a dance band made up of about twelve of Cahn's proteges who play at various social functions.

Parry has high regard for the college musicians, and he says he thinks "they are the best the Rams have had so far." . . . And not just because he plays with them, either. The 35 or 40 in the band really are good, locals claim.

When asked what type of music he liked best, he shouted over the din of the band tuning up, "Well, popular, I guess. But it's all music to me!"

Rams-Hartnell In Doubleheader At Marchbank Today; Drop Slugfest To Jeffersons, 13 To 7

Mittmen Set New Conference Record By Leaving 44 Baserunners Stranded

By Gene Van Dyke

City College's Rams open the second half of their NCJC Conference season tomorrow when they meet Hartnell in a double-header at Marchbank Field in Daly City at 1:30 p.m.

Coach Jess Regli's Hartnell squad dropped a double bill to league leading San Mateo yesteday. They trounced a weak Monterey Peninsula nine earlier in the season 27-0 and 5-0, while Bill Fischer's club decisioned the Lobos 10-3 and 4-0.

Salinas has an efficient outfield, containing Bill Casalegno in left, Bill Cooke in center and Leo Cooke in right. Catchers John Alsop and Wally Wong will alternate behind the plate.

A six game conference total of 44 base runners have been left on the bags by Ram batsmen. The team has hit safely 65 times in 197 trips to the plate for an average of .329. Strikeouts have been plentiful, with 33 Ram batters fading out at the dish. They have been awarded 34 walks and have stolen 15 sacks while fielding has looked good, although the team has an average of two errors per game.

The college baseball team afforded entertainment to 15,000 Angel Island Day visitors while they were losing a 13-7 slugfest to the Jefferson semi-pro's Sunday. The swarm of Sunday picnickers set what is believed to be a college attendance record.

Coach Fischer's nine blew a 2-1 lead in the fifth inning against the California Cinnamon Bears Saturday and eventually went down to a 10-2 defeat.

LEE JONES, one of the leading college pitchers, shows the form that enabled him to shut out Monterey earlier in the season with two hits.

Locals In Modesto State Conference Meet, May 7

Coach Grover Klemmer's ten man traveling track squad will journey to Modesto, Saturday, May 7, for the state conference meet with all California Junior Colleges. Last week the Rams placed fourth in the southern sectionals at Salinas, trailing Modesto, Stockton, and San Mateo in order.

Conference events are open to point winners of the division contest.

Irv Beltrame was the only victor for the locals in the sectional meet, but the squad garnered 25 points with second and third place efforts. Jack Hurst took a second and a third in the barriers; Bob Bland got a third in the 100.

Marv. Hoffman was edged into second place in the 220 yard dash by teammate Beltrame, Ken Fogarty sailed into a tie for fourth in the high jump, and Owen Moore raced to a second in the half mile event.

Golf Men Seek Eighth Win Against San Mateo

Working on a dual meet string of seven out of eight triumphs, three in conference play, Ralph Hillsman accompanies his linksters to Crystal Springs today for a divot engagement with San Mateo's golf squad.

The Rams notched a pair of wins to their impressive record last week as they put USF and Modesto to rout by identical scores, 27-0. Bill King, Bob Payne, Vince Holian, and Bill Larsson paced the locals in both outings.

Three major league batters have three home runs in a game three times. They are Lou Gehrig, Goose Goslin, and Johnny Mize.

Intra Basketball Enters Last Week As Undefeated Teams Drop To Five

As intramural basketball entered its final round of play this week, the number of undefeated teams has been decreased to five.

Of these five teams, only two are virtually assured of their titles; the Balboa Alumni A.C. in the Bush League, and the Perfection A.C. in the American League.

Although the Buccaneers were the only undefeated team in the P.C.L., as this week began, they were in a position to lose their prospective title to either the River Rats or the Vagabonds.

At the outset of this week the race for the National League title was still wide open, with the Passamaquoddy and Ranger fives still undefeated.

The records of the undefeated teams are as follows: Balboa A.C. 5-0, Perfection A.C. 5-0, Buccaneers 6-0, Rangers 7-0, and the Passamaquoddy five 5-0.

While playing in an exhibition game with the New York Giants in 1913, Jim Thorpe hit home runs into three states. One in the park which was located in Texas; and one over the rightfield wall which was in Arkansas, and one over the leftfield wall which extended into Oklahoma.

Co-ed Badminton Team Places Second In Meet

City College co-ed badminton club took second place herein the women's gymnasium last week, in a tournament with San Mateo and Marin Junior Colleges.

San Mateo Junior College triumphed with 18 points, City College placed second with 17½, and College of Marin placed third with 12½ points.

RAMblings . . .

By Bob Quinlan

AFTER 14 years of competition, City College of San Francisco is represented in a National Junior College Tournament.

By virtue of their decisive victories in the Modesto NCJCC Regional Tournament, five Ram boxers have formed the nucleus of an eight man squad representing this region in the National Finals in Pasadena this week.

Although the local boxers are the first to compete in national play, two other Ram teams have gained wide acclaim during this fiscal year.

Grover Klemmer's football powerhouse, after gliding through the regular season undefeated, received national recognition through its Gold Dust Bowl victory over Chaffey College and the naming of Ollie Matson and Burl Toler on the Junior College All-America. If football finals were possible, San Francisco would have been a strong contender.

Five Ram Boxers In National Tournament

Ralph Hillsman molded together perhaps the strongest two-year college basketball quintet in the country. This squad was this region's most logical representative to the nationals, until ill fortune intervened.

Roy Diederichsen and his five rugged competitors, Len Garcia, Jerry Stern, Roy Damas, Dean Bender, and Frank Sueuga, however, have reached their goal.

Spearhead of the local contingent is featherweight Garcia.

Lightweight Stern is perhaps the most promising young boxer in local pugilistic circles.

Although only a welterweight, Damas packs the wallop of a heavyweight.

A newcomer to the fight game is light-heavyweight Bender, who began his local Diederichsen training at Lincoln High.

Rounding out the squad is heavyweight Sueuga.

Stockton will wind up the locals' regular NCJCC season in their finale at a date in the near future.

Buttimer rates his ace performer, Smith on a par with the best collegiate netmen around this area and figures he will show handsomely in coming tournaments.

Tennis Team Barely Trims Strong Monterey, 4 To 3

By Clarence Hurlbert

Although they dropped both doubles events, Harry Buttimer's Ram tennis crew copped four out of five singles matches to barely trim Monterey, 4-3, last Saturday on the Golden Gate Park Courts.

Without the services of Stan Smith, who had an ailing arm, Fred Rodgers stepped into the number one slot and turned back Don Prince of the visitors, 7-5, 6-3. Ed Jacobsen, Kenny Hea, and Jack Mackey followed suit in disposing of their foes. Sai Solis nullified a Ram sweep when he tripped up Richard Daniel, 6-3, 6-4.

Monterey proved most effective in the doubles pairings, for their victories came easily. Mackey and Jacobsen teamed up to finish second best to Lobos' Don Prince and Dick Hart, 6-2, 6-2. Daniel and Hea fell short of solving the shots of the Bill Wardle-Bill Dormidy combo, losing 6-2, 6-2.

Round 'n About

Brotherly Love Shown As Tau Chi's Informalize Pledges Modern Style

BIGGEST news of the week is that Tau Chi Sigma finally completed its pledging duties and held informal initiation last Monday. "Better Late Than Late," was the theme!

New brothers joining the old brothers were Joe McCann, Ken McGraw, Don Cappa, Tom Hall, Syd Brakey, Toney Trouche, John Sailor, Art Hunt, Joe Gentile, and Tom Moore.

Going along with it all, a double-joint meeting (if there is such a thing) was held April 26 by Tau Chi Sigma, Phi Beta Delta, Alpha Lambda Chi, and Phi Beta Rho.

The cats and kittles had quite a time as a small combo showed up inducing everyone to do a quick schottische or two.

La Cercle Francais will hold its next meeting Monday, May 2, at Rick Hastings' home, 4837 17th Street, at 7:30 p.m. Plans for the coming Mardi Gras will be discussed. All members are urged to attend.

Speaking of busy groups, try to find the Men's Glee Club. The outfit has been knocking themselves out making singing appearances all over the place. Last week it was the Cow Palace for the Scout-o-Rama festival. This week it was appearances for Public Schools Week, and the Regional Conference of Federal Personnel at the Marines' Memorial Building.

Future dates include a trip to Stockton and Ripon, singing for high school gatherings. After that, the group will start preparing for a home concert with the Women's Chorus. Just how busy can you get?

Next meeting of Omicron Phi Pi is this coming Wednesday, May 4, at the home of Michael Zarchin. The meeting will be spent in discussion of the Atlantic Charter. After that it's refreshments of some sort or another.

Phi Beta Delta alumni is throwing an Apache Dance for active members of the fraternity tomorrow night in Richmond. Attire for the "ball" will be strictly French, a la left bank!

More business for the jewelers. At a recent meeting of Alpha Lambda Chi, Patricia Smith announced her engagement to Cas Szukalski.

Former wheels visiting the campus this week were Herb Levy, last semester Guardsman editor, and Frank Ferguson, Associated Student president during the same period. Both of these cats now give forth with their talent at Cal, located somewhere across the bay.

Go Hawaiian tonight at the Beta Phi Beta twirl, bring your own yukea-lay-lee. Going along with the dance, we end this week's column by saying, sa-rong!

Yearbook Negatives Ready For Return

Students who turned in negatives for the informal picture section of Ram-Pages may now reclaim them in the yearbook office, Building 6, Room R, Editor Bob McVey announced yesterday.

Free prints of college-life activities, which were left over from the final paste-up of the pages, are available to anyone who desires them, McVey added. Included in the assortment are group shots of sports, campus life and some club pictures.

Yearbooks are still being sold at the student bank and by salesmen on campus for $2.50 to an Associated Student member or for $5 to non-members.

Forum Plans On Spot Sales

Forum magazine, the college literary journal to be published late in May, will not have any subscription sales before publication this year, Dorothy Mercer, Forum adviser, announced recently.

Because the practice was not effective last year, the magazine will only be sold at stands around the campus after the publication date, which should be about May 16. Price will be 40 cents, and 1,000 copies will be printed.

May 20 Last Day To File Leave Of Absence

Last day for filing petitions for a leave of absence is Friday, May 20, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced early this week.

Students who want to withdraw from college during the semester must definitely request a leave by that date. Dropping college without a leave of absence, Miss Learnard said, will result in a final grade of "F" for the student in all of his registered classes.

Debaters Forfeit Match To USF Dons

Debate fans had to take rain-checks Tuesday for the meet between the local first team and the first team from the University of San Francisco.

Just a few hours before Joe Schwab and Irwin Phillips were to blast the Dons verbally on the subject of Federal medical aid to all citizens, Phillips notified Michael Griffin, debate team adviser, that he could not participate because of illness.

Unable to locate another debater to prepare a case for the contest by the 1:30 starting time, Griffin was forced to forfeit the match to the opposition.

However, Griffin said, a return contest with the USF team will be arranged for the near future. Also scheduled to go on the debate calendar soon are dates for contests with Marin Junior College, San Mateo Junior College and University of California.

Holiday Hula Featured Tonight At Aerial Club

South Sea Island allure will be in evidence at the Holiday Hula, semi-annual dance presented by Beta Phi Beta, from 8 to midnight at the Aerial Rowing Club tonight.

Fraternity members have arranged for music to be provided by Russ Bennett and his orchestra, Peter Perkins, fraternity president said, adding that bids are $1.80 per couple.

The Aerial Club will resemble an evening on the Islands with an atmosphere of leis, sarongs, hula skirts and Hawaiian shirts.

Dress is sport with Hawaiian shirts and cottons as the proper clothing, committee members said.

Assisting on the dance committee are Chairman Paul Ford, Tad Kitchener, Vic Aybar, Sandy Brousseau, and Jack Pullen.

"Bids may be bought from fraternity members or at the door," Perkins said, concluding, "The Hawaiian Islands theme will make this the best dance put on by Beta Phi Beta fraternity."

Refreshments will be served to add variety for the Hula dancers.

Arrangements For Televising Mardi Gras Being Made By AMS President

Arrangements to have the Associated Men Student May 27 traditional Mardi Gras on television was announced yesterday by Harry Williams, AMS president.

Station KPIX will give a 15 minute show of the college's biggest Mardi Gras in history the night after the gala celebration takes place in the west campus parking area, Williams stated. Pictures taken at the outdoor festival will provide material for the television show the next night, he revealed.

Meanwhile, the AMS president pointed out, today noon is deadline for clubs to enter petitions for booths, and descriptions of floats for the opening parade. By next Tuesday, May 3, pictures of candidates for Mardi Gras king and queen must be in. Candidates are not required to have club affiliations, but must be Associated Student members.

Hotel And Restaurant Students In Test For Epicurean Ability

Members of the Hotel and Restaurant Division will hold their annual luncheon for the California Northern Hotel Association Monday, May 16, at 12 noon, on campus.

Students of the division, who will plan and prepare the entire meal, benefit from the luncheon in three ways.

1. Operators of the various hotels represented have the opportunity to meet students of the division and discuss management and employment problems with them.

2. The students are in a position where they can demonstrate techniques and aptitudes which they are experiencing in their curriculum.

3. Hotel managers can interview prospective graduates who will be seeking employment after graduation and also other students who are required to fulfill a ten week work experience plan.

According to Hilda Watson, chairman of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, the division is looking forward to this occasion and has planned a program depicting the highlights of this semester's work.

This midday luncheon will include a tour of the Hotel and Restaurant facilities conducted by members of the division's public relations department.

Midterm Exams Cancel College Hour On Friday

College hour activities for this Friday have been cancelled because of midterm examinations, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, announced yesterday.

He also announced the remaining dates for college hour rallies this semester. They are as follows: May 20, an election rally and June 10, an award rally. All other college hours remaining this semester will be devoted to club meetings.

Speaking in regard to these two remaining rally dates, Rally Commissioner Lane Currie stated that the Rally Committee is planning to make the rallies two of the top rallies of the semester to close the semester in good style.

He added that he hopes to be able to line up many exchange rallies for next semester on the same order as the college hour rally of Friday, April 29, when the College of Marin rally committee appeared in the auditorium with a program of varied entertainment.

Before The Fight

RAM BOXERS, coach, and managers gave the in-unity-there-is-strength pose a test and came within three points of winning the national two-year college championship title in Pasadena Friday night. Frank Sueuga, left, lost to Ed Sanders of Compton; Roy Damas lost to Joe Rodrigues, Muir; Coach Roy Diederichsen won respect for this five-man team showing; Jerry Stern won over Phillip Perry, McNeese; Dean Bender lost to Bob Blanton, Pasadena. Not pictured, Len Garcia lost to Dowell Fontenot, McNeese, and Pasadena took the title with 20 points over the Rams' 17. Student Orator Selected Here For Debate Contest

By Dick Williamson

Armond Magid, active debater, was selected to represent the college in the Seventh Annual Hearst Newspapers' Tournament of Orators in the preliminary contest here tomorrow, Michael Griffin, debate team adviser, announced Thursday.

Before a board of judges composed of President A. J. Cloud, Lloyd Luckmann, and Dean Edward Sandys, eight entrants presented their cases on Alexander Hamilton, and Magid was selected to enter the finals, with John Mix placing second, and Joe Schwab, third.

Magid is now eligible to enter the Pacific Coast finals on Monday, May 16, and the national finals to be held in San Francisco on Thursday, May 19.

Irwin Phillips and Schwab, composing the college's first debate team, will meet Norman Adler and Joe Giuffre from University of San Francisco today at 1:30 p.m. to argue the currently controversial question of Federal medical aid to all citizens, Griffin said.

This contest, originally scheduled for last Tuesday, April 26, was cancelled and changed to today because Phillips was ill. The debate, taking place in building 19 on the west campus, is open to all students.

Friday, April 29, college debaters were to have a meeting to elect officers and apply for re-admission to Pi Rho Pi, national honorary forensic society for two year colleges, Griffin announced.

There has been no chapter of this society at the college for some time because of the lack of interest on the part of students. However, there is an active group this semester, he said.

New Talent Trods The Board In The Late Christopher Bean Presentation

A great store of new college talent will make its stage debut in the Little Theater Group's production of The Late Christopher Bean, when it opens here Thursday, May 12.

Newcomer Ilse Faltin joins veteran Rosalyn Mincer in the title role of Abby, ex-maid of the late artist and present owner of some of his most valuable paintings.

In the comedy, Abby and the Hagett family, new occupants of Bean's Massachusetts home, fall into one trying situation after another in their encounters with persistent art collectors attempting to obtain the masterpieces.

Gilbert Mitchell does his first stage characterization as Dr. Hagett, with Jeanne Zumwalt and Mary Ann Stewart playing the part of his wife.

Also on the list of new talent is Jacqueline Apfel as Susan Hagett, Arnold Solkov, William Zamora and Bill Hansen.

Although the entire production is running smoothly, "the new members of the cast are doing particularly well and I'm enjoying it immensely," Paul Ellison, English instructor and drama director, said Wednesday.

The Late Christopher Bean will start its engagement on Thursday, May 12, in Room 28 of the main building at 8:15 p.m. Performances are also scheduled for May 13, 14, 16, 17, and 18. There will be no matinees.

"Tickets are not yet available but students will be notified when they go on sale at the college bank," Ellison added.

Survey Shows Employers Want Honest Day's Work, Not Super Job Executive

By Bob Lachmann

Employers want workers, not executives.

Increased emphasis should be put on job adjustment training in schools.

These conclusions were drawn by the Pre-employment Work Experience Advisory Committee at a dinner sponsored by the college business department at the Elks Club on April 25, Samuel Ziegler, of the retail merchandising department, stated recently.

The committee, composed of representatives from schools, businesses and labor unions, functions to coordinate business training with job requirements. It concluded that employers want an honest day's work, not super executives.

In a discussion to determine the importance of job skill training in comparison with job adjustment training, the committee decided that one is dependent on the other, but more emphasis should be put on the latter.

"It is necessary," Ziegler said in a recent interview, "that future executives learn a business step by step, from the ground up. Executives learn the problems of their employees and departments only by doing the work of their employees in the departments."

The dinner was attended by Dr. J. Paul Mohr, vice-president, City College; O. D. Adams, assistant superintendent of public schools; Earl Thompson, distributive coordinator of city schools; Howard Morse, store director of MacFarlane Candy Company; Ruth Jennings, personnel director of S. H. Kress and Company; and Edward Larson, business instructor of City College.

Larson gave a brief speech on what is being done here in personality development of prospective employees.

Students are referred to downtown employers on the basis of ability and interest in work, Ziegler stated.

Reports show that employers are more than satisfied with referred personnel. Applicants have been found to be superior to those from outside, he added.

The Pre-employment Work Experience Advisory Committee meets approximately once every two months.

Students who desire work experience credit in retail management should see Ziegler in Room 249 at 10 a.m. daily, before the end of this semester.

Any student enrolled in the business department is eligible. This work includes employment in grocery stores, service stations, hardware stores, men's clothing stores, shoe stores, and many others.

Sophomore King-Queen Elections Slated For Student Vote May 11, 12

With all names and pictures of royal contestants in, the sophomore class is preparing for the king and queen elections to be held here next week.

Elections will be held in the student lounge from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 11, and from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday, May 12, Dale Butterfield, Sophomore president, stated.

No posters or campaigning will be allowed on the campus until Tuesday, May 9, Robert Loberg, Sophomore vice president, further stated. A panel containing pictures of all royal contestants will be placed in the main building for students to view.

In keeping with historic tradition, the royal pair will reign on the evening of the Sophomore formal, Saturday, June 11. The winners' names will be a secret until that time.

The coronation event dates from the early days of the college when the Sophomore class decided to choose a queen to be its representative for the semester and later, during the fall semester of 1941, a provision was made to add a male to the royal family of Sophomores.

Opera Needs Ushers For Traubel Concert

Ushers are needed for the appearance of Helen Traubel, famous dramatic soprano, at the War Memorial Opera House tonight, according to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

Anyone wanting further information should see Dean Dougherty in her office in Building 2 at any time during the day.

Delinquent Clubs Will Be Ousted, Says Brady

At least ten clubs may be off campus this week if they do not immediately comply with the regulations set down by both the Club Activities Board and school department regulations, Dean Jack Brady and Associated Student President Pete Isola said at Thursday's Student Council meeting.

Isola called to the attention of the council the fact that the Business Educational Forum which meets during college hour is operating contrary to the Constitution by requiring all members to attend.

Brady stated that in his opinion the forum is a business class organized into a club to meet in college hours.

The council voted to request the faculty adviser, Glenn Mercer, to appear at the next council meeting and explain the organization's status.

Other clubs affected by this ruling are Beta Phi Beta, XGI Society, American Veterans Committee, Alpha Delta Epsilon, Masonic Club, Drama Society, Chowder and Marching Club, and the Hotel and Restaurant Society.

Local Entries Take Blue Ribbons At Garden Show

In the background is the 25 foot adobe wall with decorative Mission bells in archways and a brilliant central setting of flowers which won them the honors.

The Oakland Exposition Building show, which took place April 26 through May 1, also saw the Horticulture Society take a first ribbon for their artistically designed surrounding floral garden and lily-pond arrangement; picture to right.

This makes the third consecutive year that the college entries have been awarded top honors. —Photos by Kenneth Howe.

Spring Fever Hits The Campus Friday

Transition of the college auditorium into the "Flower Shop of the Plaza Hotel" will help shift students into a lazy time mood appropriate for Gamma Phi Ypsilon's Second Annual Spring Fever Dance, Friday, May 6.

In conjunction with the hotel theme, the auditorium will acquire the address of "No. 1 West Campus Boulevard" for the evening dance time period from 9 to 12 midnight.

Admission prices for students have been set by the dance committee at 75 cents per person, and $1.25 per couple.

Students attending will dance to the musical arrangements of Bob Emerson's orchestra, whose presence has been made possible through Fraternity President Roy Williamson, and Social Committee Chairman John Wright.

The previously scheduled Strikes and Spares dance for Saturday, May 7, has been cancelled.

Accent On The Affirmative

HEADING a series of excellent films from abroad is Monsieur Vincent, now at the Clay. The first of a series of extra fine films was the tender and emotional Symphonic Pastoral, which established a record of longevity at the little theater.

The successor to the film now playing at the house, the aforementioned Vincent, will be a British production of four of Somerset Maugham's short stories. Quartet, featured in past issue of a certain nation's magazine, is not a unconnected stories, with four distinct casts, somewhat on the order of the technique employed in Paison.

PARAPHRASING THE PLOT

The plot of the film, that of a French priest who was later canonized for his activities in early sociological-reform movements, needed an actor who could produce that intangible something that is so necessary to great theater, sympathy and understanding of the character that is portrayed.

Pierre Fresnay, an unknown in this country, played the part of the humble priest with dignity and bearing. The empathy created was as strong as that of any good stage production.

The picture itself was made with dignity and restraint. In quite a few of the scenes there could have been a slopping over of emotions and sentiment, things that Hollywood does so well. There were many instances when Fresnay could have chokingly uttered some trite phrase expressing his devotion and humbleness. But he didn't.

A shrug of the shoulder, a raising of a hand or just a cocking of his head sufficed him—devices which literally speak words . . . handy, we might add, for those whose French is limited.

AID TO UNDERSTANDING

This production has the titles in clear print, placed on the screen so as not to disturb the continuity of action, and, we are made to understand by those who have a smattering of French, translated with an eye toward accuracy.

Going along with the techniques employed, an item that is overlooked in so many of the epics stemming from the nether regions of Hollywood, was not ignored by the director of Vincent; the dramatic time involved in the story covered a period of years. The priest, logically, does not stay in the flower of youth throughout the movie.

He does grow older. In this importation the transition is gradual, as befitting time. He does not pop up with grey hairs and a lumbago limp immediately following a scene where he is shown as a husky, French peasant, which Vincent was before he took the vows. This subtlety of touch adds much to the factual and esthetic appreciation of the film.

Man Against Machine; Years-old Problem

MID-TERMS, college life's most wearisome burdens, are with us again. Sometimes known as, the Great Separation, this terrible period of college life is marked by many hazards.

The scene during exam week is not unlike that of a large public execution. The victims, or students, wander about the campus with desperate, worried looks. Some take to praying while others openly contemplate suicide.

TRICK QUESTIONS

At the same time the executioners or instructors skip merrily along from class to class, sometimes whistling or sometimes laughing out loud as they contemplate some diabolical trick question that has no correct answer.

Exam day is known by the students as the day of reckoning and is as dreaded as the bubonic plague. It is about as welcome as a notice from the draft board. Instructors, on the other hand, are known to look forward to exam day with cheerful anticipation. It is, in fact, the only time they are really happy.

Some instructors are known to stay awake nights for weeks ahead of time while they perfect some sadistic examination. During mid-term week they can be seen gathered in happy little groups about the campus singing their favorite songs, Flunk Them All, the Young and the Short, and the Tall.

DON'T STUDY

On the subject of trying to study for these exams we can only quote the Bible. Ecclesiastes 12: "Of making many books there is no end, and much study is a weariness of the flesh."

The subject of grading mid-terms exams is one that is shrouded in mystery. Risking our lives, we ventured into faculty land in order to bring back a report on the various mystical systems of grading.

One instructor we know of puts all the exam papers on her desk and then blows them off with an electric fan. Those furthest from the desk are A papers, and those unlucky papers that land near the desk are D and F grades. If one is sure that the instructor uses this system, then it may be advisable to write on very light paper and shape it into a paper airplane.

Grading on the curve is another diabolical system designed to frustrate and torture students by always giving them a lower grade than they think they deserve. The inventor of this system was given an award by the National Sadistic Society.

Take heart, fellow students, frayed nerves and broken hearts will, we are sure, heal with time. Well, let's face the music.

Editorial: Students Offer Council Opportunity To Prove That Action Speaks Louder Than Words

AS of yesterday, when The Guardsman went to press, a move was formulating on campus which by week's end should give the Student Council an opportunity to prove that actions speak louder than words.

Since our "Ignorance Pays Off" editorial of last week, various council members have expressed the feeling that they were unjustly dealt with. At the time that editorial was written we felt it justifiable to do so and still maintain the same opinion of the council's inaction.

But, this week the council will be presented with a petition, signed by a large segment of the Associated Students, which asks that immediate action be taken by the council to alleviate the perennial traffic conditions which still exist about the campus.

The petition offers a six point program of action which, if given due consideration by the council and acted upon, would result in a definite step in the direction of solving one of the college's most perplexing problems—insuring the safety of the students on campus.

The move was instigated by a local Speech 21b class and the petitions have been in the hands of members of this class. The petition is a strongly worded one as the following quote illustrates:

"If you, the council who (sic) is representing fifty-five hundred (5500) students, fails to take steps, as have the councils of the past, and end in utter failure as the other councils have . . . we, the students, will take the problems of discussion into our own hands and solve them as we see fit."

Regardless of whether or not the petition is finally presented to the council, we feel that action should be taken immediately and that by so doing the Spring '49 council will succeed where others have failed.

Once again we say, if mistakes must be made, let them be "a new batch of errors rather than repeating the same time worn miscues."

Should the council take action on this "black spot on campus" we would be more than happy to give them the first pat on the back.

Faculty Ignores Trend; Students Go 'Esquire-ish'

By Palmer Cramer

ONE of the greatest sources of color at this institution is the many styles, and variations of styles, that one encounters round and about the campus.

Students, of course, are the only ones that are displayers of this color. The faculty never go in for flashy sport clothes, loud ties, and shirts a la Bing, but are always the epitome of reserve in the haberdashery department. (Ohhh yes!)

Take one of the better known students for example, one which, wisely, will not be named, merely referred to —broadly.

Last Monday found this student, the Associated Student President (notice no name) in a sport shirt that would have brought the green of envy diffusing the physiognomy of der Bingle himself. Said shirt looked as if it had come out second best at a painters' convention.

And some of the sororities not long ago required that their members present themselves about the campus in a variety of colors and fashions that can only be classified as questionable. The less said about that, the better.

No one has ever noticed the transition that occurs when students register and attend classes the first week. Suits, single and double breasted, ties, and hats are in abundance the first few days, but later these are exchanged for more suitable garb. Replacing this finery are jeans, sweaters and T-shirts.

This isn't a male prerogative by any means. Co-eds at first start swinging-in replete (or is it reet pleat) in suits, pumps and often furs. The female transition takes place with much greater rapidity than the male. Often the day after registration finds bobby sox, saddle shoes, skirts and sweaters in profusion.

An institution called seasonal change enters the picture several times a year also. The fall semester brings out of the ever faithful moth balls the woolens, gabardines and top coats—as well as the heavy woolen unmentionables.

Spring sends these articles back into the cedar chest and then the accent is on freedom of movement—apparently.

As the weather becomes progressively warmer, rainment often includes a bathing suit, well concealed, which will be brought into use during the 10 minute interval between classes. This requires some fast driving, and many classes are not attended because students would rather cut than be late.

As some bearded philosopher stated at one time, "Any change is for the better." A statement which is always open to debate.

SO, every day you water yours, yet. Each NIGHT I'm putting MINE in the ICEBOX.

Ram's Horn — Spring's Here; Grades Wanted

• Eager Kid

Editor, The Guardsman:

Being a student who falls into the category of those "lucky" ones who take midterm exams, I would be very interested in knowing the outcome (grades, that is) of my ordeals.

Yet, it seems that some instructors do not believe in posting these grades. I don't know whether it's done purposely or from sheer forgetfulness. Whatever the reason, I happen to be one of the many who does not enjoy being kept in the dark about his achievement in college. Certainly it can't be so difficult to write out a sheet with students' names along with the corresponding grade, now is it! (Far be it from me to expect too much!)

Let's hope that this situation is remedied in the very near future!

• Tra-la-la!

Editor, The Guardsman:

'Tis spring. Tra la. Around the campus, the grass looks greener. Daisies bloom everywhere—king size, pee wees, all kinds. Back from their annual convention at Capistrano are the chirping set. And Jimmy the Squirrel is back at the West Gate—clapping his itsy bitsy paws, mooching for nuts.

Speaking of nuts, I have a question, boss. How come Algy is still wearing his raccoon coat? (Guardsman, April 1)

Student Research On Spring Fever; Epidemic Hits High Spot On Campus

By Keith Gardner

UNDOUBTEDLY the fastest growing organization on the campus today is a group of scientifically inclined students who are conducting unofficial research on "spring fever" at various parks and beaches throughout the city.

The college administration, sadly enough, takes a rather puritanical view of this interest in scientific research. A recent statement by a noted instructor confirms this. "In my opinion students should be chained to their desks," he said while coiling his bullwhip.

Operators of amusement park concessions, on the other hand, are almost delirious with joy. One of them paused recently in the midst of punching holes in his head to say, "I need the college trade as much as I need holes in my head."

Students who have already conducted research on "spring fever" can be easily recognized by their stupidity in class, by the odd vermilion color of their epidermis, by their stupidity in class, by a strange habit they have of screaming in anguish when slapped on the back, and by their stupidity in class.

Immediately following the noted instructor's announcement that students should be chained to their desks, a group of public spirited students formed an association that will have its first meeting tonight in front of said instructor's house.

Boxers Place Second In Nationals

Cindermen Lose Another, Eye Modesto Tests Next

Combined efforts of Santa Rosa and City College were not enough to top the Stanford frosh as the Cards rolled up 80 points to the Cubs' 29½ and the Rams' 21½, at Palo Alto, Tuesday, April 26. The session was the locals' last before the conference meet Saturday, at Modesto.

Coach Grover Klemmer's ten man squad took both of the first places registered by the juniors. Owen Moore ran the 440 in 48.8 to break the college record and Alan Rillerla took the broad jump with a 31 foot 8¾ inch effort. In the mile relay it was Moore again as the Rams bested the Cubs for the first time in three trys, to take second. Moore gained over 20 yards and was within three yards of the winning team as he crossed the finish line.

Although they took only two firsts, the two-year college squads finished in nearly all of the second and third place spots. Irv Beltrame, Ram sprint star, finished a close second in both the races by running a 10.1, 100 and a 22.5, 220 for his best times of the season.

All of the conference teams will compete for the state championships Saturday at Modesto. Local talent will be sparse with only ten men traveling down, but, according to Klemmer, the squad is rounding into shape fast and should be ready for the event.

Mary Hoffman, Beltrame, Moore, Rillerla, Bill Walli, and Jack Hurst will be a few of the locals taking the trek south Saturday, Klemmer said yesterday.

MASTERMIND of the just-returned Ram boxing team is mentor Roy Diederichsen.

Actions For Words Best In Matson Case

By Walt Heil

WHEN rangy Ollie Matson made his great decision to transfer from City College to the University of San Francisco, for his football activities, he was immediately tabbed as one of the Dons' future greats.

In accord with that prediction, Bill Leiser, sports editor of The Chronicle, mailed in his Saturday Evening Post Pigskin Review questionnaire, naming the former Ram as one of the outstanding backs for 1949. All this, with Matson having yet to play in a Don game.

Leiser, in his signed column, further stated that Matson would be one of the "super sophomores" of '49 along with Gary Kerkorian of Stanford and Hugh McElhenny of Washington. Leiser is apparently basing his predictions on Matson's performances in junior college grid circles, which were indeed great.

The gist of all this is to simply wait and see what Matson does once he dons a USF uniform and plays against teams of strong caliber. It has happened too often in the past to make long range predictions and then watch the athlete in question flop.

To cite a few examples, Rube Navarro came up from the Cal Ramblers, touted as Jackie Jensen's replacement, and never made it. Closer to Matson is teammate John Finney who transferred from Compton to USF and was acclaimed an outstanding back. Yet, the records bear out that Finney didn't have the season that was expected of him.

Matson will probably make the grade in the Don camp, but let's not put him on the spot by claiming him as one of the Coast's best backs before he has even played in a USF game.

Local Mermen Await League Meet At Napa

With two weeks left before the southern division swimming meet, Coach Boy Burkhead's mermen are bearing down on practice drills in an effort to be in the best possible shape for the May 14 session in Napa.

Two practice meets are left on the schedule. A second go against the Olympic Club Jrs. and a meet with the California Jvs. will complete the Rams' schedule.

Stern Lone Winner As City College Edged Out By Pasadena In Finals

By Frank Monte

PASADENA, April 29. — Battling Jerry Stern annexed the national junior college lightweight crown here tonight to pace the Ram pugilists to second place honors in the National Junior College Boxing Tournament.

Roy Damas, Dean Bender, Len Garela, and Frank Sueuga were all runners-ups in their divisions in the finals, and along with Stern, grabbed 17 team points to take the second place trophy. Pasadena City College's four finalists won their bouts to, garner 20 points and the championship.

At the climax of the evening, Coach Roy Diederichsen was presented with a runner-up trophy and Stern received the individual lightweight championship trophy and a jacket designating him as a national champ. Although Damas lost his final fight by a decision, he was awarded the silver trophy for the "fightingest fighter."

Stern proved too much for Phillip Perry, McNeese Junior College, Louisiana, handing him a barrage of left hooks and vicious rights for three rounds to gain a unanimous decision. In the semi-finals on Wednesday night, Stern decisioned Fred Martinez of Compton College by the widest margin of the evening, 90-81.

Damas' fight with Joe Rodriquez, Mnir Junior College, Pasadena, provided the thriller of the night. Damas knocked his foe to the canvas in the opening minute for a nine count, and both boys fought the rest of the way toe to toe, with neither giving an inch. With the crowd yelling furiously, Rodriquez was awarded the match.

In the light heavyweight class, Bender lost a decision that could have been rendered either way, to Bob Blanton, of PCC. Garcia tko'd Bill Ingram of Compton in his first fight, and lost his final bout to Dowell Foutenot of McNeese. Heavyweight Sueuga was defeated by Ed Sanders of Compton.

Rams Face Loop Leading San Mateo

Whether City College's baseball team deserves a shot at the NCJC Conference southern division title hinges entirely on today's clash with San Mateo, current league leaders, at Funston Field.

The Peninsula team has eased through eight opponents, sweeping doubleheaders from Stockton, 9-0 and 9-3; Menlo, 9-4 and 15-4; Monterey, 17-1 and 12-1, and Hartnell, 12-7 and 10-2.

City College holds twin victories over Monterey, 4-0 and 10-4; Menlo, 19-7 and 8-4, while they have split a pair with Stockton, 3-9 and 4-3.

Comparative scores give the Bulldogs an edge. However, Coach Bill Fischer's club has gained momentum in their batting order and hurlers Ron Kelfer, Bob McGovern, Lee Jones and Hugh Mooney are prepared to use their best stuff in the six game homestretch schedule.

Herb Hudson, Mateo coach, will start Bud Watkins.

BILL FISCHER, popular coach of the college nine, has led his team to five NCJC victories this season.

Wilson Discloses Signup Deadlines

The deadline for intramural soccer has been set for today, with the football deadline scheduled for Friday, director Tom Wilson said yesterday afternoon.

Wilson also disclosed that the final date for intra boxing applications to be handed in is set for Thursday, May 12. Entries for boxing must be given to Coach Roy Diederichsen or Wilson.

Preliminary bouts will be held on Monday, May 23, with the finals to be held on Friday evening, May 25. Winners are in line to receive gold gloves while runners-up will be given silver gloves.

The intramural basketball league wound up play yesterday afternoon in the men's gymnasium after 10 weeks of play.

College Professor Hit Hard By Spring Fever

By Bob Lachmann

Donald Snepp's English 21a class, currently studying Ralph Waldo Emerson's essay on Self Reliance, recently put into practice, in part at least, Emerson's theory on non-conformity.

Snepp came to class the other day carrying a bundle of newspapers, which he distributed to the class.

Each student, anticipating a 5,000 word composition on same, picked a page to his interest.

One student picked the sports page; another, the theatrical, and another, the comics. One poor soul was stuck with a stray editorial page.

"These spring days remind me of the story of the daft professor at Trinity University," said Snepp. "The professor came to class one spring morning and looking at the green trees basking in the warm sun outside the window, said, 'Gentlemen, I have a rendezvous with nature.' He thereupon left the room and never returned."

Snepp then said, "follow me like good kindergarten children—to study Emerson's Self Reliance on God's green grass."

The newspapers were not to be the subject of any profound study. They were sat upon while the class untangled the abstract intricacies of Emerson's theory of non-conformity.

New Faculty Members Urged To Dine With Hotel And Restaurant Division

Calling attention to the faculty dining room facilities, student G. H. Beaver is currently writing a number of letters to new members of the faculty in behalf of the students of the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

The letters are being composed to accomplish a dual purpose, informing new instructors that a faculty dining room exists, and increasing "practice" for students.

Students of the dining room operation class, directed by instructor Nina Tueker, use the dining room as a practical experience class in food preparation and service, and therefore they would like to accommodate a larger group of faculty members, Beaver said.

Although luncheon is the only meal served, the dining room operates on the same basis as a large restaurant. With the exception of one special dish each day, food preparation and cost are the same as in the cafeteria.

Choir Gives Kiwanis Club Concert Today

A Cappella Choir members will sing in concert today at the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club, Director Flossita Badger announced Friday.

Soloists include David Arrillaga, who starred in Marriage of Figaro; Velma Webster, and Irene Boullet.

Faculty members attending in addition to Miss Badger are Lloyd Luckmann, Gertrude Norgard, and Robert Morton, recipient of a Kiwanis Club scholarship awarded for music study at University of California.

Round 'n About

NOW is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party. Speaking of parties, Tri Epsilon will have its formal initiation this Friday night, May 6, at Ken Ott's home.

New party members are Skip Sherman, Larry Weber, John Krcofalo, Dick Evans, John Vassiliades, Lou Guevara, Tom Dill, Al Lawson, Dave Sandstad, Art Schwartz, Jack Donahue, Herb Bernauer, and Orval Runkle.

Returning members of last year's Tri E championship basketball team, who are burning up the maples this season, are Roy Pasini, George Capanis, and Lloyd Ferguson.

Mu Iota Psi, local music club, will hold a picnic for all members May 22 at Lake Anza; sandwiches will be cut with musical saws.

Adobe Creek Lodge will play host to the Chinese Club when the group holds its annual picnic Sunday, May 29. The outfit also will hold a combination weiner roast and record dance at Temescal, May 22.

Theta Tau is in charge of decorations for the Inter-Sorority Dance, to be held May 21 at the Century Club. The theme will be "Polka Dots and Moonbeams," which is a original idea from the outfit. Ronnie Morrison heads the decorating committee.

Plans have been completed for the Tau Chi Sigma formal initiation, which will be held in the very near future. The affair will be followed by a social evening for members and their guests.

Local modern music lovers still enjoy a high plane of progressive jazz at Ciro's and the Barbary Coast in San Francisco. Charlie Ventura and his outstanding combo just completed a two week stay at Ciro's and will be followed by Herb "Flamingo" Jeffries this week. Stan Kenton's All-Stars are continuing performances at the Barbary Coast, making room on Sunday afternoons for jam sessions by local musicians.

For the latest in progressive jazz record information we have been told to consult the Hot Bop Club, located in the Waldorf, with headquarters in Room 25. According to Edwardo Montoya, high potentate of the organization, "Lemon Drop," by Gene Krupa, and "Barney Google," by Charlie Ventura, are the top waxings of the month.

Sarah Vaughn's "Black Coffee" and "As You Desire Me" are considered top vocals of the month. Latest reports from critics show that "Slow Boat to China" sunk!

A hulaing good time was had by all last Friday night at the Beta Phi Beta fling. It was the most modernistic Hula Dance in existence; ankle length sarongs and fluorescent leis.

AGS Asks Club Membership Lists

Robert Jonjock, Alpha Gamma Sigma president, issued a call Friday for club membership lists in the current club scholastic plaque competition instituted recently by the Club Activities Board and the Student Council.

Clubs are expected to give typewritten lists of members, alphabetical with last names first, to Jonjock immediately.

The scholastic honor society is supervising the competition in conjunction with the registrar's office.

The club which has the highest grade point overage at the end of the semester will have its name engraved on the plaque, regulations provide.

Alpha Gamma Sigma itself, since it is a scholastic honor society, is not included in the competition, Jonjock said, nor will any other organization wherein membership depends on grades participate.

This provision is expected to eliminate Lambda Alpha, music honor society, and Omicron Phi Pi, economics honor society.

Lack Of Foreign Language Knowledge Results In New Army College Program

Realizing the number of men without a knowledge of foreign languages in American occupation forces, the Army has begun a program to train college language students to form eight-man linguistic teams in the event of another emergency, Major William H. Lambert, in charge of operations at the University of San Francisco, announced yesterday.

Such a program was initiated on the first of the year at the University of San Francisco, and one is now taking form at the University of California. Similar programs are in effect at several other universities throughout the United States.

For the present, the teams have been composed of students speaking Greek, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese, but the program as it grows will probably include other languages, according to Major Lambert.

One outstanding aspect of the program is that once these teams are formed, the personnel will not be subject to change in classification. In this manner the Army hopes to improve the groups' efficiency.

This program should afford City College students who plan to transfer to four-year institutions of learning an opportunity to become a member of these linguistic teams if they so desire, Major Lambert stated.

Mardi Gras Deadline

Pictures of candidates for king and queen of the college's fun-filled, May 27, outdoor Mardi Gras in the west campus parking area must be filed by tomorrow noon, Harry Williams, chief Mardi Gras planner, emphasized yesterday.

Williams emphasized that membership in an organization is not necessary to qualification of a candidate.

Fall Registration Numbers Must Be Obtained By End Of This Semester

Those students not receiving their registration number by the end of the present semester will experience a great deal of inconvenience and difficulty when registering for the Fall semester, Head Counsellor F. Grant Marsh declared today.

In the first two weeks of issuing the registration numbers, the Office of Counselling and Guidance reports that over 1,200 numbers have been assigned.

Students not receiving their registration number by the last day of the present semester must see their counsellors during the Fall semester registration for a number, which would make an organized selection of a program difficult, Marsh explained.

16 King-Queen Candidates Up For Voting At Elections Next Week In Student Lounge

Sixteen candidates are in the running for King and Queen of the Sophomore class, with elections scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, May 11 and 12 in the student lounge.

One candidate for King, George De Urioste, was disqualified for not complying with candidate regulations, Sophomore President Dale Butterfield said.

The royalty contestants which number nine for the King crown and seven for the Queen, are as follows:

Voting will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. next Thursday and Friday, Vice-president Robert Loberg emphasized, with the class election committee in charge of checking Associated Student membership.

Campaigning and display of posters starts Monday, May 9, at 9 a.m. and posters must be approved by the Publications Board chairman, Roy Pasini.

In keeping with college tradition of previous semesters, the winners will not be named until the evening of the Sophomore formal, Saturday, June 11, when the class brings Spring '49 social events at the college to a close.

In conjunction with Sophomore Week activities, the Sophomore class officers are now completing plans for the June Formal at the San Francisco Scottish Rite Auditorium, Butterfield pointed out.

No College Hour Today; Midterms Take Priority

College hour activities for today have been cancelled because of midterm examinations, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, announced yesterday.

The official college hour schedule provides for two more rally dates this semester, May 20 and June 10, and club meetings.

Plans are being laid for the appearance of this college's rally committee at the College of Marin, Wednesday, May 25, Lane Currie, rally commissioner, said yesterday.

Attempts are being made, Currie said, to line up a program of entertainment the equal of the program presented by the Marin group in the college auditorium during last Friday's college hour. This rally will be the second of a series of exchange rallies planned for this and future semesters.

Hughes Appears Before Council To Clarify Business Forum Procedure

After 30 minutes of discussion, the Student Council Tuesday tabled debate on the Business Forum until the end of the semester.

James Hughes, business department head, appeared before the council to explain the status of the Business Forum and to reply to complaints that the forum was operating contrary to the Associated Students Constitution in requiring members to attend.

Hughes admitted that many business instructors required students to take notes on lectures made by guest speakers at the weekly college-hour meetings. He said that college hour was the only time the meetings could be held; that the meetings give the students first hand information on conditions in the business world.

Hughes tried to show that the college hour was wasted since students do not attend club meetings.

The council attempted to decide whether the Business Forum was a class or a club. No class may meet during college hour, no club can require members to attend, the council was informed.

The tabling of debate followed an earlier suggestion by President Pete Isola who recommended that the council wait until the end of the semester to act.

Cancer Society Presents Film, Lecture Thursday

The American Cancer Society will present a lecture and moving picture on cancer Thursday, May 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 136, Pi Mu Gamma President Helen Rich announced yesterday.

The movie and lecture will cover the importance of early diagnosis and early medical advice when a cancer danger signal appears.

Miss Rich added that any interested students are invited to attend this program which is sponsored by Pi Mu Gamma Society, the pre-medical and biological science society here.

Student Council Sets Election Dates

Candidates' Petitions Due May 13, With Preview Rally Slated May 20

JOHN MIX, local debater and election committee chairman, will act as mediator for political hopefuls in coming student elections.

By Bill Thomas

Members of the Associated Students will elect their officers for the fall semester when they go to the polls on Wednesday, May 25, and Thursday, May 26, the Student Council decided last week.

The council appointed John Mix to the position of Election Commissioner and set aside Friday, May 20, for a college hour rally to introduce candidates.

All those interested in running for office can obtain petitions for candidacy today at the Associated Student office in Building 2, Mix said, and all petitions must be turned in by Friday, May 13, at Dean Jack Brady's office.

The Constitution of the Associated Students provides that candidates for office must be enrolled in at least 12 units of work and have a "C" average.

The Election Committee reviews the petitions of candidates and supervises elections. Other members of the committee are Bob Hinsly, Bea Gregor, and Armand Magidi.

Election rules have been clarified and increased by the Election Committee. Candidates will be given a copy of the rules when they receive the petitions, Mix declared.

Naughty Marietta Has New Orleans Setting

By Keith Gardner

Naughty is an understatement for Marietta as she will alternately be interpreted by Joan Anderson and Luba Shubin in the college music and drama department's opera presentation.

The Victor Herbert opera, scheduled for June 1 through June 4 production, has its setting in the New Orleans of about 1750, and teems with an amazing variety of characters, pirates, soldiers, Casket girls (not feminine pallbearers, but would-be-wives of settlers), creoles, and, of course, a hero and heroine.

The tale principally concerns the madcap Marietta, who masquerades as a boy, messes up a marionette show, almost marries the pirate-villain, Bras Pique, and finally falls in love with the hero, Captain Dick.

Two acts and a score of musical numbers go by before Bras Pique gets the gate, Captain Dick gets Marietta, and their vocal cords get a rest.

Amidst all this activity there are numerous character roles, one of these is Sir Harry Blake, an Irish adventurer, played by James F. Curley, a veteran of Army-Navy radio work in Los Angeles.

One of Curley's major programs in Los Angeles was the broadcast of the christening ceremonies of the giant aircraft Constitution, which flew over the college last Monday, May 2.

Curley has also worked with motion picture star, Bob Montgomery.

Yearbook Resumes Sales Here; Distribution Date Announced

Staff members of Ram-Pages, college yearbook, resume a sales campaign next Monday, May 9, scheduled to continue through Friday, May 13.

With half the copies sold, the remainder are available at the student bank, in the yearbook office in Building 6, Room R, and by salesmen, until the supply is exhausted, Bob McVey, editor, said yesterday.

Also, sales table will again be attended daily by the silver pole, McVey added. Books are $2.50 to Associated Student members and $5.00 to others.

Distribution date for the yearbook has been set for Wednesday, June 1, according to the staff. Books will be given out in 6R to those who present receipts at this time. No one-the-spot sales will be made then, as those holding subscriptions will be served, McVey declared.

Dons Win Decision Over Debaters

Debaters from University of San Francisco won a decision over the local first team in a match here Tuesday.

Norman Adler and Joe Giuffre, representing the Dons, argued the negative of the subject, "Resolved, That the Federal government shall provide a system of medical care to all citizens at public expense."

Representing the college were Joe Schwab and Corinne Lambert, who argued the affirmative. Miss Lambert substituted for Irwin Phillips, who could not participate because of illness. This was her first match.

In the absence of judges, there was no official score taken and an audience poll favored the negative.

A great deal was accomplished at the first regular meeting of the college public speakers held last Friday, Michael Griffin, debate coach, said. Teams for future matches were decided upon and given currently controversial topics on which to prepare their cases.

Three teams will work on the subject of Federal medical aid, to all citizens, which was the topic of Tuesday's meet, and three will prepare cases on the topic, "Resolved, That the Federal government should equalize educational opportunities in tax-supported schools by means of annual grants."

John Mix and Andy Ferrarri were named as co-managers of the newly-formed debate society. They have called a meeting for 6 p.m. Wednesday, May 11, in the college cafeteria to select officers for college chapter of Phi Rho Pi, national forensic society.

Dual Casting Provides Interpretation

Deep devotion displays itself in Abby, the insignificant and little noticed house maid, during the climax of Sidney Howard's Late Christopher Bean, appearing on campus May 12 in production by the Campus Players.

Through the usual dual casting method, adhered to by director Paul Ellison, the confused servant girl will be portrayed by the effervescent Rosalyn Mincer, whose character role as Madame Arcati in last semester's Blithe Spirit, brought approved chuckles from opening nighters.

More natural than Mincer, in a consideration at recent rehearsals, has been Ilse Faltin, whose freeness of manner establishes her as serious competition for the opening night part.

Pertaining to double casting, Ellison commented, "Those members of the cast slated for the same role will probably alternate nights during the six day run."

During the performance Abby and her employers, the Hageft Family, are pestered by art collectors and dealers who add suspense to the unexpected climax.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon Hosts Second Annual Spring Fever Dance Tonight

Spring fever bursts forth tonight at Gamma Phi Ypsilon's second annual Spring Fever dance from 9 to 12 p.m. at No. 1 west campus boulevard (the auditorium).

An informal atmosphere will reign at the Ram Plaza Hotel with Bob Emerson's orchestra and vocalist furnishing music in the Flower Room. Admission is set at $1.25 per couple and 75 cents for stags.

Roy Williamson Jr., president of the fraternity, said that cokes will be served in the Rose Room throughout the evening.

Social committee members working with Williamson are chairman John Wright, Dale Fritz, Dick Wunderlick, Irving Marks and Ron Bordi.

In a Letter-to-the-Editor last year, Dean Edward E. Sandys complimented the fraternity on its fine dance presented then. To this Williamson added, "The fraternity is putting on a better dance this year and we hope that all students will come to our Spring Fever dance."

Committee May Name Mardi Gras Queen-King

King and Queen of the Associated Men Students' outdoor Mardi Gras in the west campus parking area, Friday, May 27, will be selected by an AMS committee, or by a novel method, which is not yet definite, Harry Williams, AMS president, announced yesterday.

From among six men and six women, judged finalists in the king-queen contest by AMS and Associated Women Students respectively, the committee is expected to choose the big celebration's royal family for a day, Williams said.

Williams emphasized that although it has not yet been decided, a method of selection involving "big-time" procedure, is under consideration.

Accent On The Affirmative

THE festering spot of China's political malady, spreading from its ulcered sore of Peiking, has engulfed China's central area so repressively with its red-cancer that the Nationalist government may soon begin reverberating from the first of its death throes.

Had not Shanghai, the world's second largest city, been the plum of the Communists' recent advance, the China story would have remained in the background of America's newspapers, and the average disinterested reader would be as uneoncerned with the Far Eastern situation as with Uruguay's import policy on pumpernickel seeds.

It is not our purpose to discuss the Communist march on Shanghai, but to consider the Chinese-American military activity within China.

In 1944, Nationalist and American military leaders conceived complete subjugation of Japan by late 1946. In accordance with these views an offensive program was devised outlining an attack by a large American expeditionary force on Kyushu Island (about the size of Maryland), on the Japanese homeland.

Simultaneously, Nationalist troops were to engage in full scale assaults on Canton (pop. equivalent to San Francisco), in Southern China. In Spring, 1946, while MacArthur's troops were to be landing in Tokyo, the Nationalists, accompanied by American soldiers, had planned to be converging on Shanghai.

This military program was devised to insure position of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Army near the Yangtze and along the China coast, for purposes of affording swift transportation into Northern China to crush the Communists and disarm the Japanese after their surrender.

The impromptu Nipponese surrender in 1945 left the Nationalists in a disastrous situation. Communist forces in the Northern sector were within striking distance of China's vital coastal areas, while Chiang's best troops were two months traveling distance away in Kwangtung Province, Southern China.

These were the circumstances that resulted in the "greatest aerial troop movement in history."

The American Fourteenth and Tenth Air Forces, and the Air Transport Command cargo carriers, collaborated to carry eighty thousand Nationalist troops into Northern China; though the figure represents only a segment of Chiang's fighting strength in the South. Arrival of Chiang's forces enabled the Nationalists to retain Shanghai, but the Communists could not be forced from their strongholds in the Northern provinces of Shantung, Hopei, Northern Shansi, Charar, and Jehol.

Later, American envoys Marshall and Stuart disavowed their aid to China plan, which finally resulted in the United States adopting a "wait and see" policy; a policy that to Easterners, will ultimately result in the loss of more American prestige than lend lease dollars.

Budget Is Answer To All Money Troubles

WITH this, the sixteenth issue of the semester, we salute those hardy students who have survived the perils of mid-terms. Be brave, fellow victims, we are now on the home stretch with nothing but a few term papers and finals ahead.

We should, at this time, observe one minute's silence in memory of those poor souls lost in the mid-term shuffle. Rumor has it that ten students have disappeared between the west campus and the main building never to be seen again.

Our sermon for today is that root of all evil, money (an old Greek word meaning what college students never have enough of). A recent issue of a semi-literate picture magazine contained an article about a mid-western college student who managed a whole weekend on only five dollars. This they consider news.

BUDGETS

For college students, a budget is a necessary evil, and we think it is time we said a few words on this most unpleasant subject. Personally, we have a flawless budget worked out by six economics majors complete with slide rules. This budget is absolutely infallible and it works perfectly—for the first two days of the month.

The versatile Alex Zzyd has written a book on this matter entitled, How to Manage on a G. I. Budget or Starvation the Slow Way.

An alert college student, Mr. Zzyd points out, will never let the gal friend know the precise amount of green stuff in his possession. This is a cardinal rule. When the little daughters of Eve find out the exact state of the bankroll, they cannot rest until it is all spent This is a point of honor with the misnamed weaker sex.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

One sure way to save money, Mr. Zzyd tells us, is not to spend it. Now this is a very profound economic law. It is called the Malthusian law of diminishing returns or, simply, I got plenty of nutten.

After a great deal of research on this subject we have found that there are two things needed for a sound budget. The first item is a thorough knowledge of the entire field of economics, gross national product, net income, marginal propensity to consume, etc. The second item is plenty of money. We might go so far as saying that with a little of the latter we can do without the former.

Having taken the local course in economics, we consider ourselves an outstanding authority on all matters fiduciary. By the way, has anybody got an old fiat dollar till Saturday.

Psychology For The Masses

By Arnold Solkov

Contributions from Hollywood's high paid fugitives from a leather-covered couch attempt to explain the machinations of the human mind when it is confronted with the prospect of seeing into the future.

Lately, one notices as one ambles the cinema, that psychology-for-the-masses has been literally inundating the screen.

American movies, always on the lookout for progressive ideas have taken the psychiatrist-by-the-ink-blot-test and developed what amounts to a course in practical psychology.

The course adds up to instruction in couch-crouching and results in a technique employed by certain practitioners when difficult cases are presented.

The good doctor places himself in a position, not unlike Ollie Matson, readying himself for the 100 yard dash. Note-book in hand, the doctor bends over the patient, pleading with him to tell all—usually about his childhood.

If the patient was subjected to long imprisonment in hall closets as a child, the doctor might diagnose the case as complex frustration stemming from the time when the man, as a child, attacked the milkman with a broken milk bottle because the kid didn't like milk.

The purpose of the couch-crouching course is to enable the student to beat the doctor or the script-writer, to the punch and diagnose the case before the doctor does.

Care to come in and try our new leather-covered couch?

Editorial: Ram Boxing Team Deserves Pat On Back For All American Showing In Nationals

COACH Roy Diederichsen and his five National boxing finalists have returned from the ring wars in Pasadena with second place laurels in their possession.

Before they sink into the background and are completely forgotten, as is usually the case here, we would like to take a minute to offer up a "well done" to Diederichsen and his men.

Not only are these men deserving of praise for their outstanding ring ability, but more so for the manner in which they conducted themselves while in the ring and representing the college.

The squad was cited for its boxing ability, as the trophy they brought home testifies, but more important is the recognition they received for their outstanding sportsmanship.

Throughout the National tourney, the locals were up against a hostile crowd. Pasadena, the host college, was in strong contention for the title which they eventually won, and no doubt the audience was predominately pro-Pasadena.

There is probably no other type of audience which is more heartless than a fight crowd. Add to this the fact that the boys were competing for National honors.

And yet, with the above pressures working against them, the Ram aggregation measured up to the test and emerged with flying colors. Sure, Pasadena walked off with top ring honors, but the locals left a lasting impression on all who witnessed their efforts.

They showed they had what it takes and just that little extra something else which determines whether a team is really great. They were always in the fight, physically and mentally, and regardless of the outcome of their individual bouts, knew they had won more than a trophy.

They showed the crowd down South they could lose and come away from the ringside with their heads just as high as when they entered the ring. They showed them that they were true competitors, a team which any college would be proud to claim as its own.

And to the college, the team has brought increased respect from its rivals for its All American showing.

Bakery Instructor Believes In Doing It Up Big

Ed Nylund Bakes Wedding Cake For Own Nuptials

By Robert R. Johnson

Undoubtedly there are few wives lucky enough to have husbands who can bake a cake, let alone an exquisite wedding cake almost five feet high.

When Ed Nylund, pastry and bakery instructor at the college, exchanged vows with Marcie Lyccio, he presented her with just such a cake.

After the 4 p. m. marriage ceremony Sunday, April 24, at the Ebenezer Lutheran Church, the couple and their 250 wedding guests assembled at the Pavilion of Flowers where the cake was placed on display before the oh's and ah's of everyone.

This baker's behemoth was the result of Nylund's ambition which began about the time of his graduation from City College in 1940. He decided then to make a cake that would long be remembered, and his desire has certainly been fulfilled.

THE CREATION between the beaming couple is the ultimate in baking, created by instructor Ed Nylund for his wedding.—Examiner Photo.

Using his own design, he fashioned his masterpiece like a truly artistic French Pastaier. Besides being nearly five feet high the cake had four tiers, three sets of pillars, and a two foot centerpiece containing a replica of the bride and groom.

Two months in actual preparation, it cost $200, and, among other large amounts of ingredients, had thirty dozen eggs and some fifty pounds of powdered sugar. Although it was not weighed it required two husky men to carry it.

When questioned about her wedding cake, Mrs. Nylund expressed amazement as she had not known about the cake beforehand. Recovering from the no-small surprise, she later asserted her woman's rights by stating, "When we have company Ed can do the baking, but when we are alone I will do it." Nylund agreed.

Another unusual aspect of the cake was that it was trimmed in several pastel colors, breaking away from the long-standing traditional silver and white trim.

Also, each of the four tiers was a different type cake; the top layer being fruit cake; the second layer, lady cake; the third layer, chocolate, and the fourth layer, wedding cake.

Council Members Ask Retraction

• The Fact Is

Editor, The Guardsman:

In response to the editorial of April 25, this letter is submitted. The Guardsman during this semester has failed to highlight in any of its issues favorable accomplishments and general condition of this term's council.

The council has been at the disadvantage of working with a very limited budget. This budget was $7.000 less than last semester's. Furthermore, the previous council passed legislation which required appropriations from this council.

Because of cooperation of the two political factors of the council, there has been very little bickering in the council. This has been avoided by compromises.

The motivation of this editorial was very obvious. A motion for the formation of the publications board was altered by the council to include one less member of The Guardsman.

We believe that a retraction of the editorial of April 25, in consideration of these stated facts, would be appropriate. The reporter at the council meeting should have reported that the appointment of the third member of the publications board, according to the minutes, is to be a function of the president.

Jack Gallisdorfer, SB 10011
Ted Glasnow, SB 13350

(Editor's Note: Come now, fellows, let us not use the term "stated facts" so loosely. Factually speaking, their was no editorial on April 25, but on April 26; the fall budget was passed at $27,561.63, the spring job was $26,-245.29—even a Math 51 major knows that isn't a $7.000 cut.

(Among other things, no one was attempting to "load" the powerless publications board although you seem to imply said attempt to be a "fact."

(We have considered the facts, and you lose. No retraction. We gladly offer a pat on the back, however, for the swift manner in which the council passed the competitive inter-club scholastic program. Could he the other members of the council look "the facts" to heart.)

Eight Rams Travel South For NCJCC Track Finals

By Terry Ryan

Coach Grover Klemmer and eight qualifying trackmen travel to Modesto tomorrow morning for the Northern California Junior College track meet against teams of both the southern and northern divisions.

In the southern divisional meet at Salinas last week, the eight men and the relay team from the college qualified by placing first to third, to run in the conference meet.

Irv Beltrame and Owen Moore will be counted on to make the best showing for the Rams. Jack Hurst, Marv Hoffman, Bob Bland, and Ken Fogarty are fairly evenly matched.

Ray Carngie and Fogarty will participate in the relays.

Beltrame and Moore, in the sprints and 440 respectively, have had a good season. Beltrame was beaten only once and Moore has won his share of events while breaking the college record in the 440.

Stockton, who beat the locals 102½ to 33½, and Modesto will be the teams to beat in the conference games.

The Rams will be out for a clean sweep tomorrow.

OUTCLASSING HIS 440 rivals is nothing new with Owen Moore, who is caught in a drive to the finish in a triangular meet. Moore recently bettered the college's mark for the quarter mile.

Intra Volleyball, Grid Entries Due

Director Tom Wilson announced that today will be the final day for signups in intramural volleyball and touch football, with applications due in the men's gymnasium by late this afternoon.

No varsity football players are allowed to participate in the tournament.

Free-throw shooting ends Tuesday, May 17.

At this writing, scores of the semi-final and final games of the intramural basketball league have not been released.

Buttimers Battle Stockton For Third Place In Conference

Nohle Harry Buttimer and his men of the court—tennis that is—tangle with the Stockton Cubs at Golden Gate Park this afternoon with the outcome assuring the victor third place in the NCJCC race. Hostilities begin at 2 o'clock.

Both squads have identical squatters' rights, batting .500 in the win-loss column behind league leading Modesto and runnerup San Mateo.

Also on tap to keep the locals occupied is a match with Menlo down the peninsula, tentatively set for tomorrow, but which might be played early next week.

Steadily improving as a unit, the Rams are ready for their best efforts. Stan Smith's return to action after being shelved with a sore stroking arm is a welcome sign. Number 2 man Fred Rodgers has come a long way on the upgrade as have Ed Jacobsen and Jack Mackey, rated in order of playing position.

Pete Brady's dropout has made occupancy of the fifth slot a battle between Kenny Hea and Richard Daniel.

Hillsman Introduces Spring Basketball

ABANDONING the category of only a winter sport, basketball will follow in the steps of baseball and football this year and hold spring practices in order to become a year around sport.

It has been reported that Nibs Price, University of California hoop coach, is planning to have spring training soon. Price, however, isn't the originator of this idea. A product of his, City College's cage mentor, Ralph Hillsman, has already planned an intramural cumba league, consisting of basketball hopefuls for next season.

RAMblings . . .

By Bob Quinlan

Although Hillsman won't hold formal practice, he'll get a good look-see at the talent he will work with next year. Graduation will deprive him of the majority of last season's championship team.

It appears now that the successful cage coach will have to build his squad around returning veterans Marty Schneider, Bob Mingee, and Ed Kahn.

The aforementioned Hillsman is doing it again! Already this year he has brought to the local campus a basketball championship and now he is well on the way to the NCJCC golf title.

Golfers Aiming For National Tournament

Behind the able clubs of Bill King, Bob and Don Payne, Art Larson, Bigelow, and Vince Holien, the Ram golfers have swept through their conference opponents with ease as illustrated by their recent 27-0 rout of Harinell College.

The Student Council had better start scraping up their loose change, because in the near future the National Junior College Golf Finals will be held in Michigan, and the Rams have a few linksmen who could more than hold their own in the national tournament.

Swimming Team Splashes To Easy Victory Over Alameda Naval Air Station In Practice Tilt

Coach Roy Burkhead's swimming team traveled to the Alameda Naval Air Station April 28, and sank the sailors with an overwhelming 47-28 score.

Every man showed life as the Ram swimmers swept both relays and gained first places in the 220 yard freestyle, when Bill Knapp swam a 3:2:7; and in the 150 yard backstroke when newcomer Ben Nobl edged out teammate Skip Sherman with a 2.10:2 effort. Second and third places were gained by every man on the squad.

Ron Cutler dove to a second place, edging Max Seigel into the number four spot.

WAA Hosts For Playday

A softball game between the Women's Athletic Association and San Jose State is scheduled for tomorrow at 10:30 in Balboa Park. The game will highlight a two hour play day.

WAA members will attend a play day at San Mateo Junior College on Friday afternoon, May 20. Also attending will be Marin Junior College.

Stan Giraitis of Washington College scored five field goals in 59 seconds.

City College Baseball Squad Meets San Mateo Nine Tomorrow In Crucial

By Gene Van Dyke

A team that has the capabilities to score 21 runs in a single inning against a top rate NCJC Conference club, Modesto, faces the college nine tomorrow at San Mateo. Starting time for the game is 2:30.

The club in mind is the San Mateo Bulldogs, probable southern division pennant winners with a 10-0 record.

City College had a stab at the Bulldogs Tuesday, and if it wasn't a winning cut the Mateans automatically took a slice of the title cake.

Coach Bill Fischer will undoubtedly use the best of his stock in an effort to sidetrack the run-crazed Bulldogs.

Pitchers Ron Kiefer and Bob McGovern will be used to censor the run producing Mateo machine that has kept the Bulldogs on top throughout the season.

Jack Bukowatz inserted brilliance into his already stylish type of play Saturday to lead the Rams to a doubleheader victory over Hartnell of Salinas, 2-1 and 12-5, at San Mateo's Marchbank Park.

Bukowatz doubled Tom Bournellis home from first in the last of the ninth to give Keifer a four hit, one run pitching victory. During both games Bukowatz came up with near impossible fielding plays to help retire the side.

The Rams clubbed two Hartnell hurlers for 12 runs on 13 hits in the seven inning nightcap to enable pitcher Bob McGovern to chalk up his second victory of the campaign.

McGovern helped win his own ball game by knocking out two for three, including a double and driving in three runs. Lou Pisani also drove in three runs with his two for three. Bukowatz collected a day's total of four for eight.

Powerful Local Linksmen Travel To Modesto, Menlo For League Matches

It's double duty for Ralph Hillsman's iron-men this week end as twin action is in store for the local golfers.

No sooner do the Rams get back from a clash with Modesto away today than they prepare to pack off to Menlo tomorrow for a links duel with the southland Oaks.

Last week, San Mateo disrupted the winning habit of the Hillsmans,

Bulldogs Whip Locals 9-2, Take NCJCC Title

San Mateo's baseball team cinched the southern division title of the NCJC Conference when they scored a 9-2 win over the college nine for their eleventh straight Tuesday at Funston playground.

The Bulldogs jumped on Ron Kelfer for four runs in the first two innings. It was Kelfer's first setback of the season. Bob McGovern relieved Kelfer in the second.

Ray White homered with Chris Makras aboard to account for the Rams' runs in the eighth.

holding them to 13½-13½ deadlock. The stalemate will be played off at a later date.

To date, the Red and White clubbers have lost but a single match, that to the talented San Francisco Police team. Otherwise their seasonal slate is unmarred, with wins over San Mateo, Marin, Hartnell, Modesto, and the USF Dons twice.

Charles Freeman weighed 320 pounds, stood 7 feet, 3 inches, and was the first American champion who was bigger than Primo Carnera.

Diets Suffer As Alpha Lambda Chi, Phi Beta Rho, Kappa Phi, Chow

THINGS are happening this week-end at Half Moon Bay, by the sea. It's not a beach party, dance, or stag party, it's the formal initiation for Alpha Sigma Delta.

Pins will be dished out Saturday night, May. 7, to ten Alpha Sigma Delta pledges at the Hotel Miramar located at Half "Gone" Bay some few miles down the coast.

Pledges who will see the light are Lane (where are the megaphones) Currie, Joe Schwab, Russell Greer, Duane Smith, Tom Thomas, Joe Schultz, Bob Biera, Ben Hurling, Bob Fury, and Jay Evensen.

Going wild on the same night, Saturday, May 7, are the gals of Alpha Lambda Chi, who will hold their pledge dinner at some secret spot in these parts.

Phi Beta Rho and Kappa Phi are getting together for a joint dinner Saturday evening, May 14, at Zaro's in Marin. Remember your diet, girls!

Going along with all the festivities, a dinner for new members will be given by Theta Tau Saturday, May 14 also.

Le Cercle Francais will hold its next meeting Monday, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. The affair is slated to come off at the home of Mauricette Du Fromy, 187 Douglass Street in this, our Fog City!

A picnic at Adobe Creek, May 22, is on the calendar for the Newman Club. All members and their friends are invited, providing reservations are made by contacting vice-president Carolyn Gray, 160 De Soto Avenue—phone (for business only) JU 7-9223.

First formal get together by Alpha Gamma Sigma is tabbed for Thursday night, May 12, at 6 p.m. As an addition to the organization dinner, the group has offered to supply flowers to all girls attending the feed; brains will be served as entree!

Veneto's restaurant, 389 Bay Street, will play host to the society, tickets being two dollars per person. Tickets may be obtained at the Alpha Gamma Sigma office, Room B, Building 5.

Get springy and feverish tonight at the Gamma Phi Ypsilon "Spring Fever" dance, west campus auditorium, 9 to 12.

Music notes here and there. Drummer Man, Gene Krupa and his newly organized band, are on their way north, and will appear at the Edgewater soon. The outfit just completed a month stay at the Palladium Ballroom in Hollywood.

Opportunity Knocks More Than Once In Retail Job Training Program Here; Off The Street Hiring Unsatisfactory

Opportunities for placement in the retail merchandising field are numerous, but employers want enthusiastic, pre-trained personnel who are willing and capable of taking advancement when the time comes.

Samuel Ziegler of the retail merchandising department, in reflecting on the April 25 meeting of the Preemployment Work Experience Advisory Committee, noted the above points, recently.

That San Francisco is tops in the amount of retail merchandising done greatly affects job possibilities, but because of high employment standards, "we are becoming more critical and selective in referring students for downtown employment."

The day of hiring personnel "off the street" is rapidly passing because of the lack of success which employers have experienced under that system. Employers want college trained personnel who are interested in later advancement, Ziegler emphasized.

A committee, composed of representatives from schools, businesses, and unions, concluded at its last meeting, that employers want workers, not executives, and that more emphasis should be put on job adjustment training in schools.

From studies made, there are more opportunities in retail merchandising because of the wide scope of jobs available. "A person can make more money faster there than in any line of endeavor that I know," he said.

Child Development Course Provides Everything Except Diaper Folding

By Norma Grossi

The Home Economics Department, which is full of little surprises, could very easily be handing out cigars this semester to introduce its infant course, making its appearance under the title of Child Development.

The course, under the supervision of Rose Kraft, though still in its infancy, plans practical field work by visiting day care centers for children of working parents and inviting guest speakers to the classes.

Headlining the list of 17 students enrolled in the course is one lone male.

There are no prerequisites to the course, which meets three times a week.

The study provides a practical preparation for marriage and for students who are interested in social work.

Covering a child's habits up to the age of six years, the course deals with both physical and emotional development and is designed to bring about better understanding between the child and the parent.

Former Student Flies Corsair Over College

When the mammoth new Navy cargo plane, The Constitution, flew over the college and then into the wild blue yonder last Monday, it was closely escorted by eight fighting Corsairs, one of which was piloted by a former City College student.

The ex-Ramster is Lt. Wallace S. Griffin. He attended the college prior to 1941, served in the war as a combat pilot, the returned to continue his education in 1946. He is now in the Naval Reserve where he is training students at the Oakland Naval Air Base.

Bow And Arrow Devotees Increasing Male Admirers Gather—And Admire

By Bill McWhinney

Archery, a relatively young sport in its modern sense, is becoming increasingly popular among the women enrollees in the Physical Education Department of the college, Instructor Nancy Sparks revealed yesterday.

The sight of the trimly clad creatures displaying their skill on the range is not unusual, but rarely a day goes by that a crowd of men doesn't congregate to admire the finer points of their art.

Miss Sparks' students are prepared with all the necessary equipment: Arm gards, archery gloves, quivers, arrows and even bows.

It may be that this rising popularity is due to the sheer love of the sport, or the possibilities of acquiring and maintaining a body beautiful.

At any rate, it looks like archery is back to stay!

Inter-Sorority Hop Changed To May 21

Date for the traditional Inter-sorority dance at the Century Club, is changed from Saturday, May 14, to Saturday night, May 21, sorority presidents announced yesterday.

Roy Stephani's orchestra provides music for the Polka-Dots-and-Moonbeams dance, with street dress the appropriate costume.

Sorority representatives planning the affair are Doris Dirito, Alpha Lambda Chi; Betty Cartwright, Theta Tau; Nadine Coakley, Delta Psi; Lucy Wilson, Zeta Chi; Mary Ann Bailiff, Phi Beta Rho, and Phyllis Smith, Kappa Phi.

"We are sure that all the sororities will be well represented, but we also want the independent college students," Miss Bailiff pointed out.

Evaluation Of Service Units Scheduled Soon

Service units will be evaluated for credit at the college throughout the week of May 16 to May 20 by the Veterans Counselling office, Counsellor T. F. Humiston announced yesterday.

After two years of operation, the City College branch of Veterans Counseling will close this semester and consolidate with the main office at Galileo High School where the same services offered now will be continued.

Mt. Hamilton Hosts Astronomy Students

All astronomy students and their friends are invited to attend the astronomy classes' visit to the Lick Observatory, on top Mt. Hamilton, tonight.

The excursion group will meet in front of the main building at 4 p.m. and the trip will be made in automobiles in order to cover the distance to the observatory which is about 70 miles.

Students interested may bring their cameras and flashlights, warm wraps to be worn, and, as there are no eating facilities, their own suppers.

Arrival is to be made in time to view the sunset from the summit of the mountain. After dark, students will have the opportunity to observe interesting celestial objects through the great 36-inch refracting telescope.

Howard's Late Christopher Bean Opens Six Night Run Thursday In Room 28

City College Little Theater Players are rehearsing this week to present their version of Sidney Howard's acclaimed The Late Christopher Bean, for a six night run, beginning at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, May 12, in Room 28.

The two hour comedy involves a deceased New England village painter, Christopher Bean. The scene of action is set in a home once owned by Bean and now occupied by the Hagett family. Two of the dead artist's friends acquire for past debts two of Christopher's seemingly worthless paintings.

A surprise supreme occurs when a great New York art critic arrives to pay respects to the memory of the dead artist. When Christopher's daubs are discovered to be worth a fortune, the effect is overwhelming—and how those concerned scurry to find them.

For the first time since the comedy's start the company is beginning to "Jell," and the end of the job is in sight, Director Paul Ellison said following dress rehearsal.

The cast includes Ilse Faltin, Rosalyn Mincer, Gilbert Mitchell, Jeanne Zumwalt, Mary Ann Stewart, Jacqueline Apfel, Mary Cooke, Laverne Benstock, Bob Jones, Hewitt Kendall, Arnold Solkov, William Zamora, David Irvine, and Bill Hansen.

Six night performances are scheduled, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, May 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, and 18, all at 8:15 p.m., and no matinees are planned.

General admission is 75 cents, non-Associated Student members pay 50 cents, and Associated Student members, 10 cents, a tax service charge, Ellison said.

Tickets are available at the college bank now and throughout the play's run.

Casts alternate to develop varied interpretation of the roles and provide wider participation.

Polls Open Tomorrow For King, Queen Vote

By Bob Lachmann

Associated Student members go to the polls tomorrow and Thursday to choose a king and queen from among the 16 candidates bidding for the thrones of Sophomoreland.

Voting will take place in the student lounge between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday and 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Thursday, Sophomore President Dale Butterfield said yesterday. Only those who are Associated Student members may vote, he emphasized.

Ballots for the queen will be cast by the Associated Men Students, while the Associated Women Students will pick the king.

The seven candidates making their bid for queen are Mary Lou Evans, Penny King, Peggy Latimer, Jeanne Marsh, Lois Schroeder, Phyllis Smith, and Trudy Wulff.

The nine hopefuls in the race for the king's crown are George Capanis, Alvin Chapin, John Dracopoulos, William Hartmann, Jack Kearns, Donald Lucey, Gilbert Mitchell, Leonard Wolf, and William Zamora.

A panel is located in the south end of the main building containing all the pictures of the candidates, Butterfield said.

Coronation for the royal couple will take place at the Sophomore Formal Ball on Saturday, June 11. In keeping with the historic tradition of the college, the names of the winners will not be revealed until that date, he said.

Other sophomore class officers are Robert Loberg, vice-president, and Carmel Lee, secretary. Teddy Malavazos and Jim Fernhoff are the Sophomore Week chairmen.

Last semester's winners of the coveted Sophomore crowns were William Koenig and Phyllis Ryan. Koenig was a first string end on the football team. Miss Ryan was Kappa Phi sorority president.

Petitions To Enter Election Race Due Friday; Qualifications For Executive Posts Clarified

Candidates for the 21 Associated Student posts have until 4 p.m., Friday, May 13, to file petitions in Dean Jack Brady's office.

Tuesday and Wednesday, May 24 and 25 have been announced as dates for voting, a change from original plans.

Seven executive posts and 14 positions on the Student Council are the offices which the candidates will seek.

Requirements for Associated Student President are that he will have completed at least 45 units at the end of the semester and that he have a "C" average. A candidate for any office must be enrolled in at least 12 units.

The Vice-President must have completed at least 30 units prior to his term in office. Other requirements are the same as for the President.

The President of the Sophomore Class shall have completed at least 45 units and not more than 60.

The President of the Freshman Class shall not have completed more than 30 units.

The Associated Men Student President and the Associated Women Student President shall have completed at least 15 units prior to taking office.

The seven Sophomore members of the Council must have a "C" average, be taking at least 12 units, and have completed at least 30 units before taking office.

The seven Freshman members of the Council must meet the same requirements as the Sophomore members, except they shall not have completed more than 30 units before taking office.

Clubs, Business Forum Meet In College Hour

Campus clubs and the Business Education Forum will hold their first meetings since April 22 during college hour this Friday, in rooms officially scheduled.

Business Forum director, Glenn Mercer, announced the speaker will be named in time for the next issue of The Guardsman.

Leave-Of-Absence Deadline May 20

Leave of absence petitions for students desiring to withdraw from Spring courses at the college, should be filed before Friday, May 20, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard reminded students today.

Trophies Awarded For Best Booths, King And Queen

One of the top events of the Associated Men Students' traditional Mardi Gras, which this year is Friday, May 27, in the west campus parking area, is the presentation of festival awards, Harry Williams, president, pointed out yesterday.

At each spring celebration, the club with the best booth receives the AMS perpetual trophy, which it keeps for one year.

Possessor of the trophy from the 1948 Mardi Gras is the Women's Athletic Association, Williams explained.

Beta Tau and Theta Tau have donated gold cups which AMS will award to the May 27 Mardi Gras king and queen, and to the club with the outstanding parade float, or marching unit, Williams also announced.

Clubs Not Filing Reinstatement Petition Face Disqualification

Organizations that have failed to file a petition with the Club Activities Board for reinstatement are now considered inactive, unless the club's president appears before the board at the next meeting to explain the reason for delay, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, said yesterday.

According to Frances McCarthy, CAB vice-president, only the Drama Society has been accepted following application by Bill Hansen, the group's president.

Beta Phi Beta, Beta Tau, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Pi Delta Koppa, Tau Chi Sigma, and Tri Epsilon have been approved by the dean's office, but have yet to be fully reinstated.

Clubs that have been dropped since last semester are Alpha Delta Epsilon, American Veterans Committee, Chowder and Marching Society, Hotel and Restaurant Society, the Masonic Club, and the XGI Society. Others pending final approval are Beta Tau, Kappa Phi, Lambda Alpha, Newman Club, and Phi Beta Delta.

Forum Sales Price Cut To 35 Cents

Price of Forum Magazine, college literary and art journal, has been reduced to 35 cents, Dorothy Mercer, Forum faculty adviser, announced yesterday.

This semester's publication," containing an abundance of material, will be sold for less than last semester because of the Forum staff's endeavor to help in cutting the college students' expenses, Miss Mercer pointed out.

One article, several short stories, and several selections of art work appear within the 40 pages of this semester's Forum.

When the magazine is put on sale, copies may be purchased at three convenient locations around the campus, Editor Roy McCoy announced. These will be the silver pole, and the guard shack. Students are urged to buy their copies early to be sure of getting them.

Stranton, Allen Defy Marietta Staging Problems

By Roberta Jackson

Overcoming the difficulties of staging a major musical production, such as the college's June 1 to 4 presentation of Naughty Marietta, on a pint-sized stage is a task that receives no curtain call when the merits of a show have been weighed.

Faced with the problem of designing sets for a stage that was erected merely for small plays and dance demonstrations, student stage managers Bob Stranton and John Allen are thus far overcoming the obstacles confronting them.

The college auditorium, originally designed as a gymnasium, and alternating as a motion picture theater during the Waves' sojourn on what is now the west campus, lacks adequate wing space for scenery storage and lighting equipment.

These two behind-the-scenes artists, whose efforts are usually a mystery to the average theater patron, have recently worked on installation of more lighting facilities and have spent many hours designing the sets for Naughty Marietta. These sets have been constructed of light wood and cardboard on an inch to each foot scale.

Plans are now under way to erect a 14 by 48 foot extension platform on the front of the stage to give more working area to the actors and chorus and to accommodate the scenery needed for the opera.

In place of the usual, standard curtain, professional canvas drops will be placed at the front of the extension, the managers say. Scenery will be rolled in these drops and hoisted to the ceiling on batons, thus eliminating the necessity of wing storage space.

Stranton and Allen will be assisted by members of the Speech 40 Class (a drama department course in stage craft that works in conjunction with the Opera Workshop) and volunteer workers.

News Wire Installed In Guardsman Office

Electricians arrived last Friday to prepare for installation of a teletype machine that will bring International news into The Guardsman office through a contract with International News Service.

The releases will be used for instruction in journalism classes to demonstrate modern techniques in handling news leads, and writing heads for "wire" preparation.

Because of space limitations, outside press releases will not be run regularly in The Guardsman.

Accent On The Affirmative

CALIFORNIA Palace of the Legion of Honor is currently offering a special exhibition. Entitled Illusionism and Trompe L'Oeil, it is a history of painting that "fools the eye."

Officials at the Palace claim it is the most comprehensive collection of its kind, as paintings have been borrowed from public and private collections throughout the country. A period from the 15th century to the present day is represented in the exhibition.

Accompanying the display will be a special lecture series pertaining to the paintings. Alfred Frankenstein, the Chronicle's music and art critic, will interpret "Entirely with the Brush."

Pulitzer prizes for 1948 went to Robert Sherwood for his superior biography, Roosevelt and Hopkins. The controversial Roosevelt Myth presents another one-sided interpretation of a forceful figure whose life is destined for future debate by later biographers.

THE DRAMATIC SCENE

City College players come up again with leads in some of the better amateur productions in local circles. Dark of the Moon, the Bay Theater's latest offering, closing last week end, starred ex-City College Little Theater star, Tony McGrath, who was featured in Berkeley Square.

Jack Jones, of last semester's Man Who Came To Dinner, handled the second lead while doubling as stage manager.

Dark of the Moon, a regular standby for little theater productions, is a fantasy. In the Bay Theater offering it achieves eminence by virtue of unusual lighting effects, two-dimensional scenery, and effective stage decoration—all incorporated to form an eerie effect of the supernatural.

TAMALPAIS PLAY

A shift in casting for the thirty-second annual Tamalpais Mountain Play, Rough and Ready, resulted in a switcheroo for Barbara Andress, local thespienne, who will portray Lady Penelope.

Make-up artists for the May 22 production are drawn from City College ranks, also. They include Joan Adams, Rita Fabri, Carolyn Glasnow, Bob Jones, Bill Hayes, and Carolyn Reiss.

Moselle Milliken, instructor in the Hotel and Restaurant Division, handles publicity for the affair.

In the event that anyone missed this semester's production of Blithe Spirit in the college's little theater, the suggestion is that The Late Christopher Bean be taken in. To be offered for six days starting May 12, it should rate a "look-in" if only for the fact that the Little Theater now has a stage, an innovation over last semester. The play itself has promise, too.

RAMifications

THIS is the time of the year—spring — when somebody is bound to suggest a picnic. Now a picnic is one of man's worst inventions. The human mind has invented many means of self torture—radio, for instance—but few can compete with an old fashioned Sunday picnic.

If at all possible one should avoid picnics completely. But few of us are this skillful, so herewith a few warnings about this great American sport.

Needless to say, the picnic is a feminine invention. Probably designed to show the males how attractive they look in a sun suit or what a wonderful little lunch she can whip up with her delicate hands. As a wise veteran of many of these lunches, we recommend stowing a couple of cans of C rations in the car. This will help stave off starvation.

TWO KINDS

A recent scientific survey showed that there were two kinds of picnics: Sad picnics and very sad picnics. Beach picnics fall in the latter classification, as here we have the added hazard of sand.

Of course, everybody knows that an invitation to a picnic is a very bad sign to begin with. It is almost as dangerous to wary males as being invited to meet the family. When she smiles sweetly and says, "Wouldn't it be fun, honey?" Beware, brother, beware. Cherchez la femme, we always say, although we've never been sure what it meant.

When planning a picnic it is best to expect the worst because that's what you're going to get anyway. There are two schools of thought on the can-opener problem. There are those who say be sure to remember it, and those who say it will just get lost anyway, so leave it home.

Finding a location is another major problem. Some friends of ours once found what they thought was an ideal spot along the beach. Secluded, quiet, and restful, it looked like the perfect spot. It later turned out to be a garbage dump.

PROBLEM OF THE WEATHER

The weather being one of the chief hazards of going on a picnic requires much thought and planning. We have found that the United States Weather Bureau is completely reliable and only about 90 per cent inaccurate.

Webster's Collegiate Dictionary describes this unhappy experience as a short trip into the country by a pleasure party carrying its own food. It would be difficult to find a more misleading description. Is anything said about ants, those fiendish little insects who attack like wild beasts?

Nothing is mentioned about that terrible concoction known as potato salad, without which no picnic would be complete. It is obvious that the dictionary has taken the coward's way out.

Wary Male Discloses Sunday Picnic Problem

Editorial: Councilmen Come Out Into The Open; Call Out For Representative Student Candidates

SPRING weather is not the sole "giant-killer" which is making its presence felt about campus these days. Along with the sunny days comes what, in past years, has often been labeled a dark cloud which is more than capable of putting the damper on carefree Spring spirit.

Election time is rolling around once again. With it comes a taste of democracy in action hereabouts. In the past, the college has been known as the home of the two party system among the State's two-year institutions.

Last semester a third party entered the race sporting the title of Independents. The intensified interest in party politics which had been prevalent during previous semesters appeared to slacken somewhat, although each party operated in high gear during the campaigning period.

Still, it was generally conceded that the intense partisanship of the past was gone.

The number of votes cast by the students also slipped as the interest among candidates took a noticeable drop, no reflection upon the current office holders intended.

However, it seems a shame to see something which was built up through the years take a turn toward the casual attitude.

One way to insure the continuation of a good competitive feeling in local politics is to secure a representative group of candidates regardless of their affiliations or party backing.

Now is the time for prospective politicos to act, not after the new semester has begun. Petitions are now available for candidacy. A representative group of candidates makes for a representative governing body.

SIGNS of the times: Associated Student President Pete Isola brought the Student Council out into the open last Tuesday when he held the usual indoor session outdoors, allowing one and all to air his views.

Might have been a move to combat spring fever, but there's one thing for sure the mother nature meetings will prevent. If the council continues to meet out in the open, it will be some time before any incensed member "hits the ceiling."

Four-Wheeled Eatery Features Popcorn a la Paris

'Pop's' Wagon Is Welcome Relief Between Classes

By Bill McWhinney

Fresh popcorn, peanuts and ice cream have been the tools of the trade for Kahn "Pop" Mihan for as long as most of the students at City College can remember. His mobile confectionery, located daily at the south end of the loop has almost become an institution on the campus—and rightly so.

"Pop's" pleasant European accent, coupled with a contagious smile, provides a welcome break for students trudging up or down the "highlands" between classes.

Short lines are not uncommon during the hourly ten-minute intervals but these are short lived. During the lulls you will very likely find Mihan preparing a fresh batch of popcorn with an exactness usually associated with an articulate Parisian salad chef.

It's practically impossible to engage "Pop" in a lengthy conversation, but even if this were accomplished, little could be derived from it. His third hand English is quite a shock to unfamiliar ears. "Allo, wotsferya?" his most common salutation, is usually returned by a bewildered expression, followed by a flash of enlightenment and "Yes indeed, I'll take a dozen."

Although the "old boy" has not yet mastered the English language he must be up on the American business methods as his four-wheeled eatery has a surprisingly high rate of turnover.

Perhaps "Pop's" thriving concern is due to his happy smile, or amiable manner, or even disposition—at any rate, Kahn Mihan and his vending truck have become an indispensable part in the makeup of the campus life at City College.

KAHN "POP" MIHAN distributes candy, popcorn, peanuts to hurried, between-class customers whose regular patronage makes the little wagon a popular spot for getting those vitamins.

Current Hilltopics by Lawson

DOWN Memory Lane: Back in the halcyon days before the war, old City College came up with some pretty fair ball clubs, even as now. One casaba squad that won more than its share of tilts was the '37 outfit, which boasted of some very talented lads. Where are they now? Ernie Loustalot, a forward, works for the Veterans Administration, and still plays active ball for the French A.C. . . . Bill Phelan, guard, is in the ice business, and at last reports was married to Gussie Raegner, former gal's tennis champ . . . Willie Blackfield, another capable guard, lost his life in the Recent Unpleasantness, as pilot of a B-24, and the other lad went on from the Ram campus to become one of U.C.'s greatest ball hawks. . . . You know him as Ralph Hillsman, current mentor of the Ram five. . . .

Recession Note: With the closing of the dormitories, in concurrence with the dropping of the summer course, the Ocean Ave. merchants are going to find it pretty tough sledding. A good portion of their business came from this campus, (cateries especially) and one or two are already planning to fold until Fall. . . .

Roy Diederichsen Is Proud Dad Of Champ

By Larry Cahn

Roy Diederichsen, college boxing coach, was blessed with a main event yesterday when his wife, Jeanne Diederichsen, gave birth to a winner. Roy Marlin Diederichsen, who weighed in at 7 lbs. 3 ozs. Roy Jr. is the Diederichsen's first child.

Diederichsen returned from Pasadena after masterminding the Ram boxers to second place honors in the National Junior College Boxing Tournament—in time to grab a first at the maternity ward.

Diederichsen's comment after his first look was, "He looks like a champ to me."

AS President Heads Scores Of Campus Officers

By Bill Thomas

The position of a bank president produces great respect, but the office of a student president of City College is more likely to call for the question, "Which one?"

Five presidents are elected at the end of each semester by the Associated Students of City College, causing much confusion to many who go to the polls.

The five presidents elected are the Associated Student President, the Associated Men Student President, the Associated Women Student President, the Sophomore President, and the Freshman President.

TOP MAN

The Associated Student President is the major figure in student government. He represents all students at the college. He is the presiding officer at all Student Council meetings, an ex-officio member of all committees and councils, and is head of the cabinet. He appoints the majority of the appointed officers in the government with the approval of the Student Council.

The Associated Men Student President represents the men students at the college. He is a member of the Social Committee and of the President's Cabinet and is required to be present at Student Council meetings.

The Associated Women Student President represents the women students at the college; her duties are comparable to those of AMS President.

CLASS WHEELS

The Sophomore President and the Freshman President represent their classes respectively and have relatively the same duties as the AMS and AWS Presidents.

Although there is an abundance of Presidents in the government, there is only one Vice-President elected each semester. The Associated Student Vice-President takes the place of the President in his absence. She is chairman of the Social Committee and is the only member of the executive branch of the government to have a vote in the Student Council.

Each student is represented by three of the presidents. For example if he is a Freshman and a male he is represented by the Associated Student President, the Associated Men Student President, and the Freshman Class President.

ELITE MEET

At least once each month the President's Cabinet meets. The cabinet is not a cosy little group, however. There are 17 members, each one representing a segment of student government.

There are five presidents present at these meetings—not to mention three commissioners and five chairmen. Naturally no one uses the word "Mr. President."

• Wha' Hoppened?

Editor, The Guardsman:

When I first entered this college in 1947 there was a "suggestion list" to the instructors which listed various days during midterm week that certain departments planned to give midterms.

What happened to that list?

As it stands now, the average student can have all his midterms on one or two days of midterm week. This makes the pressure on the student very great.

Why can't the "suggested days for midterms" list be instituted again to give the students a fair chance to make good grades?

Baseball, Swimming, Track All Lose Over Week-End

By Gene Van Dyke

The college nine, after gaining a 5-2 lead in the fifth, blew up in the same inning, allowed six runs to be scored and thus assured San Mateo of their twelfth straight NCJC Conference win, 9-6, Saturday at Fitzgerald Field, San Mateo.

In the second Jack Bukowatz tripled Tom Bournellis and Ray White home. Both runners had singled.

A third inning rally that produced two runs on Lou Williams' triple was erased by Bulldog second baseman Frank Lico, when the latter came up with an unassisted double play.

Williams hit three for four and drove in three runs, while Bukowatz and Bournellis each hit safely twice for three RBI's.

City College's track squad won fourth place honors in the NCJC Conference meet held at Modesto Saturday. The team scored 18 points.

Sprint star Irv Beltrame was the lone Ram to win a first place. He captured the 220 yard run in the respectable time of :21.9. He just missed being the day's only double winner when he ran second in a :10.1 century.

California's junior varsity swimmers dumped the college mermen 63-12 at Berkeley Saturday.

The Ram baseball team will conclude their Conference play with a doubleheader against Modesto Saturday at home.

Bucs Tip Alumni In 26-25 Thriller, Take Intramural Basketball Tourney

Forced to come from behind for the first time this season, the Balboa Bucconeer aggregation came a 5 point deficit in the final minutes of the game to defeat the Balboa Alumni, 26-25, and annex the intramural basketball championship crown last Wednesday at the men's gymnasium.

It was a team victory for the Bucs, with Ernie Domecus, the Game's high-point man with 11 points, pouring them through from the sides, while Andy Divodi, the Leaskou brothers, Nick and Jim, and Don Malin played a heads-up floor game.

The smooth play of Irv Thomas was the main factor in the lead held by the Alumni throughout the game. Besides setting up many fine plays, Thomas was high for the losers with 8 points.

The Alumni jumped to a quick 5 point lead at the outset of the game and led, 13-11, at half-time, but their players began to tire and they could not hold a 1 point lead for the final 3 minutes, and lost their chance to tie the game by missing a free-throw after the game had ended.

Coach Ralph Hillsman will hold basketball tryouts today and Thursday at 3 o'clock.

Fresno Relays Beckon Klemmermen Saturday

Two more track meets face the local thinclads this season, and both of these are relay events. The Fresno Relays take place Saturday, followed a week later by the Modesto Relays.

Grover Klemmer, Ram mentor, will take his complete ten-man traveling squad to both meets. However, the locals are not expected to shine in the final results. The mile relay and the sprint relays hold the most hope for college points.

Irv Beltrame, Owen Moore, Marvin Hoffman, Ken Fogarty, Bob Bland, John Hurst, and Roy Carnegie hold up the heavy end of the Ram load for the remainder of the season.

Lack of depth has handicapped the Rams all season.

Baseball's Bad Boy Escapes Edict Again

QUICK tempered Leo Durocher, manager of the New York Giants, escaped unscathed for the second time in his fiery career, last week, following a brush with a heckling fan in the Polo Grounds.

A five day suspension was lifted by baseball commissioner, Happy Chandler, when enough evidence could not be produced, concerning assault charges by Dodger fan Fred Boysen. The now famous incident centered around Durocher, who was accused of hitting and kicking Boysen, following a Dodger-Giant game.

Immediately following the incident, 22 year old Boysen said he would file assault charges against the Giant skipper for alleged internal injuries. Boysen's lawyer said he would file the charge, but the decision would not affect Durocher's baseball exoneration.

This is not the first time Durocher has had a run-in with a fan. In 1946, The Lip was acquitted in a court of law on a charge of beating John Christian under the Ebbets Field grandstand, with the aid of a park policeman.

That makes two strikes on Durocher. Should he get into another scrape with a fan he may be out of baseball for good. In the spring of 1947, Durocher was suspended for one year for conduct "detrimental to baseball."

In direct contrast with the volatile Lip is City College's baseball coach, Bill Fischer. Fischer is famouts for his gruff voice and awe-inspiring manner. Yet, Fischer seems to do an able job of piloting the Rams.

At any rate, the fans, writers, and players were on Durocher's side in his latest escapade. However, should The Lip get involved again, he may not be quite as lucky as he was this time. Chandler will see to that.

Benefit College Grid Bowl Contest Proposed By Bakersfield Shriners

By Walt Roessing, Sports Editor

Kern County Shriners are interested in holding a benefit two-year college football game in Bakersfield on either Friday night, December 2, or Saturday afternoon, December 3.

The grid contest, designated as the Potato Bowl, has not been officially sanctioned as yet, however.

Approval must come from the State Athletic Commission of Junior Colleges, which sanctions all post season contests for two-year institutions in California.

The sponsors will receive an answer to their proposal soon, for the commission is meeting this Saturday at the Hotel Californian in San Francisco to discuss all current problems.

Chairman of the board is Dr. J. Paul Mohr, City College's vice-president and the former commissioner of the Northern California Junior College Conference. Mohr has just started serving his new three-year term.

Reports indicate that the commission will let the Shriners go ahead with their proposal, since the proceeds of the planned game will help many unfortunate crippled children.

The type of football game, whether it is played between two teams, or whether it will feature outstanding two-year college stars, has not been decided upon, for the contest is still in the preliminary planning stages.

Some observers favor the individual player idea, like the San Francisco and Miami Shrine contests, but that is unlikely, for the participating stars would not have very much time to practice together, because of study commitments.

Whichever way the game is played, it would certainly benefit a great many people and provide a greater interest and incentive among the two-year colleges throughout the nation.

Varsity Boxers Serve As Managers In Approaching Intra Novice Tournament

Signups for the intramural boxing tournament are gradually increasing and applications will be accepted until Thursday, director Tom Wilson announced yesterday.

Members of this semester's varsity boxing squad have assumed the roles of managers, and are holding daily workouts for the prospective fighters in the men's gymnasium.

The elimination tournament will begin Monday, May 23, and the finals will be held on the evening of Wednesday, May 25.

Coach Roy Diederichsen, who is in charge of the tournament, said that all applicants will be given a fair chance to display their abilities in the forthcoming tryouts.

The weight classes are 120, 125, 130, 135, 140, 145, 155, 165, 175 and heavyweight.

Managers will accept anyone who wishes to fight for his respective team under their tutelage.

College Tennis Coach Wins Doubles Laurels

Harry Buttimer, college tennis coach and instructor, teamed with Harry Roche recently to win the men's doubles championship in the Northern California tennis tournament on the Golden Gate courts.

The youthful mentor thereby adds another cup to his collection, achieved through his driving type of tennis tournament play.

Burkhead Takes Local Mermen To Napa Tests

Napa will play host, Saturday morning, when the Ram swimmers tangle for the Southern Division championship in their final meet of the season.

A good chance is conceded the locals, for they meet teams that will be in their class instead of the cinbs that they have been meeting during the season. Napa, Grant Tech, and Vallejo Junior Colleges are expected to give the Rams the toughest competition.

Not much has been heard of these teams, but the fact that they have pools and have supported good teams for years is sufficient knowledge that they will give a rough time to any comers.

Art Swartz, Bill Knapp and Max Seigel are expected to lead Ram activities.

Round 'n About

NOW that the passage of scholarship competition has been officialized, among the various clubs on campus, organizations are going wild in an attempt to cultivate a crop of sharpies in the numerous outfits.

From this day hence, all club members will fall out to meetings with three point grade average minds, and the latest copy of "Who's Who at City College."

As a conclusion to this little bit of information, we nominate "Button, Button, Who's Got the Plaque?" as this week's theme song!

Having fully recovered from informal initiation up Russian River way, Zeta Chi had its bi-annual dinner dance last week at Lyle's on El Camino Real.

As a result of the soft lights and sweet music, the gals and their best men were found afterwards floating around in cloud ten, located anywhere.

Drama Society holds its next meeting tonight in Building 2, west campus. Discussion of plans for the Mardi Gras float, and the traditional rip skits will highlight the evening.

There will be an important meeting of the Latin American Club this Thursday, May 12, in the main building basement between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m., when all tickets and money should be returned to clear funds of the group.

Another meeting, Friday, during college hour in Room 253, is scheduled for discussion of the organization's Spring Dance. Everyone concerned should attend.

As the skiing season draws to a wet close once again, Ski-Rams have turned their spotlight of activities elsewhere, and what's better than party time? Three flings are scheduled before the semester's end, including a picnic at Adobe Creek later this month.

Peanuts, Popcorn? Just look up the Newman Club during Mardi Gras time. They should have a popping good booth!!

The latest in men's footwear was seen recently during a session at the west campus fountain, when Money (Lots of It) Hickman, local artist and Tau Chi Sigman, fell out in maroon suedes; yes, maroon suede shoes.

Any relation to Sam Suede?

Dr. Cherney Speaks Here Thursday Night

Dr. Lee S. Cherney of the American Cancer Society will speak here in Room 136, Thursday, May 12, at 7:30 p.m. on research and treatment of cancer, Pi Mu Gamma President Helen Rich, announced yesterday.

Dr. Cherney will outline the diagnosis and treatment of cancer at its inception to the latest and final treatment of the case.

All students and the public are invited.

Credits For Summer Work Wait Final Action By School Officials

Final action by school department officials on a recommendation that retail merchandising and transportation majors may secure up to five units of credit for on-the-job training during summer vacation is being awaited here, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said recently.

Students interested in this program are urged to sign up now, pending a final okay. Transportation majors should see Glenn Mercer, instructor in that department, in Room 252 at 9 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, or at 1 p.m. on Thursdays. Merchandising majors should see Samuel Ziegler, merchandising instructor, in Room 249 at 10 a.m. daily. Registration for the program is limited, Ziegler pointed out.

A number of transportation majors are now employed in jobs that would, during the summer, give them five or six units toward graduation, Mercer said. They should consult with him to see if they will fall into the specified category.

If the board approves the plan, Mercer said, work experience coupled with class room training will make an ideal learning plan.

Debaters Vie For Places In Two Speech Contests

Elimination contests will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Room 111 to select a representative from the college for the Seventh Annual Public Speaking Contest sponsored by the Native Daughters of the Golden West, Michael Griffin, debate team adviser, announced yesterday.

Four topics for the contest, which allows entrants ten minutes speaking time, are California History, California Centennials, California Pioneers, and California Landmarks.

Winner of tomorrow's competition will be eligible to enter the regional meet to be held this Friday, May 13, at 8:30 p.m. in the Native Daughters' Home, 555 Baker street, San Francisco.

State finals in the competition will be held in the Native Daughters' building, San Jose, on Monday, June 20. State awards are $50.00 for first place, and $25.00 for second, while regional prizes are $15.00 and $10.00.

In last year's meet, Jack Mix, representing the college, won the regional contest and placed second in the state contest.

Floral Representatives Present At Arbor Day

Present at the Arbor Day planting of California native trees, which the college featured here April 29, were several members of the Spring Blossom and Wild Flower Association.

Latin American Club Hosts Dance This Friday

Rumbas, sambas, congas and other South American dances are listed as features of the spring dance of the Latin American Club, held on Friday, May 13 from 8 p.m. to midnight in the college auditorium.

Latin American music is provided by Luis Alonzo Pollo and his orchestra.

Committee members said that admission is $1.00 per person, with a floor show added for entertainment.

Club officers helping to make this semi-annual dance a success are President Victor M. Solorzano; Vice-President Benito Kerbel; Secretary Gloria Bonitz, and Social Chairman Jose Luis Lozada.

College Commended For Sportsmanship

MODESTO, Calif.—City College of San Francisco was officially commended at a meeting here for its good sportsmanlike conduct in insisting that the Northern California Junior College Athletic Conference enforce a suspension penalty upon it following a minor infraction.

Because the college's tennis team was not properly registered with the conference this season, the San Francisco college will not be able to officially enter a tennis squad in conference matches next season, according to conference rules.

When the matter was presented to City College representatives, they were the first to insist that the college be penalized.

Military Tactics Course In Fall Offers Chance For Commission

Opportunity for a commission in the National Guard or the Army Reserve Corps will be offered this fall through the reinstated Military Science course, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said yesterday.

Composed of three sections, Military Training covers Military History and Policy of the United States, Coast Artillery Training, and Military Drill.

Completion of this course, which includes enlistment in the National Guard for those wishing commissions, qualifies students as officers in the 112th Anti-Aircraft Brigade of the National Guard.

"This course does not guarantee a student commission," said Fred McFarland, co-instructor with James Hughes in Military Science. "It only makes him qualified. The appointment depends upon the individual student and his qualifications as a member of the National Guard."

Students enlisting in the National Guard and completing Military Drill will be fulfilling the Physical Education requirement of the college as well as being paid for their time.

Dave Irvine Wins Laurels In Christopher Bean First Night

By Dick Briggs

Half hearted chuckles from a crammed gathering of first nighters responded to vain attempt at comedy by the City College Players in their curtain-raising performance of The Late Christopher Bean, held last night in the East Campus theatre.

Noticeably inferior to the recently successful Blithe Spirit, weakness of the Christopher Bean play may be responsible for the actors' difficulty in characterizing the roles.

Though performers sometimes reacted with less poise than wooden marionettes, spectators delighted at the antics exhibited by Dave Irvine, who merits foremost praise for his mimicry of the suave and shrewd dealing art merchant whose efforts to obtain valuable paintings from the Hagetts are not successful.

As Dr. Hagett, Gilbert Mitchell, whose simulation of the prescribed New England brogue was in contrast with the undesired "southern" accent of some cast members, played his role of a guillible, slow-thinking country doctor with an adeptness comparable to Irvine's showmanship.

Jacqueline Apfel as Susan, and LaVerne Benstock as Ada, showed originality in depicting the usual backneyed type of romantic adolescents. Rosalyn Mincer, better as a character actress, played well as the central figure of housemaid Abby. Taliant, the egotistical forger of oil paintings, was personified with convincing ability by novice actor, Arnold Solkov.

Director Paul Ellison resumes the play tonight at 8:15 for the second of its six evening run, which culminates Wednesday, May 17. There is no show Sunday. More experienced performers will headline tonight's play in the persons of Mary Ann Stewart as Mrs. Hagett, Mary Cooke as Susan, and Hewitt Kendall as Warren. Playing her first role, Ilse Faltin will play the important part of Abby, and William Zamora will act as Rosen.

Candidate Petition Deadline Changed

Dates for petitions due and for posters to be approved have been changed, Election Commissioner John Mix and Associated Student President Pete Isola said Tuesday.

Petitions are due at 3 p.m. Tuesday, May 17, and posters may be approved 9 a.m. Wednesday, May 18.

The change was decided upon when the Registrar's Office said it could not have the candidates' grade averages ready before next week.

The election rules are summarized as follows:

1. All publicity stunts such as parades, speeches, letters, handbills, etc., must have the approval of the Dean of Student Affairs.

2. All posters must be approved by Roy Pasini, Publications Board Chairman. Pasini will approve posters in The Guardsman office Monday, May 18, at 9 a.m. A poster is any material that is posted. Handbills can not be used as posters.

Each candidate will be allowed five posters on the campus and five off the campus. No poster shall be larger than 22 by 28 inches. No poster may be put up before May 18.

3. Campaigning of any sort is prohibited in the main building.

4. Elections will be held in the Student Lounge, Tuesday, May 24, from 9:30 to 4:00 p.m., and Wednesday, May 25, from 9:30 to 3:00 p.m. No campaigning will be allowed in the lounge during election.

5. No candidate may spend more than $15 on his campaign.

Any violations of the campaign regulations will meet with disqualification.

Ram-Pages Sales Are Extended To May 20

Ram-Pages sales campaigning has been extended to Friday, May 20, Bob McVey, editor, said yesterday.

Yearbook orders will be taken by staff members on campus and in the student store until this date. Books are also on sale at the student bank and in Building 6, Room R, for $2.50 to Associated Student members and $5.00 to others.

McVey told reporters that anyone who wishes to see the book going through the process of lithography is welcome to visit the printer at the San Francisco Lithography Company, 320 Sacramento Street, near Front Street, on the third floor.

West Campus Parking Area To Be Used At Mardi Gras

To house the May 27 Mardi Gras, largest in the college's history, Harry Williams, Associated Men Student president, said yesterday that the entire west campus parking area will be utilized.

Some 35 booths will line the space fronting building 12, between buildings 19 and 20, the AMS head pointed out.

At the northeast corner of the Waldorf, building 13, Mardy Leaver and his band will set the rhythm for dancing under the stars, the committee-declared.

A 45 minute parade up Ocean avenue, commencing from Junipero boulevard and terminating at the campus, is expected to feature the opening of the Mardi Gras. The parade will begin its trek at 7 p.m.

Frank Bayol, Larry Weber, Chuck Murphy, Bob Baumgartner, Lane Currie, Danie Legan, Joe Schwab, J. Evensen, Irv. Cummings and Dick Doolan are helping in the presentation of the Mardi Gras celebration.

Marietta Tickets Go On Sale Today

Tickets go on sale today for the college's opera production, Naughty Marietta. They are available at The Guardsman office, the bank, and the telephone cage in the main building, Maurice Power, faculty manager of ticket sales, announced yesterday.

Prices of tickets are 50 cents for all student association members, children under 12, and faculty members with honorary Associated Student cards. General admission is $1.00.

All performances are at 8:15 in the evening, Wednesday, June 1, through Saturday, June 4.

An offer of participation by interested students was made recently by George Capanis, student manager for the opera.

"Any student interested in taking part in the production phase of Naughty Marietta can see me," said Capanis.

This is primarily for students not already engaged in campus activities so they can take a more active part in college life.

The college's last opera production, Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, grossed $1,065 with expenses totaling $600.

Naughty Marietta, like Figaro, is co-directed by Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler, respectively of the music and drama departments.

Student Council Members Assigned Term Paper On Student Activities

Members of the Student Council were assigned their "term papers" Tuesday when Associated Student President Pete Isola reminded the council that each member is required to turn in a complete report at the end of the semester.

A member of the council said he understood the council would have to vote on the proposal before the paper could be assigned. Isola disagreed, and an intense study of the constitution followed.

However, it was discovered the constitution does require all officers of the Associated Students to turn in a report at the end of the semester.

The council also passed amendments to the constitution for the consideration of the voters at the next election. These are the amendments in brief. They must be passed by a two-thirds vote.

Two more appointive officers were added. They are an Alumni Liaison Officer and a Parliamentarian.

Eligibility requirements for the Associated Men Student President and Women Student President were increased to 30 units.

The office of Yell Leader, which had no requirements, under the proposed change will require a candidate to have completed 15 units.

The President's Cabinet, which was required to meet once a month, would not be required to meet at any time.

The "C" average requirement was interpreted to mean 1.00.

Assistant Dean Clears Fraternity Eligibility

All fraternities that were in a doubtful status with the dean's office have been cleared, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, announced yesterday.

During college hour today a meeting of the Club Activities Board will determine the position of organizations that have not yet received the approval of the board, Helen Stoker, CAB Secretary, told reporters.

If any club has not received an original charter a representative should attend the meeting and apply for one, Frances McCarthy, CAB vice-president, said.

The only organization that has been accepted following application was the Drama Society.

South Of The Border Tempos Tonight Highlight The Latin American Dance

Latin American tempo predominates tonight at the Latin American Club dance in the auditorium from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Presenting its semi-annual informal dance of spring, the club has Luis Alonzo Pollo and his orchestra. Admission fee is $1.00 per person.

Assisting social chairman Jose Luis Lozada are the club officers, President Victor M. Solorzano, Vice-President Benito Kerbel, and Secretary Gloria Bonitz.

A floor show presented by club members will add entertainment for the Latin American dance theme. The show includes a tango danced by Carlos Valdivia, a native Peruvian. Also in the show are singers Oscar Rivas and Rafael Monpos.

According to committee members, waiters, dressed in native costume, will serve cokes and sandwiches to dancers seated at the tables.

Dancers alternating rumbas, congas, sambas, and tangos with fox trots will witness members in straw sombreros, wide sashes, scrapes and sandals.

Club Meetings, Movie, And Forum Scheduled For College Hour Today

Club meetings are slated for today's college hour at 10:40 a.m., Assistant Dean of Men Jack Brady announced yesterday.

He added that all clubs wishing to meet today will do so in rooms previously assigned.

Rally Commissioner Lane Currie, speaking of the Rally Committee's preparations for their appearance at the College of Marin Wednesday, May 25, stated that final arrangements with Marin representatives were made yesterday for the rally.

Howard Carver, general superintendent of the Emporium, will speak in the campus auditorium during college hour today before the business education forum, Instructor Glenn Mercer announced.

Carver has been with the Emporium over 15 years and is a graduate of Stanford University. He will discuss retail management and merchandising as a field of employment.

California and its Natural Resources, a geographic documentary, is the film billed for 10 a.m. and during college hour in Room 136 today, with Madison Devlin of Audio Visual Aids as director.

Record Commencement Class Will Get Degrees At Opera House June 17

Commencement ceremonies at which a record number of 1,100 graduates will receive AA degrees, will be held at the San Francisco Opera House Friday, June 17, Assistant to the President Lloyd Luckmann announced yesterday.

The group is composed of this year's summer, fall and spring classes and complete attendance will mark the largest commencement ever held by the college.

Rehearsal plans call for a practice performance at 2 p.m. on June 17, with the actual commencement exercise slated for 7:45 p.m.

Speakers featured at the evening performance include Pete Isola, Associated Student president; Adrien Falk, member of the Board of Education, and Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools, Luckmann said.

The valedictorian for the graduating classes has not been chosen yet.

It's Only Human Nature

SINCE the days of the pioneers there has been a slow but sure transition in the American people from an independent to dependent state of mind.

Some put it down to the technological development of a progressive country: others consider it a result of the great number of friends and neighbors the modern man has to whom he can turn for advice and counsel, but the answer is more likely to be found in the amazing laziness of the present day American.

The tendency is even found to be gaining ground on the American college campus, which is too vital a spot to allow such a damaging disease to fester.

FEW REALLY TRY

It is becoming less frequent these days to find a student who is capable of completing a college curriculum without giving numerous counsellors and instructors gray hairs.

If things come to that sad state of affairs when "the leaders of tomorrow" are incapable of making sane and logical decisions on their own hook, what kind of country will we have a hundred years hence?

Back in the dawning of our not too ancient country, a man was generally on his own, and if a decision was called for, he either made it on the spot or else he was not around to make any more.

But today, not even our President in Washington, who is, in the popular conception, one of America's smartest men, can make up his mind without going into conference with an even dozen aides and 500 representatives.

However, this is not to be held against the President personally, as this imposition has been forced on him by numerous laws and congressional acts in most cases.

FUTURE AT STAKE

The point to be emphasized is, if America's citizens continue to lose the ability to think and reason for themselves, then their country will surely be at the downward turning point of its history.

Maybe it is a little too far fetched to draw a parallel between the decisions made in college and those made by the President, but it is a psychological fact that the more a human characteristic is used the stronger it becomes, and this one is being practiced much too little on the American college campus.

It is much too frequent today that a student can be heard saying "I give up," when everyone knows he hasn't even tried. In classrooms, too, it has come to the point where students are afraid to answer questions put forward by instructors, solely because they are afraid of being wrong.

It has always seemed to us that the sin isn't in having tried and failed, but in having not tried at all. Perhaps it is only human nature.

Put Up With It, Men! Dances Here To Stay

WE might as well face it, men, college dances are here to stay. Many of us would like to be brave enough to refuse to go, but such a radical stand brands one as a social outcast. Therefore we will confine ourselves to a few gentle words of warning about this phase of college life.

Having been to more college dances than we can count on our fingers and what few toes we have left, we consider ourselves an authority on this esoteric subject.

Most of these dances have painfully cute names such as Carrot Top Tumble, Fresh-Soph Struggle, Moonbeams and Sunshine, or maybe it was Moonshine and Sunbeams.

But, in the end, it matters little about the name. It is the same game no matter how you spell it. The helpless male is shanghaied, struggling and screaming, to the hotel Marktop where Rudolph Slipstick and his orchestra provide music (his opinion) from 8:30 p.m. until what seems like eternity.

We have noticed that this student is so popular at college dances that he never dances with the same girl twice. Probably wants to give them all the same break.

As William Shakespeare or somebody once said, if musie be the food of love, hit it, Jack.

we recommend specializing in only one. It is far less complicated. Personally, we are a two-step specialist. As a matter of fact we consider ourselves the outstanding two-stepper west of the Mississippi.

Of course, there is sometimes a bit of trouble when your partner waltzes while you two-step. This is a dreadful situation and can only be overcome by sheer determination. We always take a firm stand on this issue. They can play rumbas, waltzes, congas, or tangos all they want to, but we will not be swayed from our good old two-step.

ORIGINAL STEPS

If you are the creative type you might find it good fun to originate your own step as you go along. This adds some sport to the proceedings. We know one student who has perfected an eccentric step consisting of a long glide, three or four quick little steps and then a series of leaps. All in all it is a fine imitation of a grasshopper with a hot foot.

We have noticed that this student is so popular at college dances that he never dances with the same girl twice. Probably wants to give them all the same break.

As William Shakespeare or somebody once said, if musie be the food of love, hit it, Jack.

Editorial: Guardsman Maintains Impartial Status In Campus Elections, Publishes No Stunt Issues

LOCAL political aspirants will be turned loose on campus come next Wednesday, May 18; when an open season is officially declared for all elective Associated Student positions.

The Guardsman, therefore, takes this opportunity to state its stand in the forthcoming election and campaign periods.

As in the past, The Guardsman will continue to maintain an impartial attitude in regard to all candidates running for office in the Associated Student elections.

This non-partisanship in campus elections is maintained without sacrificing or limiting the Freedom of the Press exercised by this newspaper. Columnists will continue to present their views on any issues around the college as long as they remain within the bounds of good taste.

News stories, however, will follow the strict line of professional journalism. All news stories will report only the news, without bias, without slant and without coloring the facts.

Beyond the above stated bounds, the Guardsman, editorially speaking, washes its hands of the whole affair.

Twice, in the history of the college and The Guardsman, bogus sheets have been distributed on campus during election time bearing a variation of this publication's nameplate.

The Guardsman had nothing to do with the publication of these "papers," and furthermore, if such a production is again attempted this year, The Guardsman will definitely not have had a hand in putting said product together.

In no manner whatsoever, will The Guardsman attempt to sway any opinion in this, or any other political election on campus.

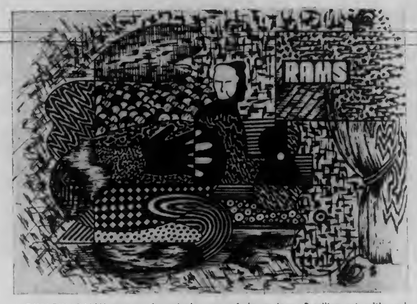
It cannot be stressed too strongly that The Guardsman, the official publication of the college, maintains an impartial outlook in elections and that it appears for distribution only in its traditional and accepted form, never in any type of curtailed, biased, or "stunt" edition.

The Guardsman feels that election time is the ideal opportunity for students to take part in American democracy.

Visiting Arteeste Does Own Version Of Rally

'Arty' Brazilian Interprets In A Cubistic Medium

By Nancy Loughlin



"Psychological overtones and undertones are used pictorially by the cubist in order to depict an object composed of many things, for instance a college rally which I have interpreted cubistically."

So claims the eminent Brazilian art critic and abstractionist, Salvador de La Varga, who refers to his artistic product pictured at the right.

Senor de La Varga drew wondering glances from passers-by as he supped on a cup of coffee and a Bull Durham while visiting the City College campus recently on a tour of local colleges.

The dapper young Brazilian has been commissioned by his country's pictorial magazine, Vida, to interpret American college life through an abstract medium.

Attired in a fashionable suede sport jacket with matching beret, the swart-faced young Brazilian resumed his discussion of his favorite medium, abstract art, to similarly-attired local arteestes.

A COLLEGE RALLY as seen through the eyes of the eminent Brazilian art critic and abstractionist is pictured above. . . . See?!

"We modern arteestes will have no —what do you Americans call it— 'truck' with the reactionaries of the art world." . . . all this said in a broad Brazilian accent.

"We have appointed ourselves the disciples of that great radical in the arts, Pablo Picasso."

Going on with an explanation of abstract art, the worthy senor haltingly told of the evolution of synthetic cubism, which explanation prompted an aside from one of his listeners—"I wish he would explain his explanation."

"Synthetic cubism takes the disassociated objects and reassociates them until they assume a relationship. My version of—you call them 'rallies'?—is readily discernible as such."

At this his audience shifted perceptibly, one doodler scratching out his abstract interpretation of a Brazilian artist to draw an un-abstract version of a bathing suit-clad coed.

"For instance, the disassociated objects are integrated on a single surface until they assume a perception of planes and volumes, thus attaining a nature which is akin to the relationship in our own solar system."

Thus striking home on a term of which the would-be artists had at least heard, the dapper senor terminated the conversation with a wave of his walking stick, picked up his portfolio, and sidled out the door.

Senor de La Varga's traveling junket ended with his visit to this college. He will return home to his family's hacienda to help tend his wealthy sire's oil fields.

Debater Magid Prepping For Honors In Hearst Oratory Contest

FRESHMAN DEBATER Armond Magid apparently disproves the theory that a contest can be won only "hands down."

By Dick Williamson

Patent-medicine man? Barker? Politician? No, the young man pictured here delivering a vehement address is a prize winning orator.

This aspiring Patrick Henry is Armond Magid, who was recently chosen to represent the college in the Seventh Annual Hearst Newspapers' Tournament of Orators honoring Alexander Hamilton.

ABILITY TO SPEAK

It was not what he knew about the reactionary statesman that won Magid the honor, because this he got from a history book; it was his ability to speak and to put over a point.

When asked why he had developed his ability at articulate sounds to such a high point, Magid replied, "Well, like most people, I like to hear myself talk."

Although representing the Rams in the bay area eliminations last night, and with good luck and good lungs, in the state finals on May 16 and the nationals on May 19, he takes no speech courses at the college.

'AWAY BACK WHEN'

His proficiency in conversing began while he attended Presidio Junior High School. His instructors, who were tired of telling him to stop whispering to his classmates, put him into the 1945 Hearst Tourney, and Magid talked himself into the finals. He then decided to become a lawyer.

After this Magid needed no prodding to palaver, and while he attended Lowell High School he rang up a series of honors for his excellent speechmaking.

He graduated from the 1947 Junior Statesman Summer School at Montezuma. "Dean Sandys was an instructor there," he whispered slyly.

PREVIOUS AWARDS

The American Legion conferred a first place award upon him for his versatile verbiage in 1948, and in the same year Magid placed fourth in the Northern California National Forensic League extemporaneous speech contest held at College of Pacific.

To add prestige to his aspirations of entering the legal field after graduation from University of California, he can boast that he is a former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in the Junior Statesmen state government.

'CREDIT WHERE DUE'

During an interview, Magid iterated that Michael Griffin, debate coach, is an excellent adviser, and "if I do win any honors in the Hearst contest, it will be a result of Mr. Griffin's efforts," he said. The honors run as high as $1,000 in cash, incidentally.

Being an orator, Armond Magid has many opinions on current problems, and discussing these he said, "The Seals? Why, the bums can't even hope to place third in the pennant race this year."

Winless College Tracksters Compete In Annual Fresno Relays Tomorrow

Limping into the stretch, the yet-to-win college cindermen travel to Fresno tomorrow morning for the annual Fresno Relays.

The Rams wound up fourth in the NCJC Conference meet last Saturday behind Modesto, Stockton, and San Mateo. Coach Grover Klemmer said his squad would divide into teams to compete in the Fresno games.

Klemmer claimed that the locals would do well in the sprints and mile relay. Both events are strong points on the local outfit, with the college tracksters taking the conference relay in 3:38. Bob Bland, Jack Christie, Roy Carnegie, and Owen Moore combined to bring the victory home for the Rams.

Irv Beltrame, Jack Hurst, and Marv Hoffman are slated to run both the sprints and hurdles because Klemmer's budget allows only a ten man traveling squad.

The Rams close out the season next week in the Modesto Relays.

HEADED EARTHWARD after clearing the bar in his speciality. Rem high jumper Bill Welti displays the skill he employs against conference opponents.

Welti, nine other local cindermen, and Coach Grover Klemmer enter the two-year class competition tomorrow as they go after honors in the famous Fresno Relays.

WAA Faces State Women In Softball Game Today At 3

San Francisco State's women softball team inaugurates a busy activity schedule for the Women's Athletic Association with a game this afternoon at 3 p.m. at Balboa Park.

WAA members will attend a play day next Friday at San Mateo Junior College with badminton, tennis, archery, and swimming on the program. The following Wednesday the locals plan to meet State again in a tennis match.

Elections are slated for May 2-27, while WAA members will hold their banquet at Sigmund Stern Grove Tuesday night, May 31.

Awards will be presented and installation of new officers will take place at the informal dinner.

Chairmen for the affair are Dode Fambrini and Carla Jo Pennington.

Local Mermen Entered In Southern Division Meet

Muscular Roy Burkhead and his tank men pack up their swim trunks and head for Napa tomorrow morning to contest the Southern Division Conference championships with squads from Napa, Vallejo, College of Marin, and Grant Tech.

Last week the Rams warmed up for the league test by nudging the Alameda Naval Air Station, 38-36, at the base pool. This was the second local win over the Hellcats.

Burkhead's water boys showed marked improvement, especially mainstay Art Swartz who came through with the best performance of the meet.

Previously beaten by the airmen, Swartz splashed to victory in the 50 and 100 yard sprints, clocked in winning time of 25.4 and 59.3 respectively.

Ben Nobi, newcomer to the squad, surprised in showing his heels to his foes in taking the 150 yard backstroke. Breaststroker Bob Parsons annexed the 200 yard event in 3:17.

Presently in the planning stage is a four way meet with San Francisco State, Treasure Island's Sailors, and Alameda.

Netmen Await Conference Meet At Menlo

Turned he-men almost overnight, the resident racketeers of Harry Buttimer are hard at work polishing up on their styles de combat.

Objective of the practice sessions is to ready the locals for their say so in the NCJC Conference meet of three days' duration starting next Friday at Menlo. Northern and Southern Division squads converge on the southern city for the annual tournament.

San Mateo's Bulldogs topped the field last year and went on from there to finish second in the nationals. A crack contingent from Long Beach captured the two-year crown.

The Rams erased all thoughts of a dismal season last week as they squeezed by Stockton, 4-3, and stretched their win streak to three straight with a 7-0 whitewash of Menlo.

Both victories kept them entrenched in third place and made up for a poor start after losing successive jousts with Modesto and San Mateo. The record book now stands at 4-2. Hartnell and Monterey succumbed earlier to the campusites.

Buttimer's bronze skinned lads figure to be in ship shape for the Menlo tests. Leader of the pack is long stemmed Stan Smith, trump card of the Ram outfit.

Another could-be surprise is Fred Rodgers, the only veteran besides Ed "Spec" Jacobsen on the team. This pair carried the Stockton triumph, taking decisive singles matches.

Rounding out the traveling sextet come Friday are Jack Mackey, southpaw Kenny Hay, and Richard Daniel.

Varsity cagers Al Munn, Les Brilliant, Bob and Don Paine received their high school basketball tutoring at Lincoln under Roy Diederichsen, now Ram boxing coach.

Shriners Seek Benefit Potato Bowl Sanction

Bakersfield Shriners, who have proposed a benefit football contest to be played in the Kern County seat December 2 or 3, will receive or be denied permission to hold the Potato Bowl game, tomorrow by the State Athletic Commission of Junior Colleges.

The board, under the direction of Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, is meeting in the Hotel Californian in San Francisco.

Official sanction will probably be given to the Shriners, local observers believe, since the contest is being held for a worthwhile cause. No post-season tilts can be played without the commission's permission.

Frosh Coeds Need Exam

Laurine Berggin, head of the Women's Physical Education Department, announced yesterday that all freshmen failing to keep their appointments with the college physician will not receive final grades.

Students can make arrangements for physical examinations with Nancy Sparks, instructor, in the women's gymnasium.

Ram Golfers Capture Southern Division Conference Laurels, Face Vallejo For Loop Crown

Behind going up to the ninth hole, Ralph Hillsman's Ram golfers blazed in a spirited drive to overtake a good San Mateo squad, and thereby pocket the southern division championship at Crystal Springs last Tuesday.

In so doing, the locals got part lease on the NCJCC title with northern loop winner Vallejo. A flip of a coin decides the battle ground for the playoff planned for a climax early next week. Sonoma is the transbayers' choice while the Harding greens are the stamping grounds of the Rams.

Thursday, Hillsman and his no less than terrific outfit swing their mallets in the second annual conference tournament at Palo Alto.

To the victor of the two day tests goes the spoils of a bid to the national two-year college sessions, which take place in the Midwest.

Victory over the Bulldogs pushed the residents' seasonal record to ten wins in 12 outings. Previously, the San Francisco Police linksmen beat them in their only setback thus far. The blue serged clubbers are regarded on the professional level, making the lone defeat notning of a disgrace.

San Mateo road-blocked the Hillsmen in their first meeting, the duel ending in a deadlock for the other blemish.

Baseball Date Changed

The Modesto-City College baseball doubleheader originally scheduled for tomorrow was played yesterday through an official change made by Coach Bill Fischer in a telephone conference with the Modesto manager.

Baseball play will be concluded Tuesday when the Rams meet the Stanford Frosh at Palo Alto.

Golfers In Two Easy Triumphs Over Modesto, Menlo, Extend Win Streak

By Roy Hurlbert

Ralph Hillsman's stellar golfers continued their near mastery of all link foes this season as they easily putted past Modesto, 26½-½, and Menlo, 25½-1½ last week end.

It was league triumphs numbers four and five for the locals, and extended their record to read nine wins, as against one setback and a tie, in 11 meets.

Unbeaten in the NCJCC southern division race, the Rams are scheduled for a playoff with co-leader San Mateo for the bracket crown either today or early next week.

Tomorrow they take to the Palo Alto greensward in a tee-match with the Stanford Frosh.

The pot at the end of the rainbow for the Hillsman spikemen is the all-conference championships which are slated for Menlo in a two-day affair starting Thursday. Northern division swifties Vallejo and Sacramento figure to give the Rams the toughest argument along with defending titlist San Mateo.

Whoever walks off with the sessions is entitled to a shot at the national two-year college finals at a site in the Midwest later this month. Some 16 top notch teams from all over the country will comprise the contending field.

Well balanced as a unit, the local machine is throttled by ace-in-the-hole Bill King, who has drawn the plaudits of his rivals for his consistent low total shooting.

Down the line in effectiveness with the white pellet are Art Larsson, Dick Farley, the versatile Payne twins, Vince Holian, Russ Bigelow, and Joe Hanlon.

Intra Novice Boxing Signups Urged; Eight Teams Enter Football League

A large number of boxers prepares daily for the coming intramural tournament to be held in the men's gymnasium Monday and Wednesday, May 23 and 25.

Deadline for signups in this sport, which was supposed to be yesterday, will be extended if necessary, director Tom Wilson said Monday.

Some of the pugilistic hopefuls, who are holding daily workouts in the gymnasium, are Roxie Navarro, 120 lbs.; Bob Kaffke, Herb Cannon and Jim Moore, 135 lbs.; Wayne Bowker, 140 lbs.; Jack Bettencourt and Jim Baker, 155 lbs.; Carlos Carnejo and Glenn McFadin, 165 lbs., and Boris Orloff and James Keyes, 175 lbs.

Contenders for the 120, 130, 145 and heavyweight classes are not available at this writing.

On the final day for signups, which was last Friday, eight teams had filed their applications to participate in the intramural touch-football league, to be held during the next few weeks.

Teams which have entered the league are the C.C. Giants, the Guardsman, Trojans, Bears, Balboa Blues, Tipsters, Cavaliers and the Rossi Mohawks.

Debaters Still Trying For Top Spot In Annual Contest

Elimination contests to select a Ram representative to the Seventh Annual Native Daughters of the Golden West Oratorical Contest were held yesterday at 2 p.m. in Room 111.

Before a board of judges composed of Charles McKiernan and Anthony Paciotti, of the faculty, and students Arnold Cooper and Henry Biggers, ten entrants presented their cases on California History, Landmarks, and Centennials, or Pioneers.

The winner, who was not known at the time The Guardsman went to press, is eligible to compete in the semi-finals held tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Native Daughter parlor, 555 Baker Street, San Francisco, and in the finals in San Jose, Monday, June 20.

Participants in yesterday's competition were Andy Ferrarri, Rosalyn Mincer, Joe Schwab, James Anderson, Olivia Clement, Clinton Patche, Don Parker, Bob Lansche, Marcella Lewis, and Armond Magid.

While college orators are competing in important debate contests, the local chapter of Phi Rho Pi, national honorary forensic society, selected officers at a meeting held last Wednesday evening, Michael Griffin, debate coach, announced yesterday.

Randolph Street was elected president and Corrine Lambert, secretary-treasurer. Street announced that the chapter will apply for a new charter as soon as 15 new members are enrolled. The charter was revoked several years ago because of lack of interest on the part of the students.

Acting on behalf of the debate society, Jack Mix, active participant, is currently arranging debates and oratorical contests scheduled for the near future with Mills College, University of California, San Francisco College for Women, Stanford University, San Francisco and San Jose State Colleges, College of Pacific, and the bay area two-year colleges.

High Cost Saves Local Parking Space

By Felton White

Choice parking space will be spared for an estimated 300 City College students for the remainder of the semester because no one is willing to pay the official "asking" price of $120,000 for the avenue property.

This lot, parcel 22, fronting 1036 feet westerly along Ocean Avenue with a depth of 150 feet, is the tract to be sold. It is divided into two sections by Lee Avenue—an area to be reserved—and has lain fallow for many years.

Although the area is not officially a part of the college, students in dire need of adequate parking space began to use it in 1944 to meet their parking difficulties. Since that time it has been the center of privileged facilities for many hundreds of students driving to the college each day.

Parcel 22 is appraised at 772 dollars per square foot; thus it is perhaps the most valuable parking lot in this area.

On February 16, the City Real Estate Department offered this property for sale. It is to be sold at public auction to the highest cash bidder for not less than 120,000 dollars, subject to confirmation by the Board of Supervisors. But apparently such capital is not available, since it was more than three months ago that it was placed on public market, and no written tenders or oral bids have yet been received.

Ultimately this area, so vital to sufficient student parking, will be sold, and new homes will spring up, obstructing the view of the west campus from Ocean Avenue.

Written tenders and/or oral bids are still being accepted in Room 282, at the City Hall. At the time of sale, the highest bidder will be required to submit a deposit check in the amount of $12,000, payable to the City and County of San Francisco, Properties Director Eugene J. Riordan said recently.

Baking Class Displays Talent In Coming Exhibition, Dance, Sunday

Baking at its best marks the annual San Francisco Retail Bakers Association's exhibition and dance, at which time Instructor George Muller's retail baking class of the Hotel and Restaurant Division displays its talent.

Privileged to attend the exhibition, held at California Hall Sunday, May 15, the class exhibits baking finery as a display and not for competition. Last year the class received praise for its accomplishments.

Augusta Clawson, training specialist for the Division, will soon fly to Atlantic City as guest of the National Restaurant Association for its annual convention.

Training techniques, as practiced at the college, will be the main point discussed by Miss Clawson on the labor-management theme.

Besides developing basic training material in quantity food work, Miss Clawson officiates at a three hour meeting for the faculty of the Division each Thursday evening to complete a new manual on training techniques and food preparation.

Fewer Jobs Ready At Graduation; Atomic Field Offers Best Prospects

Additional light was thrown on the employment picture when, in a recent interview, Samuel Ziegler of the retail merchandising department referred to the Pacific Coast Edition of the Wall Street Journal of April 29, 1949.

In a nationwide survey of various university and college placement bureaus, the Journal discovered that salaries are up, but graduates will "have to dig harder and longer" and may not always get what they are looking for.

From the University of California at Berkeley the Journal was informed "that fewer people will have jobs ready at graduation time this year."

The best prospects, the Journal learned from one placement bureau, are for salesmen, "especially in manufacturing" or insurance. Accountants and atomic energy workers are at the top, with engineers in second place. Lawyers are at the bottom of the list. California colleges, the Journal says, report a big demand for teachers, clerks and nurses.

The biggest drop in placement opportunities is for executive and technical men in big corporations. Employers are looking at scholastic records, outside activities, and personality traits, an Ohio State University spokesman told the Journal.

Round 'n About

THINGS are happening "a la mucho" here in Ram-land this week, so we'll grab the situation by the horns, and get butting along!

Collegiate Christian Fellowship honors the presents of Dr. T. Christie Innes, Pastor of Calvary Presbyterian Church in San Francisco, who speaks to the group today during college hour in Room 200.

Dr. Innes, born in Scotland and educated in England, attended Oxford and Cambridge, is a member of the Royal Anthropological Institute, Royal Asiatic Society, and Victoria Institute.

After studying in the fields of archeology and anthopology for more than 25 years, and speaking internationally, Dr. Innes should provide an interesting lecture to all students.

Zaro's in Marin County, hosts three local sororities tomorrow night, May 14, as pledge dinners are the themes for Kappa Phi, Theta Tau, and Phi Beta Rho.

A joint dinner at the joint is planned for Kappa Phi and Phi Beta Rho. The dinner honors new Kappa Phi pledges Jean Downs, Susan Emery, Lois Hoffman, Gail Keating, Alberta McKee, Betty Richards, and Ruth Stricker.

Just for kicks, Helen Gunderson and Barbara McCleod (Kappa Phis) recently announced their engagements to Al Swanson and Dale Turner.

Alpha Phi Omega meets today during college hour in Room 132, where plans will be discussed for the Mardi Gras and a picnic May 21. Oh, yes, members are requested to bring $3.00 for the picnic; everything should be high, including the prices!

A hayride, with hay and ride, is slated for Beta Phi Beta June 3. All members with hay-fever will be inoculated previous to the outing!

More business for the jewelers, as Carlos Parris and Dick Featherstonehaugh, of Beta Phi Beta, announce wedding dates to Ginny Souder, Delta Psi, and Maria Wilson Walker, Kappa Phi.

Le Cercle Francais holds its next meeting Monday, May 16, at the home of Alan Bonaparte, 12 Homewood Terrace, at 7:30 p.m. Ah Reservoir!

It's Gene Krupa and his outfit this week-end at the Edgewater!

Forum Release Date Set For May 23; Emphasis Lies On Modern Art Work

Forum Magazine, college literary and art journal, will place greater emphasis on art contributions this semester, Dick Brennan of the Forum editorial staff announced Tuesday.

Starting with the attractive modern cover design, created by George Smith, the 32-page book has many examples of student art interspersed with literary articles written by students at the college.

Most of the art work submitted is of the modern type and adds a great deal to the layout of the magazine, considered by the staff to be one of the best ever released.

Although no definite date of publication has been set, Brennan announced that Forum, which costs 35 cents, will be distributed probably Monday, May 23.

Profits made by the sales will be contributed to the Associated Student fund. From the sale of last year's book, $100 was returned in profit to the Associated Students.

Distribution method will be on-the-spot sales at the silver pole, the guard shack and Building 12, Brennan said.

Veteran's Counsellors Move Into New Office

This semester marks the end of veterans' counselling at the college, and its consolidation with the main office at Galileo High School, Counsellor T. F. Humiston said recently.

Counselors Humiston and William Rosevear, and receptionists Elsie Herman, and Walcott Treat of the Veterans' Administration move to that office.

During its two year stay at the college the veterans' counselling office has given information on training facilities, aptitude tests, occupational help, and conducted general education development tests which are equivalent to a high school diploma.

The office is evaluating service credits throughout the week of May 16 to May 20, Humiston added.

Administrators Explain Reorganization Proposals, Urge Cool Heads Prevail

By Bill Thomas

Acceptance of proposals for development, retention, although possible retitling, of all administrators, and retention of all present faculty members at the college, were voted by the Board of Education on recommendation of Superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools Herbert C. Clish, late Friday at a special meeting of the board attended by approximately 300 college faculty and students.

Previously, in the face of student unrest voiced early Thursday, cool heads prevailed when 250 students crowded into the student lounge to sit in on Student Council discussion of how proposed reorganization might affect faculty and students.

The meeting was opened by Associated Student President Pete Isola who read a letter by President A. J. Cloud. The letter urged the students to keep calm and said that he was certain the Board of Education had the best interests of the college at heart.

"My best advice to the students is to continue with their classes as usual," the letter concluded.

Dean Jack Brady then spoke to the students and explained the proposals. He ended, "I appeal to you to take no action but let the faculty and Dr. Cloud take care of this matter as they see fit. I am sure that any action taken by the board will be in the best interests of the college."

J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, said that the dismissal of the 29 probationary instructors was a customary action taken as a protective measure in case of an extraordinary decrease in enrollment. He said this action has nothing to do with the proposed reorganization of the administration; most of these teachers would be rehired in the fall.

Yearbook Distribution Date Rumors Incorrect

Months of creative outpouring on the college's Ram-Pages have left editor Bob McVey barren of all thoughts involving a distribution system of the yearbook.

"I just don't know how the book is going to be given out," McVey gasped. "All I know is that we'll have it out June 1, I hope!"

Rumors that the yearbook would arrive prematurely on May 23 had caused more headaches to McVey than an ill-prepared science major on the final week of exams.

Forum Magazine On Sale Monday-Friday Of Next Week

Sales of Forum Magazine, college literary and art journal, which begin Monday, May 23, will continue through Wednesday, May 25, Dorothy Mercer, Forum adviser, announced Thursday. Copies may be purchased for the reduced price of 35 cents.

Building 12, the guard shack, and the silver pole will be sites of the sales; students will be on duty at these stands between each class on the three days. Sales are to be conducted by the Forum staff, the sales staff, and members of the Forum Club.

In former semesters, Miss Mercer pointed out, Forum has sold quickly, so students should purchase copies early to be sure of getting them.

Considered by Forum staff to be one of the best issues published, the magazine this semester contains fine art work and interesting literary contributions. In comparison to former editions, this issue contains a great deal more art work, and the cover design, by George Smith, is an excellent example of the modern designs included in the booklet's 32 pages.

Working hard to compile and select the contributions of poetry, short stories and satires was a large staff, headed by Editor Roy McCoy.

Local Debater Misses Try For National Tournament

The college lost its bid to fame in the Seventh Annual Hearst Newspapers' Tournament of Orators honoring Alexander Hamilton, last Thursday evening, when Armond Magid, college entrant, failed to place among the first five in the bay area eliminations.

Magid delivered a convincing address, but the representative from San Francisco State College took the meet and will compete in the state and possibly the national finals. There was no Ram representation in the audience at the contest, which was held at University of San Francisco at 8 p.m.

On Friday evening, Andy Ferrarri spoke for the college on the subject of California History in the semi-finals of the Seventh Annual Native Daughters of the Golden West Oratorical Contest, but the outcome was not known at the time The Guardsman went to press.

Starting at 8:30 p.m., the meet was held in the Native Daughter Parlor, 555 Baker Street, San Francisco. Claimed to be certain to win by locals, Ferrarri may be able to enter the finals to be held in San Jose on June 20.

Polka Dots And Moon Beams Feature Inter-Sorority Dance Saturday Night

Polka dots and moon beams make an appearance Saturday night, May 21, from 9 to 12 p.m. at the Century Club as dance guests of the six college sororities.

Roy Stefani and his orchestra will play for the inter-sorority informal dance. Bids are $2.00 per couple, Phyllis Smith, inter-sorority president, announced.

With the Polka-Dots-and-Moon Beams theme, the Century Club becomes moon struck when Ronnie Morrison and her decorations committee use full moons, paper moons, the harvest moon, moon beams and polka dots of all descriptions.

The six college sororities are planning this semi-annual inter-sorority dance with Miss Smith as chairman. Assisting her are sorority presidents, Doris Dirito, Alpha Lambda Chi, tickets and tallies; Betty Cartwright, Theta Tau, decorations; Nadine Coakley, Delta Psi, orchestra; Lucy Wilson, Zeta Chi, refreshments; Mary Ann Bailiff, Phi Beta Rho, publicity.

"All students are invited and it is hoped that many independents will come," Miss Cartwright said.

Proceeds From Benefit Stamp Sale Aid Blind

For the benefit of White Cane Week, which ends Friday, May 20, Lila Goodenough, representative for the National Foundation for the Blind, has set up a table in the main building for selling benefit stamps.

Proceeds from the sale of these stamps, which are 25 cents each, will be used by the Foundation for aiding the blind.

May 20 Final Date To File Leave Of Absence

Students intending to leave the college before the end of this semester must file leaves of absence at the registrar's office not later than 5 p.m. Friday, May 20.

Applications submitted after this deadline will not be accepted.

Any students dropping out before final examinations without previously filing an official leave of absence will receive a final grade of "F" in all courses taken this semester, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard warned Friday.

Five Bay Area Bands Lead AMS Mardi Gras Parade May 27

By Adolphus Thomas

Bands of the Alameda National Guard, Alameda American Legion, Lowell High School, Shriners of San Francisco, and S.F. Boy Scouts of America will lead the 45-minute parade up Ocean Avenue, Friday, May 27, opening the big Associated Men Student Mardi Gras celebration.

At 7 p.m. festival paraders leave Junipero Serra Boulevard, march up Ocean Avenue to the college, and enter the west campus parking area, closed to "parkers" for the day.

Harry Williams, AMS head, said that 13 college organizations, Alpha Sigma Delta, Tau Chi Sigma, Beta Tau, Theta Tau, Tri Epsilon, Lambda Chi, Phi Beta Rho, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Cosmopolitan Society, Drama Club, Delta Psi, French Club, and Pi Delta Koppa, will display floats in the parade.

Two-year colleges in this vicinity and many organizations from all over the state are scheduled to enter floats and marching units, Williams said.

He pointed out, though, that there are separate gold cup awards for the best float or marching unit displayed by a college group, and for the best entered by a group outside the college.

This year's outdoor celebration occupies the entire west campus parking area, Williams reiterated. The Hotel and Restaurant division's sidewalk cafe, the gay booths, Mardy Leaver's band music up at the Waldorf, Roy Pasini's Kangaroo court, crowning of Mardi Gras king and queen, and awarding of AMS prizes are some highlights, he said.

Student Officer Candidates Must Submit Petitions Today; Election Rally Slated Friday

Candidates for Associated Student offices must have their petitions in Dean Jack Brady's office, Building 2, by 3:30 p.m. today, Election Commissioner John Mix warned.

Candidates' posters will be approved by Publications Board Chairman Roy Pasini, in The Guardsman office, Wednesday, May 18, at 9 a.m. A special appointment will be necessary for approval of late posters, Pasini said.

A rally, at which candidates for the major offices will speak, is slated for Friday college hour in the auditorium.

Voting will take place in the student lounge, Tuesday, May 24, from 9:30 to 4 p.m., and Wednesday, May 25, from 9:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Voters must present their Associated Student cards.

Election Committee members are Bill Kinsley, Bea Groger, Armond Magid, and Commissioner Mix.

Although the words "Sophomore Council" and "Freshman Council" will appear on the ballots and in The Guardsman, as such, there is no separation. There exists only a Student Council.

The seven Freshman members of the Student Council are called the "Frosh Council" and the seven Sophomore members of the council are called the "Soph Council."

These 14 legislators plus the Vice-President of the Associated Students, compose the Student Council.

The Student Council is the legislative body of the Associated Students. The Chairman of the council is the Associated Student President.

309 King-Queen Votes Cast; Winners Named At Formal

Tabulation of the votes for the Sophomore King-Queen election last Thursday at 3 p.m. as the polls closed revealed a total of 213 men voting for the class Queen, 96 women casting ballots for King, a vote comparable to that of last semester.

Except for the total vote of the election, a veil of secrecy fell over the elections as they terminated at 3 o'clock.

Tabulation was made by the class officers, with the supervision of the class adviser.

Tradition prohibits naming of the winners until the evening of the Sophomore Formal which will be held at the San Francisco Scottish Rite auditorium, Van Ness Avenue and Sutter Street, Saturday, June 11.

Voting proceeded methodically during the two day period last week, and an election atmosphere prevailed throughout the campus. Posters bearing the names and pictures of favorite candidates could be seen everywhere.

The panel display of the candidates who ran for the King-Queen throne will be displayed in the showcase in the main building through tomorrow.

Semester class officers are Dale Butterfield, president; Robert Loberg, vice-president; Carmel Lee, secretary; Teddy Malavazos and Jim Fernhoff, sophomore week chairmen.

Coed Here Wins Music Scholarship

Climaxing seven years of violin study, Eugenia Psaltis, who will be graduated here in June, was awarded the coveted scholarship to Julliard School of Music in New York, Friday, May 6.

The scholarship was awarded after an audition with Conductor Hindel from New York, and is guaranteed for two months and may be extended.

Miss Psaltis plans to further her musical career under the guidance of Louis Persinger, world renowned violinist, and other noted composers and conductors.

She has played in many concerts as both a soloist and participant in quartets.

Marietta Costumes, Settings Harmonize

By Keith Gardner

Costumes for the college's next opera production, Naughty Marietta, are by Carol Aronovici, whose Stagecraft Studio in Berkeley has done the costuming for many past opera presentations at the college.

Stagecraft Studio, in its 21st year of operation, also handles the lighting and costuming for the San Francisco Civic Ballet, and is currently working on the Tamalpais Mountain play, which features many City College players.

Part of the costumes are made specifically for the opera and part are generally picked from stock on hand, Aronovici reported.

The costumes are designed to fit the period and the characters of the opera and care must be taken so that costumes, background sets, and lighting are harmonious.

Marietta, co-directed by Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler, will have a four night run from Wednesday, June 1, to Saturday, June 4. All performances are for 8:15 in the evening.

Tickets for Marietta are on sale now and may be purchased at the bank, the telephone eaze in the main building, The Guardsman office, or from student salesmen.

Prices of tickets are 50 cents for members of the Associated Students, children under 12, and faculty members with honorary student cards. General admission is $1.00.

Patricia McCarthy and Jane Scribner, both of the biological sciences department, are chairmen of the costume committee. They are aided by Dorothy Luckhardt, costume head for Marriage of Figaro.

CAROL ARONOVICI, Stagecraft Studio head, studies a possibility in costuming Naughty Marietta, college produced play, June 1, while Dorothy Luckhardt, faculty costume committee member, applies the woman's eagle eye for detail.

Accent On The Affirmative

THIS month's Atlantic provides English 21B students with food for thought in the appearance of an article entitled Olivier, Freud, and Hamlet, by John Ashworth.

Ashworth claims that much of the conjecture about Hamlet's character as personified by Olivier in his Oscar-winning production is largely psychological dreaming on the part of Freudians.

Analyzing the action in Hamlet, Ashworth maintains that there are no grounds for Olivier's interpreting Shakespeare's greatest hero as a weak, scholarly effeminate. However, Olivier is not the first actor to see the character of Hamlet in this light.

THE HAMLET IDEAL

Ashworth says that the only age in which Hamlet was really understood was the age in which he was created—the Elizabethan—for he was the prototype of the ideal scholar-soldier-prince, the perfect combination in the eyes of Elizabethans.

Afterward, the Romantic attitude could find no reconciliation between their own ideals and the character of the stage's greatest hero thus, the present attitude has evolved from intellectuals interpreting Hamlet as an introvertive weakling—much after their own idea of how a man with a problem should behave . . . an interesting analysis on the part of John Ashworth.

HUMOR BY NASH

Ogden Nash's quizzical humor is in book form again . . . this time, Versus, containing 101 of his assorted quaintly-styled poems. His lines and meter are varied to suit his own particular needs. Example:

"No, I may never win any prizes
from Mr. Pulitzer,
But when it comes to supplying the customers with Little Jokes for their breakfast tables I will Always be in ther pitching honestly and [illegible]."

NEW PRINTS, NEW BOOTS

New Directions has Jean-Paul Sartre's first Existentialist novel out in a new print. Appetizingly entitled Nausea, it is about a man who could not stand being alive.

English novelist Margharita Laski has written Toasted English, a satire on British socialism in reverse. Just what would Britain be like if the Tories came into complete power is the question posed.

Latest off the presses is a new magazine entitled Reporter, "a fortnightly of facts and ideas." It analyzes the news on a fairly impartial basis in the form of articles somewhat similar (if longer than) to those of other newsmagazines.

A few articles on books and trends in the arts makes it culturally interesting.

RAMifications

TODAY'S epic is entitled Thoughts While Reading Magazine Advertising or Clip Out The Coupon And Send For Our Free Ten-Day Trial Course.

For those of you who came in late, we are endeavoring to prove that magazine ads provide fascinating reading; hence this representative sample.

The opening note of the day is sounded by a full page ad by the International Latex Corp. of Dover, Delaware. Advertising something called Playtex, this scene depicts a mature woman, who looks as if she should know better, cavorting about like a third string ballet dancer in a road show company of Oklahoma.

"America's most active women choose Playtex," screams the ad, and goes on to prove in a thousand or so words of deathless prose that no red-blooded American girl would be without one. It is obvious that there is something about this magical garment that will cause any sedate woman to leap about like Pavlova.

HORATIO ALGER

Turning the page we come upon a dramatic Horatio Alger story by the Gillette Razor Blade Company. It is a cartoon strip called "Jack Played In Luck When . . . " and its plot is as follows: Jack, a clean cut, courageous, young, all-American boy is afflicted by that horrible disease, 5 o'clock shadow. A tragedy, we know, but all will be well.

Jack and friend are at sea in their newly purchased second-hand boat, when suddenly there is a call for help. It seems that the motor cruiser "Elena" is in distress off catfish shoals.

SUCCESS STORY

Well, you've probably guessed it. In only three panels, our hero has rescued the damsel in distress and her rich father. (They always have a rich father.) Of course, the first thing our boy does is to borrow a razor and shave. Lucky for him it turns out to be a Gillette, and it's thin and plenty keen too. He therefore marries the pretty girl and takes a good job with her rich father.

The moral to this adventure is obvious. When you are out at sea and hear a call for help, throw away your electric razor.

The next ad takes the prize. A full color spread by the U.S. Army recruiting service, it is called "This Is The Life." Having some little experience in this matter, we were amazed to see how the Army has changed. "Fifty-two weeks of playing, and learning with a hand-picked group of young Americans," says the ad.

Afflicted with sudden nausea, we could not continue. Time out.

Alumnus Hansen Authors Articles On Art Of Efficient Hillclimbing

By Malcolm W. Boyd

Climbing hills is something that every alumnus of the college can claim authority in, but few have turned this necessary evil into pleasure and profit as ably as Robin Hansen.

Hansen, who attended the college in 1942 before entering the Air Force as a fighter pilot, is the author of an article in the May 14 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, which tells of a tragic episode that occurred last summer in British Columbia's Bugaboo range.

TRAGEDY STRIKES

A party of Sierra Club climbers, led by Hansen and Rolf Pundt of Berkeley, saw a bolt of lightning dash Pundt and San Francisean Bob Becker to the floor of a glacier thousands of feet below.

Hansen is widely regarded as an authority on the sport, and his plans for the conquest of Yosemite's "Lost Arrow" are acclaimed as classic.

An engineering student at the University of California, he has had many of his mountaineering articles published and was requested recently by the National Geographic Magazine to prepare an article on the Mt. Wadsworth region of British Columbia.

PRACTICE CLIMBS

The Sierra Club Rock Climbers practice every Sunday on local climbs such as Cragmont, Indian and Pinnacle Rocks in Berkeley, Devil's Slide in San Mateo County, and may be seen occasionally scaling nearby Miralorna Rocks or Larson's Hill in this city.

Hansen says that this hobby ensures getting from the west campus to the main building in less than 10 minutes and suggests that anyone interested look in the Sierra Club bulletin for the climbing schedule.

Editorial: Intelligent Attitude Prevails As Council, Students Hear Reorganization Changes

RUNNING the risk of being tabbed as indifferent, The Guardsman has sat on its editorial haunches watching with vivid interest the scene which was unfolded following the first press release on the administrative reorganization proposals.

The first stories, incomplete and a little vague, led to much local second-guessing. From there the interest began to mount, and as more coal was heaped upon the flames, student resentment came to a head.

Following last Thursday's council meeting, which was thrown open to the public and moved to larger quarters, a more mature and intelligent attitude became prevalent among interested students.

The turning point came at this meeting when Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, and Dean Jack Brady, two administrators directly affected by the issue, outlined the proposed changes and calmly reiterated that they were certain "the Board of Education had the best interests of the college at heart."

The majority of the assembled group left the meeting feeling that at last they had the basic facts of the problem at hand and that, if two of the people directly involved could remain so cool while under constant pressure from all sides, then they as students, should be able to step aside, not completely, and allow the faculty and administrators to present their own case to the Board.

With this attitude in mind, the students were able to chuckle as they read downtown accounts of the "fear and resentment" which had caused "around 500 students to charge into the meeting" causing a reversal of usual business in the council chambers.

The council arbitrarily moved its meeting to a larger room and turned it into a "mass demonstration" solely to acquaint the students with the facts —from persons directly involved—and to clarify any questions concerning the issue which the students may have had.

On the whole, the students intelligently took the advice of the college's respected founder, Dr. A. J. Cloud, and chose "to continue with their classes as usual."

"He says he has a lot of his work published."

Waldorf Roof Has Sun, No Swim

By Gene Ellison

For those who don't have the time, money, transportation, or inclination, sunbathing is much easier on top the Waldorf; that is if it can be gotten away with (it's against the rules).

An administrative movement on campus tries vainly to halt all attempts at "over" exposure, which includes "unsuitable" sunbathing on local rooftops, thus resulting in moonburns!

Most Waldorfians prefer the beach, but many parallels are drawn by the boys between beach and rooftop, even though the latter is not permissible during academic hours.

Most common to both situations is the sun, when it's out, and usually running in cycles. Seagulls like the beach, so why not the roof? They do, and there are plenty of 'em.

The beach has sand and so do rooftops, especially the Waldorf. The only difference is the size of "grains." Local tops usually possess the larger species called rocks, nicely blended in with picturesque black tar.

Getting to a beach and rooftop are not comparable, they are complete opposites, thus the first point is scored by the beach.

A beach, you do down to; a rooftop, you go up to. Since scholarship competition is in effect, this is known as descending or ascending! The latter is the most difficult, especially when ladder climbing is involved, with blanket, oil, and book in hand.

As a conclusion, the majority takes the beach two to one!

Why? There's water, that's why! It all depends on who gets the breakers. . . .

Editor, The Guardsman:

The Associated Women Students wish to express their thanks and appreciation to everyone who helped to make the high school senior tea on Thursday, April 28, a complete success.

The spirit of cooperation of the women who participated was gratifying and resulted in a pleasant time for all.

Last term, PE 22 (Men's Gym) and Communication Skill 5a (West Campus) I am taking. A gazelle I am not like, but two times a week the hills I am sprinting up and down.

Otherwise, a dirty-look from the CS instructor I am getting. Also I am making like a peanut vendor whistle. This he is saying is interfering with his lectures. Hah. I am keeping awake the class.

All the time my wind I am developing so good I am learning to play the tuba. One hour a day I am going "oom pa pa."

Today from the landlord I am getting an eviction notice. Who is wanting to buy a good used tuba?

Diamondmen Slip Into Third Place By Losing Double Header To Modesto

By Gene Van Dyke

Dropping their fourth straight in the college nine lost a doubleheader to Modesto at Funston, Thursday, 11-9 and 4-3, to slip into third place of the NCJC Conference southern division with a 7-5 record.

Had the Rams defeated Modesto once they would have gained a deadlock for the runnerup position.

Fred Payne and Lou Pisani opened the first inning with singles. Lou Williams walked, was forced at second on Tom Bournellis' fielder's choice, with Payne and Pisani scoring. Bournellis stole second and was driven home when Ray White counted sharply to left.

The Rams picked up a duo of scores in the third. Payne homered to left field, Lou Williams gained first on an error by Pirate third sacker Tom Burkett and scored on the push given by White and Jack Bukowatz' safeties.

A base on balls and hit on error by White and Bukowatz, followed by two fielders' choices by "Hook" Arata and Ron Keifer accounted for a pair of the Fischermen's scores in the sixth.

Pisani ignited a rally in the last of the ninth that pushed across two more runs. He and Williams each singled and were poked home when Bournellis singled and White and Bukowatz walked.

Regular catchers, Bob Friedman and John Burkhead were both sidelined due to respective illnesses. Pisani filled in behind the plate and did a magnificent job, considering the last time he caught was when he was with Oakland High as a sophomore.

In the seven inning nightcap, Coach Bill Fischer used a reserve club with the exception of pitcher Bob McGovern and third baseman Tournellis.

The team closes its season this afternoon in a game with the Stanford Frosh at Palo Alto.

Pigskin League Opens; Novice Deadline Soon

By Bob Goncalves

Intramural touch-football began league play yesterday on the Balboa Park greens and continues for approximately two weeks, director Tom Wilson stated last week. Because of the number of teams that have signed for competition, the league will be played on an elimination basis with a schedule of games posted in the men's gymnasium and in the window of The Guardsman if available.

The four team intramural soccer league ended yesterday, with a playoff game between the Shinkickers and the Tequila Boys.

Intramural tennis scores must be presented to Wilson as soon as the games are played, so as to enable him to draw up a schedule for future contests. This tournament entered its fourth round of play last Friday afternoon.

Signups for intramural softball and volleyball will be accepted until Tuesday, May 24. There are limitations of ten and eight men, respectively. These two events will be the final intramural sports for this semester, as the award rally will be held June 10.

Persons wishing to sign up for intramural boxing may do so until Friday, which has been designated as definitely the final day for the extended signup period.

Wilson pointed out that awards will be given to the boxers directly after the final bouts have been held. Harry Williams, Associated Men Student president, will be master of ceremonies and announcer of the final bouts.

The manager of the team collecting the most points will be awarded a trophy for his work.

Bulldogs Split Playoff; Swimmers Finish Second

San Mateo's southern division baseball champions split a championship playoff doubleheader with Placer Saturday at Auburn, 0-1 and 4-2.

The two teams will meet Saturday at Fitzgerald Field, San Mateo, in a single game to determine the NCJC Conference pennant winner.

In the NCJCC swimming meet held at Napa, City College picked up 31 points, enough to gain second place to Stockton's 94.

The college track team competed in the Fresno Relays and scored four points.

Courtmen Tangle In Loop Meet

Business man Harry Buttimer and six of his associates go a courting three days hence down the road to Menlo.

The occasion is the annual NCJCC tennis tournament which serves as a prelude to the two-year college nationals later in Modesto.

Modesto and defending kingpin San Mateo rate the most-likely-to-succeed label, with the former, paced by sensational Canadian Loren Main, perhaps a shade stronger. The Pirates recently edged the peninsula squad for the southern division's top spot.

Both co-favorites decksioned the Rams over the regular route, for the only red marks on the local slate.

Toting Red and White colors to the southern tests are singles men Stan Smith, Fred Rodgers, Ed Jacobsen, Jack Mackey, Kenny Hay, and Rich Daniel. Buttimer is not set on the doubles doge, since he has paired his charges in several combinations throughout the campaign. All in all, chances look favorable for the locals.

Movie Makers Make With Boxing 'Natural

RAMblings . . .

By Walt Heil

Picture Is Reliable Though Tinted A Bit

FOR the first time in many years Hollywood has produced a sport movie that is not either a murky tear jerker or a completely distorted story of a sport hero.

Champion, adapted from Ring Lardner's short story, opened on Market Street last week and was received with fanfare from all quarters. Kirk Douglas plays the role of Midge Kelly, a vicious cold blooded fighter, and gives one of the best performances of his career.

Even hardened ring followers praised the explosively real fight scenes and the authentic backdrops.

Good as it is, Champion was altered from the original Lardner story in typical Hollywood fashion. The time of the story was switched from the rough colorful days of boxing of the early 1900's to the present.

That change is only incidental to the plot of the fine picture. Lardner caricatured Kelly in a satirical vein, portraying him as a vicious heel. The movie version has Kelly as an out and out bounder without laughing at him.

Lardner described Kelly thusly: "Midge was the picture of health despite a slightly colored eye and an ear that seemed to have no opening. His diamond horse-shoe pin, his purple cross-striped shirt, his orange shoes and his light blue suit fairly screamed for attention." From that, the reader can get an idea of Kelly's vain character.

Despite these variations from the original story, the movie is nevertheless topnotch. However, the movie makers brought out Kelly's rottenness somewhat too much.

There are men of Kelly's nature in the fight game, but on the whole, fighters are just a bunch of pugs trying to make a living with their fists. In other words, champions can win cleanly without reverting to dirty tactics.

An example of this was shown in the recent Pasadena Tournament when Ram boxer Roy Damas lost a tough bout, but won the "fightingest fighter" award for his clean cut fight.

WAA Enters San Mateo Horse Show; Dancing Classes Offer Spectacle

Demonstrative dancing by the folk, social and modern dance classes of the college is slated for Thursday morning, May 26 at 11 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

The 40 minute demonstration will feature a waltz and fox trot by the social dance group, three finished dance problems by the modern dance group, and two folk dances by that group.

Any interested student is invited to attend.

Tomorrow at 4 p.m., the Women's Athletic Association is scheduled to play Mission High School in a volleyball game at the women's gymnasium.

The Annual Fall Horse Show is slated for Friday night at San Mateo at the Gymkhana Club.

Participants in the affair will be College of Marin, San Jose State, San Francisco State, Mills College, University of California, Stanford, and City College.

Beginning, intermediate, and advanced riders will participate in the horsemen's show.

At present San Mateo holds the perpetual trophy.

Any riders not enrolled in a class, who would be interested in representing the college in the horse show are requested to see Laurine Bergin, head of the women's physical education department.

New Paint Technology Laboratory Ready For Fall Semester Students

Plans for a new paint technology laboratory were announced yesterday by Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, and will call for an expenditure of 4,200 dollars.

"The Board of Education has authorized this amount for the construction of the new facilities," Luckmann disclosed, "and will consider bids from contractors for the actual installation of the new equipment."

It is expected that the laboratory will be finished and ready for use by next September, in time to accommodate students who register for paint technology courses in the Fall semester, 1949.

Special equipment for working with paints, varnishes and lacquers will be installed, including a hood for cooking varnish, a spray booth and paint making machinery.

The new laboratory will occupy Rooms 206, 207 and 208.

Final Chris Bean Show Tomorrow

The Late Christopher Bean, Little Theater group's campus production, winds up a six day run in Room 28 at 8:15 tomorrow night.

Tonight's cast includes Ilse Faltin in the Abbey role with Gilbert Mitchell, Jeanne Zumwalt, Mary Cooke, David Irvine, Bob Jones, Arnold Solkov, Jacqueline Apfel, LaVerne Benstock, and Bill Hansen.

The cast for the final showing, Wednesday night, will be the same with the exception of Mary Ann Stewart, who will replace Jeanne Zumwalt, William Zamora and Hewitt Kendall, David Irvine and Bob Jones, respectively.

Associated Student members are admitted for a ten cent tax service charge.

General admission is 75 cents.

Former Students Star In The Great Waltz

Melva Niles Sings Lead Role In Opera

By Sandra Marks

In a recent interview both young women were quick to comment on the expert instruction and practical experience that they had received while attending City College where they were both prominent singers.

Miss Niles was a lead soloist when she studied at the college and in 1946 was "discovered" by Ed Lesser and placed in the chorus of The Red Mill and later was cast in the lead of The Song of Norway.

Miss Gray has sung with the San Francisco Opera Company and is receiving her first "break" in the same manner as did Miss Niles; with a part in the ensemble of The Great Waltz.

Placement Bureau Lists Summer Jobs (Vacation Type) Open To Students

Several summer jobs are available to students through the local placement bureau, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced yesterday.

Positions are open to both men and women students in summer camps, grocery stores, gas stations, and in various other fields.

Recreation directors, counsellors, dishwashers, and one photographer are needed for positions in both boys' and girls' summer camps.

Amori named the following students as accepted for positions at the Lokoya Boys' Camp, Lokoya, California: John F. Mix, in charge of dramatics and camp government programs; Peter D. Ashlock, arts and crafts director; Clarence Dorris, director of horsemanship, archery and riflery, and Don L. Stark, in charge of all horse pack trips.

Spring's Here, Seagulls Disappear; Clubs Go Wild, Meetings Not Mild

WHA hoppined to the seagulls? Seems the little things have found greener pastures or something. Maybe they're getting their flying licenses renewed—anyway we miss 'em.

Circumstances beyond someone's control, Concerning scholarship competition and the plaque that goes with it, Bob Johnjock, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, declares there is a lack of loot for the scholastic token of high grade point averages.

Seems the ten dollars the council voted for carrying out the plan won't even pay for the wood backing of the plaque. Inflation's here!

Three joint meetings dominated last week-end's social events, which included mucho fun for all.

Adobe Creek played host to Alpha Lambda Chi and Tri Epsilon last Sunday, as the two outfits had a joint picnic at the joint. A baseball game highlighted the afternoon between the clubs; no one knows who won; who cares?

Also on Sunday, Tau Chi Sigma and Delta Psi journeyed to Memorial Groves in La Honda for a joint Bohemian picnic, if there is such a thing; guess there is!

By the way, for something new in Mardi Gras booths, watch the Tau Chi's oncoming innovation. "A powerful idea," says Maurice Power, the club's adviser.

This week's get-togethers include a dual meeting of Beta Phi Beta (the Hula boys) and Theta Tau tomorrow night at an undecided spot. The groups should have a "hulava" good time.

Members of Le Cercle Francais went ice skating last Wednesday evening at the 48th Avenue rink. Ice cubes were served for dinner.

Ella Fitzgerald's on her way to open at Ciro's soon. Things are happening, cats, things are happening.

Wire And Tape Recording Machine The Latest In Speech Technique; No Monotones Allowed

By Kenneth Wong

The voice from the English and Speech Building sounded like Donald Duck. A communication 19a student was rewinding a Webster Recorder.

Instructor Michael J. Griffin explained that these Websters (wire) and Brush (tape) machines are the latest thing in teaching speech technique.

Only by recitations and play-backs of lines "How now brown cow" can one appreciate his own progress.

Griffin emphasized that all students who expect to graduate from the college must take an examination in oral communication prior to registering for their third semester.

Schedule for the testing period calls for general student tests from May 23 to May 27, with tests held at the Speech Clinic in Building 19.

Discharge Necessary For Credit Evaluation

Veterans must show their discharge papers when having service-credits evaluated, Veteran Counsellor T. F. Humiston announced recently.

Credits are being evaluated this week, May 16 through May 20.

The veterans counselling office is leaving the college at the end of this semester to join with the main office at Galileo High School where the same services offered now will be continued.

Marionettes Play Cupid For Marietta And Dick

Naughty Marietta, third full scale college opera production, relives an exciting romance of early French New Orleans, when Captain Dick and Marietta recognize their love through an unusual triangle which involves the notorious pirate chieftain, Bras Pique.

Prominent as the most popular of Victor Herbert's operas, the performance wil go on stage at 8:15 p.m., June 1 through 4, in the west campus auditorium.

Of exceptional interest are the part and properties of the important Rudolpho, played by Al Hernandez and Kirk Conragen. Rudolpho, one of the featured characters in the opera, is a role with a lot of string attached to it. Ten to be exact.

The ten strings are fasteued to little creations of wood, wire, and papier mache, made by Lester Tarnopol of the college's engineering department.

Tarnopol, who started making marionettes about 20 years ago, is teaching Hernandez and Conragen, alternate Rudolphos, to puppeteer, sing, and speak at the same time.

Both Conragen and Hernandez have minor parts in the opera besides their role as the spaghetti-eating keeper of the marionette theatre, yet Hernandez is the only one with previous theatrical experience at the college.

Naughty Marietta Ticket Posts Listed

Tickets for the college's music and drama department production, Naughty Marietta, are on sale at three convenient locations on the campus.

The college bank, telephone "cage" in the main building, and The Guardsman office, offer tickets on sale at 50 cents to Associated Student members, instructors with honorary student cards, and children under 12. General admission is $1.00.

Beta Tau Fraternity merited commendation last week as the first campus organization to subscribe 100 per cent for tickets.

Four Enter Race For Vice-President; Williams Unopposed In Top Office

By Bill Thomas

Harry Williams was assured election Tuesday as Associated Student President when no other candidate filed a petition to oppose him. Williams was endorsed by both the Fraternity and Student League parties.

Interest centered as a result on the vice-presidential race entered by four candidates.

The complete list of candidates, as released by Election Commissioner John Mix, is as follows:

President: Fraternity and Student League, Harry Williams (unopposed).

Vice-President: Independent, Frances McCarthy, Barbara Andress; Fraternity, Ronnie Morrison; Student League, Helen Stoker.

Associated Men Student President: Fraternity, Frank Bayol; Student League, Norman Reger.

Associated Women Student President: Fraternity, Helen MacKay; Student League, Carla Jo Penington.

Sophomore President: Fraternity, Robert Ryan; Student League, Bob Loberg.

Freshman President: Fraternity, Jerry Crumpler; Student League, Leonard Markwitz.

Yell Leader: Independent, Edward McHale; Student League, Robert Broune.

Freshman Council (all unopposed): Student League, James Anderson; Fraternity, Louis Guevera, Edward Fass, Sunny Hadley, Joseph Schultz, Thomas Dill.

Forum Magazine Features Humor, Short Stories, Poetry

By Dick Williams

Forum magazine, college literary and art journal, goes on sale Monday morning, Dorothy Mercer, Forum adviser, announced last week.

Costing 35 cents, the magazine can be purchased at the silver pole, the guard shack, building 12, and the student bank between all classes through Wednesday, May 25.

Because of the quality of the book, editions have sold quickly in former semesters, and Miss Mercer warned students yesterday to buy copies early this year to be sure of getting one of the limited edition of 1,000 copies.

Packed within Forum's 32 pages are art and literary contributions by students on the campus, but in contrast to past issues, a greater emphasis has been placed on the art work in the book. Exemplifying the modern designs included is the striking cover designs created by George Smith.

Poetry, short stories, and humorous sidelights along with the art work are included in the contents.

Credit for compiling and selecting the contributions to Forum goes to Editor Roy McCoy and his staff, composed of John L. Crane, Neal Shelmerdine, George Smith, Richard Brennan, Bert Erbentraut, Bernadette Farley, Alan F. Shan, Frank Sherman, and Dayton Lawson.

To make the sales quickly and conveniently throughout the day, members of Forum Club, the editorial staff, and the sales staff will sell the magazines.

Mardi Gras Limits Campus Parking May 27

By Adolphus Thomas

Limiting of the west campus parking area to a few drivers all day next Friday, Mardi Gras day, was announced yesterday by Harry Williams, Associated Men Student President, and confirmed by Dean Edward E. Sandys.

Some 35 booths will be set up during the day, and the wide space prepared generally for the celebration which takes place that night, Williams said.

Simultaneously with Williams' announcement, Mardi Gras officials also revealed that the king and queen who reign at the festival have been chosen, but are scheduled for disclosure on the day of the celebration, Friday, May 27.

Finalists in the contest, as given by Williams, are John Kristovich, Gene Aburette, Jim Greenlind, Robin Rosefield, and Ron Keifer for king; Elena Valentine, Mary Oseterly, Cecilia Saunders, Pat Kelly and Shelley Wentzel, for queen.

Dick Evans, Frank Bayol, Barbara McBride, Williams, and Doris Dirito composed the committee which selected the king and queen, an AMS spokesman said.

This year's outdoor festival, expected to top all previous Mardi Gras at the college, has as its opening a gala 45-minute parade up Ocean avenue. Led by five bands, the parade starts, Williams said, from Junipero Serra boulevard at 7 p.m., marches up the avenue to the west campus, already set up, and the festival begins.

At the Mardi Gras, Williams says that the awarding of AMS prizes will be one of the high spots. Each year at its traditional celebration the AMS presents its perpetual trophy to the club with the best booth. This year AMS is also awarding gold cups to the queen and king, and to the organization with the best parade floats.

Stop-Sign Petition Sent To Council

Demanding immediate student action, Don Raisner presented a petition to the Student Council, Tuesday, complaining about the dangerous traffic situation surrounding the college.

The petition, signed by some 350 students, charged that the present Student Council and the preceding ones had failed to take action. It asked that traffic signals be installed at the major corners and that slow and arterial stop signs be posted.

"We are demanding immediate action in the solving of the aforementioned problems," the petition concluded.

Dean Jack Brady, faculty adviser to the council, told Raisner that a committee from the Student Council had gone to the Police Department last semester but that they had been unable to get action because of Police Commission regulations.

These regulations require that a certain number of cars pass an intersection before a stop signal may be installed. Because there is not enough traffic during out-of-college hours the Police Department could not install signs.

A committee was appointed to investigate the matter.

Six Sororities Join To Host Dance

Six college sororities headline tomorrow night's social activities with a moonbeams-and-polka dots Intersorority dance at the Century Club from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Chairman Phyllis Smith, Intersorority president, said that Roy Stefani and his orchestra will play for the sorority women and their escorts. Bids for the street dress affair are $2.00 per couple.

Heading the decorations committee for the semi-annual informal dance is Ronnie Morrison. Polka dots and moons of all sizes and shapes adorn the Century Club.

Tickets are available from members of the six sororities, and at the door, Miss Smith pointed out. Sororities and their respective president are Alpha Lambda Chi, Doris Dirito; Theta Tau, Betty Cartwright; Delta Psi, Nadine Coakley; Zeta Chi, Lucy Wilson; Phi Beta Rho, Mary Ann Bailiff; and Kappa Phi, Miss Smith.

Punch will be served to add an extra attraction for the dancers, and corsages are optional.

College Hour Rally Today Stars Election Candidates

Candidates for Associated Student offices are to be introduced during today's college hour at 10:30 a.m. in the auditorium, with Election Commissioner John Mix presiding.

The purpose of the rally, an election rally, is to familiarize students with the candidates for major offices and to present an opportunity for them to speak a few introductory words, Rally Commissioner Lane Currie said yesterday.

The Story of the Electron, a documentary film produced by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, is on tab also, Madison Devlin of audio visual aids announced, in Room 136 at 10 a.m. and during the college hour.

The college hour schedule is as follows:

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9.50 to 10:30
College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Required Speech Tests Scheduled For Next Week

Students entering their third semester next fall, who have not yet met the speech requirement for graduation, may take the speech test in Building 19, the week of May 23 through 27.

Tests will be scheduled in the following manner: Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10 and 11 a.m. in Room 1, Anthony Paciotti; at 3 and 4 p.m. in Room 2; Lucille Meredith; Tuesday and Thursday at 9 and 10 a.m. in Room 1, Paciotti; at 1 and 2 p.m. in Room 15, Michael Griffin; and at 4 and 5 p.m. in Room 2, Griffin.

Miriam Escher, department head, warned that students must complete the examination before they are eligible for graduation from the college.

It's Only Human Nature

BEING a little on the worldly wise side, we were mildly amused the other day to see a lot of fuss made over a little thunder-storm.

Not only the people of the Bay Area but also the press became somewhat overwrought because of the little out-burst, and we say little because down "sooth" it sometimes becomes a daily occurrence. When it storms down there, it really storms.

Seems a little odd that so many big, grown adults would become so excited when all they would have to do is look outside and the reason would become easily observable.

The "freak" storm was blamed on everything from Russian spies to a busted kitchen sink; everything, that is, except a natural phenomenon.

SOMETHING UNUSUAL?

Now, as we said before, this event struck us as amusing, and not being the kind who would pass up a possible story, we immediately set our machinery into operation in the hopes of digging up said story.

Once again bringing our well stocked blackmail file into use we exerted a great deal of pressure in the "right" spots, and lo, there it was, the story.

After examining the facts, and their possible consequences, we can easily see why the loyal Californians would try to hide them; they could create a national scandal without even trying.

Here they are for what they're worth; native sons were panic stricken, and it was only by the grace of Aunt Josephine's donkey that a complete disaster didn't result.

CALIFORNIANS TOO EXCITABLE

When the storm was just getting under way, the natives began losing their heads—they were running in all directions, shouting, crying, and setting up a general panic, and then entered the cause of the blushing faces now being worn by numerous natives.

A few inconspicuous immigrants from the southland, it appears, began circulating among the hysterical populace of the Bay Area, and within a few hours no sign was left of the near-"rout." Combining their past experience with a little psychology they easily convinced the natives that nothing earth shaking was taking place.

This might not strike some people as very enlightening, but a true son of California will readily tell any one that nothing could be more mortifying than to be told the facts of life by an "outsider."

And now, comes the moral to this little story; before jumping to conclusions about anything, a person should consider the facts of the situation from every angle, and after having reached a logical answer, they should act then and not before.

RAMifications

SUPER-PROGRESSIVE education and the college of tomorrow is our theme for today. With some help from H. G. Wells, Aldous Huxley, Buck Rogers, and Flash Gordon, we present college life in 1975.

Television will, of course, bring the instructor right into the home. The super-student of tomorrow will be able to turn on his set, hop back into bed and relax during the lecture. A modern wire recorder will replace the old style note-book, and pencils and pens will be things of the past.

If a lecture gets dull, the super student may switch to some other subject by merely twisting the dial. This may eliminate the entire field of Economics, Political Science, and History.

As there is no longer any need of classrooms, the college buildings will have been torn down and replaced by a drive-in movie. The only thing left from the dim days of the past will be the college fountain, where the students meet very day and listen to the atomic juke box.

ADVANCE OF SCIENCE

Studying will be taken care of by a marvelous advance of science known as hypopaedia or sleep-teaching. The super-student merely sleeps on a special type of pillow in which is concealed a small loud-speaker.

College Life Due For Drastic Alterations

The speaker repeats the lesson for the day over and over all night long. In the morning the student knows the subject.

This method is sometimes known as somnambulistic conditioning, and some students occasionally try a crude version of this in class rooms today.

As you can see, this advanced system completely eliminates any work, either intellectual or physical. Of course, the system also eliminates the ability to think, but it is obvious that this is becoming increasingly unimportant.

TERM PAPER MACHINE

One anachronistic hold over from the past will be term papers but they will be turned out by a device known as the radar-mechanical term paper machine. The super-student will only have to adjust a few dials and punch a key or two in order to get the desired subject, length of paper (in inches), and all other important data.

There will be one special dial on this machine for the bibliography. It will be adjustable to three degrees; impressive, very impressive, and simply staggering. As a labor saving device this machine will mark a big advance over our present system.

As to the moral conduct of the student of tomorrow it will be about as described in Huxley's Brave New World or little changed from today.

Editorial: Needed Safety Movement Initiated; Forum Makes Annual Campus Appearance Monday

FOLLOWING years of futile effort to reach a solution for the ever present traffic problems on campus, the current Student Council has at last taken steps, but not before coming close to tabling the issue, to initiate a concentrated movement designed to secure a permanent solution.

The big stick which will serve as a means of pressing the issue home to final completion is the newly organized Campus Police Force.

In past semesters, reformers have lacked an inside track to the proper offices downtown, but it is hoped that because the local law enforcers are directly sworn in by the city's Chief of Police, their recommendations will be given due consideration.

It is reported that the city force is well aware of the existing traffic situation in these parts and just as anxious to solve same. The stumbling block in the picture seems to be more of the usual nasty "red tape."

The Guardsman sincerely hopes, however, that the combined efforts of the local group, working hand and hand with the people downtown, will result in establishing an effective method for protecting students who are forced to cross campus "speedways" every day.

It has been proved that people stay dead for a long time.

COME Monday, May 23, and during the course of fiery political campaigning, Forum Magazine, college literary publication, will make its annual appearance on campus.

Forum is the only means creative writers at the college have for self expression—term papers, a standing "traditional," excluded.

Contrary to public opinion, the Forum is not strictly "high brow." Rather, it is a collection of student written short stories and works of a poetic nature.

The pages of the magazine are open to all, and the published works are selected solely on their own merits. Through the years Forum has consistently proved itself worthy of student support.

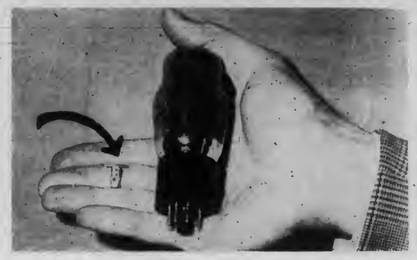
Radio Engineering Developments Are Discussed

Little Brain Cell Soon To Replace Amplifier Tubes

By Cy Donaldson

Revolutionary developments in radio engineering because of the recent invention of the transistor unit will be the theme of the Engineering Society's meeting during college hour Friday, May 27, Room 100.

The meeting features a talk by engineering instructor Lester Tarnopol on the development and future uses of the transistor.



The transistor unit, Little Brain Cell, will eventually take the place of the conventional vacuum tubes.

Difference in size between the present filament tube and the new transistor is amazing. The tube in use today is at least four inches tall and an inch in diameter, whereas the Little Brain Cell is only ½ inch tall and ¼ inch in diameter.

It was invented by the Bell Telephone Laboratories in 1948 and is constructed so that it does not contain filaments, which burn out readily, but crystals of Germanium, a rare element.

Bell Telephone Laboratory technicians were generous in releasing this new development, which as yet is not used commercially, to the college radio laboratories for experimentation and familiarization.

Not only will space be saved in building electrical equipment, emphasized Tarnopol, but also the time and expense in constantly replacing burned out filament tubes will be eliminated.

THE ARROW POINTS to the small but powerful transistor unit (little brain cell) which will eventually take the place of its giant counterpart, the conventional radio vacuum tube.

A large electronic calculation machine, for instance, contains approximately 18,000 vacuum tubes, of which one an hour burns out.

At the present time the college radio lab is fundamentally testing the unit on different circuits, but in the future they hope to design and construct a small radio receiving set the size of a pocket watch.

A decrease in the size of batteries due to the Little Brain Cell should result in more efficient hearing aids for the partially deaf.

Still in its infancy, the transistor unit is being used solely for power amplifying.

Transistor units, when coupled with the new principle of painted circuits, which eliminates complex and bulky wiring patterns, enables the radio parts manufacturer to produce smaller and cheaper radio sets.

Thanks to the cooperation of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, the radio department is not only up to date, but ahead of times.

Students taking radio engineering receive training in all the latest aspects of electronics and radio developments, according to Tarnopol, to prepare them for their chosen vocation in a world of rapidly changing technological advancements.

Vermiculite Pops Like Popcorn, Makes Wall 'Bend'

By Adolphus Thomas

At the recent flower show in Oakland, April 26-May 1, John Lawrence, instructor of the Flower Shop, created a background for the shop exhibit which meant news to the man who has designed the Annual California garden show for 16 years.

Under Lawrence's direction, the college Flower Shop built from plaster a 25-foot imitation adobe wall, transported it by truck all the way to Oakland, and used it as background for its prize winning floral exhibit in this year's flower show.

When the show's designer eyed the wall, observing its solid and realistic condition thoroughly, he found that in 16 years of garden show designing a new formula for construction, both practical and economical, had been developed by the college's flower shop instructor.

Yesterday, from behind his desk in his Building 5 office, with fresh flower aroma sweetening the air, Lawrence gave the news to The Guardsman reporter.

"We used Vermiculite," he announced. Vermiculite? ? ? ? .

The instructor interrupted his typing to give more attention to the question.

"Vermiculite," Lawrence explained, "is a light mineral product which only recently was placed on the market. It is a mica-like substance which, when heated, pops like popcorn and creates a light weight type of insulating material. Mixed with plaster and used in place of sand, it is both lighter and engenders some flexibility even in a plaster surface. This construction made transportation from San Francisco to Oakland and back possible with a minimum of damage.

"Our original idea," the instructor explained, "was to lighten the weight of the 25 foot structure, realizing that it must be loaded and moved to Oakland. To do this, we substituted the new and lighter product for the usual sand.

"That Vermiculite would give the plaster surface more resistance, making it unlikely to crack noticeably, was a secondary idea," he emphasized.

"But it worked beautifully," he added.

If John Lawrence and the Flower Shop had news for the show's designer, the judges of the show had news for them—prize winning news!

JOHN LAWRENCE, instructor of the flower shop, explains to Dick John, Effie Lim, and Ed Jansen how vermiculite was mixed with plaster to build the wall for the college's prize winning exhibit in the Seventh Annual California Oakland Spring Garden Show.

Tennis Team Finishes Season In Conference Meet Tomorrow

Winding up their chores with the conclusion of the annual conference tournament tomorrow, the local soft shoe tennis corps of Harry Buttimer figure to hold their own in the Menlo affair.

Although the Rams might be back seated by powerful Modesto and San Mateo, for team totals, they are seeded favorably in the individual events.

The three day eliminations began yesterday with the boys expected to be separated from the men before long. Stan Smith may go all the way unless his chief challenger, Loren Main, Modesto via Canada, again outlasts him. Fred Rodgers sides with number one Smith in what appears a solid merger in the doubles. Bringing up the rear are Ed Jacobsen, the fast improving Kenny Hay, Jack Mackey, and Richard Daniel.

Hay, a portsider, and Mackey have pulled a Muti and Jeff in their last few matches for the fourth spot in the singles.

Buttimer, who finds it an easy matter to combine business with pleasure, did a bit of all right himself the past week in the California State Tennis championships. In first round stints the former Golden Bear thumped Harry McNechy 6-2, 6-1, and turned back Herb Suhr Jr., 6-3, 6-0.

Stan Smith polished off Merril Emcke, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, in his first licks in the sessions, which have attracted nationally ranked Ted Schroeder, and USF's San Match and Art Larsen, among others.

Trackmen Compete In Modesto Relays

Coach Grover Klemmer's track squad, winless in every meet, concludes an unsuccessful season tomorrow when they travel to Modesto for the Modesto Relays.

The Rams dropped another meet last Saturday when they racked up only four points in the two-year college competition of the annual West Coast Relays at Fresno.

Completely dominated by strong Southern California teams, the local sprint relay team grabbed the number four spot. Bob Bland, Marv Hoffman, Irv Beltrame, and Owen Moore, in the relay, composed the only Ram entry in the games.

Two-Year College Grid Benefit Bowl Sanctioned

By Walt Roessing, Sports Editor

State Athletic Committee of Junior Colleges met in the Hotel Californian in San Francisco last Saturday, and sanctioned the proposed Potato Bowl game, a grid benefit contest which had been proposed by the Kern County Shriners.

The football game will be played in Bakersfield on Saturday afternoon, December 3, between a representative from a California potato growing area, and an opponent from a similar area in the East.

First host in the two-year college benefit bowl will probably be Bakersfield, authorities feel, since the local Shriners originated the idea.

"The game will follow the example of the Little Rose Bowl till," Dr. J. Paul Mohr, chairman of the State Board, said recently in an interview.

Officials on the bowl committee will include members from four state junior colleges, four Shriners, two Bakersfield College representatives, and two men from the State Athletic Committee.

The southland's Shriners had anxiously awaited the decision of the board, which must approve all post season contests for two-year institutions in California.

A stipulation made by the sponsors that the participating football elevens must come from a potato growing community does not necessarily mean that the locals could never play in the Bakersfield game. San Francisco does not produce potatoes, but technically, they can be and are grown here on a small scale by enthusiastic gardeners, interested in the welfare of their stomachs and the soil.

The committee also approved a bowl game between two California valley teams, near Fresno, which is sponsored by the Lions Club of Lindsay.

San Mateo Hosts Play Day Today; WAA Attends Meet

By Carolyn Bucher

Featuring badminton, tennis, and archery, the WAA competes in a triangular play day with San Mateo and College of Marin on the San Mateo campus today.

On Tuesday, May 31, the WAA banquet will be held at Sigmund Stern Grove from 6 to 10 o'clock in the evening. Laurine Bergin, head of the Women's Physical Education Department, promises to innovate a novel theme.

Play, spaghetti and meatballs will prevail with rules of procedure for the evening as follows:

1. Players to come dressed in Levis.
2. Bring a wide napkin.

Entries for the horse show to be held at San Mateo on Friday evening, June 3, have arrived. Mrs. Bergin urged any student interested in representing the college in this sport to see her immediately.

Rams Annex Link Championship

Golfers Trip Vallejo For Initial Conference Title

By Roy Hurlbert

A jubilant gang of Ram linksters car-caravaned it home in the early dusk Monday from Sonoma with the college's first golf championship in their grasp.

The tee men of Ralph Hillsman knocked off northern division kingpin, Vallejo, 10-5, on the sloping lawns of the Sonoma Country Club for the conference crown. Just last week the locals entered the promised land with a 10½-4½ decision over defending titlist San Mateo for the southern branch's top spot.

It's possible Hillsman has a knack for numbers, because a quintet proved a lucky combination for him again. Not too long ago he fostered another first rate outfit—a basketball quintet.

Also among the Big Five this time out were the casaba twins, Bob and Don Payne. The redheads netted an even break in the transbay encounter, Bob dropping his match, 0-3, while Don came through with three needed points in blanking his foe.

Foreman Bill King got a little solace with a 1½-1½ deadlock with Vallejo's number one ace. Art Larsson picked up 2½ digits, which, along with Dick Farley's 3-0 sweep, swung the scales to the final tally.

Aside from the conference medalist turnament which started yesterday at Palo Alto, nothing more is on tap for the residents at this writing.

Unbeaten in league skirmishing, the Rams putted through 13 meets all told with but two second best showings. The Stanford Frosh nipped them, 14-13, last Saturday.

Everything points to a shot at the nationals later this month in Missouri, but a lack of funds makes the trip an improbability.

"Sponsor" Hillsman got a bid to the affair by the strength of the locals' record.

Team members deserving equal credit are Russ Bigelow, Joe Hanlon, Vince Holian, Bill Montgomery, and John Baumgartner.

RALPH HILLSMAN, producer of the college's victorious golf squad.

Tequila Club Captures Soccer Title

Intramural soccer ended league play last Friday afternoon with a 2-2 tie between the Tequila Club and the Shinkickers.

Because final standings were put on a percentage basis, the Tequila Club emerged as the champions with a two won, one tied record. The Latin-American Club was second with two victories and one defeat, while the Shinkickers took third place with one win, one loss and a tie. The Balboa Alumni received fourth place by virtue of a three loss record.

The league lasted only one week.

Today is the final day for signups in intramural boxing, softball and volleyball, director Tom Wilson said yesterday. No later signups will be accepted because these sports will have to be concluded as soon as possible, to allow for the week of final examinations, during which no games will be played.

Intramural fistic hopefuls are already working out for the coming tournament daily in the college men's gymnasium.

Williams Tops Ram Batters With .522

Lou Williams, Ram second baseman, finished the 12 game NCJC Conference play with a .522 average to wind up the season as the leading college batter. Lou Pisani and Fred Payne hit .424 and .423.

Jack Bukowatz, shortstop, led in RBI's with 13, followed closely by Tom Bournellis with ten. Bournellis had the most stolen bases, arriving safely ten times. Pisani's 14 hits were the most collected by any Ram.

Rams Lose To Indians

Coach Bill Fischer and his college nine completed their season Tuesday, losing to the Stanford Frosh, 11-3 on the Indians' Sunken Diamond.

The Rams finished their schedule with 12 won and 16 lost; seven won and five lost in conference play. Lou Williams batted .522.

Sports Offers Many Humorous Incidents

RAMblings . . .

By Bob Quinlan

MANY strange and humorous incidents can cross the paths of 12 men, who, for four months, practice, play, travel, and practically live together. Last season's Ram basketball squad was no exception.

Perhaps, the most humorous affair took place in the California Frosh game, when Coach Ralph Hillsman inserted into the reserve center Terry McKeon. The tall Irishman immediately gained possession of the ball and drove in for a beautiful layup and two points. The only catch was that he hit the wrong basket and tallied two markers for the Cubs.

There was a member of the team whose name had a knack for causing quite a commotion, as illustrated by the Salinas announcer. "Oh-oh, here comes that name we've been dreading all night. Now playing for San Francisco, Al Athan-ah-asop-ahplous. Whew!"

On receiving a report on the Monterey Peninsula game, an Examiner reporter exclaimed, "That name would have to score 14 points!"

While visiting Modesto, Dud Trueisen purchased a San Francisco daily to find out what was happening in the big city. He then learned for the first time, that he and teammates Bob Matheny and Kev Duggan had been all but enrolled at College of Pacific for next basketball season by a local sportscribe.

"What a fiction writer," commented Trueisen.

When they stayed overnight at Monterey, the locals lodged at beautiful Asilomar Resort. Instead of having cabins, the resort contains a few barracks with about a dozen rooms in each. The night they stayed there the squad was overjoyed in defeating Hartnell and racking up their first conference win.

Although a very serious matter, it was ironic how Bob Payne hurt his right elbow in the Sacramento Regional Tourney. In the Santa Rosa game, the 6 ft. 3 inch Payne smashed his elbow against the backboard while going up for a rebound.

Incidents like these kept the players' spirits high and made the Rams a closely knit team, the main reason for their successful season.

Round 'n About

Clubs Hold Meets, Prepare Colorful Mardi Gras Booth And Parade Ideas

JUST a week away, it's Mardi Gras day. The well worn parking lot, with booths and costumes is the spot. Grab a partner to see the sight, and dance to Mardy Leaver as a highlight. Don't wear a suit, just bring some loot!

Alpha Phi Omega, the college service fraternity, joins three other college chapters in an all-day picnic scheduled for tomorrow, May 21, at Hidden Valley Dude Ranch.

Fraternity chapters from the University of California, Stanford, San Jose State, and City College are giving a get-together for members and their dates from 12 noon to midnight.

All advisers are invited as well as all students, and they may get directions from President Howard Strauss, WAlnut 1-3788.

Dr. Vernon Morgan of the University of California and second faculty adviser of Horton Hall, will speak to the Collegiate Christian Fellowship next Friday, May 27, during college hour, in Room 200.

Last Sunday, May 15, members of Kappa Phi gave a wedding shower for Maria Walker, Bunny Ensepke, Bobby McClowd, and Phyllis Ryan. Attire for the affair was raincoats.

This Sunday, May 22, pledges of the outfit are giving their annual dinner at the home of Gale Keating. Theme is "I Want a Sunday Kind of Love."

Le Cercle Francais meets next Monday, May 23, at the home of Doris Hennried, 851 Fulton Street, at 7:30 p.m. The club will discuss plans for participation in the Mardi Gras. All members are urged to attend the special meeting.

Adobe Creek is the destination for Newman Club this Sunday, May 22, as the group has a picnic scheduled.

Bill King, ex-ski-ramer, played host to his former outfit at a party last Saturday evening. Everyone got waxed, including the skis!

Forum Club meets tonight at 157 Kensington Way, 8 p.m. The group will discuss the Atlantic Pact, among other things. All interested students are invited. The place should be "pact."

Tonight, the Photographic Society holds its club dinner for members only. Sunday, May 22, the outfit goes on a field trip to a winery in Asti, California.

Fall Registration Numbers Available

Two thousand students have already received their registration numbers for the fall semester from the counselling office in Building 3, although the daily number of applicants is diminishing because of student failure to keep appointments with their counsellor, Coorindator F. Grant Marsh said yesterday.

To insure an efficient and rapid registration in the fall, Marsh advised yesterday that all students who have not already done so report to the counselling center in Building 3 as soon as possible.

This action will expedite matters for the student as well as the faculty, he emphasized.

Marsh further urged students leaving college at the end of this semester to inform the center as soon as possible.

Today Deadline Date For Leave Of Absence

Final day for filing a leave of absence is today, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard said Wednesday.

The office will remain open until 5 p.m., and applications for leaves will not be accepted after this deadline.

Any student leaving the college without first obtaining an official leave of absence from the registrar's office automatically receives a grade of "F" in all courses in which he is currently enrolled.

New Courses Added For Next Semester

The college curriculum for the fall semester is offering broader educational scope to students with the innovation of several new classes in different departments.

For students majoring in chemistry and engineering, and thereby having little chance to study the humanities because of a limited number of electives, college leaders have created a one-year course which will cover the literature, music and art of western civilization.

This four unit course requires, as a prerequisite, the passing of the English entrance examination.

Two new home economics courses are scheduled for introduction in the fall semester, according to Rose Kraft and Frances Lloyd of the department.

There will be a class in foods and nutrition, which parallels a similar course given at the University of California.

Interior decorating will also be included in the same department, and requires no prerequisite, they said.

Announcement of a new course in the English Department was made by Miriam Escher, department chairman, recently.

The three unit course, English 30, will cover American Literature and will parallel a similar course offered by the University of California.

Ferrari In Finals

Andy Ferrari, student debaters' leader, won the first Regional Award of $15 in the Native Daughters of the Golden West Oratorical contest last Friday night.

He will compete in the Northern California Finals tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Grizzly Bear Library of the Native Sons Building, 414 Mason Street, in San Francisco.

Reserve Sales For Ram-Pages Close Today; Distribution Date June 2

All sales books and money for Ram Pages must be turned in by this afternoon to Jim Fernhoff or himself at the yearbook office, business manager George Capanis stated yesterday.

Books will be sold by staff members for $2.50 to Associated Student members and $5.00 to others, in Building 6, Room R, until this afternoon. Books are not being reserved at the student bank.

The year book will be sold to non-receipt holders Thursday and Friday, June 2 and 3, in the student lounge, staff members announced, and all receipt holders will receive books on June 2. Receipt holders will also be served during the June 2 and 3 sale.

McVey informed reporters that there are still unclaimed negatives in Building 6, Room R, and some photographs left from the paste-up of the snapshot section.

Ram-Pages will consist of 184 pages of clubs, sports, department, graduates, activities, and snapshots of college life, McVey said.

College Hymn Rejuvenated By Orchestration Students

Alma Mater of Our Hearts, the college hymn, is in the process of transformation, with the college orchestration class working on new arrangements for the number one song on the Ram hit parade, Meyer Cahn, orchestra instructor, announced Thursday.

Because the hymn was written in the key of C, which is suitable for concert playing, and because the key of B Flat is more appropriate for singing, each member of the orchestration class is transposing the key in his own arrangement of the piece.

Alma Mater was originally arranged by Chason Tucker, the words and music by Sherman Grant and Tak Iijimi, music students here in 1936-1938.

Students participating in new orchestration are Vic Bryditzki, Marie Joan Campbell, Conrad Doran, Henry Grant, Leo LaRosa, Emmet Murphy, Nicholas Panagiotou, Al Parry, Patty Patterson, Mario Suraci, and Bob Tefft.

Wall Street Award For Finance Major Added To June Commencement Agenda

The Wall Street Journal Student Achievement Award in Finance, a new prize honoring the graduating student who shows the most ability in the field of financial study, will be presented at commencement exercises, June 18, Edward Larsen and Lloyd Luckmann, faculty members, said yesterday.

The award will consist of a silver medal, engraved with the winner's name, and a one year subscription to the Wall Street Journal, sponsor of the prize.

Commencement will also be easier on graduates financially if they are Associated Student Card holders, Luckmann, assistant to the President, said.

The graduating student, participating in the ceremony, must pay a rental charge of $2.50 for his cap and gown if he does not own a Card. In addition, if he desired to send invitations to friends and relatives, he must pay a 50 cent charge for five invitations, Luckmann said.

A record number of 1,100 graduates is expected for the ceremony, which will honor this year's summer, fall and spring classes.

If all students who are eligible for graduation attend the exercises, the commencement will be the largest ever held by the college,

Rehearsal for the event will feature a dress performance at 2 p.m., June 17. The actual commencement is planned for 7:45 p.m. the same day.

Forum Magazine Sales Heavy At Three Distribution Points

A rush on sales centers yesterday marked the beginning of sales of Forum, college literary and art journal.

Salesmen stationed at the silver pole, the guard shack, and Building 12 reported a tremendous response on the part of the students to the spring edition which was introduced yesterday after many weeks of work on the part of the Forum staff.

Since the sales were swift, Dorothy Mercer, Forum adviser, warned students not to delay in purchasing remaining copies of the journal.

Price of this edition was reduced to 35 cents, a nickel less than some former issues, but the material contained in the booklet's 32 pages is considered superior by local critics.

Sales will be conducted between all classes through tomorrow afternoon, Miss Mercer pointed out, or until all copies are sold.

The momentous task of selecting and editing the many contributions of work by students here at the college and the preparation of lay-out and copy for the magazine was accomplished by a large staff, headed by Forum Editor Roy McCoy.

Included on the staff are John L. Crane, Neal Shelmerdine, George N. Smith, Richard Brennan, Berl Erbentraut, Bernadette Farley, Alan F. Shane, Frank Sherman, and Dayton Lawson.

Clubs Meet Friday; Soph Game June 3

Clubs will meet during college hour this Friday for the final meeting of the semester, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, said yesterday.

The next two college hours will be taken up by the Sophomore-faculty game, June 3, and the special Sophomore program for the entire group of graduating students, June 11.

A double college hour is at present under consideration for the game.

Light Vote Predicted As 4 Women Capture Campus Political Interest; President, Frosh Council Unopposed

With the acceptance of Harry Williams as the Presidential candidate by both the Fraternity and Student League parties last Tuesday, interest in the Associated Student elections, slated for today and tomorrow, centered on the four-cornered Vice-Presidential race, with a light vote predicted.

Elections will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Lounge. Election rules will be strictly enforced, Election Commissioner John Mix stated.

Only six candidates are running for the seven Freshman Council seats. Five Fraternity candidates and one Student League candidate are assured election. The seventh member will be appointed by the Student Council next semester.

Four candidates filed for the Associated Student Vice-Presidency for the first time in recent election history. They are Ronnie Morrison, Fraternity; Barbara Andress and Frances McCarthy, Independent, and Helen Stoker, Student League.

Seven Student League candidates, one Independent, and five Fraternity candidates are running for the seven seats on the Sophomore Council. The success of the candidates for these posts will determine which party controls the Student Council—and which party puts its candidate in the vacant Freshman Council seat.

Williams was assured election when he became the only candidate for the Associated Student Presidency. He received the nomination of the Fraternity party and endorsement of the Student League party. Williams was elected Associated Men Student President for this semester under the Fraternity banner.

Also up for consideration by the voters are amendments to the Associated Student Constitution. These amendments must be passed by a two-thirds majority of all votes cast on that amendment.

Kelly, Kristovich 'Rule' Mardi Gras

Pat Kelly, Theta Tau, and John Kristovich, Alpha Sigma Delta, were named Mardi Gras Queen and King yesterday by the Associated Men Student planning committee.

With the west campus parking area closed Friday, May 27, except for limited parking, while being prepared for the Mardi Gras, Dean Edward E. Sandys advised that students motor to the campus early, to insure parking space elsewhere and not be late for classes.

Limited space is available on the campus, Sandys said, for faculty members and disabled students.

Closing of the area to general parking is necessary because Mardi Gras planners will be busy erecting booths, decorating, and readying the west campus for the AMS celebration.

Horse Trader "I've Got 'Em" Ed of the city Kar Korral, with his antique Ford, will personally add color to the 45-minute opening parade up Ocean Avenue from Junipero Serra Boulevard to the Mardi Gras proper on the west campus.

At the Mardi Gras, where Mardy Leaver's band sets the rhythm for outdoor dancing, the wearing of costumes will be strictly adhered to.

The AMS perpetual trophy, now held by the Women's Athletic Association, will be presented to the club with the best booth.

Separate gold cup awards go to the college clubs and those outside the college for winning floats or marching units.

KPIX will broadcast a 15-minute television account of the Mardi Gras on Saturday night, the committee said.

Soph Graduates Plan Special June Program

Graduating Sophomores will be oriented on the possibilities of employment in their particular fields and on the advantages of the college Alumni Association at a special college hour program in the west campus auditorium, Friday, June 10, Sophomore Class President Dale Butterfield announced yesterday.

The program has been made possible through the combined efforts of the Alumni Association and the Sophomore President.

The program will be a preliminary event to the Sophomore Formal Saturday, June 11, and to commencement scheduled for the San Francisco Opera House, Friday, June 17. This program is the first of its kind in the history of the college.

Scholarship Committee Names Award Winner

William Irvine, Jr. was named winner of the Alice Eastwood floriculture scholarship award at a luncheon last week, Harry Nelson, of the floriculture department, announced yesterday.

The initial Eastwood award was $100. Presentation of the coveted prize has been scheduled for the June commencement.

COMES THE DAWN and the above four Vice-Presidential candidates, realizing the importance of their race, take a few moments out for a little session of deep thinking.

So engrossed in meditation are the four coeds, they are completely unaware of their infringement on campus "squatters' right" (note sign), as they await news from election headquarters in the student lounge.

STROLLING MERRILY in the direction of the west campus polling booths, the above ladies seem unaware of the political interest their four-way race for the Vice-Presidency has aroused on campus.

No doubt the candidates, left to right, Helan Stoker, Frances McCarthy, Barbara Andress, and Ronnie Morrison, were prepared to let the chips fall where they may and ignore all the excitement they have caused—a typical feminine trait at best. Photos by Kenneth Howe.

Accent On The Affirmative

CALIFORNIA, particularly the Bay Area and slightly-southward region, is today thriving as a center of literary and dramatic development.

From the East and from local townships, writers have settled in these areas to produce a literature which is typical of the times and of the state. Much of it is progressive; much very lasting.

Such writers as John Steinbeck and Robinson Jeffers have become so associated with the Pacific Coast that their works reflect but the one environ. Robinson Jeffers continues his seclusion in Carmel where bookstore displays indicate that local tastes cater to the output of the chronicler of their people and scenery.

Steinbeck is reportedly back at Monterey at work on a new novel which has taken him three years to date.

Wallace Stegner, of the English department at Stanford, heads the list of firmly-established younger writers. His Big Rock Candy Mountain was included in the Martha Foley collection of the best of 1948 short stories. Houghton-Mifflin Co. plans to publish a collection of Stegner's works.

The record of Stanford's creative writing classes is impressive. Famed short story writer and novelist Katherine Porter is currently an artist-in-residence instructing in creative writing. Volume III of Stanford Short Stories nears completion by the Stanford University Press while the number of Stanford writing students who have had work published by leading magazines proves outstanding. Apparently the sand-stone arches of the universities are producing the writers of this generation and not the Bohemian sanctums that supposedly produced those of the last generation.

Two California - born - and - bred products are worth noting in the literary magazine field: Circle, popular as a highly progressive publication, and The Pacific Spectator, which caters to those whose tastes run in a conservative direction and who like their creative writing unembellished with the tricks of a current radical movement in literature.

The dramatic scene should have an interesting future when the Big Trees Bowl, currently being hewn out of Redwoods down Santa Cruz way, is completed next year. Conceived by Adrian Awan, the outdoor theater will function similarly to the annual Tamalpais Mountain Play. It will draw on dramatic talent from such California centers as San Francisco, Carmel, and San Jose. With such natural scenery as giant redwoods the Big Trees Bowl should add up to something remarkable in the way of drama.

RAMifications

REMEMBRANCE of things past or thoughts while browsing through the files is our subject for today. As we presented the college of tomorrow in the last issue, it seems only fair to delve into the past for a comparison.

Emanon which, by a secret process of logic learned in India, means no-name spelled backwards was the title of the first issue of The Guardsman. Dated August 26, 1935, it was a full sized weekly.

The college at this time was located at both Galileo High School and 540 Powell Street. Students who complain about the walk from the west campus up to the main building take note.

POPULAR CHOICE

A student poll was taken at this time to determine the name for the college paper, the colors, and a nickname for the college. Among the names suggested for the paper were, The Seagull, El Dorado, The Pioneer, and The Serran. After a fast stretch drive The Guardsman won by two lengths going away. Mutuals later.

The nick-name contest was even closer. After considering such names as Clippers, Caballeros, Aztecs, Gauchos, Cavaliers, and Eurekana, the desperate students voted for the Rams. With such a choice is there any wonder?

The college colors battle was wide open. A few radicals held out for chartreuse and mauve or organdy and purple, but wiser heads prevailed, and red and white was the winner. It is true that there was a large contingent in favor of black and blue and they did accuse the red and white group of Gerrymandering (an old Greek political term meaning let's compromise and do it my way.)

BIG OFFICE

The Guardsman office during these trying days was located in a janitor's closet complete with mops and pails. They had two borrowed typewriters, one of which worked, and the staff was small but alert.

Advertisements in these early editions provide interesting reading. Giant milk shakes were a dime as were hamburgers, and a complete dinner is advertised for only 30 cents. The latest Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers movie cost 15 cents.

When the site for the present main building was chosen it was described as a beautiful, well-located site, and 30 acres of beauty. Not a word about the wind. As it was the college almost ended up out at Geary and Masonic.

Guardsman Acquires Monicker In Contest

Men Dominate Newspaper Field; Fact Holds True On Local Paper

By Walt Heil

Back in the placid days of the 1930's a cynical reporter on the Texas Press Messenger sat down at his typewriter and pounded out a little story concerning the newspaper of 1950.

The reporter, perhaps in a bad state of mind because of the influx of women in his profession, pictured the newspaper business run only by women.

In his little story he portrayed the game in a manner appalling to all newspapermen. "The city editor is an efficient business-like lady," he said. "All the office force are women; the composing room foreman is an Amazonian type female, and advertising, layout, circulation, all duties are handled by women."

Today in 1949, only one year from 1950, that old prediction is far off base.

To be sure there are many women in the newspaper business, but not as many as the old reporter on Press Messenger pictured. Women are dominant only in the society, library, and women's pages of the daily paper.

A few gentle souls of the fair sex have managed to sneak into composing room chapels, but these are mostly linotype operators and proof readers. The heavy work is still left to the men.

In other departments, women usually handle the secretarial chores and light clerical jobs. In most papers there are few women display advertising salesmen.

On The Guardsman, men predominate and always have, although there have been three women editors-in-chief. Occasionally a top job on a newspaper is handled by women but to a greater degree men still hold the big jobs.

In the near future some pessimistic male may knock out another story on the newspaper of 1970 and say things similar to the Texas Press Messenger story. Most likely he'll be as wrong as the man who wrote the story first.

Editorial: Lack Of Political Interest May Prove Fatal To College's Democratic Two Party System

DISINTEREST, at least from the candidate's viewpoint, seems to be the trend of this semester's Associated Student elections as the polls opened this morning and voters were faced with a curtailed list of candidates.

Not since the war years, when Uncle Sam was doing the selecting and spared no one, has the college been faced with such a lull in campus politics.

Even in those days, however, the problem was not in securing a ballot full of candidates, but rather in keeping the elected officers out of uniform and on campus.

Today, the lack of interest can mean but two things. Either the two party system, which has been built up at the college during the post-war period, is on its way out, or else there is a decided lack of qualified political material on campus at present.

If the latter is the case, then time will no doubt heal the wound and return things to normal before long, but if the cause is the lack of interest among either of the major political parties, then the tale is indeed a sad one.

What has been built up over the years will have crumbled and along with it will fall the prestige which the college has gathered because of its true democratic student government program.

City College is one of the State's few two-year institutions which places the responsibility of student government squarely in the hands of the student.

Through the years students at the college have proved themselves worthy of the responsibility, and it would be a shame to see this labeled as the period in which the decline in student government at the college began.

Although a light vote is predicted this semester, a truly large and representative student vote would dissuade any thought that the students, as a group, had lost interest in their student government.

GOING along with the governmental theme, a poorly aimed blow-below-the-belt was struck at Associated Student President Pete Isola last week when a cowardly group, hiding behind the shield of mystery, distributed a slanderous missive unjustly condemning Isola for a statement he made at a recent Board of Education meeting on behalf of the students he represents.

We sincerely hope students on campus are intelligent enough to disregard anything, regardless of its content, which is published anonymously.

Hotel, Restaurant Foundation Established Here

Hotel Owner Toy Honors College With Scholarship

By Cy Donaldson

MAKING the initial monetary grant to the City College of San Francisco Hotel and Restaurant Foundation, Harvey M. Toy, well known hotel owner and manager, inserted a bequest, a $25,000 scholarship fund to this organization in his will.

A letter presented at the recent luncheon for the California Northern Hotel Association was read by George Smith, Chairman of the Association's Advisory Committee, in which Dr. A. J. Cloud, president of the college, was praised for his efforts in building up and maintaining the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

The fund has been set up as a token of Toy's respect for the progress of the division under Dr. Cloud's administration during the past 13 years.

In behalf of the college, Dr. Cloud acknowledged receipt of the scholarship fund, which will be a boon in furthering education in this field.

A native son of San Francisco, Toy owns and manages much property in Northern California, including the Hotel Manx here in the city and Hotel San Carlos in Monterey.

IT'S ALL SMILES as Hervey M. Toy, hotel owner, left, and President A. J. Cloud admire the merry-go-round bakery creation placed before them. It also seems to be enjoying itself.

West Campus Building Project Not Atomic Plant, Merely New School

By Palmer M. Cramer

A recent student poll presented a good indication that many students hadn't the slightest idea of what was cooking over yonder in the north end of the west campus.

Amid the stack of lumber over there something kinda tremendous was being built, but what could it be?

Could be a battleship, it's big enough (for a small one.) It must be of military importance because a private cop was seen circulating among the gear present. Maybe another atomic bomb plant is being erected. That sounds likely when one remembers that a course in atomics has been added to the fall agenda.

Rumor had it a while back that a reservoir was planned for that neck of the woods, but as time went on windows became apparent. It didn't seem likely that there would be windows in a reservoir, so the gossips again concluded—an atomic bomb plant.

Or, maybe the word has gotten around that City College students have ten whole minutes between classes, with nothing to do with all that time, and some enterprising individual has decided to build a theatre. For a while that idea was played with, but someone noticed, as time went by, that no marquee was in evidence. Pass that one, too.

Now it can be told. It is nothing but another school; a parochial school, full name: Riordan High School for Boys.

Bird Family Makes Nest In Campus Tree

By Marvin Cohn

A family of English sparrows came back to City College last week with a vengeance, to make their nest in the limbs of a peaceful pine tree located inside the main gate of the west campus.

The sparrows use the limbs of the tree not only as a place to rest their nest, but as a base for dive-bombing attacks upon any animate object that happens to be passing over the path that leads directly beneath it.

Whether the sparrows attack to protect their home or to enjoy the resulting show of swinging arms has not been determined.

State Athletic Moguls Propose Insurance Plan For Collegians

By Walt Roessing, Sports Editor

Establishment of a statewide two-year college insurance plan neared reality last week at a meeting of the State Athletic Committee of Junior Colleges.

College officials throughout the state, who have been compiling data and information for several years, submitted their insurance plans to the California Interscholastic Federation, a statewide high school organization, for adoption.

Establishment of such an insurance plan, by the CIF, would protect all two-year college athletes in case of accidents in sporting events.

The cost of the coverage is quite reasonable, J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president and chairman of the committee, believes.

"A charge of 12 dollars per player to be paid by the college in football, and three dollars per player in all other sports is the present proposal," Dr. Mohr said.

The officials also want a reserve fund of eight dollars for each athlete, which would be used in emergency cases.

At the present time few two-year colleges in California carry accident insurance for the benefit of their players.

City College is not one of these. The local institution had the highest cost of football injuries in the state last year, with four noticeable mishaps, but the players were protected.

Prompt and adequate treatment took care of the most serious cases, namely Bill Shipp and Ray Gilford.

If the two-year colleges and the CIF can agree on a reasonable insurance plan, observers feel that all college athletes will benefit with the start of the 1949 football season.

Ram Tankmen Finish Season Against Olympic Club JV's

Post-season glances at the Ram mermen reveal a four-four meet record and the second place spot in the Northern California Championships credited to Roy Burkhead's swimmers. The team concluded its season Friday night in a meet with the Olympic Club JV's.

Treasure Island Navy, the Elks Club, and a pair from the Alameda Naval Air Station loom in the local win column.

In a four-way meet with SF State, Treasure Island, and the Olympic Club JV's, and in a dual meet with the California Frosh and the Olympic Club the Rams were dumped.

Coach Burkhead stated that the record is really remarkable because the swimmers have no pool of their own and that they receive but 40 minutes of coaching time per week. "A swimmer needs at least two hours of solid work a day to be in shape," opines the mentor.

At Napa, the north coast conference meet was a big surprise for the locals, who took second behind the powerful Stockton mermen.

Nine letter winners were announced by Burkhead this week. Al Nelson, Ben Nobi, Alan Parsons, Art Swartz, Bill Knapp, Tom Tomlinson, Ron Cutler, Max Seigel, and Terry Ryan all earned their circle awards.

Knapp, 220; Seigel, diving; Swartz, 50 and 100, and Parsons, breaststroker, will all leave local ranks due, to graduation or through the ineligibility route. Ryan, Skip Sherman, Tomlinson, Cutler and Nelson will return to the fold.

Burkhead hopes that by next season, facilities will be available so that his water charges won't have to go out of their way to find pools in which to practice.

Elections Of WAA Officers Begin Tomorrow

Climax to an active semester for the Women's Athletic Association will be their coming elections and banquet, according to Jean Sliter, WAA president.

Election dates are set for tomorrow and Thursday with the names of candidates not officially announced.

At the WAA banquet to be held Tuesday evening, May 31, at Sigmund Stern Grove, all newly elected officers will be named.

Other than the formal speech making, and presentation of new officers, entertainment is in the comic vein, Miss Sliter said.

Play, meat ball and spaghetti is the novel theme of the affair; the innovation, meat ball and spaghetti, could possibly be the entree.

In charge of arrangements for the WAA banquet are Chris DeSibo and Dode Fambrini.

A dance demonstration to be given by the folk, social and modern dance classes of the college is scheduled for presentation Thursday morning, May 26, at 11 a.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Interested students are invited to attend the demonstration, Betty Heckman, dance instructor, said.

Beginning, intermediate and advanced riders, not enrolled in a class, but interested in representing the college in the Annual Fall Horse Show slated for Friday night, June 3, at San Mateo's Gymkhana Club, are requested to see Laurine Bergin, director, at the gymnasium.

Although turnouts for WAA events have been quite impressive, more women are still requested to take an active part in the remaining activities.

Novice Boxing Finals Tomorrow Night Highlight Intramual Sports Program

By Bob Goncalves

City College's boxing squad, which took second place in the recent National Junior College finals at Pasadena, has chances of being greatly bolstered for next year's trials with pugilists taken from the ranks of the many participants in the current intramural boxing tournament.

Scene for the boxing finals, which will determine the college champions, will be the men's gymnasium, and the time for the first bout will be 7:15 p.m. tomorrow night.

Boxers have been entered in all of the 11 weight classes, and the bouts show promise of being very fast and exciting, because all of the fighters have been rounding into good shape by holding daily workouts in the gymnasium.

Awards will be given to the winners at the end of the evening's fist-ivities.

As intramural foul-shooting nears its end, Alan Parsons and Dick Lamar remain as the only players to have taken their 100 free-throws. Parsons is leading the league with 69 buckets made out of a possible 100, while Lamar is second with 66 free-throws made.

Director Tom Wilson has stated that all participants in the individual sports must complete their third round of play by today, and hand their scores in to the office at the men's gymnasium, to enable new schedules in the fast closing leagues to be drawn up.

Intramural softball and volleyball will get under way tomorrow afternoon at Balboa field and the gymnasium, respectively. Signups will be taken until this afternoon for both sports.

Locals Cop Four Medals In League Golf Tourney

Ralph Hillsman's champion golfers grabbed four medalist honors in the annual conference meet ended last Friday at Stanford.

Bill King finished but two strokes behind top man Fred Strebel of San Mateo with a 149 card. Dick Farley edged Don Payne for fourth place while Art Larsson won the second flight.

First seeded Loren Main of Modesto thumped local star Stan Smith, 6-0, 6-2, in the finals of the league net windup at Palo Alto. Smith and Jacobson lost out in the doubles earlier.

In Saturday's Modesto Relays, Grover Klemmer's Ram quartet took a second in the 880 event and fourth in 440 feature.

'Orphan' Teams Tops Despite Non-Support

By Walt Heil

UNLESS it's a horseshoe match behind a country barn at evening's twilight, there is nothing quite as unattended as college golf and tennis meets.

Usually delegated to lesser roles on college sport calendars, golf and tennis grabbed the spotlight here recently, when both activities provided topnotch teams.

When the local golf team captured the conference title late last week on the Sonoma course, it marked the fourth crown a Ram team has won in the last two semesters.

Coached by Ralph Hillsman, who led the Ram cage team to three Northern California basketball championships, the golfers swept all opposition aside in their drive to the crown. In addition they won nine matches in a row, lost only two and tied one.

They won in their sport with little or no student support.

No large gallery flocked to the fairways to watch in admiration, not even a few course loungers viewed the affair. Yet they consistently beat their opponents.

For this they deserve the plaudits of the college sporting set.

Dick Farley, Bob and Don Payne, Art Larsson, and Bill King composed the new Ram champs.

On the tennis side, the locals have a better than average club. Having copped four out of six meets, the Ram netmen made a good showing in the conference matches last Saturday.

Again they were without active student support, as is usually the case with minor sports. However, the athletes on both teams proving their mettle, provided the college with fine outfits.

Reorganized Military Science Course Initiates New Program

By Cy Donaldson

Training schedules for the new military science course include both day and night classes, Fred McFarland, future instructor of the course, said today.

Besides physical education credit, students enrolling in this course receive $2.00 per evening for their time spent in attending night classes.

Six units toward graduation can be attained by taking military science plus military policy and history.

The military science course is a one hour class for one unit a semester (it can be taken four semesters), and the military policy and history course meets two hours a week for one semester (two units.)

Field Trip Planned

A 15-day field trip is planned for enrolled students during summer vacation, for which they receive salaries equivalent to a half month's pay in active service.

Through channels, qualified officers in the National Guard are given commissions in the Officer's Reserve Corps (Army reserve component.)

In 1941 the last military courses were held at the college under the supervision of McFarland and James Hughes, co-instructors who will take charge in the Fall semester.

Organization Disbands

World War II broke up the organization temporarily in 1941 as students and instructors, alike, were picked for immediate duty in the armed forces.

Many former military science students now hold commissions up to and including the rank of Lt. Colonel in the regular Army.

Light Opera Production On Stage Soon

Marietta Ticket Sale At Three Spots Here

Tickets for the college's Music and Drama department production, Naughty Marietta, are on sale at three convenient locations on campus.

The college bank, telephone "cage" in the main building, and The Guardsman office, offer tickets on sale at 50 cents to Associated Student members, instructors with honorary student cards, and children under 12. General admission is $1.00.

Going along with the Marietta activities carpenters, riggers, and electricians are in demand by the stage crew for work on the sets and scenery for the college's June 1 to 4 production, Bob Stranton, student stage manager, said yesterday.

Experience is not necessary, however, Stranton added.

Anyone interested should apply at the auditorium after 2 p.m. for further information.

Organizations With Perfect Ticket Sales Listed On Marietta Program

By Keith Gardner

Organizations that are 100 per cent in ticket sales for Naughty Marietta, next college opera presentation, will be listed on the program as subscribing production organizations, George Capanis, student production manager, announced yesterday.

Gene Van Dyke and Russ Greer are assistant student managers, working with Capanis.

Among the many departments engaged in the production of Marietta are the music department, which provides soloists, orchestra, and chorus; the drama department, handling the acting, staging, lighting, and makeup; the floriculture department, in charge of decorations; the radio department, taking care of sound; and the graphic arts, publication and journalism departments, handling posters and publicity.

Lloyd Sisler is the stage director and drama coach, while staging is under Paul Ellison and the speech 40, 41 and 42 courses.

Musical director of the opera is Flossita Badger, and the orchestra is under the direction of Meyer M. Cahn. Gertrude Norgard, Robert Morton, and Harold Cunningham, music department instructors, are all assisting production.

Makeup is by Michael Griffin and the speech 19 course. Angelo Bertucci is in charge of lighting.

Costume committee heads are Jane Scribner and Patricia McCarthy, both of the biological sciences department. They are aided by Dorothy Luckhardt, who handled costuming for The Marriage of Figaro.

Maurice Power is faculty manager of ticket sales, with Dick Williamson, student chairman, and campus organizations doing much of the actual selling.

Power, in a recent statement, said there would be fewer seats available for Marietta than in previous college productions, because a 12 foot addition has been made to the stage, taking up space that would ordinarily be used for seating.

Elections, Mardi Gras Take Over; Clubs' Semi-Annual Banquet Time

STUDENT concentration this week centers around local government elections and the Mardi Gras, both should be very interesting. A lack of interest seems to prevail over the usually "knock 'em down and drag 'em out" elections.

Seems that all parties concerned were lucky to find enough hopeful politicians to run, some even walked. It'll all come out in the wash after today and tomorrow, when everything's cleaned up. Don't forget to make use of an Associated Students card—VOTE!

At a recent meeting of Phi Beta Rho, new members Maureen Stewart, Doris Pappas, Bev Friede, Sonny Hadley, Dona Hardy, Fran Pierce, Lynn Chance, Phylis Sowder, and Carol Lindel were officially sworn in.

Plans for summer weddings were announced by Norma Bell, Betty Jo Fletcher, Ruth Grannell, Mary Mardella, and Dorothy Stoloroff, all former Phi Beta Rhos. Spring is definitely here!

Pi Mu Gamma has its last movie of the semester this Thursday, May 26, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 136—at night yet. A "Sardine Weiner Roast," sounds kinda fishy, is slated for the outfit on Friday, June 3, at Sigmund Stern Grove. Members and guests are invited to attend the affair. Can openers will be furnished, preventing anyone from getting "canned."

Omicron Phi Pis had their semi-annual banquet last week at Veneto's, 369 Bay Street.

A semi-annual formal pledge dinner is scheduled for Zaro's in Marin County for Delta Psi Saturday, June 4. Because of the large number of pledges in the sorority, the affair should have a big turnout.

Kam Cam Club had its semi-annual banquet last weekend at Will King's Rumpus Room on 18th and Geary.

Following the dinner, the outfit enjoyed the entertainment of Herby King, his piano, and some cat by the name of Rusty, who made with funny things.

Recently at a Theta Tau get-together, Jeanne Marsh "passed the candy." To translate, this means she announced her engagement to Al Abramson of Beta Tau. Must be a sweet romance.

Since Monday, May 30, is a holiday, why not catch Billie Holiday at Ciro's on Geary? It's a very restful experience, and thrilling, too!

Tenor Vocalist Elmer Dickey Sings In Young Artists Concert Tomorrow

A City College graduate of Spring, 1948, Elmer Dickey, will participate in the Young Artists Concert sponsored by the Fellowship Hall Presentations at 8 p.m. tomorrow night, May 25, at the Fellowship Hall, 2041 Larkin Street.

Dickey, who was recognized as an outstanding tenor and personality during his two years at the college, has been further hailed, having received the San Francisco Municipal Chorus scholarship for 1949.

Soloing with such prominent music groups as the Bach chorus under the direction of Waldemar Jacobsen and the Messiah at the Monterey and Carmel Missions in 1948 has distinguished Dickey's musical career still further.

While at City College, Dickey sang a special role in The Vagabond King production of Spring, 1948, as the astrologer. His co-workers in the music department elected him manager of the A Cappella choir, during which capacity he lent his tenor voice for solo duties in other college presentations.

Tenor Dickey heads the Young Artists Concert program with Bach's Recitative and Air, Cantata No. 78. Other artists on the program are drawn from local musical groups and include Pearl Ruth Wolffs, coloratura soprano, and Raymond K. Fong, baritone.

Fellowship Hall Presentations are a part of the program of the Intercultural Workshop Committee of the Church for the Fellowship of All Peoples.

Broken Window Dilemma Halts Future Di Maggios

Dean Edward Sandys, thrust into a position comparable to that of Commissioner "Happy" Chandler, banned not Leo Durocher but baseball from the west campus yesterday following a siege of broken windows and interrupted classes.

Numerous college students have been passing their time engaging in the national pastime between the buildings on the west campus. The result has been more than a dozen broken windows and many disturbed classes due to the noise, Sandys said.

"Broken windows are not only costly, but shattering glass is dangerous to students in the buildings," he added.

Sandys urged all future baseballers to limit their activities to the athletic fields surrounding the men's gymnasium.

Voluntary Workers Needed Soon For Completion Of Library Inventory

Inventory work in the college library is practically completed, but a plea for extra volunter helpers to aid in this and other work was issued yesterday by Clem Skrabak, library assistant.

Volunteer student aides have been helping in the library from 2 to 4 p.m. daily, and Skrabak pointed out that these students have helped immeasureably and a few volunteers are needed to aid in the shelving books.

Because four students have often worked many hours longer than required, their work has helped the library staff to function with efficiency. These students are Ricard Meewing, David G. Auyong, Dorian Kimball, and Jean Gibson.

Students from the Delta Psi sorority and Alpha Phi Omega have been working regular shifts on a weekly basis.

Students helping at this time from these organizations are as follows: From Delta Psi, Sandy McKay, Barbara McBride, Pauline Bertolina, Nancy Kinney, June Welch, Beverly Olinsky, Jessie Taylor, Dorothy La Rocco, Janet Chrimeis, Nannette Burkett, Regina Geaney, Rita Pitt, Patricia Flynn and Ginny Cutler; from Alpha Phi Omega, Auyong, Howard M. Strauss, Howard Newson and Meewig.

Any students interested in helping the Library staff may apply at the main desk in the library on the third floor of the main building, Skrabak said.

Local Broadcasting Station Gives Experience To Radio Enthusiasts

A 300 watt "ham" broadcasting station, capable of reaching all parts of California—and even other western states—on a clear channel—is now being operated in Room 405 by the Amateur Radio Club, Louis Berman, sponsor, announced yesterday.

Constructed by ARC from college surplus material and parts donated by members, the station started operation several months ago on an amateur radio frequency, and is on the air daily as ARC members see fit, Berman said.

Geoffrey Clifford Nankervis, president, pointed out that ARC is composed of students who are interested in radio as a hobby, and said that the station can reach other amateur radiomen in all parts of the state. "We can even reach Washington and Oregon with a clear channel," Nankervis commented.

W6FJL, is the station's identification or call number, and it is licensed by the Federal Communication Commission, Nankervis said.

Both Nankervis and Berman joined in inviting interested radiomen to attend the club's meetings Fridays during college hour in Room 405.

Usher Positions Open For Shrine Circus

Usher positions are open for afternoon performances of the Shrine Circus now at the Civic Auditorium until Sunday, May 29.

Besides the advantage of seeing the circus free, ushers will be paid $1.50 for the work.

Interested students are requested to apply to Dean Margaret Dougherty in her office in Building 2.

VOLUME XXVIII SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—FRIDAY, MAY 27, 1949 NUMBER 22

Morrison Wins In Fraternity Landslide; Light Vote Insures Nine Council Seats

By Bill Thomas

The Fraternity Party carried the Associated Student elections Wednesday with a landslide vote which gave them every executive office except Yell Leader and nine of the thirteen Student Council positions.

The voting, however, was light with only 486 people casting ballots, less than one-sixth of the potential vote.

In the Vice-Presidential contest, Ronnie Morrison, Fraternity, won by a slim margin of seven votes over Frances McCarthy, Independent.

Helen MacKay, Fraternity, won easily over Carla Jo Pennington, Student League, with a margin of 60 votes, to take the AWS Presidency.

Frank Bayol, Fraternity, slipped into the AMS Presidency by four votes over Norman Reger the Student League candidate.

Robert Ryan and Jerry Crumpler, Fraternity party candidates, won the Sophomore Presidency and Freshman Presidency, respectively.

Robert Broune, only Student League candidate to obtain an executive office, won by 31 votes over Edward McHale for the office of Yell Leader.

The Fraternity Party took four of the seven seats in the Sophomore Council. These, plus the five uncontested seats assured them in the Freshman Council, give the Fraternity nine of the thirteen contested seats.

All proposed amendments to the Associated Student Constitution passed with the exception of Amendment No. 7, which would have changed the provision for holding more than one Associated Student position.

Louis G. Conlan Heads College Administration; Coached First Ram Cage Team To Championship

Louis G. Conlan was named to succeed pioneer President A. J. Cloud as head of City College of San Francisco by the Board of Education Tuesday.

Conlan, whose appointment as college president is effective July 1, 1949, when President Cloud retires, was a member of the first college faculty as basketball coach, and became Co-ordinator of Educational Management here in September, 1940.

In Spring, 1943, he left the college for Naval training at Columbia University, and then headed the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. At the close of the war he was appointed principal of Mission High School, and in 1948 was appointed Co-ordinator of Secondary School Education.

As the college's first basketball coach, he carried the Rams to their first conference championship in 1936, with present basketball coach Ralph Hillsman as captain of the team.

As co-ordinators in the college administration, the board named J. Paul Mohr head of the Division of Instruction; F. Grant Marsh, Director of Student Welfare, and Oscar O. Anderson, Educational Manager.

In the Student Welfare Division, Edward E. Sandys is Dean of Men; Margaret Dougherty, Dean of Women, and Jack Brady, Assistant Dean in charge of student activities.

Mary Jane Learnard continues as college registrar.

Direction of curriculum is divided among Marcus Skarstedt as Director of University Parallel Courses, Lloyd Luckmann as Director of General Education Courses, and Ward Nichols as Director of Semi-Professional Courses.

Nichols, a member of the first college faculty, was promoted to Controller. He was acting head of the business department succeeding Marsh in 1941. In the Navy from 1942 until 1945, he returned as Veteran Counsellor, and in 1947 conducted an occupational survey of San Francisco. Since last fall he has been on special assignment in the Public School Department.

In speaking of the appointment of Conlan, President Cloud made the following statement to The Guardsman:

"Louis Conlan was appointed an instructor at the college when it was opened in 1935. Afterward, he was promoted to be my own administrative assistant and held that position with great credit until he went into war service with the Navy.

"Mr. Conlan is well acquainted with the personnel, the organization, and the needs of the college. He is a man of courage, integrity, and ability. I wish for him the fullest measure of success."

Isola Named Salutatorian For Record Class Commencement

Pete Isola, Associated Student president, was named class salutatorian yesterday for commencement ceremonies at the San Francisco Opera House, Friday night, June 17, Lloyd Luckmann, commencement director, said.

The class valedictorian, usually the graduate having the highest grade point standing in the class, has not been determined as yet, but will be named after final grades are computed by the attendance office.

Plans for this year's ceremony are, as yet, incomplete, Luckmann said. News concerning the release of formal invitations to the graduates, for the purpose of inviting relatives and friends, is expected early next week.

Arrangements to distribute caps and gowns to participants will be made at a special college hour program in the auditorium, Friday, June 10, and further plans will be discussed at that time.

A probable program of guest speakers may include Dr. Adrien Falk, president of the San Francisco Board of Education, and Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools, Luckmann said.

An all-time record of 1100 students from this year's fall, summer and spring classes will be set at the commencement exercises. Complete attendance will mark a gain of 160 participants over last year's commencement class of 940 members.

Honor graduates are also expected to increase in number, and special awards, Scholastic Cup, President's Award Plaque, and several industrial distinctions will be presented.

Unsold Opera Tickets, Receipts Due Wednesday

All club representatives who are selling tickets to Naughty Marietta must turn receipts and unsold tickets in at The Guardsman office by Wednesday, June 1.

Those that are 100 per cent in sales will be listed as subscribing organizations on the program, Maurice Power, faculty ticket manager, announced.

Tickets are also available at The Guardsman office, the bank, and the telephone cage in the main building. They are 50 cents to members of the Associated Students, faculty members with honorary student cards, and children under 12. General admission is $1.00.

Four Events Top College Hour Today

Regular club meetings including that of the Club Activities Board, a film presented by the audio visual aids department in Room 136, and a guest speaker presented by the Business Education Forum in the auditorium constitute quadruple activities for today's college hour at 10:40 a.m.

Regular business and election of new officers is on the agenda.

Enchanted Island, a color film travelogue showing many of the Islands southwest of Hawaii, will be presented by the Audio Visual Aids, Madison Devlin of the department said.

Arnold Brown, local assistant resident manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, will speak before the Business Education Forum on insurance in business management and its opportunities.

The college hour schedule is as follows:

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9:50 to 10:30
College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

MARDI GRAS KING AND QUEEN John Kristovich, Alpha Sigma Delta and Pat Kelly, Theta Tau, join hands in a royal salute. AMS gold cup awards will be presented to the pair when they assume their thrones at tonight's outdoor affair.

Parking Area Changes Garb For Mardi Gras Role Tonight

By Adolphus Thomas

Hilarity reminiscent of Mardi Gras time in New Orleans and costumed festival fans in great numbers are expected to converge on the west campus parking area when the Associated Men Students present their traditional Mardi Gras celebration here tonight.

Mardi Gras paraders en masse, led by bands of Alameda National Guard, Alameda American Legion, Lowell High School, San Francisco Shriners, and the drum and bugle corps of Boy Scout troops 20 and 134, leave Junipero Serra Boulevard at 7 p.m. on a 45-minute trek up Ocean Avenue to officially open the Mardi Gras proper, covering the entire west campus parking space.

Some 15 parade floats entered by organizations from the college alone will brighten the gala procession, and many organizations from all over the city and state will take part, including two-year colleges in this vicinity and Sanfe Trialmays of Los Angeles.

Foreman of the city Kar Korral, Horse Trader "I've Got 'Em" Ed himself, is scheduled to add color to the opening parade with his antique Ford, which is reported to be the first of the machines that ousted the horse from his place of importance in the horse and buggy days.

Tonight some 35 gayly decorated booths will line the area between buildings 2 and 19. Appropriately set up, they will cater to the throng expected to participate in the celebration. (Editor's Note: The Guardsman regrets that the booth map could not be reproduced by the engraving process necessary.)

Good eating is assured for Mardi Gras participants, the AMS planning committee is confident. For the college's Hotel and Restaurant division, rated among the best in America, will operate a sidewalk cafe, located in front of the west campus coffee shop.

Mardy Leaver and his band play for the big celebration tonight, and up by the Waldorf these musicians will set the festival dance beat, as well as provide melodies in general for the festival atmosphere.

Sherratt, Barnett Head Marietta First Night Cast

By Keith Gardner

Hero and villain are the respective parts that Bob Sherratt and Roy Barnett play in the college's production of Victor Herbert's Naughty Marietta, opening a four night run Wednesday, June 1, at 8:15 p.m., in the auditorium.

Sherratt brings his experience as the male lead in the recent Vagabond King to the role of Captain Dick, sent to the New Orleans of 1750 to capture the notorious pirate, Bras Pique, who is really Etienne, son of the Lieutenant Governor.

Barnett In Pirate Role

Barnett, who sings the Etienne-Bras Pique role, has also appeared in several productions at the college, including Vagabond King and the more recent Marriage of Figaro.

Captain Dick, not knowing of Bras Pique's double identity, meets the blue-blooded Marietta, who has left a convent to see the world. She persuades Dick to disguise her as a boy, and the keeper of the marionette theatre of the Rue Carondelet, Rudolpho, accepts her as his "son."

Act 2 opens with Rudolpho attempting to teach Marietta the art of puppeteering, a business at which she is a complete failure.

Ballroom Scene of Climax

The whole thing comes to a climax in the ballroom scene. All New Orleans, including Marietta, turn out for the ball, and it is here that Captain Dick takes pity on a slave, Adah, and purchases her in order to set her free. Marietta, mistaking his motives, turns to Etienne and promises to marry him.

Opening Cast Listed

Besides Sherratt and Barnett, the opening night cast includes Joan Anderson as Marietta, with Fred Curley, Ross Price, Alfred Hernandez, Anthony Cuevas, Gerald Lustig, Barbara Andress, Patricia Fitzgerald, Jacqueline Dossy, Jo Ann Setlow, and Gladys Amburn.

The entire production is under the direction of Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler, of the music and drama departments.

The college symphony orchestra is under the direction of Meyer M. Cahn, and the choreography will partially be handled by Betty Heckman, of the women's physical education department.

George Baffico, of the social sciences department, is in charge of all properties for the opera.

It's Only Human Nature

NOT satisfied to leave well enough alone, the American government has been exhausting every available channel in an effort to return Gerhart Eisler to the U.S.

It may be a result of our lack of knowledge concerning international politics, but it seems to us the U.S. is well rid of a blood-sucking parasite, and should let the sleeping dog lie.

GOOD RIDDANCE

Not only is the country rid of a dangerous character, but it is also some 20 odd thousand dollars richer, not to mention the many thousands in cost required to prosecute him in an American court.

There is only one reason we can discern for the big to-do they are making over his absence, and that is his escaping a just punishment. However, if Russian justice is all they say it is, surely he wouldn't remain among the breathing long after arriving there.

Why not, we suggest, take this event for what it is, not as something brought on by the devil.

If the whole affair is looked at under a different light than has been used earlier, there appears a definite avenue of escape for the American people from a growing internal sore.

As has been proved previously, history tends to repeat itself, so why not throw all the unwanted "reddish" characters into the Federal "pokey," then after their ball has been posted, let them abscond.

Should the ball be high enough on each individual, it might even erase the National debt.

Of course there would be some kick-back in the United Nations, as Russia would surely resent having its Treasury depleted by the loss of bail money, but if the U.S. could live down this taint on its glossy character, look how easy life would be for Walter Winchell.

EVIL RESULTS

Looking at the other side of the picture, we can see only a serious series of unwanted events.

First, look at the disfavor the U.S. will incur from the Polish government by boarding their ship and taking Eisler ashore. This, when the Americans are trying to win the favor of all Communist-dominated countries.

England, too, will be forced to undergo a certain amount of hardships while trying to cut the red tape surrounding the extradition of Eisler.

It is quite possible that we are wrong in some of the assumptions put forward here, but until the light has been shown us, it will still remain somewhat of a mystery, why the U.S. is going to such lengths to recapture Eisler, when the odds are, nothing will be done to him anyway.

Expert Discloses College Knowledge

ASKED to list the most important things he had learned in college, the late Robert Benchley included the odds on drawing to an inside straight, the fact that if you put one paper bag inside another, you can carry a milk shake, and that if you turn a sock inside out, the hole appears in a different place.

As we are nearing the end of another semester, it seems like a good time to match the Benchley list with one of our own. In the interest of science this list will be divided into the freshman year and the sophomore year.

Under the general heading of important things learned in the freshman year, we find the following imposing list. Incidentally this is the introductory chapter of a book to be entitled, The Theory And Nomenclature Of College Life Or You Go Your Way And I'll Go Mine.

FRESHMAN YEAR

1. If you sit in the back of a lecture room three times a week for 18 weeks it is possible to play 346 games of tick-tack-toe.

2. It is possible to get by for a week on less than ten dollars.

3. One should seldom contradict instructors.

4. It is not necessary to study all the time, nor is it necessary to read all the assignments in the text book.

5. There is some question about Lord Byron's love life.

6. One must be very careful when dating two girls from the same class at the same time.

Of course, by the time we reached sophomore standing, we were much wiser, and our outlook was less frivolous. This second list is therefore much more mature.

SOPHOMORE YEAR

1. It is possible to get by for a week on less than five dollars.

2. One should never contradict instructors.

3. It is not necessary to study at all, nor is it necessary to read any of the assignments in the text book.

4. There is no question at all about Lord Byron's love life. It was very interesting.

5. One must never date two girls from the same class at the same time under any circumstances.

6. Marginal propensity to consume is a term used in economics meaning something or other.

7. If you sit in the back of the lecture room three times a week for 18 weeks, it is possible to read 64 comic books and still catch an occasional short nap.

As one can see, college life is enormously complicated and should be restricted to those of us who have proved capable.

Stratigos Receives Wall Street Journal Award For Achievement

By Bob Thorsen

Theodore Stratigos, newly announced winner of the Wall Street Journal Student Achievement Award In Finance, which will be presented to him as a graduate of City College at the 1949 commencement, has won a twofold victory, according to his instructor, Edward Larsen.

Not only has he shown great scholastic ability in his field of study, business management, but he has attained this attribute even though he was only able to complete the last three years of his education in this country.

Stratigos was born in America and lived in Pittsburg until he was 13 years old. Then he went back to the land of his Greek forefathers and attended Athens College until the Nazis took over.

He is a little vague about the Nazis and will only say that it was the people in the small villages that they bothered, but he was forced to flee the country and come back to the United States.

Arriving here in 1944, citizen Stratigos enlisted in the Army and was sent back to Europe again, only this time he went to Germany. He was in the military constabulary, and had a chance to police the Germans, instead of their policing him.

After he was released from the Army 18 months later, Stratigos came to City College where he finished his last year of high school and started working spring, fall, and summer, toward his Associate in Arts degree, which he is to receive next month.

When asked about his future plans, Stratigos says he will go on to Golden Gate College, and continue his study of business management.

If the praises of Instructor Larsen ring true, Stratigos should prove a worthy student there, as well as an able business man in later life.

Editorial: Mardi Gras Offers Ideal Opportunity For Selling The College To Shy John Q. Public

CITY COLLEGE launches a determined bid for additional city-wide recognition tonight when it throws its west campus gates wide open to receive all comers to the college's semi-annual Mardi Gras celebration.

The largest in local history and the first of the outdoor variety, the affair looms as one of the highlights of this year's social season, not simply because it should prove entertaining, but also because it will serve to draw people to the college for forthcoming activities.

The planning committee has visions of people from far and wide filing into the west campus, turning the area into a scene of gaiety and congeniality, thereby letting one and all know that the college is also capable of showing outsiders a good time—be it through a music or drama department production or something in a lighter vein.

An affair of this type is indeed the ideal opportunity for letting one's hair down, but it must be remembered that the actions of all students present will be indicative, in the eyes of any outsiders in attendance, of the attitude prevailing among the students at the college.

This missive is not meant to be a "now, junior, remember to be good" sermon, but the fact that the average citizen has a somewhat distorted idea of the typical college student can not be overlooked.

Most people picture the college student as a person just waiting for a chance to let off a little steam and make his presence known and occasionally felt.

This may be true, for after all, college people are only human. However, in order to avoid defeating one of the main purposes of tonight's Mardi Gras, it would be wise to send any visitors away from the campus feeling that the students at City College know how to sponsor and produce a bigtime event.

It would not entail too much student effort to accomplish this end. Simply a sincere display of the "you're welcome, stranger" theme would suffice.

If this attitude prevails at tonight's festivities, the success of the Mardi Gras is insured and, in addition, outside support of future college events is given a much needed boost.

Comedy Team Leaves L'Amour In Herbert Opera

BARBARA ANDRESS as Lizette, a Casquette girl in the forthcoming Naughty Marietta, and Ross (Bud) Price as Silas, form the clever comedy team featured in the production opening Wednesday, June 1, for a four night run.—Photo by Kenneth Howe.

Price, Andress Go Humorous For Naughty Marietta

By Keith Gardner

Among the complicated amours of Naughty Marietta, scheduled for a June 1 through June 4 presentation here, the two characters pictured at left manage to keep their relationship on a clean, simple, cash basis.

Silas, sung by Bud Price, lacks the hundred pounds of tobacco needed to acquire one of the Casquette girls as a wife.

PLOT OUTLINED

Barbara Andress, as Lizette, a Casquette girl, got there too late when the husbands were passed out. In her casquette, however, she has a dowry of enough gold to make any self-respecting sourdough's mouth water. There's just one drawback. The casquette is supposed to remain closed 'til she gets a husband.

The fast talking Silas gets the dowry by promising to use it to buy 100 pounds of tobacco and then return to claim her.

He doesn't. He does, however, get himself jailed and nearly hanged for impersonating a notorious pirate.

The girl, as always, finally lands him, but from the looks of that picture he was better off in jail.

CAREERS REVIEWED

Price, a former paratrooper, was stationed in Japan during the war. Now in his third semester at the college, he is aiming toward a music major. He appeared in last semester's production of The Man Who Came To Dinner and was a member of the chorus in the 1948 production of The Vagabond King.

Miss Andress is the current secretary of the Drama Society in which capacity she assists in the Mardi Gras' production of RipSkits. Her comedy role of Edith, the all-important housemaid in this semester's Blithe Spirit, drew laughs from an attentive crowd. She also played the role of Maria in Twelfth Night.

A JOB one hates to do dept.: Saying goodbye to an old friend is always rough. Last week the registrar's office posted its usual student "delinquency" list—too many classes unattended. On the list was the name of Dayton Lawson, creator of this column. Visitors in this spot will be sorry to see Lawson go. So will The Guardsman. Through the years, and it's been at least three, Lawson's work has appeared on these pages. During his stay, he picked up many readers. Lawson has a style which speaks for itself. But, because of an untimely accident to his hand which resulted in a two-week layoff from classes, he was unable to make up his grades. So on the list went the name of Dayton Lawson and The Guardsman pages lost an old reliable friend. We know Lawson's readers will miss his column. So will we. . . .

It happened to me too dept.: Also on the mournful list which seemed to take a heavy toll was the name of Lane Currie, rally commissioner. Lane also had his troubles with the books. Things were going along smoothly for him until the ax fell. The rallies had been good. He even got a crowd out.

Eater Complains; Boy Meets Girl

● Sticky Subject

Editor, The Guardsman:

What is happening to me should not be happening to a Mexican hairless. At the library I am copying from the encyclopedia for a composition entitled, The Mating Habit of the Amoeba.

An idiosyncrasy I am having is putting my left hand under the table. Instead of wood I am feeling something gouey-gouey. Is red and black chewing gum. Dentyne and Black Jack someone is saving for a rainy day. I am pulling out handkerchief.

Also is falling out nickel which is rolling away. I am dropping to my knees. Also on knees is my friend, Archie Pelon. Coming over is librarian who is saying, "Please. No crap playing here. I must ask you two to leave." The bounce I am getting just when I am having boy amoeba meeting girl amoeba.

Next morning from the CS 6a instructor I am getting a shot in the head.

● No Toothpicks?!

Editor, The Guardsman:

A complaint I am making. Lunch I am eating at the cafeteria every day. Who is a Rockafeller? So snitzel and stuffed pimento from Dave's Delicatessen I am bringing. From Dave I am getting wholesale. At the cafeteria, coffee is a nickel. So coffee I am buying. With this I am getting napkin, and salt and pepper for my pimento. Also knife and fork for my snitzel.

I am coming to the point I am complaining. In the newspaper I am reading City College is number one-to-ten in the two-year college Hit Parade. Now I am wanting to know, "How come at the cafeteria is no toothpicks?"

Aged Profs Engage Soph Youths In Softball Tilt

By Frank Monte

Dropping books, pencils, and other paraphernalia, men faculty members leapt last week to accept the challenge of the sophomores to compete in a softball game to be held Friday, June 3, on the football practice field between 10 a.m. and 12 noon.

The profs, still suffering from the humble defeat that was handed to them last spring by their younger foes, are determined to win this encounter.

They will not reveal the site of their training camp. The reason for such precautious measures, Jack "Stonewall" Brady confessed, was to prevent their opponents from stealing their signals.

When asked about the professors' chances in the coming game, Brady replied, "It's a cinch. We don't have a thing to worry about." Still gabbing, he remarked, "The only reason we lost last time was because of the poor officiating. We were robbed."

To add light to the big game, the profs have adopted team colors, black and blue. The colors will not be worn until after the fracas when they will be displayed by the profs on body and soul in many shapes and sizes.

Complying with their secretive manner, the instructors have not assigned positions, but did release a roster of the full team.

Ed "Tarzan" Sandys, O. E. "Andy" Anderson, Louis "Slugger" Batmale, Egbert "Cement" Brix, Harry "Racquetless" Buttimer, Mike "Pro" Cahn, Robin "Hoblin" Dunn, Tom "Watcher" Dutcher, Lee "Charger" Eisan, Don "Pencil" Jensen, Mike "Spike" Monaco, Tom "Slider" Nesbitt, Maurice "High" Power and Brady will represent the Black and Blue.

The soph team, modestly confident of a victory, is composed of Walt "Lucky" Jourdan, George "Whole Spoke" Capanis, Jim "Half Spoke" Fernhoff, Dave "The Eye" McKay, Ted "Fireball" Quandt, Harry "Door Prize" Williams, Bill "Littleral" Batterson, Bob "Cannonball" McCormick, Carl "Beard" Simonion, Frank "Slugger" Sueuga, Tony "Twister" Troche, and Dale "Gale" Butterfield.

Modesto's Loren Main Tops Stan Smith In Net Tourney

Highlighted by terrific Loren Main's expected showings, the scrap book for Harry Buttimer's local tennis squad was shelved for another season with the annual league netfest last week.

The talented Canadian junior champ humbled Ram stalwart Stan Smith for the singles title of the show, 6-0, 6-2, after slamming his way to easy first round wins. Paired with teammate Jim Doane, the Modesto ace goes after the doubles crown today against Wally Vickery and Ed Benson of San Mateo.

Smith reached the finals by eliminating fellow squad member Fred Rodgers, 6-2, 6-0. Ed Jacobsen and Smith were stymied in their doubles conquest, when they defaulted the second set of the series because of an untimely arm injury to Smith. Main-Doane were one up on them at the time, having taken the first set, 6-4.

Rodgers surprised the gallery with an upset, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Dick Sorsenson of San Mateo. in the opening trials.

Former Locals Shine In USF Grid Practice

By Bob Quinlan

VENTURING out to the University of San Francisco's Green-White intrasquad football game last Saturday afternoon was like attending a City College alumni gathering.

Performing for the White eleven were former Ram stars Ollie Matson, Burl Toler, and Howie Crouch, while opposing their former teammates were Kenny White and Roy Giorgi.

Sitting in the "comfortable" stands watching the practice session were Walt Jourdan, Ray Poznekoff, Paul Olivier, Bill Shipp, Jack Marcus, Ray Gilford, and Joe Wallack, all members of last year's undefeated championship team.

Also getting in on the local act were the officials, Roy Diederichsen and Tom Wilson, with Ram Coach Roy Burkhead, a former USF athletic star, also witnessing the proceedings.

Toler was the outstanding local player during the scrimmage Saturday on the Hilltop, showing the fine defensive abilities that made him an All-American junior college gridder last season for City College.

The lank, center received the Martin O'Brien Trophy before the game, which is annually awarded to the boy who displays the finest all-around ability during Spring football practice.

Matson did not break away, as is his usual custom, for any long touchdown sprints, but performed brilliantly on defense.

Former Ram, Burl Toler.

Block SF To Award Letters At Banquet

Awarding of letters to eligible members of the Block SF Society will take place at a dinner in the college cafeteria, Tuesday evening, beginning at 6 p.m.

The following men are eligible for blocks: Armand Gabarino, Kevin Duggan, Robert Matheny, Robert Kahn, Leslie Brilliant, Donald Payne, Robert Payne, Al Athanasopolus, Dudley Truelson, and James Caldwell—basketball; Tom Bournellis, Chris Makras, Emmet Lynch, Robert Arata, Rod Losberger, Fred Payne, Lou Pisani, Louis Williams, Neil Decker, Bob McGouvern, and Ron Keifer—baseball; Irvan Beltrame, Allen Christie, Jack Hurst, and Owens Moore—golf; Richard Farley, Vincent Hollan, William King, and Arthur Larson—track; Roy Damas, Jerry Stern, Frank Sueuega, Don Cerrick, and Eddy Jackson—boxing.

Block members sniid over 20 other athletes are eligible, but do not possess Associated Student cards.

Golfers Dominate Conference Meet In Stanford Finale

By Roy Hurlbert

Scoring almost a Iandslide, the newly crowned Ram golfers wrote finish to a spectacular season with a fancy display in the conference meet staged last week on the Stanford course.

All five of Ralph Hillsman's entrants toured the 36 hole affair in fine form to dominate the medalist handouts.

In match play between men of the same ranking, Art Larson, Dick Farley, and Don Payne, won their flights. Bill King and Bob Payne placed second in their respective pairings.

Came time for overall totals, and King exhibited his real caliber, in posting a 77-74 card, only two points in excess of Fred Strebel the trophy champ with a tidy low of 149 in the sessions.

Farley and D. Payne shot 159's, with the former taking the medal and fourth place after a special playoff. The third slot went to Chuek Van Linge of Santa Rosa with an aggregate 155.

Thus ended the cross lawn maneuvers of the locals, which saw them rack up an unbeaten slate in league play with but two setbacks in more than a handful of encounters.

Rams Open Grid Slate

Cal Poly's Jayvees will supply the Ram football team its first opponent of the 1949 grid season Friday, September 30, when the locals travel to San Luis Obispo, the athletic department announced yesterday.

This non-conference tilt will give Coach Grover Klemmer a chance to detect the strong and weak points in the Ram attack as they seek their second successive conference title. Last year's squad was undefeated in 12 games.

Tee Party

TWO BIG REASONS for the success of link mentor Ralph Hillsman's championship golf squad are Ram standouts Don Payne, left, and number one man Bill King.

Both divot diggers were consistent in massing low scores during the just concluded season and turned in sparkling performances in the conference medalist Tourney at Stanford last week.

Round 'n About

"CRUISING up the river" is this week-end's theme song, and this is why. Practically all local clubs are migrating to Russian River after tonight's Mardi Gras. More than likely it'll be a wet week-end!

Rendezvous for Alpha Sigma Delta up Russian River way is Palm's Lounge and Cafe, located just outside Rio Nido. Be sure to bring identification.

Zeta Chi had a Mother's Day tea recently at the home of Bea Groger; both sets had a terrific time.

Members of Alpha Lamba Chi are looking forward to this week-end and Memorial Day, when a trip up the well known River is planned.

Final Preparations For Mardi Gras Completed; Clubs Head Up River

Celebrating the event with a party at Saint Emydius Hall, the Newman Club holds its last meeting of the semester, Monday, June 6. Students wishing to join the club in the fall are invited to attend the get-together.

Cosmopolitan Society meets in Room 113 during college hour today, when final preparation plans for the Mardi Gras booth will be discussed.

A meeting is scheduled for Alpha Phi Omega today in Room 132 during college hour. Nomination and election of officers is on the agenda. Plans for a future banquet are slated for discussion also.

Pi Mu Gamma, local organization for medical majors, holds a meeting today during college hour in Room 211. All members are urged to fall out in rubber gloves for the affair.

A week from today, Friday, June 3, Pi Mu Gamma has a wiener roast slated to come off at Sigmund Stern Grove. All members and invited guests are welcome. Mustard will be furnished.

Fourteen To Represent College In San Mateo Horse Show Next Month

By Carolyn Bucher

Fourteen entrants from the beginning, intermediate, and advanced riding classes are preparing to represent the college at the Annual Horse Show scheduled for Friday evening, June 3, at the Gymkhana Club in San Mateo.

Spectators at the competitive event are welcome, according to Laurine Bergin, of the women's physical education department here.

Mrs. Bergin added that there is a need for riders to represent the college at this event, especially in demand are advanced riders; they need not be members of a class.

Volunteer Women's Athletic Association members with free hours today are needed in the auditorium to work on the WAA booth for the Mardi Gras, President Chris DiSibo said.

Results of the WAA elections held during this week will be the highlight of the WAA banquet to be held Tuesday evening at Sigmund Stern Grove.

Besides the formal presentation of newly elected officers, entertainment on the comic fringe will be initiated.

College Band Plays For Sunnyside Grammar School Spring Festival

Students at Sunnyside Grammar School and their parents will be entertained by the college band this morning, with Meyer Cahn, orchestra and band director, turning the baton over to a student leader.

Under the direction of James Turner, student conductor, the band will play several tunes for the Annual Spring Festival, scheduled for the schoolyard at 10:30 a.m.

The program is to be opened with the band playing The Star Spangled Banner. Following this they will play a stirring march, Opus 99, a composition by Serge Prokofieff.

Later in the program selections from Richard Rogers' Carousel are to be presented, along with Edwin Franko Goldman's march, On the Mall, arranged by M. L. Lake.

The theme of the festival, Cahn said, is to be the California centennial, with the students participating in a pageant and a narrator setting the scene. A student queen named Califia has been selected and will preside over the affair.

Student Wins Nuodex Paint Technology Award

Presentation of the national Nuodex Paint Technology Award was made to City College student W. H. Haynes, by Dr. L. A. O'Leary, Education Chairman of the Golden Gate Paint and Varnish Production Club at their regular meeting last Monday night.

Five volumes of Protective and Decorative Coating was won by Haynes for attaining the highest grade average in paint technology classes throughout his two-year study at the college, Instructor Francis Wilson explained.

The award is sponsored by the Nuodex Products Company of New Jersey, nationally recognized for their contributions in perfecting techniques in the use and manufacture of driers and disperants.

Dean's Office Helps Recover Lost Books

Curtailment of the selling of lost books and other articles to the Student Book Store and College Book Store began last week, according to Dean Edward E. Sandys yesterday.

If students losing books notify the Dean's office immediately, a form describing the book will be filled out in triplicate and a copy sent to each book store, Sandy said.

This will serve to check the selling of lost books and assure the student of possibly receiving his lost book through the lost and found department in the Dean's office.

Special English Exam Scheduled For June 7

A special English examination to meet the requirements of English 21a will be given Tuesday, June 7, from 2 to 5 p.m. in Room 198, Building 19, Samuel Duff, English instructor, disclosed last week.

Those eligible to take the examination include students enrolled in English H2, English classes of terminal groups, such as Engineering and Photography, or those who have completed eight units of Communication courses prior to this semester with a C average in all their university parallel courses.

A permit to take the examination may be obtained in Building 19, Room 17, Duff said.

Ferrari Cops Oratorical Contest

By Dick Williamson

Andy Ferrari, student debater, last Friday evening won the Northern California Championship of the Seventh Annual Native Daughters of the Golden West Oratorical Contest.

Before a large audience in the Grizzly Bear Hall, Ferrari spoke for ten minutes on California History. Previously he won $15 in the bay area eliminations contest with this speech.

Ferrari is now eligible to compete in the state finals to be held in San Jose on Monday, June 20. His only opponent will be a student from a Southern California college.

College chapter of Phi Rho Pi, national honorary forensic society, announced 14 new members last week and expected many more candidates this week. Randolph Street was elected president at the first meeting of the organization. Already eight debate squads have been formed from members of the chapter.

There have been a series of four debates this week against University of San Francisco with two local teams arguing the affirmative, and two the negative to the currently controversial topics of socialized medicine and education. These were the last meets with the Dons this semester.

Continuing their activities, the debaters presented a speech forum last Wednesday covering examples of the four aspects of speech: debate, oratory, declamation, and public speaking.

Michael Griffin, debate coach, emphasized that the purpose of the forum was to acquaint radio and English majors with speech problems and how to overcome them.

Summer Jobs In Canneries Now Open

Summer positions in canneries and as fruit pickers are now available for students with experience in these lines, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, announced yesterday.

Picking of fruit starts with cherries and follows with apricots, peaches, and pears, and experienced fruit pickers are needed for these jobs, he said.

Only a few positions are open for work in canneries because the canning season is expected to be light this year, with canners selecting only first grade fruit and refusing to handle any lower grade.

Students with experience wishing to apply for these jobs must do so before June 1, he emphasized.

Amori also stated that the following students have been selected for jobs in the main Boy Scout Camp in Sonoma, California: Marno Margolis, Jr., dishwasher; Carl Balley, baker; Cesar Valiyos, dishwasher; Arnold Head, first cook; Frank Belicci, second cook, and Carlos de Leon, kitchen helper.

Amori himself was appointed to the College Vocational Education Advisory Committee, at the California Vocational Education Conference, held in Fresno recently.

The five member committee will meet in Sacramento on August 22 to organize a State of California Vocational Education Council, which will work with the California Vocational Education Commission on all problems related to vocational education and training in the State.

Amori represented the National Vocational Guidance Association, Northern California section, at the conference.

Students seeking placement in part or full time positions may apply at Amori's office in Building 2, on the west campus.

Merchandising Students Can Learn While Earning

Retail merchandising and transportation majors interested in obtaining up to six units of credit in on-the-job training during the summer should register before Friday, June 10, Samuel Ziegler, instructor in retail merchandising, said yesterday.

Merchandising students should apply to Ziegler in Room 249 at 10 a.m. daily. Transportation students should apply to Glenn Mercer in Room 252 at 9 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, or at 1 p.m. on Thursdays.

Mercer recently disclosed that numerous transportation students are already working at jobs that would earn them up to six units of credit during the summer. They should consult with him to see if they fall into the specified category.

A series of three photographic exhibitions in the student lounge were announced Tuesday by Charles Lamp, photography instructor.

Currently displayed in the lounge are 35 photos taken by the portraiture classes which show modern techniques and effects of interpretive portraiture.

Beginning Monday, another series of 35 reproductions will be displayed, with fashion as their topic. These fashion photographs, which were taken by the advanced portraiture and advertising classes, were exhibited in Livingston Brothers, downtown specialty shop, during Public Schools Week, Lamp said. They will remain on display about ten days.

Everyone, Staff Too, Takes Day Off Monday

Believing in the old adage that all work and no play makes Buster a sad boy, The Guardsman staff, along with the rest of the Associated Students, will take a welcomed day off Monday, May 30, Memorial Day.

Classes will be resumed on Tuesday, May 31, at 8 a.m. and the staff will rush back to campus in time to dust off their typewriters and get out an issue of the vital, timely, and informative.

The next issue of The Guardsman, therefore, will appear on campus Wednesday, June 1, instead of the usual Tuesday date.

Sophomore Class Formal Ball Climaxes Graduates' Social Events

As a climax to a two-year social season, graduating sophomores present their Aloha Sophomore Formal Saturday, June 11, at the San Francisco Scottish Rite Auditorium.

Bob Emerson's orchestra will provide a full evening of music for dancing, Sophomore President Dale Butterfield said.

A royalty and Aloha theme is expected to prevail throughout the affair. At mid-evening, the coronation of the Sophomore king and queen will take place at which time the two will receive personal loving cups, perpetual trophies from Beta Tau and Theta Tau, respectively.

Bids for the semi-annual formal go on sale Monday, June 6, at the student bank, and are priced at $2, Butterfield said.

Refreshments and free garment checking privileges are included in the cost of the bid.

Photographers will be on hand to take pictures on request, Butterfield added.

The Scottish Rite Auditorium is located at the corner of Sutter Street and Van Ness Avenue.

Naughty Marietta Makes Bow Tonight

HEADLINING TONIGHT'S opening performance of the college's third full scale opera production are three humans and two marionettes.

The smiling young lady in the center is Joan Anderson, who sings the role of Marietta tonight and Friday. Her complicated love affair with Bob Sherratt, as Captain Dick Warrington, is the basis for the colorful Victor Herbert light opera, set in the New Orleans of about 1750.

At lower-right is Patricia Fitzgerald, who portrays the part of Adah, the slave girl who aids in bringing Marietta's and Dick's romance to a happy conclusion.

The marionettes were constructed by Lester Tarnopol, talented puppet craftsman and member of the college's engineering department.

Smash Hit Predicted For Third All-College Opera Production

By Keith Gardner

Weeks of planning, practice, and practice culminate in a predicted smash hit at 8:15 tonight when the music and drama departments' production of Victor Herbert's light opera classic, Naughty Marietta, begins its four night run in the campus auditorium.

With musical director Flossita Badger and drama and stage director Lloyd Sisler in charge of production, the opera features, in addition to a cast of some 80 persons, college symphony orchestra under Meyer M. Cahn and a chorus of 50 A Cappellans.

Marietta, scheduled for presentation tonight, June 1, through Saturday, June 4, continues with the usual practice at the college of alternating singers in the various roles.

The cast for Wednesday and Friday includes Joan Anderson as Marietta; Roy Barnett, appearing Thursday also, as Etienne; Ross Price, also heard on Saturday, as Silas; Alfred Hernandez as Rudolpho; Gerald Lustig, on Thursday also, as Emile; Barbara Andress, on the same days as Lustig, as Lizette; Patricia Fitzgerald as Adah; and Gladys Amburn as Fanchon.

Bob Sherratt, the male lead, as Captain Dick; Anthony Cuevas as the Lieutenant Governor; and Fred Curley as Sir Harry Blake, will appear at all performances.

Thursday and Saturday the role of Marietta is sung by Luba Shubin, Rudolpho by Kirk Conrngan, Adah by Velma Webster, and Fanchon by Betty Tompkinson.

On Saturday, Harrison Williams appears as Etienne, Ed Hayden as Emile, and Geraldine Schmale as Lizette. Richard Vreeland appears as Silas on Thursday.

Miss Anderson, alternate Marietta, is remembered for her performance as Lorraine in last semester's The Man Who Came to Dinner.

Although singing is "just a hobby" to Miss Shubin, nearing the completion of her second year at the college, she too has established herself in the role of Naughty Marietta. It is the first college opera production in which she has taken part.

As the college's third opera presentation, Marietta represents the combined efforts of students and faculty members in such diversified departments as music and physical education, and drama and biological sciences.

Marietta Tickets, Money Due Today

Club representatives engaged in the sale of tickets for Naughty Marietta must turn receipts and unsold tickets in at The Guardsman office today, Maurice Power, faculty manager of ticket sales, announced.

Although tickets will remain on sale this week, the number is limited, particularly for the Friday and Saturday performances.

Tickets are priced at 50 cents for members of the Associated Students, faculty members with honorary student cards, and children under 12. General admission is $1.00.

Forum Sales Resumed At Two Campus Spots

Sales of Forum magazine, college literary and art digest, will be resumed today, Dorothy Mercer, Forum adviser, announced.

On sale Monday and Tuesday of last week, Forum was immediately welcomed by student readers and sales were reported going well at the three campus sites.

Again today and tomorrow or until all are sold, copies of the journal may be purchased for 35 cents between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the guard shack and the silver pole.

Neither the exact number sold nor the cash receipts were available at the time The Guardsman went to press, but Miss Mercer warned students to purchase their copies early. If sales in former semesters can be used as a guide, she said, the remainder of the 1,000 books printed won't last long.

Local critics agree that this edition of Forum is of superior quality, and its 32 pages are packed with many excellent student contributions of poetry, short stories and art works.

Bank Will Issue Direct Checks Until June 13th

Purchase orders or advances will not be taken at the student bank after Monday, June 6, Carl Anderson, of the bank staff, said yesterday.

Direct checks will be issued until Monday, June 13, and the bank will remain open until Friday, June 17, for the sale of ear tickets, he added.

Anderson also advised students who have ordered rings that there is a four to six months lapse before rings will be delivered; so students should have the balance of the five dollar deposits ready.

Debaters Demonstrate Progress In Speech Making At Open House Here

Debaters of the college hold open house for students and interested instructors at 3 p.m. tomorrow, to demonstrate their progress in speech-making since the inception of the debate team this semester.

Chairman Joe Schwab will represent the technique of humorous declamations midway in the program with a ten minute talk, Trial of a Vaudeville Agent.

First speaker of the speech meeting will be Irwin Phillips whose five minute impromptu speech will cover the Atlantic Pact—Peace or War. Following this recital, Arman Magid will be allowed one hour to prepare a speech covering the same topic. Both speakers are limited to five minutes. Orators John Mix and Rosalyn Mineer will also contribute to the program.

Mandatory medical care sponsored by the government was discussed at a debate with USF Friday. James Anderson and Arnold Cooper won an audience decision over USF's John Riordan and John McSwain.

Richards Speaks To Business Class

Vern Richards of the Bank of America, who speaks during college hour this Friday, June 3, in the campus auditorium, is the last of a series of guest speakers to appear before the college's business education forum, business instructor Glenn Mercer announced yesterday.

Richards' topic of discussion will be job opportunities in banking and finance.

The business forum, which was newly inaugurated this semester, is under the combined direction of Mercer and business department head James Hughes.

Conlan Calls Time Out To Pay Tribute To Dr. Cloud

Louis (Duteh) Conlan, swamped in the midst of answering innumerable calls from well wishers and attempting to wind up current business ends, called a brief time out last Friday long enough to go into a huddle with The Guardsman.

The former All-American football great and newly appointed college president, succeeding President A. J. Cloud who retires June 30, issued the following statement:

"I am indeed happy to return to City College, my former faculty associates, the new members of the faculty, and the student activities with which it is a privilege to work.

"I am proud to be chosen the successor to Dr. Cloud, for whom I have the greatest and most sincere respect, both personally and professionally.

"In his pioneering development of the college, Dr. Cloud has built a foundation recognized nationally which I shall endeavor to preserve."

Conlan (at left) is currently Co-Ordinator of Secondary School Education in San Francisco, and was Co-Ordinator of Educational Management at the college until 1943 when he entered the Navy and headed the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

Soph Formal Features Hawaiian—Royal Motif

Tuxedos or dark suits for men, corsages and formal gowns for women will be the order of the evening when the Sophomore Class presents its Aloha Sophomore Formal Saturday, June 11, at the San Francisco Scottish Rite Auditorium.

"This promises to be one of the most colorful events of the current semester," Dale Butterfield, Sophomore president, said.

Sale of bids for the semi-annual event begins Monday, June 6, at the student bank. Price of the bids is set at $2, and included in the cost are free refreshments and free garment checking privileges.

The entire affair will revolve around a royalty and Hawaiian theme. Students will dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to the music of Bob Emerson's 10 piece orchestra with vocalizations by Barbara Warren.

Highlight of the evening will be the coronation of the ruling monarchs of the Sophomore domain. The Sophomore class will present personal loving cups to the winning couple at mid-evening. In addition, the King and Queen will receive perpetual trophies from the Beta Tau and the Theta Tau respectively.

Photographers will be on hand to take pictures on request, Butterfield said.

The Scottish Rite Auditorium is located at the corner of Sutter Street and Van Ness Avenue.

A special Sophomore program will be held in the west campus auditorium during college hour Friday, June 10. This program, especially arranged for graduating Sophomores, is the first of its kind in the history of the college.

It will serve to orient the graduating class on the possibilities of employment in their fields of endeavor and on the advantages of being a member of the City College Alumni Association.

Hotel-Restaurant Major Jung To Enter Cornell

Edmund Jung, "A" student for the past two years in the college Hotel and Restaurant Division, has been accepted for enrollment at Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration.

Jung, whose father operates a Chinese restaurant on Geary Boulevard, will enter the university in September along with other students in the upper ten per cent group from other schools throughout the country.

A graduate of George Washington High School in San Francisco, Jung has successfully passed aptitude tests for Cornell.

Accent On The Affirmative

CONTEMPORARY music comes into the spotlight these days with an emphasis on "music from the heart" as the composer feels it emotionally. All this adds up to development of music which appeals more to the understanding of the layman rather than a music which was formerly restricted to the "highbrow."

Such composers as Debussy who developed impressionism through his use of the whole tone scale and his followers, Stravinsky and Schoenberg, have molded contemporary music into the forms of today.

These forms have evolved into a modern music which is understood emotionally rather than photographically.

Both Stravinsky and Schoenberg are now living in the United States where they are free to practice their art, unshackled by the conventions and forms of an old world music. Currently employed as a music department instructor at UCLA is Schoenberg.

When Stravinsky first introduced his Rite of Spring to Paris audiences in the early 1900's, its reception was hardly encouraging to the composer whose radical forms have since given him an important position in the field of music. Incidentally, a local note is struck in the point that San Francisco's own Pierre Monteux was the first to direct the controversial Rite of Spring.

Much of this evolved from Debussy, whose popularity and influence has proved him one of the most important figures in modern classical music since the last century. Such well-knowns as Afternoon of a Faun, Engulfed Cathedral, and the symphony poem, The Sea, have found important places in the musical repertoire of today.

The name of Darius Milhaud can not be overlooked in a discussion of contemporary music. Now instructing at Mills College, Milhaud is known for his modern use of the orchestra and chorus by combining them into one number. He is notable for his composition, Creation of the World, a fugue on the jazz motif, which he created through recognition of the honky-tonk rhythms of Harlem night-clubs.

Branching into the contributions of native Americans, Aaron Copeland, Roy Harris, and Howard Hansen are probably as important as any through their leadership of American music from a rather limited field of past original American music trends.

Aaron Copeland is undoubtedly the most active American composer for his works as Appalachian Spring, Music for the Theater, are truly achievements in original Americana.

Now head of the Eastman School of Music, Howard Hansen is one of the few American child prodigies, for he instructed in the University of Chicago's music department at the age of 19. His Romantic Symphony is a notable achievement.

Midwesterner Roy Harris is known for his definite technique as exemplified in his Third Symphony.

RAMifications

WHERE'S The Money Coming From? which is the name of a book by Stuart Chase and not, as one might think, the universal wail of all college students. In the interest of a better understanding of this matter, we have decided to take a closer look at this profound book.

Now ordinarily our reading is confined to Spicy Detective although we sometimes branch out to Spicy Western, Spicy Adventure, and Spicy Mystery just for variety. As one can see, we have wide cultural taste and are well qualified to review this book.

(Note to all English students: Today's column is written in iambic hexameter and may be chanted or even sung if accompanied on a harpsichord.)

NUMBER ONE PROBLEM

The problem of money, Mr. Chase tells us, is perhaps the number one worry of most Americans who are trying to look realistically into the future. As one who has looked realistically into the future with the best of them, we can say there is no perhaps about it.

Modern money, Mr. Chase goes on, is not a physical entity but the transfer of numbers according to a set of rules. The numbers are in bank ledgers or stamped on bills and coins. Their connection with gold is remote. Not, we might add, as remote as ours.

Mr. Chase warns us in a later chapter to try to face squarely the matter of the national debt. Now we don't want to catch any of you guys and gals not facing the national debt squarely. Personally, we consider ourselves one of the squarest national debt facers in the business.

CONFUSED ECONOMICS

By chapter twelve Mr. Chase is still a worried man. The question, he continues, of where's the money coming from has one answer in the case of the individual and quite a different answer in the case of all individuals united in a nation. It is meaningless to identify the individual with the nation as a whole.

If you have no money, he says, you cannot buy that beautiful new car. That kind of thinking leads into a blind alley. Blind alley? Stuart, old boy, that kind of thinking leads to writing books on Economics.

Hopelessly confused by this time, Mr. Chase then goes into a song and dance about something called a compensatory economy. Briefly, this theory consists of spending the money when you've got it and borrowing it when you haven't. This is sometimes known as easy-come, easy-go.

In conclusion we can only say that if all the economists in the world were laid end to end they would not reach as far as an honest buck.

College Students Wail 'Where Is The Money?'

Loughlin puts her footsies in the path established by last semester's, ex-Guardsman, Hank Tweith and Art Paymiller. The little lady was offered a job on a small, out-of-town sheet—in the hinterlands, she said . . . well, it's a beginning.

A City College student and her sister are $5,000 richer today. The eligible young lady, Gloria Daly, and her younger sister, each inherited $2,500 recently from their grandmother's estate. Their uncle, executor of the will, presented them with a check last week. When queried as to how she would spend the money she replied, like a typical feminist, "I hope to buy a car and some new clothes."

FOOTNOTE to Forum sales: Because of lack of bankroll, many students were unable to purchase the college lit'ry effort, Forum mag. Recognizing this fact, the powers-that-be decided that although over 500 copies were sold, the remainder of the 1000 copies would be pulled off the streets 'til after the first . . . would gov't checks be an influence?

Add more'n Forum: The abstract, get this, integrated line form on the cover of the magazine was the effort of George Smith. One of the other choices, a jazzy pink and black combo, was dreamed up by fellow Forum art editor, Jack Crane . . . modern art, yet.

Editorial: Campus Groups Ready For Final Fling As Current Semester Rapidly Rolls To A Close

AS the end of the current semester becomes more of a reality with each passing day, the tempo on campus picks up momentum as everyone takes a final fling at what have you.

The Student Council, after witnessing one of the largest fiasco elections in local political circles, held a session which should supply more music for the fall council's political merry-go-round.

The tune runs along the lines of a reapportionment program which would curtail the number of Freshman councilmen and increase the total of Sophomores in the student voting body.

One of the reasons for the discussion resulted from the lack of interest displayed by Freshman students this semester. A very democratic approach—limit somebody's sayso simply because no one has ever really bothered to let him know he could get into the act.

No doubt the fall body will give the resolution a quick glance and then put it in its proper file. A more appropriate attack would be one aimed directly at instilling more interest in the Freshmen by making them a working part of the college, not limiting their opportunities.

OVER in the auditorium tonight, the Music and Drama Departments and Opera Workshop stage their third production, number two for this semester, since 1948 when they first set out to bring operatic works to the college.

Starting with the pessimistic backing of local quarters, these people have proved their worth and in the short space of one year, have established themselves as a "must," not only for college students, but San Franciscans as well.

THE GUARDSMAN, likewise, takes its final fling of the semester with the sole remaining issue scheduled for Tuesday, June 7. Serving as a fitting climax, the final issue will have two additional pages allowing sufficient space for a glance in retrospect at past semesters.

EVEN the students are preparing for their final fling of the semester. It's listed as June 13 through June 17—Final Week.

Local Coed Proves That College And Marriage Mix

Blind Date Leads To Mrs. Taylor's Recent Marriage

By Eleanor Zais

A local nineteen-year-old missus, Helen Valentine Taylor, is currently disproving the controversial theory that college life and marriage cannot mix.

Although many veterans have successfully worked out this problem, the married college woman's situation has not been accepted as readily. Handling this situation very well for the past few months is attractive Mrs. Taylor, who not only gets to her classes on time but manages to fix her husband's meals as well.

At first her parents were a bit skeptical as to whether she could handle her home responsibilities and school life, but it has resulted in an efficient system of which they are duly proud. Her husband, on the other hand, was right from the beginning in favor of her continuing her education, and now wants her to have a teaching career.

When quizzed as to how she met her husband, Earl, who at present is an operating engineer employed by a local construction company, she promptly replied, "Oh, on a good old blind date."

A fourth semester Recreational Leadership major, Mrs. Taylor gets her homework and housework accomplished by "burning the midnight oil—and cramming for exams on the side." The Taylors now occupy a two room apartment in the rain-kissed Sunset District, but have high hopes of buying a home of their own in the very near future.

Since she is a Washington High graduate and her husband a Mission High alumnus, the different school loyalties provide plenty of ribbing and gentle arguing.

In their spare time the Taylors enjoy doodling around with jigsaw puzzles and making model airplanes. Dancing also tops their list of favorite pastimes.

Future prospects of this bright-eyed young woman are to see her husband, who also attended City College, conclude his last two years of higher education at Cal., while his wife plans to open up a nursery of her own; a nursery which will probably consist of three little Taylors because she says "it's cheaper by the dozen."

In line with possible help from her husband with her homework assignments, Mrs. Taylor laughingly answered, "He doesn't help me a bit, darn him!"

HELEN VALENTINE TAYLOR works hard on a project for her recreational leadership major while in class. If her thoughts are half on what to fix for dinner, at least her college work is not impaired.

Business Courses Make Personality Development Important Job Point

By Bob Lachmann

Achievement of a high standard of efficiency is the keynote in training for students enrolled in business 84 and 87, office training, which is a five hour a week course under the supervision of Ruth Nelson.

In preparing personnel for the business world, the course strives to develop good personal traits which include initiative, executive ability, pleasing personality, thoroughness and accuracy in work, good business like appearance, and an ability to keep everything confidential.

Students are instructed to conduct themselves as would the best type of employee in the highest type of business office; to do everything at all times as if they were being paid for doing good work.

Not only must trainees develop an expert operating skill in operating mimeographs, dictaphones, addressographs, and electric typewriters, but they must develop an ability to correct minor mechanical difficulties and to clean and oil the machines.

Speed and accuracy in typing are most important. Students are taught to eliminate waste motion, to develop systematic short cuts, and to budget time. All work must be proofread and corrections made. A student will receive an "F" for the hour if one uncorrected error is found on his paper.

Those who attain a high degree of efficiency are assigned to do various office jobs for faculty members throughout the college, which may include taking dictation and typing, or the stenciling and mimeographing of instruction papers for classroom use.

'When Do We Come Back?'

● College Kid

Editor, The Guardsman:

I've got a beef. How about some news on when the fall semester will begin? I may be premature, but summer plans warrant some knowledge of when the fall semester will start.

Many students plan to enroll in summer sessions at other colleges and if the student is not aware of the time allotted to him complications could arise. I can just see myself being out of town at college and having registration begin before I'm aware of the fact. Eager, huh?

This oversight may not be your lack of knowledge—perhaps the top people haven't released the information as yet. If not, I await with bated breath your coming report.

Hard Worker

Profs Test Sophomores In Traditional Softball Tilt On Campus This Friday

By Frank Monte

Seeking revenge for the questioned defeat handed them last spring by the sophomores, the college professors will engage the sophomores Friday, June 3, in the traditional softball contest on the football field between 10 a.m. and 12 noon.

The masterminds will go into the game with a battle cry of, "Remember January '49," while the younger team will rest on last year's laurels and rely on their youthful vitality to outlast the "batty" profs.

The "old men," still angry at last Spring's bad deal (they lost 13 to 7), have broken camp at their secret training site and moved into town, confident of a victory.

Maintaining the habit of keeping the students in the dark, Captain Jack "Smiley" Brady would not reveal the batteries for the game. He mentioned, that the profs' pitcher and catcher would warm up in the gymnasium and would not appear on the field until the beginning of the contest.

Brady stated, "We are going to resort to Connie Mack's strategy and keep our foes guessing as long as possible." From the looks of things the instructors think themselves of major league caliber. Rumors have it, they are going to hustle in a couple of new to insure a victory.

From the challengers' camp comes word that two seasoned veterans, namely, Ted "Muscles" Quandt, pitcher, and Carl "Beard" Semonlon will again handle the throwing and catching assignments.

Quandt has a record of one win to no losses, being on the mound for last year's triumph. Pilot Jim "Half Spoke" Fernhoff thinks this a strategic move to upset the aged team's apple cart.

Fernhoff planned using women on his team, but realizing this would strengthen the soph's chances of winning, decided against it. He remarked, "The reason I wanted to use females is because the faculty plays like a bunch of 'old women'."

Looking back to last semester, the sophs also feel that they have a moan coming. The 15-12 loss administered by the older set in basketball game is still ringing in their ears. They think it was a frame-up, and that the timekeeper allowed the time to go a couple of minutes over so the "old boys" (what are we saying) could pull ahead and win.

With both teams pepped up, angry, and yearning to win, the tilt should prove to be the sporting event of the year. Why not take advantage of the double college hour, hop over the hill and watch the pros in action!

Intra Novice Boxers Please Fans; No Knockouts Scored

By Bob Goncalves

Before a well pleased crowd of 250 people, the intramural novice boxing finals were held in the men's gymnasium last Wednesday evening.

Although the fans did not witness any knockouts, they were treated to two technical knockouts and an evening of good bouts.

By far the best fight of the night was the 145 pound match between Louis Gage and John Enamoto. In the final round Gage unleashed all of his power in jabs and hooks and sent his foe to the canvas for a no count early in the round and won the bout going away.

In the 120 pound class, Roxie Navarro drew with Haj Akiyama. In the 125 pound bout, Joffrey Longovia was given a decision over Dagberto Gavidia. Coming from behind, and knocking his opponent to the canvas in the third round, Weyman Wong decisioned Ernie Woodward in the 130 pound bout.

Although his foe had the advantages of a longer reach and more height, Al Rocha decisioned Ed Nakano in the 135 pound fight. In the 140 pound class, Bob Kaffke relinquished his slight lead in the third round and was decisioned by Bob Rubio.

In the 150 pound class, Jack Bettencourt displayed too much experience and power for his opponent to master, and won a decision over Jack Webb. Clarence Harmon TKO'd Bill Brown in the second round of a fast fight, in the 155 pound class. In the 165 pound fight, Harold Wright decisioned Carlos Cornejo. John Smith won a decision over Jim Keys in the 175 pound class, and Bob Morrison TKO'd Leroy Johnson in the third round of the heavyweight battle.

Mickey Alvarez was awarded the trophy as the outstanding manager.

Balboa Blues Win Intra Football Title, 6 to 0

Bob Metheny proved that he has more than basketball abilities by scoring the game's only touchdown to lead the Balboa Blues to a 6-0 triumph over the Balboa Privateers, annexing the intramural touch-football championship last week.

Members of the winning team are Metheny, Lou Pisani, Kev Duggan, Bob Corbett, Bob Shipp, Roy Damas, Bob Gibbons, Bill Marcus, Dick Lamar, and Ken Brown.

Coach Grover Klemmer held a meeting for prospective football players in the men's gymnasium yesterday. Purpose of the meeting was to secure signups for next season.

Incoming President Was Once Mentor Here

WHEN Louis G. "Dutch" Conlan was named as the new president of the college it marked the second time in his career that he held an administrative position here.

In 1936, Conlan, fresh from a coaching job at Commerce High School, led the Ram basketball team to their first conference title. The team finished the season with a 10 won, 2 lost record, and The Guardsman sport page of Wednesday, March 4, 1936, was quoted as saying, "Miracle Man Conlan Sends Quintet to Victory During First League Enterprise."

RAMblings . . .

By Walt Heil

Ironically enough, the locals' All-Conference guard on that first championship cage team was Ralph Hillsman, current coach who led the Rams to their latest basketball crown.

While at St. Mary's College, Conlan was named All-American quarterback in 1926. Vitally interested in all phases of athletic endeavor, Conlan gives his support to all sports. At Mission High, where he was principal, baseball Coach George Wolfman told his players following a Conlan pep talk, "There goes a man that would give his right arm for a winning team."

That clearly shows Conlan's interest in sports!

Former Athletic Star Conlan Is Sports Bug

In the hectic days preceding Conlan's confirmation as president, rumors prevailed on the campus that athletics might be deemphasized by a new president. These rumors were squelched when the former St. Mary's star was named Dr. A. J. Cloud's successor.

Conlan probably won't make any changes in the present athletic structure of the college. The Rams can continue to build strong sports teams and will have Conlan's full support.

Closely associated with sports during his career, the new president comes to City College a staunch rooter and a good leader.

A prominent football official during the grid season, Conlan will no longer be able to officiate at City College games, but will probably continue his work in other college tilts.

Nine Cindermen Win Monograms; Rams Annex Second In Relays Test

By Terry Ryan

Nine trackmen will receive letters for their efforts on the oval during the season which closed last Saturday, when the Rams beat all conference and frosh teams to take a second in the mile relay behind Compton in the Modesto Relays.

Two of the award winners will be lost to Klemmer, while the remainder of the ten man group will return to the cinders next year. Owen Moore, who broke the local record in the 440 yard dash with a 48.8 effort, and John Hurst, a consistent point winner in the hurdle events are out, via ineligibility.

Coach Klemmer will count on the return of Marv Hoffman and Ken Fogarty, sprinters; Bob Bland, sprinter and broad jumper; Allen Christie, 440; Charles Leonhardt, shot and discus; Ira Beltrame, star sprinter, and Roy Carnegie, 440.

WAA Sends Dozen Entrants To Compete In Riding Show At San Mateo Friday

By Carolyn Bucher

Twelve entrants from the riding classes will represent the college at the Annual Fall Horse Show slated this Friday evening, June 3, at San Mateo.

Beginning riders who will participate in the event are Josephine Paraventi, William Rosala, Loretta Cherry, Kenneth Ritchey, Jean Ann Koeppe, and William Meagher.

Intermediates representing the college are Merritt Olds, Robert Ott, Patricia Simmons and June Schallenberger.

Jean Silter, WAA president, and Marilyn Van Housen from the advanced group will participate in the competitive event.

Riders from the beginning, intermediate and especially from advanced groups are in demand to represent the college, according to Laurine Bergin, head of the women's physical education department. Entrants need not be enrolled in a riding class at the college.

Spectators are invited to attend the horse show, Mrs. Bergin added.

Remember '49!

SKIRMISHING FOR A REBOUND in the heated action, which typified the Sophomore-Prof hoop melee last semester, are the mouth gaping players in the renewal of the traditional rivalry.

Caught in an elevated stretch are the game's standouts, Lou "Bruiser" Batmale, clutching the ball, and "Tiny" Roy Burkhead, who went along for the ride to assure his teammates tip toe feat. Batmale paced the "ancients" to a hard fought 15-12 victory, with a spectacular output of 6 points, four of them garnered on corner casts of 25 feet, no less.

Reading clockwise are onlookers: Grover "Rover" Klemmer, featuring the new look in shorts, Herb Levy, Fall '48 Guardsman Editor; Roy "Eyebrows" Pasini, present chief of the local twice-weekly; Gene "Butter" Ellison, another staff writer; an unidentified right leg, and Sports Editor Walt "Eye" Roessing, giving out with a Tarzan routine.

Another graybeard-peachfuzzers frolic will be enacted Friday when representatives of both sets go at it again in their third softball clash since the war.

Placement Service Selected To Choose Convention Workers

The National Exhibitors Association yesterday listed the college placement office as the center for qualified applicants to apply for work as demonstrators at the American Home Economics Convention in the Civic Auditorium here June 28 to July 1, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, said.

Amori has selected local applicants for the various exhibits in the past years, and the students of the college have performed so efficiently that the association decided this year to employ only City College students.

The workers will receive $10.00 per day and will demonstrate the various equipment which will be on display.

Also, several other new summer jobs are now available to both men and women students.

Two men with recreational experience and ability to direct young boys are needed for a recreational job in San Francisco, and one qualified recreation leader is needed for work in a San Francisco boys' club, Amori said.

Positions for an experienced piano player and a drummer are open at a summer resort on Russian River. The applicants must be competent, qualified, non-union and available to work from July 1 through the summer.

An experienced woman is needed to serve as a camp director for six weeks in an exclusive girls' camp at Lake Arrowhead. She must be able to organize games, sports, arts and crafts. A woman with some musical experience is preferred.

College women with recreational experience are needed for summer work in the Camp Fire Girls' camps.

Pre-Registration Testing Schedule Listed

New students entering the college will be subjected to a heavy bombardment of entrance examinations before registration next semester.

Harold Weeks of the testing department stated that no one is denied entrance to the college on the basis of the entrance examinations.

Entrance examinations are divided into two parts which are administered in two half day sessions on consecutive dates. Students must complete both parts before pre-registration counselling interview.

Schedule of entrance examinations is as follows: students from the East Bay, local private, and Catholic schools, June 21 and 22 at 9 a.m.; Washington, June 23 and 24 at 8:30 a.m.; Polytechnic, Galileo, June 23 and 24 at 1 p.m.; Balboa, Commerce, June 27 and 28 at 8:30 a.m.; Girls High, Mission, June 27 and 28 at 1 p.m.; Lincoln, Lowell, June 29 and 30 at 9 a.m.

Schedule for all others is as follows: July 19 and 20 at 9 a.m., July 26 and 27 at 9 a.m., August 16 and 17 at 9 a.m., August 23 and 24 at 9 a.m., August 30 and 31 at 9 a.m., September 7 and 8 at 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., September 12 at 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Radio Workshop Here Starts News Broadcast

Sport news, world-wide developments, and local achievements direct from campus wire service headline the advanced radio announcing class' five-minute daily broadcast beginning at 12 o'clock, directed by instructor Henry Leff.

The program was instigated for the first time last week on a "trial-and-error" basis.

Acquisition of the new International News Service Teletypewriter in The Guardsman office made possible the new program, since up to date news castings and scores of major league games are obtainable for transmission over the P.A. system, student Jerry Miller said yesterday.

Seven members of the class, Miller, Roy Storey, Hewitt Kendall, Fred Curley, C. C. Taggart, Ed Hayden, and Don Parker interchange on the announcing and preparation of each program.

Council Discusses Membership Changes

The Student Council met Thursday and approved 200 complimentary tickets for Naughty Marietta, 22 free year books, and a suggestion to the next Student Council that they consider limitation of the Freshman Council.

The resolution, proposed by Jack Gallisdorfer, suggests that the newly-elected council consider reapportionment of the representation in the Student Council.

The proposal was made because of the lack of Freshman candidates in the recent election.

Superiority Rates Top In Waldorf Reservations

Occupants of the two dormitories on the campus recently received directions from Fred C. McFarland, dormitory supervisor, pertaining to reservations for next semester.

Students now living in Building 13 have first priority in reserving their present rooms.

Between June 1 and June 3 these prospective Fall semester roomers must pay $18.75 in advance, which will take care of rental costs from September 15 to October 31, 1949 inclusive.

A "C" average must have been maintained during the present semester by each resident applying for reservations.

As of June 3, any rooms not taken in Building 13 can be obtained by other applicants wishing to live on the campus, McFarland said.

Deadline for complete vacancy of the dormitories falls on June 17, at which time residents will receive a refund for rental paid through the end of June.

Men In Blue Play Cops And Robbers; Shower Time, The Air Mucho Wet

AFTER announcing parties, banquets, joint-meetings, picnics, smokers, pledge dinners, and what ever else happened around the local campus during the past semester, The Guardsman finally has come out into the open and tells of its semi-annual staff banquet a week from tonight, Wednesday, June 8.

The affair is scheduled for the Marines' Memorial Club (one of the staff was once a Marine) at Sutter and Mason Streets. Mixed typewriter ribbon greens, a la g—rautin, garnished lavishly with licorice flavored printer's ink will be served as the soup-er d'jour—nalism!

Fged Fitzgerald's law enforcement classes are really going wild these days with their crime problems. Seems as though the boys caught Fitzgerald last week, posing as an econ. in Jack Kearn's room via the Waldorf, with three concealed weapons (water pistols).

They picked him up on suspicion of being suspicious!

Note eyes toward the future . . . To aid in-coming presidents, Kappa Phi has instigated an advisory board of three members, which is aimed to keep the outfit running smoothly. On the newly formed board are Marilyn Burke, Kay Handlon, and Rusty Hubachek.

Recently a joint surprise shower was held for the five Kappa Phi brides-to-be (it rhymes). The girls who were showered included Mona Walker, Phyllis Ryan, Helen Gunderson, Bobbie McCleod, and Bunny Dietz.

Tau Chi Sigma's formal initiation is slated for Jee McCann's home on the night of June 4. Following the "inisch" a dinner is tabbed for members and their guests at Pete's, by the beach—north, that is.

Retail Merchandising Summer Work Application Deadline June 11

Samuel Ziegler of retail merchandising yesterday warned that the June 11 deadline for transportation and merchandising majors to register for summer work experience credits is rapidly approaching.

Transportation and merchandising students who register before June 11 may secure up to six units toward graduation for on-the-job-training during summer vacation.

Merchandising majors should see Ziegler in Room 249 at 10 a.m. daily. Transportation majors should see instructor Glenn Mercer in Room 252 at 9 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays or at 1 p.m. on Thursdays.

Because of the limited number of jobs available, immediate registration is necessary.

Flower Shop Enters San Mateo Show

With two City College entries already awarded first place prizes in the recent Oakland Spring Garden Show, entrance in the 15th Annual Fair and Flower Fiesta in San Mateo during the last week of August, was announced yesterday by Ray Peterson, instructor in floriculture.

Bay Meadows will house the flower exhibition in which the college will seek its third consecutive first place honor this year, Peterson said.

Mohr Accepts Sacramento Presidency

By ROY PASINI, Editor

Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, announced last Friday morning that he had officially accepted the presidency of Sacramento Junior College.

Dr. Mohr will complete the current school year here at the college and will assume his new duties as of July 1, 1949.

In a statement to The Guardsman, Dr. Mohr said: "Although I have always held Sacramento Junior College in the highest esteem among California's two-year colleges, and am happy to be its president, it goes without saying that I deeply regret leaving City College and my associates here."

Dr. Mohr has been a part of the college since its establishment in 1935. He began his work at the college as Registrar and held the position until 1940 when he was promoted to the vice-presidency.

As vice-president of the college, Dr. Mohr has served as director of personnel and has always taken an active part in the college's building program.

He was instrumental in developing the present campus and has worked with architects in the designing of proposed buildings which are to be added to the college site.

The departure of Dr. Mohr, along with the retirement of Dr. Cloud, at the close of the current school year, marks the first time in the college's history that the two top administrative positions have been vacated at one time.

The words of Dr. Cloud truly expressed the feelings of the college when he said:

"Dr. Mohr has given unstinted service of the highest quality to City College. His part in the administration of the college has been of a worth beyond computation.

"I cannot express in words the full measure of my personal appreciation and official recognition of the contribution he has made to the growth of the college and the welfare of faculty and students alike.

"Dr. Mohr carries with him my blessing as he steps into his new position as President of Sacramento Junior College."

DR. J. PAUL MOHR, college vice-president who, along with his administrative duties, has also played an important part in expanding athletics in two-year institutions throughout California.

A former three-year letterman in his youth at Polytechnic High School, Dr. Mohr has always maintained a vivid interest in the welfare of college athletes.

He is currently serving a new three-year term as chairman of the State Junior College Athletic Commission after serving as commissioner of the Northern California Junior College Conference.

Sophs Present Formal At Scottish Rite Auditorium Saturday Night

Pomp and ceremony burst forth in brilliant grandeur when the graduating Sophomores present their Aloha Sophomore formal next Saturday evening at 9 p.m. at the San Francisco Scottish Rite Auditorium on the corner of Van Ness Avenue and Sutter Street.

Bids for the event may be purchased at the student bank through Friday, June 10, Sophomore President Dale Butterfield said yesterday. Free garment checking privileges and refreshments are included in the $2 cost, he added.

Corsages of gardenias and evening gowns for women, tuxedos or dark suits for men is appropriate wear for the event.

Coronation of the Sophomore king and queen will be the highlight of the evening. Personal loving cups will be presented by their classmates to winners in voting held last month, and Beta Tau and Theta Tau present perpetual trophies to the queen and king respectively.

Hawaii and royalty has been set as the prevailing theme for the evening. Bob Emerson's 10-piece orchestra and vocalist Barbara Warren will provide music from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Photographers will be on hand to take pictures on request, Butterfield pointed out, in what "promises to be one of the most colorful events of the current semester."

Singers Appear In Concerts

Chorus Groups Appear In Student Lounge

Members of the Men's Glee Club and the Women's Chorus present a concert at 8 tomorrow night, Wednesday, June 8, in the student lounge.

Tony Cuevas, Glee Club president, listed the program to include each organization in two groups of songs, then joint singing of a cantata, a choral composition in the style of an oratorio. The cantata selected is The Singers, by Harvey Gaul, taken from a poem by Henry W. Longfellow, and sung for the first time in this area.

Soloist for the program is student Melvin Jones. Gertrude Norgard is the accompanist and director of the Women's Chorus, while Harold Cunningham is director of the Men's Glee Club.

Choir Sings Today At Rotary Club

The college A Cappella Choir sings for Rotary Club members at 1 p.m. today in the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel.

Under the direction of Flossita Badger, the choir will sing Alma Mater, Adoramus Te, and America the Beautiful.

Eileen Scott, soprano star in The Marriage of Figaro, sings a solo in The Maids of Cadiz, and My Laddie.

Another soloist, baritone Bob Sherratt, the male lead in Naughty Marietta, sings Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, selection from the Victor Herbert opera that closed a four-day run Saturday night.

Choir members will be guests of the Rotarians for luncheon.

Award Plaque Winners Announced At Rally

As The Guardsman went to press, winners of the President's Award Plaque had not been determined by the faculty selection committee.

A committee spokesman said that the two winners will be selected this week and announced at the Sophomore program during college hour this Friday.

Honor Seven Outstanding Graduates

FOUR STUDENTS of the 1949 graduating class lead in scholarship with 2.75 or better grade average, with the top man, Richard Kowalkowski, winner of the scholastic cup. Others are Bob Jonjock, Malcolm Rainsford, and Raymond White.

In addition to these students, depending on their completion of present courses, 15 others graduate as honor students and permanent Alpha Gamma Sigma members.

A probable list includes Albert Abramson, Jack Bamrud, William Ernst, Arnon Fortgang, Marie Hasky, Raymond Lee, Stewart Lim, Joanne Pekramen, Gabriel Raab, Wilber Rente, Robert Rose, Louis Al Sclogie, Herbert Srabnik, Albert Starr, David Sullivan, and Anthony Cuevas.

The scholastic cup will be presented to Kowalkowski at commencement. Photo by Howe.

THREE MEMBERS of the graduating class will receive scholastic awards presented by Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools, during commencement exercises.

They are pictured left to right at right as follows:

Nuodex Paint Technology award winner, Walter Heynes, plans to look for a job in that trade after commencement.

The winner of the Wall Street Journal award in finance, Theodore Stratigos, plans to go to Golden Gate College.

William Irvine Jr., winner of the Alice Eastwood floriculture award, plans to transfer to California Polytechnic Institute and continue his studies.

Largest Graduating Class In College History Holds Commencement June 17

Commencement ceremonies for the college's largest graduating class will take place at the San Francisco Opera House at 7:30 Friday night, June 17, when 1,100 students including this year's summer, spring and fall classes, receive Associate in Arts degrees.

The A Cappella Choir, directed by Flossita Badger, will provide part of the music, and the ceremony will get under way with the processional, the college symphony orchestra, conducted by Meyer M. Cahn, playing Hail to the Chief, followed by the National Anthem, Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, said.

Adrien Falk, president of the San Francisco Board of Education, will address the graduates. Associated Student President Pete Isola is class salutatorian, and Richard Kowalkowski is valedictorian.

Isola will be introduced by Class President Dale Butterfield, and Kowalkowski by Associated Student Vice-President Corinne Lambert, Luckmann said.

The awards, including the Alice Eastwood award in floriculture, the Wall Street Journal award in Finance, the Paint Technology award, the President's Award Plaque, and the Scholastic Cup will be presented by Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools.

Richard Kowalkowski, Raymond White, Bob Jonjock, and Malcolm Rainsford are the four graduating students with the highest grade point averages, with Kowalkowski the recipient of the scholastic cup this year.

President A. J. Cloud will conclude the ceremony with the presentation of degrees to the graduates, and the orchestra will play On the Mall as the former students leave the stage during the recessional.

Graduating students may pick up their five commencement bids at the college bank today, Luckmann declared.

Students who are not Associated Student members must pay the sum of $2.50 at the student bank before the afternoon of the rehearsal, June 17, at 2 p.m. in the Opera House, he warned.

Class advisers who assisted the Sophomore class in their functions this semester and last are Waddington Blair of the counselling department and Nancy Sparks of the women's physical education department.

Sophomores, Athletes Share Final College Hour Program

College hour activities Friday feature a combined program by the Sophomore class and men's physical education department, with special emphasis placed on employment interest of graduates following a 20 minute presentation of intramural awards, Sophomore President Dale Butterfield announced yesterday.

The program, scheduled for the auditorium, will see the intramural awards being presented during the first 20 minutes and the remaining 25 minutes utilized for orientation of graduating students on employment possibilities and the opportunities of their City College Alumni Association.

Butterfield urged all graduating students to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them "to learn of job possibilities in their particular fields of endeavor whether they plan to continue their work in another university or intend to set foot looking for a job."

College Council Holds Super-Short Meeting; New Group Takes Charge

The Student Council met in second session Thursday—300 of them to be exact.

At the end of the 300 second meeting the council adjourned. This was the shortest meeting of the semester, last Tuesday's meeting being a full 600 seconds long.

The present council meets for the last time today, and the newly elected council will take over Thursday when the old departs.

A box score tabulation, kept by the Sports Department, reveals that motions to adjourn during the semester were made mainly by two members. Gene Ellison came in first with twelve motions to adjourn and Jack Gallisdorfer second with eight.

"I feel that an award should be given for such honest, and clear expression of opinion made by Mr. Ellison in his simple motions to adjourn," a council member said recently.

Jack Gallisdorfer came in first on "point of information" interruptions.

It was also discovered that the gavel, used by President Pete Isola to keep order, was pounded on the chairman's desk 2,000 times and once on the head of an unidentified council member.

Retail Merchandising Students Net $17,000

Special incentive for students to enroll in the Merchandising program next fall was provided in the report that 50 Retail Merchandising department students received five units and $17,000 for part time work during the Spring semester.

Retail Merchandising instructor, Virginia Gohn, who made the announcement, also revealed that business students netted $20,000 during the Fall semester, 1948.

Five units are given students for 15 hours weekly part time employment.

Editorial: Guardsman Pays Tribute To First President

WITH today's issue, The Guardsman marks the end of a brilliant chapter in the history of City College of San Francisco. Through a period of fourteen years of constant striving, the college has rightfully taken its place in the uppermost ranks in its field.

The man who has brought the college this far must now take leave of his "baby."

A firm foundation has been laid. The college can, and must, continue to add to this foundation. It owes it to the man who diligently devoted years to making the college the recognized institution it is today.

In the mind of its founder, Dr. A. J. Cloud, there is probably no doubt that the college will continue to grow and gain fame. It has been placed in safe hands and will continue to progress.

Dreams, which time prevented from becoming realities, will in the not too distant future, begin to take concrete form. Out of it will come a bigger and, if possible, better City College.

And off to one side, but never entirely out of the picture for he will always remain a part of the college, will be Dr. Cloud, smiling a smile of satisfaction which comes only from seeing a lifetime dream become a reality.

It has taken competent organization and teamwork, plus superior knowledge to give San Franciscans a two-year college of which it can truly be proud.

It will take additional planning and striving to keep the college at the head of the list, but it will be done.

For at the base of the whole picture has been a strong desire to bring San Francisco's youth an opportunity for furthering its education in the best possible environment.

Such a spirit has been instilled at the college and it will prove worthy of meeting any challenge which the future may hold.

And through it all will shine the leadership of the college's first president and founder—Archibald J. Cloud, a man The Guardsman takes pleasure in honoring as he prepares for retirement.

A Few Points In Time . . .

Campus: East Side West Side, It Now Stands On Windy Hill 29

By ARNOLD SOLKOV

Back on August 26, 1935, in the War Memorial Opera House, inaugural ceremonies for the newest college in San Francisco were held.

Students at the college at that time were serious about an education; they had to be. The campus was scattered from Galileo High School to Golden Gate Park, from Powell Street to the YWCA on Sutter Street.

It extended from Fort Mason to the Palace of Legion of Honor and was about the largest two-year college campus in the country, in area covered.

Students had their morning classes in the University of California Extension School on Powell Street which was affectionately known as "Powell" when lunch time came, they didn't converge on the fountain or the student store; they went to Union Square.

From there, they hopped a street car to make afternoon classes in Galileo High School, and college students arrived as the high school students left. Physical education instruction was held at Fort Mason, Palace of Legion of Honor, Golden Gate Park, and the YWCA.

On August 27, 1940, almost five years to the day of the first meeting of the embryo student body, the science building of the most modern and complete junior college plant on the west coast, was dedicated.

That first east-side-west-side-all-around-the-town campus has grown into a large two-year educational plant.

In 1945, the college acquired the Navy WAVE station in Balboa Park. Some 20 buildings and facilities were commandeered for the west campus area of the college.

With the addition of these 20 buildings the campus extends now from Balboa Park to Plymouth Avenue, a distance greatly exceeding the 30 acres first decided upon.

In the fall of 1948, a bond issue was passed to increase the college's plant. Plans call for two to three buildings on the hill bordering Ocean Avenue and extension of the building between the gymnasium and the main building.

In 1950, the west campus is scheduled to revert back to the city, again bringing the college back to its original idea, 30 acres.

The Old And The New

Milestone in City College's often pinched-toe existence was marked when students were crowded into classrooms at Galileo High School (upper inlay) and California Extension (lower inlay), at Powell Street.

Name Change: 1948 Was Year Of Switch From Short To Long Pants

It was a fog-drenched morning when half-awake students heard the long awaited news that the name, "San Francisco Junior College" had been scrapped by the San Francisco Board of Education for the sparkling fresh title, "City College of San Francisco."

This report, which came on February 12, 1948, meant to college President A. J. Cloud the end of a long, tedious task to replace the word "junior" in the name of the college rated sixth scholastically among all two-year colleges in the nation.

Decision of the Board of Education was made on a recommendation by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish. Since City College adopted its new moniker, many other colleges in California, whose name contained the indefinable "junior," have had the near synonym for adolescent removed for a more appropriate title.

Though the board decision was final in February, 1948, the name on the main building was not changed to City College until the following summer.

Mascot: Ram Stands Guard At West Gate After World's Fair Duty

By DICK BRIGGS

History of the wooden Ram sentinel that guards the college's spreading domain from the north end of the west campus, is perhaps as unusual and colorful as a hand-painted necktie.

The huge 3,000 pound figure of a Ram's head was embedded permanently on campus grounds, March 12, 1947, following an interesting ceremony in which Associated Student President Trev Burrow shoveled the first spade of cement.

City College's Ramland symbol was first a redwood tree stump growing unmolested in Northern California, until the tree was sawed for timber, and the stump was acquired by wood sculptor Dudley C. Carter, who carved the Ram figure for a California handicraft exhibit in the International World's Fair, 1939-40.

After the closing ceremonies of the world's fair, college architect, the late Timothy Pflueger, conducted negotiations that resulted in the Ram being presented to President A. J. Cloud, in behalf of the college.

The gift, however, was stored in the gymnasium pending decision of placing the figure in a fitting and appropriate location. Later, acquisition of the west campus through a government lease fostered drives on the part of students and the administration to withdraw the Ram figure from retirement to the space it now occupies.

After various unsuccessful skirmishes by paint daubers from other colleges, the Ram's head, still unplotched, maintains its position with sphinx-like grandeur as the guardian of City College's west gate.

Sands Of Time Pile Up New Traditions Over Years

By LARRY BALDOCCHI

In the eyes of many students of today, the college deserves large credit in the work it has done for many students since the time it was first founded way back in 1935.

When construction of the college began in 1938, however, there was no loud fanfare or enthusiastic crowd to cheer the workers on as they laid the foundation of what was to be City College of San Francisco.

In fact, it was just the opposite. A few stragglers wandered about the vicinity, and all was quiet, except for the humming of the construction machines. But even then the college had its highlights that have since followed it through the years.

Reminiscing, we conquer the mystery of the fourth dimension and fade back through the years to re-discover some of the highlights.

In 1935, the name Emanon had been selected for the college newspaper. This word when spelled backwards read, "no name." It was in this first year of the new born college that the name was changed to its present title, The Guardsman.

In the same year the college had its first football squad turnout of 120 gridders. The first grid victory in the history of the college was against Salinas, whom the Rams trampled to a 12-0 win.

The next year saw the basketball team cop championship honors under the capable eye of Coach Louis Conlan.

Later in the semester, the men students managed to assemble white ties and tails, and the women students flowing formals—result? The college's first formal dance was held at the Mark Hopkins Hotel on Friday, May 22, 1936.

The year 1937 showed much progress in the building of the infant institution, for that was the year the ground breaking ceremony took place at the site where the future college was to stand.

Plans for the layout were made in a model, plaster form, that can still be seen in the trophy display window at the men's gymnasium.

Not to be left lying in the dust, the Hotel and Restaurant Division opened for business at Everett, and Marina Junior High Schools.

As always, another year moved in. 1938, and right along with it moved the construction of the college building.

At that time the people of San Francisco went to the polls to vote on a school bond issue. It passed and $2,800,000 went to the public schools, with $500,000 labeled for the completion of this college.

Out went 1938 and in came the year that brought with it the International World's Fair. The college also had a big year, for the enrollment reached a new high of 2400 students.

Next came 1940, and the main building was ready for the Rams to move into their new class rooms. The band gave its own fanfare when it made its first appearance at a USF Frosh-Ram football game. Rushing between classes was halted when the time limit between classes was extended from five to ten minutes.

The next year brought new traffic regulations enacted by the Student Patrol, and the circle drive speed limit (the drive behind the main building) was set at 10 miles per hour.

A get-together was held by the alumni and the unveiling of two statue heads, Thomas Edison, and Leonardo da Vinci was on the program for the day.

1942, the United States went to war. This brought air raid precautions and new rules to the college. War Training classes were held in Physics, various electrical work, and Radio. Work was begun on facilities for better parking.

In 1943 the Army took 33 college enlisted reserves and welcomed them to its fold with tender arms. That same year saw a new V-12 program open for students not already enlisted in Naval College Reserve.

Showing they were always in there punching, the students held a War Bond Campaign in 1944 and smashed the quota by $5,750. The Music Department stepped into the limelight by giving its first off-the-campus concert at the Century Club.

Another new year made its entrance, and so did the end of the war. The XGI Club was formed by returning veterans, and . . . P.S. Parking facilities were still a problem at the college.

Oscar Anderson was appointed Educational Coordinator in 1946, and John Brady Assistant Dean of Men. Married veterans felt better when quonset huts arrived easing the housing shortage. Dr. J. Paul Mohr was appointed Vice-President in that year and Mary Jane Learnard took over the Registrar's duties.

A financial crisis hit the college in 1947 because of the low number of Associated Student cards that were sold. That same year saw the location of the Ram on the west campus.

In the usual course of events—came 1948. In this year the college received its long pants when the name was changed from San Francisco Junior College to City College of San Francisco. It also was the year when The Guardsman sponsored Hurley Village Playground project was financed by production of The Vagabond King.

1949? There are still many great things yet to happen, so we just leave this present year to the future, and let time tell the rest of the story.

Faculty Strength Grows With College

Since the inception of the City College (then San Francisco Junior College) in 1935, the change over in faculty lists has kept pace with the increasing enrollment.

The year of the college's birth, 1935, found 74 instructors listed in the catalog. Following such an all-time low the college hit peak years, 1941-1942, with 3,000 students necessitating a record number of 142 instructors.

The war years produced another major change when, at the end of 1942, 40 members of the 116-member faculty left the college for commissions in military service.

The City College catalog of 1948-9 lists 272 faculty members to handle a 5,000 enrollment. This number exceeds the anticipations of 1945 prophets who expected that there would be a need for 200 faculty members.

Accent On The Affirmative

IN setting the pace for musical and dramatic productions on campus, there has been an emphasis on development from Christmas concerts and Little Theater presentations on the part of the music and drama departments, respectively.

When the music department inaugurated the traditional Christmas concerts in 1935, the drama group was suffering from a lack of facilities. Issues of The Guardsman which carried notices of drama were limited to discussions of no scenery, no stage . . . no productions.

One of the first projects staged by drama students was an account of The Life of Lincoln over radio station KYA.

Continuing with a practice of one-act plays presented either in classrooms or the Galileo High School cafeteria (the present plant had not been built as yet) the drama students organized a club, the Campus Players, through which medium they gathered for rehearsals, criticisms, and efforts to perform to wider audiences.

Not until 1946 did the college drama department take over its present basement spot of Room 28 in the main building. Previously, daytime Little Theater productions put out SRO signs in Room 209, but at the 1946 point, the department started its practice of five and six night runs to facilitate handling after-dinner crowds.

Flashing back to 1936, the music department takes the spotlight with the inauguration of the Spring Festival which combined the efforts of all music groups on the campus. It was at this time, also, that the vocal groups accepted bids from other local colleges to participate in concerts in return for their appearances locally.

A tradition was started with College of Pacific's A Cappella Choir in 1937. The group visits this college frequently.

With the Little Theater spot in the main building basement, dramatic productions continued as a regular occurrence. Still there was no stage. However, the group utilized their space through modern, arena-like staging which has proved popular with Little Theater groups throughout the country.

The advantages of such staging are many: Settings become more natural, there is a more personal contact between actors and audiences, and the varieties of settings are numerous.

The Admirable Crichton, Thunder Rock, Letters to Lucerne, Young April, Brief Music, Spring Green, Squaring The Circle, The Male Animal, Arsenic and Old Lace, Our Town, Night Must Fall, are among the repertoire of City College players of the last decade.

With the linking of the music and drama departments in Spring, 1948, for the joint production of The Vagabond King, life at City College progressed to an enviable status. The tradition was followed this semester with the Opera Workshop's The Marriage of Figaro, and last week with Naughty Marietta.

Present-day sophomores can recount the other independent productions from the drama department—Berkeley Square, The Man Who Came To Dinner, Twelfth Night, Blithe Spirit, and coming up to date on the latest—The Late Christopher Bean.

It's Only Human Nature

"READING maketh a full man; conference a ready man; and writing an exact man;" —Sir Francis Bacon.

With this prologue, we hereby embark on the final journey of this semester, and as our subject, we have chosen the phenomenal growth of City College's educational offerings during the 14 years following its founding.

Bacon's famous words seem peculiarly apt at this time, as we feel sure that college officials have exhausted every available source in their efforts to get those three ingredients—reading, conference, and writing—and not in vain.

AMAZING GROWTH

In the years following its inauguration, the college enjoyed a tremendous growth in academic facilities, as well as academic standing—well proven by its high spot in the national ratings.

In its infancy the college started with only the freshman courses given at the University of California, along with a limited number of terminal courses.

The following year saw the appearance of sophomore courses, additions which had been planned in the beginning. Thus the college took on the aspects of a little "Cal."

From this time on the growth of City College largely occurred in its two year courses, paramount of which was the Hotel and Restaurant division, begun several years later.

Not only did this new curriculum prove to be a great springboard for students interested in entering the Hotel field of work, but it also proved of great value to the college.

SUCCESS RATE HIGH

Graduates of this particular course have frequently climbed to the top in their financial bracket, gaining recognition and respect for the college; this, in addition to the good food prepared, and served in the student operated cafeteria, at reduced prices we might add.

Closely following this advancement was the Music department, with its Opera Workshop addition, which was also an immediate success.

It proves its worth nationally as part of opera development in numerous colleges, and today the names of many ex-students are among the big-names in the music and stage world.

The number of new terminal courses, new in the sense that they were not started when the college was, are almost numberless, and range from Graphic Arts, a relatively new thing, to Paint Technology.

They number far too many to be handled individually here, and it will suffice to say that though many were started, none has been dropped. Each has proved its worth in modern society.

Many Changes Seen Here In 14 Years

RAMifications

Four Student Phases Show College Growth

AS a parting shot today, we are going to take a quick look at the changes in students and student activities over the past few years.

Fourteen years has seen a lot of changes as the students came and went, mostly went. Contrary to some rumors, we have not been here that long, but those who have say that these changes can be divided into four periods.

First there was the pre-war or pioneer period. Through the early days of organization, these hardy students were not at all slow to mold the traditions so vital to student life. From these few traditions established in 1935, 14 years have seen an extension of activity and a widening of horizon.

PIONEER STUDENTS

Clubs, athletics, student government, publications, all have developed through the vigorous work of these early students. There is one little tradition that did not survive, however. In the early days there was much more rivalry between the sophomores and the freshman and an annual event was the fresh-soph mud fight. If this ever starts again, we want the soap concession.

The second, or war period, brought many changes including a more prominent role in student activities for the weaker sex. These were hectic days for the whole college, as students came and went—courtesy of the draft board. The enrollment went down to less than a thousand as most of the local males were occupied by a course known as War-21a.

The third, or post-war period, brought an onrush of a new type of student to the campus. Mature, serious minded, and out for an education with a capital E, these veterans set a fast pace.

THE FUTURE

The fourth, or who-knows-what-next, period is still a question mark. A younger group is taking over as the number of veterans declines. A younger group in ever increasing numbers, ready with new ideas and new hopes, to grow with the City College of tomorrow. (We have always said that what this column needed was a good five-cent philosopher.)

At long last, the old alma mater is beginning to take its rightful place up there in the front rank of Bay Area colleges, and a lot of the credit for this belongs to the work of the students throughout the years.

In the future, the college will become just as great as the students want to make it, and we think these new students will want to make it the most important two year college in the country.

With this column, RAMifications steps quietly off the stage. So, as the sun sinks slowly over the west campus, we reluctantly take our leave.

Newspaper Keeps Pace With Changing Campus Life

Seated on their editorial haunches are (left to right) Nancy Loughlin, feature editor and columnist, San Jose bound; Larry Baldocchi, assistant managing editor and Cal bound; Roy Pasini, editor-in-chief and alter bound; Dale Butterfield, managing editor, columnist, and Missouri "U" bound; and Johnnie Dorris, like-wise feature editor, columnist, and Missouri "U" bound.

ACP Membership Marks Progress

By Palmer M. Cramer

As City College evolved through the 14 years following its institution, The Guardsman, official publication of the Associated Students, kept pace with changes and developments of the college, and the various phases of student life on its campus.

In Fall, 1939, The Guardsman joined the Associated Collegiate Press, located at the University of Minnesota. Each issue of The Guardsman is examined by ACP judges, professional newspaper men and women, who assign certificates of rating to ACP members when merited.

These certificates of rating range through All-American for superior publications, first class for excellent, second class for good, third class for high average, to fourth class, no honors.

In its period of membership, 16 semesters in all, 14 certificates of rating were given The Guardsman for All-American, or Superior publications. The remaining two were first class, or excellent.

The type of classification for The Guardsman changed during the Fall semester of 1947 when The Associated Collegiate Press began judging the publication with two and, three times weekly editions of four year colleges and universities.

The latest review of ACP for Fall, 1948, issues again placed The Guardsman in the All-American Honor Rating with the University of Akron, Ohio; the University of Maryland; Los Angeles City College; Oberlin College, Ohio; Southern Methodist University, Ohio; Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri; Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey; Georgia Institute of Technology, Atlanta; and the University of Detroit, Michigan.

Glance At West Campus Prompts Fond Memories

ONCE upon a time there was a war. Out of the war came the United States Navy WAVES. The WAVES had quarters and installations all over America. One of their homes was right on this west campus, up until the fall of 1946 that is.

When the WAVES were discharged from this area, City College charged right in and has stayed since. Three years have lapsed and collapsed, leaving the college with expanded territory, facilities and learning.

STUDENTS TAKE OVER

In the three years of west campus habitation, the college has gone through a complete re-model movement, making things a little brighter for the faculty and student.

The auditorium, once a recreation spot for the gals in blue, is now the locale for local musical productions, dances, college hour rallies, and music classes.

LOCAL HIGHSPOTS

Bearing toward the ocean, we find the student lounge, deans' offices, Associated Student offices, and branch library, all located under one roof—once the WAVE Headquarters for the brassy lassies.

Classrooms now occupy buildings 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, and 19—all rest homes (barracks) of yesteryear for the feminine swabbies. Building 6, formerly a dormitory, is now the veteran book store, with books and everything.

BARRACKS ROW

Buildings 7, 8, and 13 are now men's dormitories; they were dormitories before, too.

Once known as the Waves' Ship service, the student fountain now takes up the south end of Building 12. The fountain is said to have a capacity of 60 patrons, without coffee in hand and nickelodeon running!

Not seen in the picture at right, but very evident on campus, is the Hotel and Restaurant Division, once the WAVE galley.

FOREIGN PORTS

Also not viewed in the picture but seen on a clear day (standing on tip toes by the main building) are the Farallone Islands. These islands are not part of the west campus, so we won't mention them further. They're too far West!

Easily seen from the top of the hill is the El Rey Theater, widely known for its attraction to local students on pre-exam night study activities. Double Features yet!!

Gymnasiums Helped Solve Sport Housing Problems

AT THE BASE OF HILL 29 are the women's (left) and men's gymnasiums. Funds for constructing the twin buildings were approved in the 1937 Bond Issue. They were completed in October, 1940, and dedicated on November 10, 1940. The first intercollegiate athletic contest, a basketball game, took place on February 15, 1941, against Modesto. In the immediate foreground stands part of Hurley Village, veteran housing unit.

Phys Ed Belongs In Gymnasiums

Whereas the college of 14 years ago dreamed of physical education plants including swimming pools and football stadium, the present college generation dreams of the same equipment but settles for the two excellently outfitted buildings that are at least their own.

In the women's gymnasium, Women's Athletic Association members center their tourney week and play days with other colleges in the bay area. Their programs include a wide variation of sports.

This same gymnasium, the one on the left when you stand on top of the hill and face downtown San Francisco's skyline, is the scene of dance demonstrations, folk and social dancing, which are coeducational.

The men's gymnasium serves even today at times as an auditorium, when the west campus one is engaged for different activities. It has housed Associated Student meetings, music festivals, rallies, dances.

There remains, and always will remain, one problem insurmountable but a teaser for the more creative imagination. That problem is one of transportation from the bottom of the college-dominated Hill 29 to the top, with the least possible exertion.

Ski lifts have been proposed, underground tunnels reaching elevators in the main building contemplated, but no one ever has been able to circumvent the hike up the hill-and-down-again, no matter how strongly he believes that all "physical education" should be conducted in its proper place—the gymnasiums.

1937 School Bond Issue Provided Two Buildings

Dedication of the college's present men's and women's gymnasiums was made at 1 p.m., November 10, 1940, but the first athletic contest was not held in either new building until the night of February 15, 1941, when the local men's basketball team met Modesto in the inaugural tilt.

Construction of the gymnasiums was the result of the college's effort to put a bond proposition over to San Francisco voters in the elections of 1937. It was the earliest move toward unification by the college and drew the students together for a common cause. Proposition Number 4, as it was called, was the only bond issue to pass in the elections and was a boon to the soon to be united college.

Previously, the basketball team held all of its home games on either the Kezar Pavilion courts or in the Galileo High School gymnasium, with all practice sessions held in the latter spot.

The boxers also worked out in the high school building, but the championship bouts every year were held in the Coliseum Bowl in San Francisco.

Tennis players were forced to travel half way across the city to practice on either the Golden Gate Park courts or at the Palace of Fine Arts.

The baseball nine's home field was, and still is, it seems, at Funston Field's diamond.

The new men's gymnasium took care of the basketball, boxing, and intramural situations, but the college still lacks a home field for football, baseball, golf, tennis, swimming, track, and soccer.

Casaba fans were forced to watch their basketball team play at home, without the benefit of bleachers, the present stands having been added in the Fall of 1941.

The women faced the same problem during the first few years of the college. Tennis representatives played on the Funston Field courts in the Marina, which was not too great a distance to travel from their regular classes.

Women basketball, volleyball, and badminton teams also were forced to play in the crowded Galileo High School gymnasium with the fencing, modern and folk dancing, shuffleboard, and ping pong classes.

Local Sports Coaches Men Behind The Scene

By Roy Hurlbert

Unheralded though they may be, the men behind the men comprising the rosters of Ram athletic teams from the past to the present are not to be forgotten for their guiding influence.

Athletic Director Jack Gaddy's current staff of coaches and physical education instructors represents individuals who have excelled in particular sports during their undergrad days in college and are now putting experience to practice in moulding intercollegiate squads.

Former St. Mary's All-American guard Bill Fischer came upon the local scene in the Spring of '46 when he assumed "managerial" duties of the baseball nine which he still directs.

Stocky Lee Eisan grasped the reins of this plant's initial horsehide group back in '35. Eisan held forth in that capacity until the '39 campaign when Gaddy assumed the post. Long Jack continued for two years until Uncle Samuel gave him the welcome sign.

Ralph Hillsman got his first trial as resident eage coach also in the Fall of the same annum, '46, as he became the third court mastermind in the history of the activity here. Versatile Tom Wilson preceded Hillsman with five campaigns under his direction starting in '41, when Louis G. "Dutch" Conlan switched to administration.

Cinder speedster Grover Klemmer is another third-in-liner, being the show man in the football department succeeding Eisan and the original mentor, the late Russ Sweet.

Sweet, an all-coaster from Montana, tutored through four campaigns, the last in '38. Old Blue Eisan carried the grid corps over the next eight autumns. Youngish Klemmer assisted in Eisan's final fling and has presided as head thinker since '47.

Rounding out the major sports list is the track story which generated down from Sweet, again, to venerable Jim Jensen and thence to the Klemmer regime.

San Jose Stater Roy Diederichsen brought along a fine know how on boxing with his coming to the campus from Lincoln High where he was employed as basketball brain. Roy Burkhead is well qualified in his coaching duties as he was an all-around athlete at USF.

Years Of Athletic Strife Led To Outstanding Performers And Squads

By Walt Heil

It was only natural for City College to have athletic teams when the college was conceived and organized in 1935.

One year after the college was founded, the local cage team took the conference crown under the leadership of Louis "Dutch" Conlan. That first Ram basketball team finished on top of the loop heap with an 8 won and 2 lost record for league play. Sparked by Ralph Hillsman, present cage mentor, who was voted an all-conference guard, Carlyle Caine, Bill Glynn, and Monty Mordecai, the Rams easily annexed the title.

In the fall of 1936 the soccer team had a brilliant season winning 15 games, losing only one, and tieing another. Coached by Tom Wilson, the locals' only loss came at the end of the season when they were defeated by Menlo, 2 to 1.

The next major sports title came to the local college when the football team rolled to the crown with a 5 and 3 record. Left end Elwood Pierce and left guard Randy Osborn, All-Conference players, dominated the team.

Titles came fast and furious to the Rams after the first few lean years. In 1941 the soccer squad reclaimed their second championship; the baseball team came through with another title in 1944, beating Modesto 7 to 5 in the final game.

Baseball, football, and track walked off with titles under their belts in the happy year of 1946. Harvey Rosecill, Al Johnson, and Bob Elliot, were some of the tracksters that helped win the championship for Coach Jim Jensen. Bill Collins and Don Grant led the Rams to the baseball pennant that year.

The single wing proved too tough for opponents as Lee Eisan coached a heavy Ram grid team to the crown. Art Psaltis and Staten Webster led the locals on the field.

In 1948 the Rams had the best football team since the college was founded. Coach Grover Klemmer's T formation was too tough to diagnose as the locals rolled to 12 straight wins. Basketball provided the Rams with three titles this spring, while boxing and tennis copped the top spots in their sports.

Quinlan Picks Sport Stars Of Past Year

THE outstanding feature of the 1948-49 athletic year at City College was the magnificent play of its sport teams. In every sport the Rams elevated themselves from just another team to a conference powerhouse.

Each team produced many fine athletes, and it's a difficult task to chose the exceptional ones. In surveying the past year, however, one can not overlook the following names.

Grover Klemmer's undefeated football machine, that won the conference title and was victorious in the Gold Dust Bowl, placed four men, Roy Poznekoff, Ben Albrecht, Burl Toler, and Ollie Matson, on the all-conference team, while Neil Gunn and Bob Toquinto were named on the second squad. Toler and Matson also made the two-year college's All-American.

For the outstanding player, Matson is the Quinlan selection.

Roy Diederichsen's third place soccer outfit had three stars in Victor Solorzano, George Volkoff, and Francis Granadino, all members of the all-conference team. Granadino was the Rams' scoring punch and outstanding soccer player of the year.

Ralph Hillsman's championship basketball team was blessed with three all-conference players, Dud Truelsen, Bob Matheny, and Bob Payne, while the remaining two, Kev Duggan and Jim Caldwell, made second and third teams, respectively.

When the whole team makes all-conference it is difficult to pick out the standout. On basis of his strong ending, however, this writer's selection is Payne.

Diederichsen's Ram boxers placed five competitors, Len Garcia, Jerry Stern, Roy Damas, Dean Bender, and Frank Sucuga, in the national finals. The nod goes to Stern for winning the national title.

Trackman Owen Moore, who entered the Red and White record book when he broke the college's 440 mark, is a natural for the outstanding player selection.

Constant pacers of the Rams' victorious golf and tennis teams were Bill King and Stan Smith, respectively.

Bill Fischer's third place basketball squad consisted of nine equally capable players. A .521 average can not be overlooked in any league, thus Lou Williams is the Quinlan pick.

Intra Sports Now Campus Favorite

Since its inauguration in 1936, intramural sports has steadily risen to be one of the highlights of local college life.

At the present, under the direction of Tom Wilson, there are 13 intramural sports—football, ping-pong, basketball, softball, soccer, free-throws, horseshoes, volleyball, boxing, tennis, handball, badminton, and swimming.

Other sports that were at one time on the intramural program are wrestling, track, indoor baseball, golf, rifle matches, cross country, diving, two man hunch, and speedball.

In 1939 lack of equipment interrupted intramural play. All athletic play was confined to the physical education classes.

Awards, given to the winners of their respective sports, were introduced in 1940.

Valedictory: Four Policies Base Of College Progress

By PRESIDENT A. J. CLOUD

As I write, my eyes have rested upon an official document from the Superintendent of Public Instruction of the State of California authorizing the establishment of our College. The State Board of Education had "unanimously approved" that action on April 17, 1935.

Since that date, the College has moved ahead somewhat steadily (even in war-time) toward its goals of community service. Those objectives have meant, primarily, the progressive adjustment of the courses of instruction and other educational activities so that they might fit more and more acceptably into the pattern of plans and purposes of individual students in relation to the nature of the society in which they live.

The College was blessed in its beginning with a highly competent and widely experienced faculty, conspicuously interested in the welfare of the students; and, it is chiefly due to the skill of these instructors, and their successors, that the College has attained the favorable recognition that has come to it. The President was also surrounded by a corps of able administrative colleagues and assistants who early caught the spirit of the institution, helped to frame its policies and worked for their realization.

Faculty and administration from the first days entertained the belief that the students were now at an age and at a level of maturity to enable them to be both self-governing and cooperative in their attitudes toward others. That confidence has not at any time been misplaced.

COLLEGE CLUBS and organizations join together Thursday, June 9, at luncheon to present an enlarged, color, framed portrait photograph of Dr. A. J. Cloud, founder and first president. The portrait, reproduced above, will hang in the library.

We have now arrived at the conclusion of the College's fourteenth year of age. If I were to attempt to put "in a nutshell" a set of basic principles which the College has adopted as its platform, I would phrase it somewhat as follows:

1. It is committed to the democratic mode of life.

2. It is committed to full recognition of the individual man and woman as the most significant element in the society of which he or she forms a part.

3. It is committed to the policy of guaranteeing to the individual the maximum amount of freedom, personal initiative and adventure consistent with the duties and obligations he owes to his fellow-citizens.

4. It is committed to the policy of offering fullest opportunities in post-high school education to all who can profit from it.

And now, to speak in a more personal tone as my own period of service as President of the College draws rapidly to a close, I salute faculty and students (both those of today and those of yesterday) with grateful acknowledgement of their many, many acts and expressions of kindness toward me. I have had a grand time in all my associations at the College. So, in fond farewell, I leave with you this thought:

"Education is not a destination—it is a journey—always, we are en route."

Student Gov't: First Meet In 1935 And Still Going Strong

By BILL THOMAS

On September 13, 1935, the Associated Students of this college officially came into being. The students gathered that day in a mass meeting at the University of California Extension Building on Powell Street and approved a constitution.

In the Spring of 1938 the Associated Student Constitution was amended.

This second constitution was a step away from the idea of indirect representation in the Associated Students through clubs and other specialized organizations.

It kept, however, the idea of a combined legislative-executive body and also open the door for a degree of faculty control, if not control.

The President of the college was officially recognized in the preamble as the delegator of powers to the Associated Students.

The Associated Student President was the head of the Associated Students. The legislative body, called the Executive Council, was equal to the present day President's Cabinet.

Membership of the Executive Council consisted of the President of the Associated Students, the Vice-President, the Secretary, the Rally Commissioner, the Associated Men Student President, the Associated Women Student President, the Women's Athletic Association President, the Men's Athletic Council Chairman, the Club Advisory Board President, and the Publications Board Chairman.

On January 16, 1946, the Associated Students voted to adopt the constitution under which the Associated Students now operate.

This constitution represented the culmination of many years of changing thought. The Executive Council was abolished and in its place there was put a Student Council and a President's Cabinet. The Student Council handled the legislative side of government, and the members of the President's Cabinet the executive duties.

Indirect representation in the legislative department was out.

All suggestion of faculty control was dropped, the powers were assumed as customary, the students had proved themselves worthy of controlling their own affairs.

In the Spring semester of 1947, the first breaths of party politics began to whisper quietly.

During the Fall '47 semester, the Student League was organized, as well as the Fraternity Party, and party politics hit with a bang in the most hotly contested campaign ever to hit the college.

With the largest turnout in history, the June 3 elections showed the Fraternity Party in by a "landslide."

The intense partisanship waned a little the following semester in a Student League landslide, and the number of voters who went to the polls declined.

This semester saw a further decline in party politics, but leaders in both parties insist that party politics will continue.

From an inauspicious but significant beginning, the student government of the college has grown, through the efforts of both students and administration, into what is considered an exemplary student government in two-year California colleges.

Ground Breaking, April 25, 1937

Cool winds blew over the crowd of city officials, educators, and students on the afternoon of April 25, 1937. They were gathered at an open space of ground that was still part of Balboa Park. A cheer went up from the crowd as a small, portly gentleman with a white carnation in his lapel turned up a spade of dirt.

The gentleman was the late former Mayor Angelo J. Rossi, standing at his side was President Archibald J. Cloud, and the occasion was the ground breaking ceremonies marking the first step toward the construction of buildings for City College of San Francisco.

As a special dedication to President Cloud, who fought untiringly to make the college possible, the highest point on the location was named Cloud Rock.

Terminating this significant program, former Mayor Rossi commented that it was a joyous occasion when the first step toward the construction of a two-year college could be taken despite the depression which was still lasting in 1937.

Some of the earth turned in these 1937 ceremonies is still preserved in the college trophy case.

Actually the campus had been a part of the city for 91 years. San Francisco first obtained the title to the land in the year 1854. Of course, no one at that time dreamed that it would one day be the site of City College.

It was not until February, 1935, that the college was authorized by the Board of Education and in January of 1936 a location was decided upon. By a final vote of four to one, Balboa Park became the future home of the college.

On Stage: Naughty Marietta Run Climaxes Theatrical Season

By DICK BRIGGS

Theater followers applauded Naughty Marietta last week as entertainment that satisfied most types of operatic tastes in the colorful and tune-pleasant production that culminated City College's spring festival of opera presentations.

Most enthralling phase of the Music and Drama department's gigantic production was the golden-voiced choral versions of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," the "Italian Street Song," and "Love of New Orleans," though action ebbed when performers occasionally garbled words, making lines indiscernible to the rear and balcony rows.

The college's third opera production was pleasing in providing enjoyment for those desiring varied types of operatic entertainment. For drama adherents prefering adventurous romance, the quest was satisfied by lead performers Bob Sherratt, as Captain Dick, and Luba Shubin, as Marietta, who both deserved encored applause for singing their roles well.

For those desiring the boisterous action of a villain, Roy Barnett filled the part of Etienne, notorious Caribbean Pirate incognito, with the pomp and boldness attributed to 18th century buccaneers.

Harry Williams showed definite promise in his first stage appearance as Etienne in the final performance.

To appreciators of subtle humor, the hilarious comedy team of Barbara Andress, as Lizette the Casquette maiden, and Ross Price, as Silas Slick, the self-acclaimed but unwanted Romeo, were near magnificence in their parts; and to opera lovers who enjoy comedy through caricature and dialogue, Kirk Conragan, as Rudolfo the Italian marionette master, provided an exquisite touch in imitation that delighted the audience.

Geraldine Schmale, as the alternate Lizette, provided a captivating variation of the role Saturday night.

Other outstanding performers were Patricia Fitzgerald as Adah, and Ed Hayden as Emile, with commendation extended to Anthony Cuevas as Lieutenant Governor Grandet.

Administration Get-Together

A scene that has many times been enacted by the administration members of the college is depicted above.

Led by President A. J. Cloud, seated at his desk, the top executives are, seated, left to right, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar; F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of counselling and guidance; Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, and J. Paul Mohr, vice-president.

Sports: Profs Trip Sophs, 9-8, In Traditional Battle Of The Ages

By FRANK MONJE

The "tired old men" suddenly awoke last Friday to tumble their younger opponents, 9-8, in the traditional Soph-Prof softball game held on the college football field.

Going into the last half of the seventh, the score was tied, 8-8, until Tom "Slider" Nesbitt smashed a single into left field, driving in the winning run.

The timely hit by Nesbitt, the sensational hitting of Tom "Watcher" Dutcher, and the cheap three run homer by Jack Brady (he says it wasn't cheap) proved to be the decisive factors for the "batty profs" triumph.

Brady kept his secretive manner and did not produce his battery of Roy "Papa" Diederichsen, pitcher, and Ed "Tarzan" Sandys until game time. They didn't warm up because Brady thought they didn't need practice to defeat the now humble sophs.

Outstanding for the young blades was Frank "Slugger" Sinuga, who grabbed a homer and a single, and Ted "Musculs" Quandt, pitcher, who almost won his own game with a three run circuit clout.

After the contest, Captain Jim "Halfspoke" Fernhoff presented Captain Brady with the coveted "barrel" trophy. Brady commented, "Just try and get it back next year."

IF thoughts could speak, we would write a novel about the currently successful Mardi Gras that appeared and disappeared in full glory and color recently on the local campus.

Opening the lid of the first city-wide college Mardi Gras was a police escorted mile long parade with floats and everything, accompanied by sirens.

The parade broke up as it passed the reviewing stand and television cameras located in the west campus. The parade itself was a drawing card to many Ocean Avenue observers. Alpha Sigma Delta ran off with first place honors in the float contest—according to Harry Williams, head of the Mardi Gras festivities and also of Alpha Sigma Delta????

Getting around to the organization booth concessions, the Drama Society's traditional [illegible] Skit-Tent Show seemed to be a very attractive drawing card.

Ben Watkins and his band, a last minute replacement for Mardy Leaver, did an outstanding job with his rocking and rolling rhythms by keeping the joint jumpin'. Evidence could be found by viewing the worn asphalt dance floor next to the band stand.

Taking a quick look down the asphalt walk arcade, spectators could be seen by the swarms moving in and out of the colorful club booths, throwing balls, having pictures taken, drinking coffee, pounding nails, throwing darts, eating popcorn, peanuts, and just having good, clean City College fun!!

Zeta Chi Sorority was awarded first place honors in the booth contest with their silhouette idea—a la dark shadows.

Following the Mardi Gras came a week end at Russian River — nuff said!

Data to anyone. Pick and Hammer [illegible] the College has been on campus since 1936 with its present and original sponsor, George L. Green.

Ram Boosters Await Approval

Organization Ram Boosters, an inactive unit this past semester, is in readiness to begin operations next semester, pending approval of the administration, Fred Kelly, faculty representative, declared yesterday.

The organization, developed by students of the college this semester, was approved by the Student Council at a meeting on Thursday, March 10, but was forced to postpone its activities until such time when an incentive for subscribers to join was evident.

Year Books Available

For the convenience of students who have not yet obtained a copy of Ram-Pages, yearbooks go on sale again today at the silver pole in the main building.

Over 900 books have been sold, leaving about 500 to be sold on a first come first served basis, George Capanis, Business Manager, said.

New Registration System Operates For Large Fall Semester Sign-Up

Fall registration begins Monday, September 12, with an estimated 5,000 students expected to participate in the signup, Counselling and Guidance Coordinator F. Grant Marsh disclosed last week.

Two days, September 12 and 13, will be devoted solely to returning students. September 14 and 15, approximately 1,800 new students go through the procedure of registration for the first time.

Friday, September 16, is Faculty Institute day, a holiday for students. Classes start the following Monday, September 19.

As in the past, registration takes place in the student lounge, west campus, but in the fall a numerical registration replaces the outmoded alphabetical method, Marsh explained.

Each recommended fall program issued this semester was stamped by number in Marsh's office. These numbers are the basis of the new system.

The probable days for registration, according to number, are as follows: Numbers 001 through 2300 from 7:45 to 1:45 on September 12, and 2301 through 4100 from 7:45 to 1:45 on the following day, September 13.

In the period from September 12 to February 31, six holidays provide breaks.

Final Grades

Final grades will be available Monday, June 27, in the main office, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard announced

Grades may be obtained in one of two ways only: (1) by leaving a stamped, self-addressed envelope at the office, and (2) by calling in person at the registrar's office on or after June 27.

Transcripts for transferring students will be given earlier consideration, however, Miss Learnard added.

Social Calendar

A special meeting to arrange the college social calendar for next semester will be held this Thursday, June 10, at 7:30 p.m. in building 2, Corinne Lambert, Social Chairman, said yesterday.

The purpose of the meeting is to arrange dates for social activities and dances next fall, and each club and social organization is asked to send at least one representative to the meeting to complete arrangements.

New Course

Beginning with the coming fall semester, a new course, designated as Chemistry 39, will be offered by Milton Polissar, instructor in the college's science department.

Polissar is currently acting as a consultant to a research team working on muscles as they pertain to infantile paralysis. According to Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, the course offered promises to be interesting.

BRIGHT SMILES AND A WARM HANDSHAKE: College president, Dr. Conlan and Associated Student President Harry Williams have one thing in common. Both are commencing the Fall semester as first term presidents at City College, and judging from the firm handshake, both intend to make their first semester long remembered by students through activating a successful calendar.

President Conlan And Staff Plan Semester With New Organization

Louis G. Conlan, second president of City College, opened the Fall semester with announcement of additional changes within the administrative organization of the college.

Marcus Skarstedt, former college librarian, has been appointed Co-ordinator of Instruction.

The new Dean of the College Parallel Division, Lloyd D. Luckmann, has been assigned, among his many other duties, the development and administration of college parallel courses and the guiding of relationships between this college and other universities and colleges in matters concerning the evaluation and allocation of courses and the performance of our transferred students.

Luckmann will also see to the administration of the following divisions of instruction: foreign languages, mathematics, life sciences (including nursing), physical sciences, physical education and hygiene, journalism, and military science.

Edward E. Sandys has been named Dean of the General Education Program. His duties include the development and administration of new courses and curricula and the co-ordination of the biological, physical and social sciences already established.

He will also direct the departments of English and communications, music, speech and drama, home economics, art, radio broadcasting and opera workshop.

Newly-appointed Dean of Semi-Professional Curricula, John J. Brady, heads the development and administration of new curricula in this area and the co-ordination of curricula already established.

The guidance of relationships between the college and all curriculum advisory committees plus the administration of the divisions of engineering and architecture, business, hotel and restaurant, floriculture, photography, graphic arts, law enforcement and fire college, and paint technology will also be among Brady's duties.

Newly-appointed Dean of Men is Edwin C. Browne, and Assistant Dean in Charge of Student Activities is Louis Batmale.

Margaret Dougherty continues as dean of women, Mary Jane Learnard as registrar, Grant Marsh as co-ordinator of student welfare, Oscar Anderson as coordinator of educational management, and Gertrude Sommerville as assistant registrar.

Editors Sail Reefs, Up Telephone Rates

Fresh off the press, copies of today's Guardsman were guided through the reefs of first issue editorial troubles from the bedside stand of skipper Joan Nourse, Journalism instructor, who was forced to move the helm from the newspaper office into her home recently, to recover from a summer operation.

Publication of The Guardsman was carried out by the Editorial Staff, with special suggestions and advice coming over an almost always open telephone wire.

By October 3, the Editorial Staff is expecting to welcome back Miss Nourse, and share with her the more hectic newspaper problems only visible from the front office.

Low Student Card Sales Threaten Drastic Cut In Social Activities — President Williams

(Editor's note: For eligibility for parking permits, see page 4.)

Drastic budget cuts threaten the Associated Students of City College this week caused by a new low in Associated Student card sales.

Reason for the low membership was attributed to the late calendar schedule of student activities, but a prompt increase is expected by this week in time for the Beta Phi Dance, Friday, and the Menlo football game.

Controller Oscar Anderson estimated that if there is not a large purchase of Associated Student cards during the next week, the Associated Students may have a limited budget. The total budget for last semester exceeded $26,000.

Associated Student President Harry Williams warned that social, minor sports, dramatic, and glee club activities would face curtailment.

"I urge that all students purchase Associated Student cards," Norman Reger, card sales director, said, "because participation in student activities is part of college education."

He also cautioned that members of varsity teams must purchase Associated Student cards, and that every club must have 15 Associated Student members.

Members of the Associated Students may gain admittance to the Stanford-Harvard game Saturday for one dollar.

Cards may be purchased at the student bank, Room 188, from 9:45 a. m. to 11:10 and from 12:01 to 1:15 p. m.

Students who are unable to purchase cards because of financial difficulties may obtain cards by working for them. Applications should be made to Dean Louis Batmale.

There will be no reduction in the price of Associated Student cards, Williams said, because the additional purchases of cards would not cover the loss caused by the cut in price.

Part of the cause of lowered card sales was attributed to the decrease in veteran enrollment. Also considered partially responsible for threatening budget cuts in the depletion of the reserve funds by the purchase of band uniforms and the support of the college yearbook, Ram Pages, which was a financial failure to the tune of over $5,000.

Opening College Hour Schedule Today Features Club Meetings

Club meetings are scheduled for today's college hour at 10:40 a. m., Lou Batmale, assistant dean of men, announced yesterday.

Clubs requesting meeting rooms have been assigned as follows:

12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Nine New Instructors Fill In Former Faculty Ranks

Names of nine instructors added to the faculty list for the fall semester were released yesterday from the office of President Louis G. Conlan.

Newest member of the history department, Edna Parker, will direct history of the western hemisphere, California history, and political science classes.

Taking on duties in the floriculture department is Edward M. Young, graduate of California Poly, who will instruct greenhouse management, business practice, and plant breeding.

The science department welcomes two biology instructors, Robert York and John Earl.

Additions to the counseling and testing departments are respectively, Mary Golding and Donald Harkness.

Completing the list are Wendell Muntz, Hotel and Restaurant; Donald Smith, Economics; and Ken Reichard, Photography.

Registration Report Shows Increase

By Keith Gardner

Washington High School, after a slow start, won the annual registration sweepstakes with a total number of 130 students, according to The Guardsman's unofficial survey of incoming students.

Total registration for all four days, two for returning students, two for new, passed 5000. Returning men students accounted for 2336 of that number, and the new men students neared 1466.

The 590 returning women were outnumbered by 764 new ones, total number of the fairer sex being 1354.

While no count was kept of returning veterans, 92 new students confessed to that description.

The number of foreign students, coming from such diversified places as Hawaii, Sweden, Japan and Central America, was 48.

California students, arriving from all parts of the state, numbered 541, the majority of these were from East Bay high schools.

Students of San Francisco's many private and parochial schools swelled the number by 232.

Of the remaining number, 284 are from out of state, Mission accounted for 105, Lowell for 100, Polytechnic for 80, Lincoln for 79, Balboa for 77, Commerce for 64, and Galileo for 60. Girls' High rests securely in the bottom position with a total of ten.

The number of students enrolled at the college last semester was approximately 5000.

Shipwreck Dance Highlights First Social Event Next Friday Evening

The Tri-Epsilon picnic, scheduled for today as the first social activity on this semester's calendar, has been cancelled, Dean Lou Batmale, student administrator, announced last Tuesday.

Therefore, Phi Beta Delta's traditional Shipwreck Dance, to be held next Friday, September 30, captures the spotlight as the opening campus event for the new year.

Couples will dance from 9 to 12 in the west campus auditorium to the rhythms of Ben Watkins and his orchestra who played for the spring Mardi Gras, Dave MacKay, fraternity president, said. Decorations will follow the nautical theme, which the name Shipwreck Dance implies.

MacKay also told reporters that prizes donated by campus fraternities will be given during intermission. Bids are $1.50 per couple or $1.25 to Associated Students.

Freshmen Rush Hotel, Restaurant Division

Freshman enrollees in general, and those from San Francisco High Schools in particular, far exceed previous Hotel and Restaurant Division enrollment, Hilda Watson, director, said yesterday.

Cafeteria service offers breakfast 7:45 to 10 a. m.; lunch 11 a. m. to 1:30 p. m.; dinner 5 to 6:15 p. m. The fountain is open from 10 to 4.

Concluding Day Named For Course Changes

Last day for filing petitions for adding courses or changing sections has been set at Wednesday, September 28, Gertrude Somerville, assistant registrar, announced recently.

Students are urged to consult with counselors before making any program changes, Miss Somerville added.

After gaining permission, they will receive blue change of program cards to be filed in the registrar's office before 5 p. m. on the deadline date.

Final day for filing petitions for dropping courses is Wednesday, November 9.

Editorial: Guardsman Policy Announced For Fall Semester

WITH the trials and tribulations of registration now a welcome thing of the past and with summer siestas only a fond memory, we are off and running in another collegiate derby. The track looks fast and the purse is that ultimate and common goal—the diploma. The maraschino cherry, as it were, on our academic sundae.

The Editor wishes to extend a hearty welcome to all fellow homo sapiens, genus scholasticus, both new and old, to the campus of City College of San Francisco. With this, the semester's opening editorial, we would like to outline the policy for the Fall '49 Guardsman.

As always, the official Associated Student publication will maintain an unbiased attitude on its news pages. All the news that fits the print or something like that.

The signed columns appearing on this page are written by staff members who have something to say and know how to say it. Diversity of opinion being the keynote here.

THE column, Round'n About, on page four, will cover the club activities and campus social dates. What's doing and where. With around fifty various clubs and organizations to choose from, the student interested in mixing business with pleasure should have no trouble.

Rami's Horn, the letters-to-the-editor department, is open at all times for bouquets or brickbats, praise or critiesim. Anybody with an axe to grind is welcome to sharpen it here.

The sports department will be quarterbacked this season by Bob Quinlan, a fast man with the T-formation adjectives. If reports from the practice field are true, City College students will have something to cheer about in the way of football this year.

IN the word-to-the-wise department may we point out the box on page one concerning the advantages of owning an Associated Student card. One does not have to be a math major to see that you can't afford not to take advantage of this bargain.

What with football games, discounts, social activities, etc., only a hermit can afford to pass up this deal.

Registration Nightmare Turns Men In to Madmen

"ATTENTION STUDENTS!! OTHER CLASSES CLOSED ARE ENGLISH, GEOMETRY, ART, MUSIC, P.E., SOCIOLOGY, PHILOSOPHY, BIOLOGY, BOTANY, TYPING, ...ETC....."

By DAYTON LAWSON

This is the sorrowful saga of Eddie Frosh.

Eddie was a product of the outdoor mode of life, sun-tanned, clear-eyed, not a nerve in his body, and the living result of years of clean living and self denial.

Eddie was always at the top of his gym class in the number of push-ups accomplished, was captain of the football team, and also starred in track and basketball. He was good to his mother, very faithful about his wheaties every morning, and generally typified the All-American boy.

Then Eddie decided to buck the fall registration line at City College and was last seen, head erect, chin up, entering the archway to Building No. 2 bright and early on Monday morning.

When they came to get Eddie the following Friday, he was on his knees, barking at the dogs in Hurley Village. A stout soul had cracked.

Commodus Aurelius, Emperor of Rome, fought 1,031 battles and won them all. He finally met his death at the hands of a wrestler who strangled him.

A Tribute To An Admired Teacher

TAPS: Many students and instructors are watching for publication of Thomas Larkin, a biography, not so much for the excellent content, but to have a last memento of author Dr. Robert Parker, City College instructor and famed authority on California History, who died from cancer in Pacific Grove last July.

Prize pupil of nationally recognized historian, Herbert Eugene Bolton, Dr. Parker authored many magazine articles and two biographies of Thomas Larkin (one pending publication). Dr. Parker's talent for acquiring iron-bound friendships with acquaintances was perhaps too great a gift; he left too many mourners.

Few men possess the ability, vitality, and all consuming friendliness to replace Dr. Parker at City College, and certainly only one woman, his attractive, devoted, and capable wife, historian Mrs. Edna Parker, instructing history here this semester.

JUNGLE SCENE: Treading doggedly and back-bent through snarled, near impregnable tropical growth, a weary white traveler stumbled upon a tiny native village, lost somewhere along twisting jaguar-paths of the uncharted Amazon. The tired explorer learned from village natives of an expected second attack from a neighboring cannibal tribe, who several days earlier, had killed and eaten an entering white missionary.

Looking Up

By Dick Briggs

Enter Cannibals, Exit Geologist

Suddenly, above lazy sizzling of vaporizing heat, soft, deliberate footsteps sounded near camp. Hooded spearmen moved cautiously upright from the undergrowth, saw the while man, and swiftly readied their weapons for attack. Frantically two of the natives waved off their patrol-ing spearmen and gave directions to the explorer for safe return through the unsettled territory. Hurriedly the traveler scurried from camp into the complicated network of jungle trails to safety in civilization days later.

The explorer was City College Geologist-instructor, George L. Green.

Poll Proves Collegians Prefer Sport Clothes

Marshall Field and Company, foregoing Dr. Gallup's services, have conducted a poll among college men to determine what the campus Beau Brummell's are wearing this year.

Ninety per cent of the Eastern students, they say, wear white shirts and ties to class.

In the Midwestern states a hat was rated a necessity. Some even went so far as to say three hats, one for dress, one far everyday wear, and one far rain. Californians, of course, could dispense with the last.

West Coast students decided against the formal wear of the Eastern men and went 80 per cent in favor of sport shirts and no ties, and everyone, border to border, agreed on Argyle socks.

An informal survey of City College students, taken in an effort to determine how Marshall Field's poll applies locally, brought in the following result:

Forty per cent had never worn a white shirt or tie.

Twenty-seven per cent had never worn a hat.

Thirty-seven per cent had never worn Argyle socks.

Sixteen per cent had never worn socks.

Seventy-three per cent had never heard of Marshall Field.

Spotlight On Skirt Lengths; They're Retreating As Males Cheer

By KEITH GARDNER

OUTSIDE of living next door to a glass-walled sorority house, we can think of no prospect more pleasing to contemplate than the fact, as reported by a national magazine, that the new look is gradually retreating before the avalanche of righteous, male indignation that greeted its arrival in 1947.

The old-fashioned, or pre-new look, hemline was 18 inches, as measured from the floor. The new look measurements, found with a micrometer, are too small to be read by anyone without a B. A. in mathematics. Latest styles hover around the 14-inch height.

Figures such as those mentioned in the above paragraph should not be taken too literally, since hemlines, like everything else in this troubled world, are variable. This is especially true around windy street corners.

The savings in material, we have carefully calculated, between the new look and the latest fashions, is sufficient to make (a) one French bathing suit, or (b) two teabags. While the savings between the new look and the pre-1947 styles would make one ordinary bathing suit, a handkerchief, and three teabags.

Although the new look clothes do have their disadvantages they can be used for a number of different purposes. The coats, for instance, have been suggested as substitutes for pants sacks, parachutes, beach umbrellas and tents. Personal experience has shown them to be not very good as tents, being somewhat inclined to leak at the buttonholes.

In conclusion we might add that every position as hemline measurer is already filled, so there's no use applying. There are, however, a few good spots left at various windy corners around the city.

Next week's column, dealing with instructors, will be designed on the lines of a wartime publication entitled, Know Your Enemy.

Counterpoint: Modern Day Romans Rush To Watch Gridiron Gladiators

By WALT HEIL

BACK in the days of ancient Rome, toga clad citizens yearning for excitement, would file into their favorite arena to watch big-muscled men hack and saw at each other as gladiators, for gold and the cheers of the crowd.

If the ancient Roman desired real entertainment he would seek an arena that pitted poorly armed, haggard Christians against starved lions. He would come away from this sport limp of body and hoarse of throat from the hysterics that prevailed within the stadium.

Twentieth Century man, dressed in an overcoat, rushes off to a huge stadium dedicated to the modern day version of the gladiators, football. All that has happened is that man has become more refined in his quest for excitement and therefore chooses the great Autumn Madness, of which City College becomes a part next Friday when the Rams face the Cal Poly Frosh, to fulfill his yearnings.

Of the body contact sports, football is the hardest on the human frame. Its equipment, designed to protect the players, tends to do just the opposite. The hard helmets, shoulder pads, hip pads, thigh pads, and the rest of the paraphernalia have a great capacity for jarring, ripping, and mashing the flesh of young men.

Furthermore, football is like war. One side invades another's territory in quest of victory, while the other puts up defenses and mobilizes its manpower to halt the tide.

The words that fill the guidebooks are often linked to war. Words like: deception, strategy, tactics, surprise are used, and they have the same meaning in war. Even the non-participants are built up to fever pitch for a certain team, as they do in war for a nation.

But, football is exciting to watch and it does amuse the populace.

Its patterns and systems when put down on paper become an intricate mass of lines, x's and o's, awesome for the layman to comprehend. On the field, however, the plays become real and interesting to watch as one team battles the other for victory.

Coaches claim that football builds the players' character for later life when he hangs up his cleats and pastes his clippings into a scrapbook. It is a body builder and not a game for the weak or queasy.

The universities and colleges provide color for their teams and the squads bring money into the school's coffers. Meanwhile the pros strive for perfection and get touchdowns with the precision of the craftsmen they are.

It all adds up to a healthy American sport and takes up where baseball leaves off in the Fall, continuing the cycle the next year.

Know where a fellow can get a couple of ducats to the Harvard-Stanford game, tomorrow?

44819 Committee Of One Starts Campaign To Promote Cheer

• Eastside Eyesore

Editor, The Guardsman:

The well-trimmed East Campus lawns and the tall, neat main building offer an environment envied by most colleges and universities, but the rear of the main structure presents a deplorable contrast of barren hillside that resembles a possible site for a city dumpyard.

I am unaware of labor prices involving the planting of trees and lawns, but whatever the price, the cost would be negligible if a natural foreground of lawn and shrubs could replace the present view of ugly, barren, wasteland.

Bill Johnson, SB 3177

• More Smiles From Sorrowful Sad Sacks

Editor, The Guardsman:

Just because the skies are grey and the days gloomy, there is no excuse for the forlorn, lost looks on the faces of some of the students at this institution.

As a committee of one in behalf of all entering hopefuls, I propose that a campaign be adopted here to promote the smile.

It's bad enough to have to sit through a pessimistic lecture on the eventual doom of society, but it's even worse to leave the class and pass certain "sad sacks" who make one feel that maybe the professor knew what he was talking about.

• Guardsman Teletype

Editor, The Guardsman:

What's happening? Or better still, what has happened in the Guardsman office? I visited the office during registration and the wonderful International News Service teletype machine, installed last semester, was not working.

Now that's bad. For I am looking forward to the times this semester when I can again get the news as it happens, then go home, glance at the headlines in the evening paper, and say, "Hah! I knew that hours ago."

Yours for some quick action,

The Big Nose

Basketball And Swimming Open Fall Intramural Sports Calendar

Signups for basketball and swimming, first of an extensive list of intramural sports to be presented to students this semester will begin immediately and run until early October, according to director Tam Wilson.

The swimming meet will be held at Jefferson pool Tuesday, October 4, and will consist of eight events, including diving. Prospective varsity swimmers are urged to compete in this meet.

Deadline for intramural basketball is Friday, October 7.

All team sports will be played at 3 and 4 o'clock every day but Friday, while individual sports may be played at any convenient time.

Any person may participate as part of an organization or as an individual to receive points for the perpetual team and individual trophies.

Other sports, to be presented later in the semester, will be touch-football, boxing, volleyball, tennis, badminton, ping pong, foul shooting, handball, bowling, horseshoes and golf.

Hillsman Issues Call For Local Basketball Talent

Coach Ralph Hillsman, builder and mentor of a championship basketball team which ranked as one of the best in the nation and the best in Northern California last year, issued a call yesterday for more talent to bolster this year's club.

All students interested in playing should sign up in Hillsman's, Monday and Wednesday, 2 p. m., gymnasium class.

Besides this class, prospective cagebateers are urged to enter the coming intramural basketball tournament. The team turnout will be held immediately after this tourney, and all positions will be open to newcomers.

Any person wishing to act as a manager for the basketball team can apply to Hillsman in the men's gymnasium.

As of now, the basketball schedule that has been drawn up includes several Cow Palace preliminary games, the Modesto tournament, encounters against all of the frosh teams of bay area colleges, and the regular conference tilts.

RAMblings . . .

By Gene Van Dyke

MAKING their bid for positions on this fall's college eleven, along with 75 to 80 other candidates currently undergoing workouts and scrimmages to cut the squad to a minimum, are three All-City players, one each from Polytechnic, Mission and Sacred Heart.

It is an inspiring fact that players attending the college are able to exercise a liberal choice when planning to participate in athletics. There is no high pressured salesmanship, such as is evident at numerous Pacific Coast Colleges and universities, directed to induce athletes to participate for grants, thus discarding all choice for an inviting scholarship or salary.

Graduated from Polytechnic last June, Marv Crews is expected to up the possibilities for Coach Grover Klemmer to steer the Ram eleven to another NCJCC title. Crews was instrumental in guiding Polytechnic through a nine-game schedule undefeated. He runs hard and once on the move is a difficult target to bring down.

Another prospect, this one from Sacred Heart, aiming his sights for a starting assignment, is tackle Bill Coneff. Rod De Cristefero, a teammate of Coneff's, is a slippery runner, besides possessing a fair pitching arm.

Rated mare for his defensive attributes, rather than for his pass-catching abilities, is Don Sessions of Mission. His accomplishments include All-City and All-Northern California.

With the loss of a good portion of last season's NCJC Conference and Gold Dust Bowl champions, Coach Klemmer will have a large group of material fresh out of high school to mold into his squad of veterans, who are returning from last season.

The college will play a five game traveling schedule. Four of their games are slated for home. A home game site has not been decided upon, as yet.

Prep Stars Vie For Football Berths; Crews, Sessions Among Grid Hopefuls

By Bob Quinlan

Bang went the graduation gun and scurrying away went many stray Rams leaving only 11 for Coach Grover Klemmer to herd back to the green pastures of City College.

Gone from last year's undefeated grid machine that racked up 12 straight wins, which include the NCJCC title and a Gold Dust Bowl victory over Chaffey, are such stars as Ollie Matson, Burl Toler, Ben Albrecht, Bob Toquinto, Roy Poznekoff, and many others.

Klemmer, however, isn't too bad off. Back for another season are first string halfback Bob Gilford and guard Don Marettini, and veterans Wes Jourdin, Frank Puckett, Al Litvinov, Leo Camp, Jack Wallack, Ed West, Bah Shipp, Al Nethercut and Bob Clark.

The Rams also have their share of local prep athletes. Headed by Polytechnic Marv Crews and Dick Carillo there are also Sacred Heart's Bill Goneff and Rod DeCristefero, Lincoln's Jack Dethelfsen and Jim Files, Commerce's Dick Amondoli, Lowell's Ed Malone, and Mission's Don Sessions and Bob McBride.

The all-important quarterback post on Klemmer's "T" offense is open to several hopefuls headed by Nethercut, Carrillo, and Jack Marcus and Lou Pisani, 1947 returnees.

DON MORETTINI, FIRST string guard last season, is counted on heavily to bolster the Ram line in coming games.

Thin on manpower is the fullback position. Jourdin, a converted halfback, and McBride are hard runners.

Many speedy halfbacks will be the key to the Rams' success this season. At this writing Gilford and Crews are pacing the pack, but are being hard pressed by DeCristefero, Haan, Graubart, Malone, and many others.

Litvinov, Files, Amondoli and McAuley are leading candidates for the pivot posts. All are fine line backers.

The guards will be strong, but not deep in reserves. Moretini and Shipp should hold their own against any combination the league offers and Dan Ravetti will fill in ably.

The tackle position appears to be uncertain. Camp, Coneff, Dethlefsen, Clark, and Bob Williamson, however, should shape into top linesmen.

Three veterans, Puckett, Wallack, and West, and newcomers Sessions, Don Montrose, and John Bertetta, make the end position very promising.

Although between 75 and 80 players are working out daily, Klemmer will be allowed to take only three strings to San Luis Obispo September 30 for the Rams' first game against the California Poly Frosh.

Graduation Hits Championship Golf Squad; Mentor Seeks Replacements

Coach Ralph Hillsman announced yesterday a need for golfers to replace last semester's undefeated league champions.

The team, that went undefeated in league play, won 13 matches while losing only 2, and took four out of six places in the northern California medalist playoffs, has lost several of its stars and all positions on the team will be open.

Persons interested are urged to sign up in Hillsman's 3 p. m. daily class.

City College Football Schedule To Include Four Night Contests At Home

An almost completely renovated Ram eleven will start what seems to be a very tough schedule by taking on the Cal Poly Frosh at San Luis Obispo, September 30.

While trying to defend the title they so ably won last season, Coach Klemmer's squad will play four home games and will be visitor for another five.

Attendance for the home games should be greatly improved this year because of the fact that all games will be played at night.

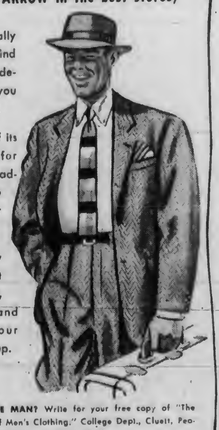
All teams on the schedule were victims of last year's championship club with the exception of Cal Poly. Menlo was beaten in the finals, but was not played during the regular season.

The fall schedule is as follows:

Sept. 30—Cal Poly Frosh (There)
Oct. 8—Menlo (Here)
Oct. 15—Monterey (There)
Oct. 21—L. A. City College (Here)
Oct. 29—San Mateo (There)
Nov. 5—East L. A. (There)
Nov. 11—Hartnell (There)
Nov. 17—Stockton (Here)
Nov. 25—Modesto (Here)

WAA Meets Today; New Members Wanted

Promising an active fall semester, the Women's Athletic Association holds its first meeting during college hour today in Room 140, Florence Loo, president, announced.



All women interested in sports are invited to join this group, Miss Loo added. New advisor is Nancy Sparks.

Lucky Associated Students To Get West Campus Parking

Distribution of west campus parking permits will follow a different course this semester as only former students holding lucky Associated Student card numbers will be issued the permits, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, stated yesterday. The drawing date will be announced later, Browne added.

He pointed out that the apparent space in the west campus parking area does not mean that unlimited parking is available. Many faculty members and individuals on interim duty in the west campus must be cared for as also must certain veterans and health cases.

The remaining spaces after the aforementioned have been allotted spaces will be given to former students possessing Associated Student cards. All former students possessing these cards are eligible for the drawing as all the cards will be placed in the drawing box.

The students possessing lucky numbers will be notified in one week's time, when the winning numbers will be printed in The Guardsman and placed on the Bulletin Board in Building 2.

Holders of winning numbers may pick up their permits at the west campus gate on Ocean Avenue. Associated Student cards must be presented along with driver's license and proof of car ownership.

Permits will only be issued for those possessing winning numbers and absolutely no more will be issued, Browne emphasized.

Browne pointed out that there will be no partiality in selecting winning numbers and further emphasized that the permits will be invalidated if misused.

Council Elects Three New Members As President Opens First Meeting

The Student Council met for the first time this semester when it considered Tuesday the appointment of officers and listened to addresses by Dean Louis Batmale and Parliamentarian Armand Magid.

Pete Taylor was appointed to a vacant seat on the Freshman Council, but the council was unable to nominate a successor to another council member, Sunny Hadley.

James Anderson was made the representative of the Student Council on the Finance Committee.

Neil Decker was appointed Men's Athletic Commissioner to replace Urb Cummins, who moved to another post.

Batmale told the council that he hoped they would "Spread their enthusiasm, not curb it."

Norman Reger was appointed Alumni Laision Officer. He told the council that if Associated Student membership is to increase there will have to be a semester long drive to interest students in the advantages of the Associated Students.

Camera Shy First Semester Students To Grin And Bear It During Registration Procedure

Freshman Replies Stun Sophomore Inquirers

By Adolphus Thomas

You would be surprised at the nerve-wracking things some freshmen just registering at City College will tell you if you asked them, "From what high school did you graduate?"

On the other hand, the sophomore questioner who is compiling vital information for various departments at the college, wonders how it is that he, when asking the question of enrolling students from all over the country is expected to conclude instantly—bingo—just like that, that G. W. is always George Washington.

About 95 per cent, true enough, reply, simply and accurately, Washington, Lincoln, Berkeley High, Berkeley, or whatever school it is, and that is that.

But there is always the other five per cent who will mumble, "G. W." when the school is actually George Washington and then they will look hurt and a bit amazed at others' "ignorance." After all, they graduated from that school so everyone should know about it when quizzed in an effort to discover what the mysterious letters represent.

G. W. for George Washington. Tech. for Technical High School of Oakland. Things like that. It just goes to show that the freshmen here still think sophomores are geniuses.

San Mateo Floral Show Top Honors Won By Floriculture Department

Two first and two second place prizes were won by the college's Floriculture Department during the summer at the San Mateo Floral Fiesta, held August 10 through August 20.

Ray Peterson, instructor of the summer class which prepared the college's entries, announced yesterday that City College took first place in landscape design, first and second in petunias, and placed second in flowering plants.

Herman Chow, Don Baum, Frank Hilton, Bill Irvine and Lee Devol were the chief participants in preparing the exhibits, Peterson said.

In the same floral fiesta last year, City College won only one first place, while placing second in three

Round 'n About

Club News Ellison's Departed; Now Dick Williamson's Started

Books, time schedules and trial study lists have ushered in a new semester of classes and homework this week. And now "Round 'n About" heralds a new semester of campus social activities.

To start the ball rolling, Phi Beta Delta fraternity is presenting a ball (don't forget to bring something round). The dance is the Fall '49 edition of the organization's traditional Shipwreck Dance, and will be held in the evening, Friday, September 30.

The west campus auditorium is the site of the fling which begins promptly at 9 p. m. Bids are only $1.50, tax included.

Officers seem to be the topic of the day because all organizations have announced new ones. They are as plentiful as seagulls around here, but MUCH more useful. The following is an incomplete list of the authorities of some campus clubs, ladies first, of course.

Jeanne McKnew is "knew" president of Kappa Phi sorority, with Kay Handlon, the Veep; Ila Adams, recording secretary; Nancy Littlepage, corresponding secretary; treasurer, Lois Hoffman; CAB representative, Gale Keating; sergeant-at-arms, Betty Richards; and historian, Helene Mersich.

Miss McKnew announced early this week that Kappa Phi will have a tea (hmm—it rhymes) on Sunday, October 9, at the home of one of the members, which member will be disclosed in a later edition. Why so secret, girls? What's on the schedule besides tea?

This semester's Delta Psi sorority officers include Joby McCann, president; Ginny Cutler, vice-president; Nancy Kenney, recording secretary; Anita O'Connor, corresponding secretary; Verna Marcussen, treasurer; Pat Walker, historian; sergeant-at-arms, Jeananne Koeppe; pledge mistress, Connie Hale; CAB representative, Doreen Mannion.

Veneto's was the scene of a reunion dinner for active and alumnae Delta Psi's in July, with past-presidents Bobbie McBride, Fall '48; and Nadine Coakley, Spring '49, receiving ivory gavels. Nice, useful presentations!

Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity officers for this semester are Chuck Murphy, president; Al Chapin, vice-president; secretary, Tom Thomas; treasurer, Joe Kelchner; sergeant-at-arms, Joe (Married-This-Summer) Schultz; parliamentarian, Dan Lagan; historian, Dick Hallbeck; and CAB, Jim Cooper.

Space is decreasing while the list of new officers is increasing, so the rest will have to wait until the September 30 edition for their listing.

The Chinese Student's Club has announced a meeting for today. All members are asked to attend. Room 4D is the place. College Hour is the time, and elections are in order.

Just a little reminder to club officers in closing . . . Deadline for news is Monday noon for Friday's paper and Wednesday noon for Tuesday's paper.

Well, see you round 'n about.

Fall Hours For Campus Libraries Listed

Library hours for the fall semester were recently announced by Marcus Skarstedt, coordinator, Division of Instruction.

Hours for the main library, third floor, are 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., Monday through Friday. The west campus branch which consists mainly of reserve books for the social sciences will be open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. each day.

Members of the newly assigned library committee include Clement Skrabak, chairman; Eleanor Blinn, Irene Mensing, and Betty Lundgren.

Plaque Awarded To Two Former Students

The President's Plaque for 1949 went to Beatrice Groger and George Capanis, Edward Sandys, dean of general college courses, announced this week.

An honor award established in 1940, the plaque is given annually to the graduating man and woman who have contributed most to the college throughout the year. Winners are selected by the president with the aid of a committee, composed of deans and assistant deans, Sandys pointed out.

Ram Champs In Gridiron Opener Tonight

Touchdown Spirit Invades Ramland

Repeat of last year's ground gaining ability will be attempted tonight when the City College Rams combat the California Poly Frosh.

Wes Jourdin, Jerry Olmstead and Tom Policeta (right photo) have the "touchdown spirit" that can start the team on the long road to their second league championship.

Kenny Foehr (left photo), of last year's Ram champs, is shown going to the San Mateo seven after a long run in the first quarter of the local's 26 to 0 win. The team expects to tally on many similar long gains in tonight's grid opener.

Klemmer Tests Sharpened Aerial And Ground Offensive On California Poly Eleven Frosh

Trophy hungry for their second consecutive conference title, and plagued by pre-season attacks of Gold Dust Fever, the flashy versatile ground and aerial weapons of Grover Klemmer's football Rams are sharpened to razor keenness for a carving operation on the host California Poly Frosh eleven, awaiting battle in San Luis Obispo at 8 p.m. tonight.

Even yet, starting lineups failed to reach The Guardsman from the California Poly camp, and speculation engrosses fears of the southern enemy's specially prepared concoction of football strategy and warfare that might sink the champions lower than their high point victories last season.

"T" Day

Yet, feeling predestined to win, the Grover gridmen know too well that this is it!—"T" day against an opponent of unknown strength who has wisely confined to secrecy in his own haunts.

The "T"-est day will serve some indication whether the Rams can successfully defend their 1948 conference title, or bow along the wayside to this season's power suspected football giants of Menlo, Salinas, Stockton, and Modesto colleges.

No Magic For Klemmer

No witches brew or magic touchdown formulae, both Klemmer and his undefeated forces know, will hoist the squad to equal heights of last year's Gold Dust Brigade, but a deep reserve of swift backs obsessed by finding shortcuts to touchdowns are expected to raise havoc against the league's stoutest defensive walls.

Marv Crews, Poly arrival, Bob Gilford, veteran letterman, and Jerry Olmstead, line crunching prep with Ollie Matson at George Washington High School, can supply the speed necessary for a championship aggregation, but in the aerial department a veil of secrecy looms to be uncovered only at tonight's 1949 grid opener.

Passer Needed

Hand-off specialist Al Nethercutt is unquestionably a standout for the quarterback position, but his passing talent is far short of departed "T" signal calling general Bob Toquinto. On whether Nethercutt can develop into filling the passing requirements may depend a season glittering with victories or tarnished by many defeats.

Up front the line abounds with reserves, but none comparable to the wealth of all-conference selectees, four in number, who transferred to four-year institutions this year. Only veteran lineman, guard Don Moretini, is returning to respond as one of the seven battering-rams needed to dislodge the defensive if backs are to sprint for touchdowns.

Coach Optimistic?

Reticent Coach Klemmer, who repels all thoughts of optimism, is unusually hopeful in even saying, "I think we'll just wait and see."—and Indeed he will, along with other college rooters who may swell the San Luis Obispo football stadium to affirm whether a passer and green line might stack up to the rich reserves of fleet running backs; for this is it. This is "T" day for the City College of San Francisco, football season, 1949!

Productions Forecast College Music, Drama

Tryouts for production of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, to run November 16, 18 and 19, brought forth much promising talent to grace the college players.

Rehearsals are now under way for Room 28's first fall presentation, and from all reports this Shakespearean comedy should prove highly entertaining from start to finish.

Opera Workshop auditions for Down in the Valley will run through Tuesday, October 11, Flossita Badger, director, announced yesterday.

Most roles in the Kurt Weill opera are already filled, but some parts are still open with college credit offered. Auditions for these roles are daily in the auditorium, beginning at 3 p.m., Miss Badger said.

Weill is the composer of the operatic version of Street Scene and of Love Life. Down in the Valley is a contemporary American opera based on folk tunes.

Credit is from one to three units, depending on time spent in rehearsal, and is listed under Music 1, Miss Badger pointed out.

Up to three units may be obtained in Speech 16 for students participating in Much Ado About Nothing, Ellison announced.

Big-Timers Offer Weekend Game Rates

Associated Student members are eligible for admission, at reduced rates, to three university football games this weekend on presentation of their Associated Student cards.

Dean Louis Batmale, in making this announcement, urged all students attending these games to remember "who they are and what they represent" thereby assuring future courtesies from these colleges.

The games are as follows:

Friday evening: USF versus Loyola, 50 cents, at box at gate 21, Kezar Stadium. Saturday afternoon: Stanford versus Michigan, $1.00, Stanford Stadium. Sunday afternoon: St. Mary's versus Nevada, 50 cents, ticket office at gate 21, Kezar Stadium.

Clubs Meet In College Hour Today

Regular club meetings are scheduled for today's college hour, Louis Batmale, assistant dean in charge of student activities, said yesterday, and the Club Advisory Board will meet in Room 2b.

Last Friday marked the first meeting of the Club Advisory Board in preparation for future activities, under the supervision of this semester's new officers, President Frances McCarthy, Vice-President Joan Talbot, and Secretary Carmel Lee.

Representatives from 50 clubs attended the meeting and were told that their club constitutions were to be turned in to Dean Batmale as soon as possible.

Shipwreck Dance To Usher In Fall Social Activities Here

Palm leaves and fish nets dominate the auditorium tonight as the third annual Phi Beta Delta Shipwreck Dance opens the fall social calendar.

Couples will sway to the rhythms of Ben Watkins and his Royal Hawaiians from 9 to 12 p.m. Watkins is well known to students, having played at past Shipwreck Dances and the spring Mardi Gras.

One of the highlights of this occasion is the novel bids, programs inserted in bamboo rods, adding a south seas touch to this traditional affair.

Those attending are asked to dress appropriately in sailor garb, beanies, pedal pushers, sarongs or even barrels, Dave MacKay, fraternity president said. There will be free gardenias for the women, he added.

Stunts and entertainment will be held during intermission to round out the evening, MacKay told reporters. Prizes for winners are donated by the fraternity, he continued.

Bids may be purchased from salesmen on campus today or at the door this evening. The price is $1.25 to Associated Student members and their dates, or $1.50 to non-members.

West Campus Parking Permits Available

Parking permits, 260 in number, are available to last semester students who possess Associated Student cards with number 1001 to 1400 and 3000 to 3900 inclusive which end in either a "5" or a "0".

Eligible card holders who wish permits must prove car ownership and have an acceptable class schedule (an average number of hours spent at college) before applying for a permit to Dean Edwin C. Browne in Building two.

Student Government Meet Here Oct. 7

Statewide action to introduce legislation into the State Legislature permitting compulsory requirement for purchase of student body cards has been under way for the last six months, and will be considered again this semester by the California Student Government Conference, at their meeting here Friday, October 7.

So far results have been negligible, Harry Williams, Associated Student president, revealed.

Informed observers consider the chances of passage of such legislation dubious because it would require reversal of the principles of free education.

The move was brought about by the lack of funds in many two-year colleges for the support of student activities. It is estimated that the pinch will soon be on this college also.

However, passage of a law permitting the compulsory purchase of student body cards by the State Legislature would not solve the issue since the city Board of Education would also give or withhold approval.

Another purpose of the meeting, to be held in the college's student lounge, will be to map plans and discuss the Agenda for the coming California Junior College Student Government Conference to be held in San Bernardino October 27 through October 29.

The conference here will be divided into two sections. One section will be the student government, which consists of the student president; the other will be comprised of presidents of the Associated Students' organizations.

While he was in doubt as to other subjects will be covered, Williams felt that the submission of the bill to make the purchase of Associated Student cards compulsory would be discussed. It is felt that such legislation would eliminate the danger of a shortage of funds as has been experienced by some of California's larger colleges.

Those students who will make up the welcoming committee from the college are as follows: Ronie Morrison, Associated Student

Student Council Works Hard, Tackles Activity Budget First

LAMBASTING the actions and inactions of student government has always been a popular indoor sport around these parts, and we must admit it is a tempting game.

The most times sincere, sometimes inadvertently funny doings of self conscious campus politicians often provide much material for ridicule. The hard-working Student Council (like The Guardsman staff) sometimes take themselves a bit too seriously and are therefore easy marks for humor. However, like shooting fish in a barrel, this is not a very sporting endeavor.

It seems only fair that if a newspaper or anyone is, from time to time, going to point out inadequacies they must also chronicle achievements.

ON the plus side of the ledger it must be remembered that these students devote a good deal of time and energy working out activity problems. For a better understanding of the situation, let's take a look at the mechanics of the council.

There are 15 voting members of the Student Council, the fifteenth member being the Vice-President of the Associated Students. The chairman of the council is the Associated Student President, Harry Williams. The council itself is composed of seven Freshman members and seven Sophomore members.

This group is the legislative body of the Associated Students. It handles all legislation and approves most of the appointments made by the President and other members of the executive department.

Most important duty of the council is to pass on the budget. The budget requests of the various departments are given to the Budget Committee which approves, disapproves, or cuts them.

The budget is then given to the Student Council which passes on it after hearing the recommendations of the Budget Committee. It is here where the fun and fireworks come in.

EACH member has one vote, and in the case of a tie, the President casts the deciding vote. Any member may introduce a bill through the Agenda Committee.

So far this semester activity has been comparatively docile, but for a blow by blow account read The Guardsman.

Recording Machines To End Note-Taking Blues

So you think you have troubles!

Before you hum the Lecture Note Blues take pity on the cave man who shunned the use of paper, not that he was without ready cash, but only because someone had neglected to invent the stuff.

With his trusty hammer and chisel, the man, whose castle was his cave, took pride in picking the right size rock, trimming the edges to fit requirements and turning out an esthetic literary accomplishment in a mere day's time.

The quill did all right, for awhile, but history proves it was laborious scratchy, and the ink used frequently rebelled.

Of course in this modern day of television and recording machines, some feasible system of note-taking should have surpassed the antiquated form of pencil and paper, but fellow-sufferers remember: 'tis better to have a pencil and paper than a hammer and chisel.

For the trouble with the portable wire-recorder, even specially designed for lecture note use, is that it can be wiped out too easily and finally.

Note-taking is a necessary evil and therefore here to stay.

"GOSH SIR!! WITH THIS RECORDING MACHINE I DON'T HAVE TO TAKE NOTES ON YOUR LECTURES"

Looking-Up

BY DICK BRIGGS

NEWS of the college's recent $2,500,000 appropriation from the Board of Education came when only one member on campus, Harry Nelson, Floriculture department head, realized the importance of a face-lifting program on the rear east campus in planting lawns, shrubs, and trees where now even weeds struggle to survive.

SPRINKLERS OFFER SOLUTION

Since 1943 Nelson has submitted two reports with plans for laying sprinkler systems and recommendations for various types of shrubbery for consideration.

The reports, though approved by past-President A. J. Cloud, have since gathered dust in a pigeon-holed file, probably because there were not adequate funds for action.

COST NEGLIGIBLE

The major problem of developing the area for planting is in piping water to the arid hills in the rear enst acreage. But Nelson is not without a solution. He testifies the laying of sprinkler systems, an estimated six month project, is the only feasible remedy to the water problem, with total expense not exceeding $10,000.

Favorite argument that maintenance of an extended east campus lawn would require hiring of additional gardeners is unfounded, for Nelson emphasizes that installation of sprinklers throughout the campus would enable the present staff to handle all gardening and watering easily. Whereas the front and west campus lawns are now watered manually, sprinkler systems would pay for themselves within 15 years through saving manhours.

NEW STRUCTURES PLANNED

Under the new streamlined administration set-up, President Louis Conlan and his staff have more opportunity to recognize needs for campus improvements, and already are making noticeable progress in preparing for ground breaking at Balboa Park for contruction of new buildings.

However, it is felt the installation of sprinkler systems should be carried out along with other improvements. Despite magnificent architecture, colleges and universities create favorable impressions by the appearance of their front yards.

FUTURE IS BALANCE

Nelson, when questioned if the laboring part of the project could be carried out by a student volunteer committee in order to "get the job done," reflected that under city ordinances all work must be carried out by the civic government.

At this moment the hands of the students and the Floriculture department seem to be tied, with the future for east campus "window-dressing" depending on allocation of $2,500,000.

Counterpoint: Cable Car To Return Home After Chicago Fair

BY WALT HEIL

THE American railroads' great self-exploitation exhibit commonly called the Chicago Railroad Fair comes to an end Sunday evening and with its termination a San Francisco cable car returns home to the Muni barn.

Along with it come two Muni employees, who enjoyed a 10 day stay in the Windy City, operating the car for the Western Exhibit presentation in the Fair. All expenses and wages for the original motorman and conductor were paid by the WP.

WHEELS A ROLLING

In the Grand precinct of the magnificent pageant Wheels a Rolling" an enthusiastic high water set forth a paragraph on the cable car for the benefit of non-California visitors to the Fair.

"For the same 5c/k you would enjoy on one of the fabled cable cars of San Francisco," he wished. Fair visitors are invited to free rides on a car that was first put into service in the Golden Gate City in 1888.

"Manned by a crippman and conductor, brought from the Coast because of their colorful speech and gong ringing abilities, runs up the hill, short of the Fair's lake front and terminates at a turn table just as it does on its San Francisco trips ending at Market Street."

Now, that quote about colorful speech does not hold true in most cases. It is conceded that most gripmen have genuine talents for gongringing, but except for a few fart remarks to ladies who insist on riding on the step, the colorful speech is often lacking.

K-LINE VOCABULARY

As any City College student can attest, K-line conductors have a far more colorful vocabulary.

Meanwhile, the car itself held a reigning position at the Fair and was always packed with sightseers, youngsters dominating. Young railroad addicts clambered over its battered but freshly painted seats. For the most part the hapless Muni men were subjected to endless questions on cable car lore, when not operating on 5/4 every quarter hour.

It was a strange setting for a Powell Street cable car, which usually creeps up fog-drenched Nob Hill and slips toward the Bay. The tracks were laid on a wooden trestle and instead of pitching forward on a steep incline the car slides down a gentle slope, swings past the Lake, and climbs back to the turntable.

TOONERVILLE TROLLEY

Some Fair visitors were prone disrespectfully to liken the car to a Toonerville Trolley after a comic strip of the same name. However they had to be set right on the subject by several grieved native San Franciscans who were nearby and overheard the "cruel" remark.

With its closing tomorrow, The Fair surpassed last year's attendance figures by a healthy margin.

Flunk Insurance Latest Wrinkle

Journalism students are notorious for their abilities at taking an old idea and adding a new twist to it, but Alpha Phi Gamma, journalistic fraternity at San Francisco State College has come up with a real pip.

The latest wrinkle at State, it seems, is "flunk insurance." The rates are based on scholastic standing, the higher the grade point average, the lower the insurance rates.

A spur of the moment survey, taken to determine whether or not City College students would be interested in this sort of thing, brought in the following replies.

Freshman (male): "I think that such a system would be contrary to the very spirit and ideals of higher education."

Freshman (female): "I think it would be jus' simply awful."

Sophomore (male — admittedly older and wiser): "How much can I take out?"

Sophomore (female — admittedly wiser): "How much can I take out?"

Spotlight: Various Methods Of Humoring Instructors Shown Here

By KEITH GARDNER

SINCE neither the Book of Genesis nor Darwin's Descent of Man offers an explanation for the origins of instructors, today's column will content itself with a study of that curious breed as it is today.

Instructors, for easy reference, can generally be divided into two distinct types. There is the intelligent, genial, warm-hearted type that gives out "A's," and the cruel, sadistic type that grades only with "F's."

Another method of recognizing instructors is by their consistently bad temper. One case we particularly remember concerned a blond instructor named George who stalked out of class one day, enraged over some trifle, and shouting that he'd become a professional wrestler rather than set foot in a classroom again. The idea is ridiculous, of course.

There are also, we understand, various methods for "getting in good" with instructors (there's another term for that, but after all, this is a genteel publication). A few do's and don't's should suffice here.

(1) Never insult an instructor to his face. This is apt to do considerable damage to his ego, not to mention the effect it will have on your grades.

(2) Never give a woman instructor presents, such as a box of cigars. At least not without first asking her what brand she prefers.

43) Always remember to pay complete attention during lectures. This results in better grades, improved student-instructor relations, and slow death by boredom.

As a final note we might add a few words of advice to students who disagree with their instructors. The best method of settling disputes, we've found, is to give the instructor either a letter of apology, or two drops of potassium cyanide in a glass of water. The latter method having the best results.

Local Coeds In Big Dither Over Football Season Opener Tonight

By DAYTON LAWSON

If Grover Klemmer's porkhide party fails to come out topside in tonight's pow-wow with Cal Poly, it won't be because of a lack of the old zip on the part of our more comely partisans.

The coeds have been dusting off their crimson beanies for weeks in preparation for the San Luis clambake. They're really high for this one.

Miss Ida Frump, a major in abnormal psychology, puts it this way:

"Oh, I think football is the cutest game. And I've been enjoying the practice sessions ever so much. Just the other day I overheard Coach Bill Fischer tell one of the boys to shiver when his man came toward him. Anyone could see it was one of the coldest days imaginable, and I think it's so clever to let the boys take time out and try to get warm again."

Hortense Fudd, who works occasionally as a model in the straitjacket dept. of a downtown store, picked it up from there:

"Of course I just LOVE football, but I must say it arouses my curiosity something awful! Everybody walks back a ways and gathers 'round one fellow who starts to tell them a story. I can never make out what he's saying, 'cause when he's through all the boys slap each other on the back, and you can see that, they all feel much better after hearing the story, but it's awfully hard on me sometimes, because I'm just dying to hear the answer to the story, and they tell so many each game, I'm just a nervous wreck at the end."

Fog Ends Student Hot Weather Sweltering

More than a score of City College students experienced "cool" disappointments last Friday morning as they arrived at college, apparently expecting to enjoy the intense heat of another scorching day.

So clad only in shirt and blouse sleeves, which were, for the most part, short, these students scurried in and out of their classrooms, quietly singing that ole familiar musical: "BABY, IT'S COLD OUTSIDE."

The unexpected cold wave struck a vital blow against many sun-loafing students. Indeed, it broke up a four-day sunbasking epidemic at the college — a pastime of which more than two thousand students participated.

COACH GROVER KLEMMER is presently running his charges through scrimmages to determine who will occupy positions on this fall's college eleven. The team meets Cal Poly Frosh tonight at San Luis Obispo.

Rams Seek Thirteenth In Row

Non League Fracas Prepares Team For Conference Opener

By BOB QUINLAN

Obstacle number one in the Ram gridders' defense of the NCJCC title comes into reality tonight when they journey to San Luis Obispo to meet the Cal Poly Frosh in their season opener.

Although the outcome of tonight's affair will have no direct effect on the local's title defense, it will help Coach Grover Klemmer discover the rugged spots in his "T" offense before the Rams' conference inaugural October 5 against Marin.

While San Francisco attempts to rack up its 13th straight win, the husky Klemmer will be looking for the best player combination, thus giving him a more definite idea on the starting lineup.

At this writing he is undecided between three ends: Don Session, a defensive tower of strength, Jack Wallack, blocking artist, and Frank Puckett, a pass receiving specialist. The tackles are veterans Leo Camp and Bob Clark, with newcomers Bob Williamson and Jack Dethlefsen ready for plenty of action.

Outside of returning letterman Don Morettini, the guard position is an open scramble with rookie Dick Saccanti having the upper hand. Veteran Bill Shipp and prep star Bill Conelf are also top flight contenders. The difficult task of replacing graduated center Burl Toler is being taken on by Jim Fales, Al Litvinov, and Jim McAuley in that order.

The present backfield consists of Al Nethercutt, quarterback, Wes Jourdin, fullback, Bob Gifford, right halfback, and either Jerry Olmstead or Marv Crews, left halfback.

Another promising aspect of tonight's sneak prevue of the Rams' 1949 football contingent is that it will give the rookies a chance to accustom themselves to playing under the arcs. This may prove an important factor since a majority of their games will be played at night.

AMONG THE 11 RETURNING veterans from last season's championship NCJCC team are quarterback Al Nethercutt, left, and fullback Wes Jourdan.

Diederichsen Short On Material; Broncos, Bruins New To Conference

With the addition of Santa Clara and UCLA to the conference and loss of two all-conference men, prospects for the 1949 edition of the local soccer squad are rather dark, according to coach Roy Diederichsen.

With only eight veterans returning to the lineup, experienced help will be hard to find despite a large turnout. Neil Decker, Tony Reyes, George Sergeff, Ed Echeverria, Dave Hughes, Jose Martinez, Mario Tovani, and Ed Lozada greeted Diederichsen at the opening practice.

A tough schedule faces the Rams who open their season Wednesday, October 5, against SF State at Balboa Park. Saturday, October 8, they go against the Cal Aggies. The rest of the season includes games against California at Berkeley. USF on the Don's field, and Santa Clara, Stanford and UCLA here.

Last season the locals won two apiece against San Francisco State and Cal Aggies; defeated and tied Stanford; tied the conference champs, USF, twice; tied and lost to California.

College Boxers Maintain Daily Practice Sessions

Fall being the lax season for college boxing, Coach Roy Diederichsen's varsity will concentrate on daily workouts and engage in a few bouts with bay area colleges.

Highlight of the season will be the All College Boxing Tournament, with the winners of the Intramural Boxing Tourney pitted against members of the varsity. Winners will be acclaimed college champions.

Graduation eliminated one fighter, Roy Damas, leaving the Ram team at practically full strength. Among the scrappers returning are four who competed in the nationals last semester, Jerry Stern, Frank Sueuga, Len Garcia, and Dean Bender.

Stern took the national junior college lightweight title, while Sueuga, heavyweight, Bender, 175, and Garcia, 125, were runnerup in their divisions.

Physical Education Instructors On Campus Natural Leaders; Klemmer's Record Intact

INSTRUCTION by leading directors in physical education and specialized athletics, as well as the proper facilities necessary to insert a sincere and full-pledged feeling into a sport, are obtainable on the college campus.

The Ram coaching staff is one of the best, cherishing men who have chalked their names alongside the greatest in the world of sports.

To cite a specific example, Grover Klemmer's :46.4 quarter-mile has yet to be wiped from the record books by an American runner.

No complaints can rightfully be charged against the college's gymnasium equipment. A spacious floor in the men's gymnasium allows three basketball games to be in operation at once. This is an invaluable aid when conditions prevail during moist seasons.

There is also ample seating for those who wish to participate in the role of a spectator.

Catches on the gymnasium floor, inserts for poles to support nets, accommodate badminton courts, should they be desired.

It takes a short time to set up a regulation boxing ring in the gymnasium, should the college's proficient pugilists feel the need of conditioning.

While baseball is in season, the college club works out on Balboa Park, which is without a diamond, or on nearby Ocean View Playground.

With all of the necessary prerequisites of a successful year the college is prepared to put up a defense of titles won in the past two semesters.

Swim Signup Date Pushed To October 4

Signups for intramural swimming were changed last week, and will be accepted until Tuesday, October 4, with a definite date to be announced later for the swimming meet, according to director Tom Wilson's statements earlier this week.

No gymnasium classes have been arranged for swimmers because of a lack of facilities.

Persons wishing to play intramural basketball must form or join a team before submitting their entry to the men's gymnasium. No individual entries will be taken except in individual sports, Wilson also stated.

Deadline for signups in intramural table tennis will be Friday, October 14.

One or more persons are needed to act as managers for intramural sports this semester. Managers will receive physical education credit as well as a chance for a block award to be given to the best manager. Applications for this job will also be taken in the men's gymnasium.

Former Sports Editor Publicity Director

Bob Marcus, former Guardsman sports editor and past reporter for the San Francisco Chronicle, was recently named publicity director for the World championship Ezzard Charles- Pat Valentino boxing match to be staged in the Cow Palace Friday, October 14.

Among Marcus' other duties as publicity head will be the handling of Cow Palace Press accommodations. Marcus was sports editor in 1942.

Faculty Wives And Fall Officers Big News In Campus Club Circles

CLUB officers, next to ducats for the Michigan-Stanford game, are the most important things around 'n about the campus this week. So since we all know about the Wolverines, let's concentrate on the wolves -er, officers, that is!

But first, a note on the doings of the brass. The Faculty Wives will hold their annual fall tea on Wednesday, October 5, at 3806 Clay Street, in honor of Mrs. Louis Conlan, wife of the president of this institution, Mrs. James Hughes, club president, announced last week.

Committee members planning the affair for an anticipated (ANTICIpated, that is) 75 guests, include Mesdames Kenneth Hobbs, Grover Klemmer, John J. Brady, Angelo Bertucci, Grant Marsh, Robin Dunn, and John Gerstung.

Now, as to officers, Beta Phi Beta fraternity disclosed that at a recent meeting the following gentlemen were selected to govern them for the fall semester: president, John Harness; vice-president, George Chavez; secretary, Dave Utter; corresponding secretary, Olan Jones; treasurer, Don Clarke; pledge-master, Ernie Vicchio; and historian, Don Ayers. Congrats, men!

Uttering sounds such as, "Nous parlons Francais, nous mangeons, et tout le monde S'AMUSE," a member of Le Cercle Francais announced the organization's new leaders this week. These are, president, Rick Hastings; secretary-treasurer, Velda Hartzell; CAB representative, Pete Larricq; and advertising representatives, Beryle Lohse, Elva Lambert, and William Zamora. Parlez-vous to you all, too.

Phi Beta Delta fraternity wheels for the fall semester are the following: Dave MacKay, president; Urb Cummings, vice (president, of course); Monroe Johnson, treasurer; Jim Crough, recording secretary; Ralph Milliman, corresponding secretary; Bruce Ingmire, sergeant-at-arms; Tom Jenkins, historian; Don G. Smith, custodian; Neil Murphy, parliamentarian; George Reboltz, pledge-master; Jim Fernhoff, alumni-liaison; Ed Bottsford, CAB representative; and Fred Pratt, assistant CAB. Anybody left to be just a member?

Zeta Chi sorority wishes to inform students of the college that fall officials are comprised of Mary Ann Johnson, president; Carla Jo Pennington, vice-president; Pat Pappas, recording secretary; Joan Talbot, corresponding secretary; Kit Sornborger, treasurer; and Felice Quast, CAB representative.

Former scouters and Boy Scouts of the college chapter of Alpha Phi Omega have elected Dave Auyong, president; Paul Chong, vice-president; Howie Strauss, recording secretary; Ernie Bautista, corresponding secretary; Tom Dietz, treasurer; Dick Weinand, historian; Roger Shatz, sergeant-at-arms; Gene Wilkinson, assistant sergeant-at-arms; and Al Flores, CAB. All former scouts were asked by Auyong to join the boys.

Well, that's the wind-up on the officers for now.

Ski-Rams extend a hearty invitation to all winter sports enthusiasts to attend an entertaining and informative movie in room 136 during college hour today.

Note to dance fans: remember the Phi Beta Delta Shipwreck fling in the west campus auditorium tonight at 9. Ben Watkins' band, nautical decorations, prizes, and everything.

Council Holds First Session

NINE MEMBERS of the present Student Council and the top three officers met informally recently preparatory to buckling down to the business of keeping the Associated Student organization on the move and in the black. In the front row, left to right, are Ed Fass, Norma Moebes, Joan Marenda, secretary; Harry Williams, president; Ronnie Morrison, vice-president; Carmel Lee, and Leonard Wolf. Back row are George de Urioste, Jim Anderson, Felice Quast, Joe Schultz, and Tom Dill. Missing are Bill Hansen, Don Hancock, Louis Guevera, and Pete Taylor.

Hurley Village Mothers Hold Sale To Help Playground Improvements

A change in policy at Hurley Village now allows students attending colleges in San Francisco, other than City College, to obtain housing if approved by Dean Edwin C. Browne.

At present 90 per cent of the 217 units is occupied by students of the college, with approximately 26 tenants from San Francisco State, 21 from the University of San Francisco, and 15 from other colleges in San Francisco.

Through the efforts of the new manager, Arthur D. James, a village meeting is being planned sometime in October to get all the tenants together and discuss some of their common problems.

The playground made possible through The Guardsman and opera proceeds, is being put to good use by the children of the village, and more improvements for it are being planned.

A playground committee composed of three mothers working in conjunction with the college recreational leadership department plans a rummage sale soon to raise the needed money for the planned improvements.

First Of College Film Series Set

San Francisco, Queen of the West, is the first film scheduled for the college film series to be shown every Friday at 11 a.m. in Room 136.

This was announced today by Madison Delvin of the audio visual aid department.

Students and faculty are welcome to these free movies which have a general appeal to everyone. They depict unusual and interesting places all over the world, strange occupations and social problems.

Smoking Regulations Retained

There will be no changes in the smoking regulations this semester, according to information received from Fred Fitzgerald, head of the Law Enforcement Division. Students will be permitted to smoke in the main building only on the basement level.

No smoking will be allowed on the stairways or landings. On the west campus, students may smoke in the lounge, cafeteria, and snack bar. Smoking in any other buildings on the west campus, with the exception of the men's dormitories, is strictly prohibited.

First offenders will have their names taken by the campus police. Students who have two violations on their records will be placed on probation, while those with three violations will be required to take out a leave of absence.

Students Requested To Pin Alumni Group Now

Norman Reger, Alumni Liaison officer, announced that the board of directors met last night at 7:30 p.m., building two.

Dr. Richard Kelly, chairman of the board of directors, discussed future plans for this semester and talked of ideas to encourage students to join the association. Applications can be secured from Joseph A. Amori in building two.

The alumni also affords a continuous plan of activities benefiting both the students in college and the graduates after they have left the college.

Fees are nominal and all students are urged to join.

Music Majors Play In Peace, Offered Lease

Living quarters suitable for music majors are now available, Dean Edwin C. Browne announced yesterday.

These rooms in private homes are soundproof so that students may practice without disturbance, Browne said.

Further information can be obtained from Dean Browne's office in Building 2.

Editorial: Investigation Committee Welcomed Here?

AT the suggestion, almost insistence, of President Harry Williams the members of the Student Council unanimously approved the appointment of an investigating committee to "find out what goes on at The Guardsman."

The quote is from Williams' directive to the council concerning this local version of un-American activities committee. This, incidentally, is the same Harry Williams who ran for Associated Student President on the platform of a Guardsman for every student. It now appears he meant "a certain" kind of Guardsman for every student.

We don't know what the committee expects to find out in this investigation, but we hereby extend an open invitation to the members to come in and "investigate" to their hearts' content.

The door is open, all the news copy is ready for their learned examination, the drawers of the desks are as usual unlocked, and even the wastebaskets are wide open for investigation. If the staff is a little busy turning out a paper, we hope the committee will not feel hurt from lack of attention.

Every member of the staff works a minimum of nine hours a week turning out a student newspaper designed to meet the needs of ALL the students.

As the members of this committee have already gone so far as to tell the Editor what should be printed and what should not, may we suggest that they enroll in journalism. It is a bit crowded, but we'll be glad to have them.

Budget Cuts Near For All Activities; Guardsman, Football Top Economy Aims

Heavy slashes in the more important budget items were proposed to the Associated Student Council Thursday noon by the Budget Committee.

The Guardsman budget was cut $1,000, and the staff was "ordered" to increase its advertising, cut the number of issues, and prepare for a Student Council "investigating" committee.

The football team's budget was cut severely and the Publicity Committee received a fifty per cent cut.

Norman Reger, Alumni Liaison Officer, warned against budget cuts of The Guardsman and criticized the ordering of the paper to increase its advertising at a time when that field is declining.

It was Harry E. Williams who recommended that a committee be formed to "work with" The Guardsman for a period of two weeks and find out just "where the money is going to."

Many minor sports and minor activities receiving little attention as well as many other budget requests were cut or killed.

The original Guardsman budget provided for 24 issues to cover a full program of semester activities for the Associated Students, Managing Editor Dick Briggs stated.

The action in sending an investigating committee to "oversee" The Guardsman at a time when the paper is being made up was considered as culmination of two years of dispute over the Council's control over The Guardsman's Editorial Policy.

The budget committee was unable to cut the budget down to the figures outlined by the Controller in his report to them. The budget as proposed now totals over $20,700.

Danny Lagen, appointed last Tuesday as budget committee head, gave out the figures agreed upon by the budget committee.

Greatest complaint was against the budget of the Club Activities Board which totaled $23.00.

The Executive Council (the Associated Student Administrative Officers) were given 1,300 dollars instead of the $1,600 they requested. At its Tuesday meeting Williams told the council he would lock up the telephone.

Drama Group Rehearses For Shakespearian Production

Paul Ellison

JoAnne Setlow

Rehearsals got under way this week for the college drama department's second Shakespearian production, Much Ado About Nothing, to be staged here in the middle of November, Paul Ellison, drama instructor, announced.

Leading cast members for the play, termed one of the Immortal Bard's finest comedies, are Jane Howard in the role of Beatrice, and as alternates in the role of Benedict, Ronald Zimmerman and Jim Carlson.

Authentic music for the period was brought here on records from England this summer by Ellison.

John Allen, member of the stagecraft class here, is at work designing sets for the presentation.

Almost all the cast is new, and many have never acted before, Ellison said, but he added that the production should be promising.

Ellison's most recent successes include Twelfth Night, Shakespeare's famous tragic-comedy and Blithe Spirit, fantasy of Spiritualism.

Both plays were produced here last semester by a fine corps of veteran players. Prominent examples among these are Barbara Andress, JoAnne Setlow, and Charles Paniagua, all featured in both productions.

Transfer Of Registrar's Office To West Campus Made For Promotion Of Student Convenience

Moving of the registrar's office from the main building into a new site in Building 3 on the west campus is expected to have little effect on incoming and present students who desire aid pertaining to registration or change of program problems.

Actual moving of the department will start at the close of a linoleum strike which has prevented the college from obtaining necessary floor coverings. Reason for the transfer to the west campus is to centralize the registrar's office and simplify procedures of registration.

Upon completion of the building's reconstruction, the registrar's office will be upstairs, and the IBM office will be on the downstairs floor of the same building. The vacancies left in the main building by these offices will be used by several college administrators.

Uniting the registrar's, IBM, and counselling offices into a compact center will save the student a great amount of walking from the main building to the counselling offices which is unavoidable now in case of program changes and other student problems.

The change was forecast last spring as a means of closer unification of the two departments.

F. Grant Marsh, coordinator in charge of student welfare, heads the combined departments. Working with him is Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, and Gertrude Somerville, assistant registrar, and their office staff.

Members of the counselling staff continue in their present offices in Building 3.

Profit Plus Credits Gained By Retail Merchandising Majors

Students majoring in Retail Merchandising Management have a chance to earn while learning and receive two to four units of graduation credits, Samuel Ziegler, department member, announced yesterday.

Work in these classes includes jobs in such business establishments as grocery stores, hardware stores, and gas stations, Ziegler said.

Interested students should see Ziegler in Room 249 sometime during the day, he pointed out.

This opportunity for students to work and earn credits, resulted from a course offered by the Retail Merchandising Department last year. Work in co-ordinated employment in retail management, work-experience was introduced to determine the students' interest in this type of training.

The response was so satisfactory, on the part of both the employer and student, that it was made a permanent part of the retail merchandising curriculum, Ziegler said.

Film Travelogues Due Each Friday

Following last week's successful showing of "San Francisco, Queen of the West," the visual aids department announced today plans for a series of film travelogues to be presented every Friday.

Mostly technicolor films, they are designed to provide entertainment in an educational manner. Madison Devlin, instructor in charge of visual aids, said the movies are free and open to everyone. They will be shown in Room 136 every Friday directly after college hour. This will give students with a free hour plenty of time for lunch.

Freshman Dance Slated Friday At Drake Hotel

"Tea For Two" will be the theme for the Freshman Class dance to be held at the Sir Francis Drake, Friday evening, October 7.

Bobby Britton and his orchestra, who played during the summer season at the Cal-Bijou at Lake Tahoe, will be present to give the gathering an evening of dance music.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight in the Empire and French Rooms of the Sir Francis Drake, and admission is by Associated Student card. Informal dress is the correct attire.

Students attending the Regional California Student Government Conference are also invited to the dance, Jerry Crumpler, freshman president said.

Preparations for the dance are being handled by Crumpler, Larry Ross, freshman vice-president, and Elynore Langridge, freshman secretary.

Lucky Card Holders Must Claim Permits

Deadline for claiming west campus parking permits is 4 o'clock tomorrow, Dean Edwin C. Browne warned last Friday.

If any permits are not called for by tomorrow, a further drawing will be held, Dean Browne said.

Students registered here last semester as well as the present one, are eligible for permits if they own Associated Student cards with numbers ranging from 1001 to 1400 and ending in either zero or five.

A second group is eligible with numbers ranging from 3000 to 3900 and ending either in zero or five.

Conlan Quintet Meets Champs In Homecoming

President Louis G. Conlan will again lead his 1936 championship quintet on to the basketball floor in a contest against the 1949 City College Champions, on Wednesday, October 19, as a part of Homecoming Week.

The 1936 Rams captured the Northern California Championship in the college's first season of sports.

One of the sparkplugs of the 1936 team was Coach Ralph Hillsman. He started the rally that led to the Rams' narrow triumph over the San Mateo Bulldogs. It was his first game after suffering a charlie-horse in an earlier contest against Marin.

In this game Coach Conlan achieved the title of "Miracle Man."

Now two championship teams 13 years apart will meet in an exhibition game to find out which of the two teams most deserved the flamboyant adjectives of sports writers.

On the coaching benches Conlan will face his one-time pupil, Ralph Hillsman.

The tentative lineups for the two teams are as follows:

1936

Forwards—Rippon, Lowans, Anido, Lonstalot.

Guards — Hillsman, Leahy, Nicco, Maas, McSweeny, Mordecai.

Centers—Glynn, Elaine, Butler.

1949

Forwards — Matheny, Truelson, Schneider, Mingee, Athanasopoulos.

Centers—Duggan, B. Kahn.

Guards—B. Payne, D. Payne, Brilliant, Caldwell, E. Kahn.

RAM BASKETBALL champions of 1949 receive pointers from their coach who will lead them in a contest on Wednesday, October 19, with the 1936 championship quintet of which he was originally a member.

After 13 years, Coach Ralph Hillsman, will face his one time coach, President Louis G. Conlan, only this time it will be across the coaching benches.

The exhibition game will be a part of Homecoming Week events here from October 17 to 21.

Left to right are Captain Jim Caldwell, Bob Matheny, Kev Duggan, Bob Payne, Dud Truelsen, and Coach Hillsman.

Deadline Date Fixed For Dropping Courses

Last day for filing petitions for dropping courses has been set at Wednesday, November 9, Gertrude Somerville, assistant registrar, announced here recently.

Failure to turn in a completed "drop" slip before 5 p.m. on the deadline date will result in a grade of "F," Miss Somerville warned.

Petitions may be obtained from counsellors in Building 3.

Student Store May Offer Answer To Money Problems

GIVING moral support to the Student Council meeting last week Dr. Louis G. Conlan, college president, told the council members that he intended to keep in close contact with student needs and one way of doing this was to work with the council in planning future activities.

One plan for bringing in much needed revenue to the Associated Students was suggested by President Conlan, when he spoke about a student co-operative store.

Such a plan could become the chief source of money and at the same time give reduced rate service to Associated Students. Louis Batmale, Dean in charge of Student Activities, and Dean Jack Brady have made a survey of student stores at other colleges, and this information is available to the members of the council.

This idea has been knocked about for several years now, and we sincerely hope that this semester's council will act on the suggestion before too long. No time like the present as somebody or other once said.

TURNING from economic matters toward the attention-to-the-college department, we would like to commend the local hard-working publicity committee. Headed by student Russell Greer and aided by faculty adviser, George Mullany, this committee strives to put City College on the map with the right kind of publicity.

If City College is to maintain and hold a place among the front rank of bay area colleges, it will be due in a large part to the co-operation given this committee by all the departments and students on campus. If we hide our light under a bushel no one may find it.

OUR last item before we close up shop for the day. The local parking situation is one of much concern to everyone not lucky enough to get on the inside. The dirt areas provide some help in dry weather, but wait until the rains come. Last semester a petition was circulated hereabouts expressing a hope for additional parking facilities, but so far nothing has been done. Well, we can hope, can't we???

Looking-Up

BY DICK BRIGGS

LOST beyond steamship lanes in the ocean spanse of the South Pacific, a tiny 34-foot sloop is nosing its prow northeastward to San Francisco, and home, for City College student Jack Lang.

During the summer, Lang and three companions embarked to Tahiti to fulfill a kid's dream of South Pacific escape complete with a pulp magazine plot of adventure with giant sea creatures, tropical squalls, and the inevitable conquest of outguessing death whenever man combats nature ill-provisioned.

Early in June, near the waterfront, a narrow vessel pierced the morning fog with its sails almost full-billowed by a young breeze.

The ship cruised the California coast line for Los Angeles, first port of call, under navigation of Skipper Lang with some long studied calculations made from special Coast Guard maps. The spanking breeze was calmed by the growing heat of midday, and the ship's sails became emptied and lifeless.

To hasten progress, the seafarers proceeded southward by auxiliary engines until a strong wind blew in hours late and assured swift sailing.

Days later the low sprawling landscape of Los Angeles showed itself blurred through a hazy curtain of heat haze as a tiny line on the horizon. Skipper Lang again kicked over the engines to speed the ship into port. The motor roared out, sputtered, then died.

Lang, whose only mechanical experience was engineering B grades from low marking instructors, detected the fuel supply was exhausted.

With Los Angeles an hour's ride distance, the crew emptied gallons of vegetable oil into the fuel tank, hummed a little prayer, and chugged full steam into San Pedro powered by a few squirts of salad oil.

When Pacific bound from Los Angeles, the sloop's masts were ripped from their stanchions during sudden violent storms, but without too much further mishap the vessel reached destination Tahiti, date unknown.

The complete tale of sea-nomad Jack Lang's adventures is not yet entirely known, but when the sloop docks along San Francisco's docks sometime near October 14. The Guardsman will attempt to bring a detailed account of a City College student's experience with adventure on the South Pacific seas.

South Sea Adventure Fever Hits Student; Tahiti Bound Sloop Fights Storms, Squalls

Counterpoint: Maniacs Aboard Wheels Give Motorists Gray Hair

By WALT HEIL

NOT since the Model T appeared on the American scene along with boyish figures for women has the automobile gone through such a great change as it does now at the hands of several thousand California youths.

The latest wrinkle in super speed experimentations is the hot rod. No one seems to know just where this atrocity of the modern car was invented, but the wise boys are laying odds that it was in California.

IN SOUTHERN CAL

At the present time the great majority of hot rod devotees are located in Southern California. Only a small percentage of the hot rod addicts are operating in the center of the state and they are only imitationists. The real McCoys flourish happily in Los Angeles, the city of super markets, screen stars, and phonies.

The general practice of the hot rodders is to roar down long straight stretches of pavement at 60 mile per hour, scaring prideful motorists. Police lookouts are setup and prepared to warn the participants of any immediate dangers.

If the happy hot rodder happens to build a rod that is capable of higher speeds, he takes to certain dry lakes northeast of LA. At that point he joins a club and whips across the lake bottom at speeds ranging from 100 to 180 miles.

LOW SLUNG CAR

For the uninitiated, the hot rod is a low-riding, stripped down car that reaches just above the knees of a normal sized person. In most cases it doesn't possess a roof, nor a bumper, and grinds and bumps along in low gear in slow moving traffic.

Under the hood the motor that makes the car move at such tremendous speed has an extra carburetor, supercharger, and other gadgets. Combined they add up to breakneck speeds and often broken necks.

The outer part of the car is usually painted bright colors to give it a shiny appearance. If the owner happens to have a dash of imagination he will paint the crate two tone or create a simple design to give a racy flavor.

CITY COLLEGE HAS FEW

A few hot rod addicts have been spotted in this locale by close observers of the City College scene. But, the population has not risen up in righteous wrath because the hot rodders have behaved well.

On the whole, however, the hot rod is quite a useless contraption. It is good only for putting a fright into citizens and motorists alike. The hot rod cut often is a headache to police, who have to put a halt to reckless driving at high speeds. John Law considers the men a nuisance.

The best advice to motorists, when they hear the loud roar of a hot rod or souped up jalopy is to pull over to the curb, but quick. It's safer that way.

All Right Louie, Drop That Insecticide Gun

Those characters who flit around the campus armed with butterfly nets and magnifying glasses aren't fugitives from a psycho ward. They are just students enrolled in Ray Peterson's pest control class out on a specimen gathering hunt.

The occasional cries of glee they emit mark the capture of a diptera, or a hymenoptera, or possibly even a syphonaptera. Sometimes referred to by the illiterate as a fly, a bee, or a flea.

The insects, once they are captured, are given a dose of cyanide gas, and mounted in cases. Mothballs, incidentally, are used in the cases to prevent live insects from eating their deceased brethren.

Naturally, the use of insecticides is stressed. One of these is really cute. The poison is put in the soil around a plant. The plant then absorbs the poison which doesn't harm it. Then a bee lands on the plant, slurps in some supposedly harmless nectar, and passes on to a better world.

Spotlight On Commuting; Nail Polish Dryers Just One Of Hazards

By KEITH GARDNER

JUST the other day, full of courage and a 35 cent lunch, we allowed ourself to be driven across the bay by a woman.

After about four minutes of the mechanized mayhem that the young lady in question called driving, the courage left us, followed shortly by the lunch. The few words that follow, therefore, were written so local students might have a better understanding of just what the commuter goes through.

SCREWBALLS

Since space is limited, some of the more common types of screwball drivers will be passed by lightly. Among these is a woman giving a left turn signal, or is she just drying her nail polish? One never knows 'til his forehead meets the windshield.

Another type that's particularly endearing is the lost-in-a-fog character who casually bashes into the rear of cars that he's following. After a few skirmishes with this type we changed our registration slip from Ford to accordion.

Still another of the more minor annoyances is the stiff-necked slob who never uses a rearview mirror. This guy is convinced that he has eyes in the back of his head. Holes would be a better word.

GLARE STARE

The top spot on everybody's hate parade, though, should be reserved for the guy who leaves his high lights on constantly in the face of oncoming traffic. After spending an hour or so staring into the glare, the average person has to rely on sense of feel to phone for a guide dog.

Though the picture presented here looks pretty bleak, there is good reason to hope for improvement. Especially if more places will imitate a county in another state that has a sign reading thusly: "You are now entering Soandso. Speed limit 99 m. p.h. TROMP ON IT!"

Boom Years Over And Budget Time Is Here Again

By Bill Thomas

The years of plenty and the boom of postwar prosperity are over, despite anything that President Harry S. Truman can do.

Gloomy looks continue to invade the council tables of the mighty, and dreams of the lean years just passed continue to enter the minds of many.

Recently the Student Council received a stern lesson in economics from Oscar E. Anderson. He told the boys some elementary truths, among which was the gem of wisdom that you can't spend more than you've got.

What you got is about seventeen thousand dollars and what you want to spend is something calculated to create migraines. In case you don't know what we're talking about, it's that little gem, the budget of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco.

Each semester the Student Council tackles the task of passing out the dough or, if you like, digging into the pork barrel.

The process is quite simple. Each organization on the campus fills out a little form saying how much money it wants. Then the Budget Committee looks over the requests and passes them on to the Student Council which takes another look and then gives out what money it has.

Now everybody knows that the budget is going to have to be cut and so everybody asks for just a leetle bit more than they need. This is called padding.

Then the Budget Committee tries to figure out which is "padding" and which is necessary. First they cut out anything listed under "miscellaneous." Then they cut everything else which they think is unnecessary. After all this is done they cut an additional chunk off for good luck.

Then follow days of boredom while each member of the council objects to the small amount of money given to his pet organization. They then proceed to pass the budget exactly as the Budget Committee recommended.

It is regrettable but no deficit spending is permitted which, on second thought, may be just as well.

However, the years of prosperity are over and the budget for this semester must be at least $9,000 lower than last semester. Last year the boys ran through $10,000 of the reserve fund which had cushioned temporarily the shock of a lower budget.

Rams Rout Cal Poly Frosh In Opener

Rams Open Soccer Season Tomorrow Against California Aggies Eleven

By Terry Ryan

Eleven light, fast and extremely elusive local lads invade the privacy of the California Aggies tomorrow, in an effort to repeat last season's soccer triumph. Neil Decker and Ed Echaverry led the conference second place team in their first tilt.

Coach Roy Diederichsen, soccer mentor, stated that the team is one of the fastest he has coached and that while "boys are not heavy, they do pass the ball well."

The Rams will depend on this delicate footwork for the margin of victory, as they cannot play the bruising type of ball which is prevalent in America, but will have to razzle-dazzle the Aggies into defeat.

In a recent practice scrimmage with the Balboa High Buccaneers, the locals ran the legs off the prepsters while annexing an easy four to-nothing victory. Diederichsen swept the bench clean in an attempt to find the right combination to send against the Aggies.

Diederichsen's substitution worries are nil. Besides Decker and Echaverry, he has a host of second and third team members returning. To bolster this group even more, Lincoln High yielded five men from their first string. Three of these men are now in first cabin berths. Dave Milkier, Ernie Smith, and Robert Datwyler will run in the left wing, center half, and right half positions respectively, while Gaston Gassiot and Bob Sherwood are right behind them in second place positions.

"ROY DIEDERICHSEN, boxing and soccer coach, led last season's soccer club to a second place in the NCJCC.

Actually the first and second teams do not differ, according to Diederichsen. Because of the rule outlawing time-outs, he will substitute freely.

"Each of the teams are so nearly alike that both groups will be interchangeable," said the mentor.

The schedule this season includes games against University of California, Stanford, UCLA, University of San Francisco, (last year's champs) and Santa Clara. UCLA and Santa Clara are additions to the conference.

Probable starters for the California Aggies game are left wing, Dave Milkier; inside left, Antonio Reyes; center forward, Edwardo Zelaya; inside right, Ed Echaverry; right wing, Robert Davila; left half, Francisco Zelaya; center half, Ernie Smith; right half, Alphonse Filloy; left fullback, Neil Decker; right fullback, Robert Datwyler, and in the goalie position, Jose Martinez.

Deadline For Intramural Swim Meet Set Today; Novice Boxing Applications Taken Daily In Men's Gym

Deadline for students to sign up for the coming intramural swimming meet is today, according to a statement made last week by director Tom Wilson.

Scene for the meet has yet to be decided, but it will probably be held at Jefferson Union High School's pool.

Individuals wishing to participate in the intramural boxing tournament may sign up at any time with Wilson or Coach Roy Diederichsen at the men's gymnasium. Each person must list the weight at which he plans to fight.

After the final rounds are held, a perpetual trophy will be awarded to the best boxer in the tournament, according to the judges' decision.

Belt buckles will be given to the champions in each weight division, while the runners up will be awarded medals.

Students are reminded that they need not enter under a team name if they are only going to play the individual sports. Points earned by individuals may also be counted in the point totals of the teams, if so wished.

All members of championship teams will be given belt buckles, while members of the second place team will receive medals. The President's Group Trophy, which is a perpetual award, will be presented to the team accumulating the most points during the semester.

Points for individual and team sports will be awarded as follows:

First Place	50 Points
Second Place	35 Points
Third Place	25 Points
Fourth Place	15 Points

Big Brother Colleges Grab Ram Grid Stars; Boxing Enthusiasm High, Classes Jammed

WITH football in full swing, it is not strange to see some of the stars that captured the college's second NCJCC title last year, sharing the headlines at major colleges.

Ollie Matson, the sensational halfback who racked up 114 points and a Junior College All-American rating last fall, as we all know, has moved to USF. Now tipping the scales around the two hundred mark, Ollie holds down the first string fullback position. In the St. Bonaventure game the Matson "charm" broke the 21-21 tie with touchdown runs of 90 and 39 yards giving USF a 34-21 victory.

Along with Matson went All-American center Burl Toler, fullback Roy Giorgi, and halfback Kenny White. Toler was instantly placed in his favorite position backing up the line, the USF coach, wanting to make use of all of Toler's ability, placed him at the end position while on offense.

Giorgi May Shine

Giorgi, a hard runner, has not played much to date, being Matson's understudy at fullback, but should see much action before the season ends. White holds a third string halfback position.

Ray Posnekoff, the all conference end, decided to be different and jumped to San Jose State. Still at the flank position, Posnekoff, sometimes called the "Mad Russian" because of his bruising defensive play, holds down a second string berth.

Santa Clara, in need of quarterbacks after graduation hit them, latched on to Bob Toquinto, second string all-conference back. Toquinto, an able pilot and passer, works the third team in the Bronco "T".

Shot In Arm

Since the days when the college was located at Galileo High and the familiar Rami boxing haunts of the time were the Verdi Club and Coliseum Bowl, boxing has come a long way until it is now recognized as a major sport.

The second place national title and impressive wins over Santa Clara, San Francisco State, and the two-year institutions, gave the sport the well needed shot in the arm.

Boxing classes are now filled to capacity, so much so that Mentor Roy Diederichsen had to close his classes. From the two beginner classes will come prospects for the Intramural Novice tourney held once a semester. The intermediate classes, composed of last semester's beginners, further elaborate the art of boxing. All these new hopefuls will help strengthen the wallop of the Ram varsity in the future.

Two new additions to the varsity, Dick Ramsey and Ray Nelson, produced a sunny outlook for Diederichsen. Ramsey, a Polytechnic High graduate, battles in the light heavyweight class and carries a terrific punch. Nelson, middleweight, is heavily loaded in both fists.

Surprise Passing Attack Paces Klemmermen In 26-0 Victory

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Sept. 30.—Behind the brilliant passing of quarterback Al Nethercutt, who completed 13 out of 17 tosses, the college eleven opened its season tonight with a 26-0 non-league win over the California Poly Frosh in preparation for its conference inaugural with Menlo College next Saturday night.

Nethercutt's passes, which accumulated 189 of the Rams' 270 net yards gained, were instrumental in the first three touchdowns.

Puckett Scores

Midway in the first period Marv Crews ran back a Poly punt to the Mustang 49 yard line to start the first Ram touchdown drive. Crews and Roten Guilford quickly picked up a first down, which was promptly followed by a 26 yard pass from Nethercutt to end Frank Puckett, who was nailed on the 13 yard line. On the first down the lanky quarterback unleashed a touchdown pass to Puckett.

Rod DeChristofaro made the first of two conversions.

At the beginning of the second quarter the Rams were in another Nethercutt paced drive, but it went to seed when Crews fumbled on the Poly 18 yard stripe. When the Mustangs attempted to kick out, linebacker John Brown crashed through to block the punt and then fell on the loose ball in the end zone.

DeChristofaro converted giving the locals a 14-0 half-time lead.

Rams Roll 73 Yards

San Francisco received the second half kickoff and began a 73 yard drive to paydirt. After Nethercutt's passes had picked up a majority of the yardage, Guilford barrelled over from three yards out for the third tally.

In the final period Walt Jourdan intercepted a desperate Mustang pass on their 15 yard line and ran it over untouched to conclude the night's scoring.

The Rams almost scored the first time they had the ball. On their first play of the game Nethercutt passed 33 yards to end Don Sessions who was hauled down on the Poly 15 yard line. On the next four plays Guilford and Jourdan came within inches of a first down on the 5 yard marker.

Until the dying moments of the game the Frosh never penetrated further than the San Francisco 31 yard line. During the last two minutes they drove 73 yards, but time ran out on them on the Rams' two yard line.

Line Outstanding

The Ram line was outstanding as they gave Nethercutt perfect protection and held Poly to 58 net yards gained on the ground. Linebackers Brown, Jim Fales, and Bob McBride played magnificent ball.

BOB GILFORD IS RETURNING this season to fill the right halfback position he occupied on last year's championship team. Only other returning first team vet is Don Morettini.

Hillsman Prepares Casaba Turnout For Coming Season

Coach Ralph Hillsman will have his hands full when it comes time to decide who is going to play on the varsity basketball team this coming season.

Close to 50 men turned out for the first day of practice last week, and many of them have great potential abilities.

Hillsman has organized his class into teams of four men each, who will play in a round robin league, so as to get a better look at his future material in action.

Any student who feels the desire to play basketball should not discard the idea, for the basketball tryouts are open to any and all, Hillsman said.

First Flower Fiesta Set For Next Semester

The first flower fiesta to be sponsored by the college horticulture department is expected to be presented on the west campus in May, it was disclosed late yesterday.

John Lawrence, instructor in floriculture, stated that no specific date for the presentation has yet been established, but it should be early in the month of May.

"We are looking forward to a big season this spring," he added, "and with more than 80 students enrolled in the class, it should be better than ever."

Most of the 80 students are majors and/or minors in one of the following fields: Landscaping, pre-nursing, pre-medicine, pharmacy and floriculture.

They are receiving specialized training in the procedure of plant conservation which will enable them to undertake any part of the curriculum with relative ease.

Meanwhile, fresh flowers are purchased twice weekly to acquaint students with the proper technique in actually cutting, handling and preparing them without damage to the plant.

Band Association Seeks Members

The college Band Association, under the leadership of Meyer Cahn, launched a campus-wide plea early yesterday for more instrumental members and more drum majorettes.

"The band, which is playing all new music this semester, is considered traditionally 'tops'," Cahn said. "Members, including drum majorettes, are now dreadfully needed," he continued.

Officers in the band association are Herbert Newmoister, band manager; Patty Patterson, student band director; Bill Murray, drum major.

Any students who are interested in signing up for either the instrumental section or in going out for majorette should apply to Cahn in the auditorium.

The Band Association performs at college rallies, major football games, and other campus affairs. Also, an opportunity for needed practice for musicians is gained through the efforts of the association.

Share-a-Ride Plans Formed

Formation of a car pool for students who commute from the East Bay area is now in progress, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced recently.

Residents of Oakland, Alameda, Richmond, and Berkeley who desire rides to the college or want riders to share bridge toll or gasoline expenses may sign up in Dean Browne's office, Building 2.

Offers of rides and names of people wanting rides for both early and late classes are available now to all who are interested in participating in the pool, Dean Browne stated.

Veteran Service Credit Evaluation Obtainable At Registrar's Office

All veterans of the Armed Forces wishing to have their service credits evaluated may do so by applying at the registrar's office. Veterans must present evidence of their honorable discharge from the military service and also proof of their completion of courses in the service.

Grant Marsh is the coordinator in charge of matter pertaining to veterans and the Veterans Administration.

The Veterans' Guidance Center, under the jurisdiction of the Veterans Administration, is now located at Galileo High School.

The branch of this center, formerly located on the campus, was discontinued June 1.

Man-Sized Job Done By Hurley Mothers

Demonstrating that they really know how to get things done, the mothers of that active little community known as Hurley Village have taken on a man-sized job.

The playground has long been in need of a lawn to keep the little rompers out of the dirt, but the men of the village have been too busy with classes and books to take care of it. So, rolling up their sleeves the women got out the picks and shovels and elbow grease and proceeded to turn the ground over and seed it.

A coming out party will be held when the first seedlings break through the ground.

Display Cases Opened To Club Organizations

Two display cases are available in the main building for use by campus organizations for a two week period on a first come, first served basis. Applications should be placed in Box 18, addressed to John Stafford.

The Art Department is prepared to aid setting up of a display.

Round 'n About

Officers Bask In Limelight While Social Events Suffer A Drought

IT seems mighty discouraging, but organization officers are still the most important social "events" around 'n about campus club circles. In all fairness to their majesties, we now present them formally . . . .

Alpha Lambda Chi sorority leaders for this semester are as follows: president, Jean Meyers; vice-president, Beverly Jank; secretary, Karalee Kimbirk; treasurer, June Mohr; historian, Barbara Goodwin; and sergeant-at-arms, Loma Pohlmann.

The girls of Alpha Lambda Chi also started the rush season ball rolling by presenting their first rush tea last Sunday, October 2, at the California Club. A rollicking good time was certainly had by all.

Fall wheels for Phi Beta Rho sorority were disclosed last week, also, the following being the official list: Ruth Cristandi, president; Eleanor Meredith, vice-president; Barbara Geisman, recording secretary; Pat Draper, corresponding secretary; Angie Guerra, treasurer; Joyce Broughton, historian; and Pat Edwards, CAB representative.

Another sorority, Theta Tau, announced new officers as president, Norma Moebes; vice-president, Peggy Rutter; recording secretary, Ann McBride; corresponding secretary, Pat Kelly; custodian, Helen Smirnoff; sergeant-at-arms, Betty Cartwright; and CAB, Fanda Chudy. Members expect a TARRIFIC semester with these able-bodied (ahem) seamen at the helm.

Gamma chapter of the national fraternity, Phi Delta Koppa, held a smoker at the home of Brother Lou Rocca on the evening of Tuesday, September 27. Prospective pledges were introduced, sport movies shown and enough food was served to have warranted joint meetings with half the sororities on campus (it says here.)

Pi Delt' officers were announced at this time. They are as follows: president, Bob Hickman; vice-president, Rex Reyes; treasurer and corresponding secretary, Lou Rocca; pledgemaster, Bob Datwyler; guard, Jack O'Shea; master - of - ceremonies, Irv Batz; social chairman, Bud Taylor; and editor, Ray Kaehoff. (Excuse please, if misspelled.)

The second official sororiTEA of the semester will be held Sunday, October 9, in the Corinthian Room of Hotel Whitcomb by Delta Psi's. Now, don't fluster the poor things, girls.

Beta Tau fraternity wants all to know that its activities of the semester will be under the direction of president, George de Uriosity; vice-president, Frank Coppel; treasurer, Dick Doolin; recording secretary, Bob Hawkins; corresponding secretary, Dick West; historian, Walt Voitagen; and custodian, Walt Mitchell.

Newman Club held its election meeting last night at exactly 7:30 at St. Emydius Hall, with Father Elwood Geary addressing the members. Everyone is holding his breath anxiously awaiting the results of the polling.

Thirteen Councilites Pass Associated Student Budget After Short Debate; Members Continue Interest In Student Newspaper Appropriations

After a stormy meeting which lasted over the allotted time, the Student Council after three votes agreed thirteen to nothing, with one member abstaining, to pass an Associated Student budget of $20,813.

The total budget was defeated the first time it was voted on, with five members abstaining, two opposing, and six voting for. The second vote ended in a theoretical tie, and Associated Student President Peter Williams, exercising his prerogative, voted in favor of the budget.

The vote however was declared not to be correct, since the president miscounted. After a short debate during which it was proposed that The Guardsman budget be cut out entirely, the council voted unanimously to pass the budget.

The voting and the shift of opinion in the council did not exceed five minutes.

The Student Council also voted to allow President Williams to go to the California Junior College Conference in place of Pete Isola. The council voted last week not to allow Pete Isola to travel on Associated Student funds.

After reading Isola's letter of resignation, the council appointed Norman Reger to go to the council as the third representative.

When a council member stated he had investigated certain budget appropriations, Bill Hanson stated that he was amazed because "according to The Guardsman to investigate is a sin."

The statement was stricken from the records.

Jerome stated that the purpose of the Guardsman investigating committee was "for a survey to find out what the students want."

George De Urosite requested the reading of the resolution forming the committee. The resolution read:

"This is being done to see if it is possible to cut their (The Guardsman's) expenses. The survey will last two weeks and the committee members will work with The Guardsman staff to see what students want in the paper."

De Urosite moved that the council wait until the committee reported before passing The Guardsman budget.

He was informed that the budget would have to be passed with the other budgets unless cut out completely. The total budget was then voted upon favorably.

Freshman Dance Heads Tonight's Activities

One of the feature events on the social calendar occurs tonight when the Freshman Class acts as host to the college at its popular semi-annual dance to be held at the Sir Francis Drake. "Tea For Two" will be the theme for this affair.

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 with Bobby Britton and his orchestra in the spotlight. The orchestra has just completed a long engagement at the Cal-Bijou, Lake Tahoe, and is a popular figure at many college dances in the Bay area.

"One Associated Student card per couple will be the admission fee. Informal dress and the "no corsage rule" will be standard for the evening," Jerry Crumpler, freshman president, announced.

Students attending the Regional California Student Government Conference are also invited to the dance, Crumpler added.

Committeemen have reserved both the Empire and French Rooms for the large turnout this successful semi-annual affair will attract.

All students who have not purchased their Associated Student card are urged to do so today so they may attend the dance tonight.

Those responsible for making the night one which will be long remembered are committeemen Crumpler, Larry Ross, and Elynore Lampe.

Local Coed Represents College On Radio Show

Eileen Scott, who sang the role of the countess in Marriage of Figaro here last semester, represented the Opera Workshop on the air last Wednesday evening on KGO's Think Fast program, aired locally at 6:30 pm.

The broadcast was an opera quiz, with participants invited from various Bay area colleges.

Shirley Smith, new member of the Opera Workshop, was the alternative representative.

San Francisco's Opera Guild gave participants box seat tickets for the opera Faust, and also tickets to a dinner party in the St. Francis Hotel, following the program.

Auditions for a few roles in next spring's workshop productions close next Tuesday, October 11, Director Flossita Badger said.

Local Gridders Oppose Menlo In League Tilt

Confident of scoring potentialities in new passing sensation Al Nethercutt, a sputtering ground moving City College football team will tune their aerial game to peak performance at final practice today, in preparation for their first league contest against the revenge minded Menlo Oaks, at Cox Stadium, Saturday, 8 p.m.

No pansey-waist opponent, a highly potent Menlo team, not eager to forget the 24-9 pasting that cost them the conference title to City College last season, are favorites over the Rams who will choose to salvage victory by accentuating their air strength in preference to a luke warm ground game in tomorrow's contest.

The Rams enter Cox Stadium as underdogs not only through display of an erratic running game in their 26-0 win over a sluggish Cal Poly Frosh, but beside the more experienced and stronger Menlo club, the Rams appear ready victims for easy slaughter.

Not perturbed by the underdog rating, Coach Klemmer seeks victory by placing confidence in the newly developed aerial threat of hard passing quarterback Al Nethercutt, who completed 13 of 17 tosses in the Rams last encounter.

If a green line can spring fleet backs Gilford, Crews, Olmstead, and Jourdan, City College may upset the visiting Oaks by a comfortable margin, but such early development in the front line is not yet expected.

Skarstedt To Attend Stanford Presidential Inauguration

Dr. Marcus Skarstedt (right), City College coordinator of curriculum, will represent his old alma mater, Augustana College, at the Presidential inauguration of Dr. Wallace Sterling at Stanford University, today.

Although no two-year colleges are being represented, Dr. Skarstedt is "unofficially" representing City College.

The installation of Dr. Sterling as the fifth president of Stanford is in the Frost Amphitheatre at 2:45 p.m.

More than 30 college presidents and representatives of 119 other universities are scheduled to march in the ceremonial procession.

An inauguration reception and dinner was held Thursday evening at the Palace Hotel under the sponsorship of the Alumni Association and Stanford Associates.

Outdoor Rally In College Hour Today Features President Conlan Address

Feature of the college hour rally today at 10:40 a.m. will be an address by Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, and the college choir, Rally Commissioner Urb Cummings announced yesterday.

A stage will be set up on the sidewalk in front of the main building and the sloping lawn will form natural bleachers for the talent packed program.

President Conlan will make his first address to the students since assuming office, and Coach Grover Klemmer will introduce the 1949 football team which is out for its second straight championship.

Two comedy teams from the Variety Club will put on skits and the new yell leader, Bob Broune, will go over the new yells. Tony Cuevas will lead the choir in light songs.

The mysterious two legged creature known as Sammy the Ram will also put in an appearance sporting a new head for the occasion, Cummings said.

College Band To Feature New Tunes In Seasonal Debut Tomorrow Night

The City College band will make its first fall appearance tomorrow night under the leadership of baton twirler Ardell Healy, at Cox Stadium when the Rams meet Menlo Junior College in their league opener.

"As previously predicted, the college band has held its honorary position as one of the finer two-year college bands in the state, in spite of the fact it has only ten of last semester's members returning," Patty Patterson, student band director, said.

The band will feature in addition to presenting such performers as Miss Healy, who performs "miracles" with batons, John Weber, flute "king" from Aberdeen, Washington.

Limit Placed On Car Tickets; One-a-Week

Streetcar tickets are now limited to one a week for each student, attendants of the student bank announced recently. Associated Student cards will be punched for each car ticket purchased.

The student bank is now open from 9:45 to 11 a.m. and 12:01 to 1:15 p.m. daily for the convenience of those who wish to purchase Associated Student cards or car tickets.

List Of Audio Visual Films Released By Motion Picture Head Devlin

"Meeting the Challenger," a new technicolor motion picture will be shown today in Room 136 during the hour immediately following college hour today.

This was announced by Madison Devlin, of the audio visual aids department, which presents a different program each week at the same time and place.

Today's picture portrays all the scenic panorama a person would see on an actual train trip through Nevada, Colorado, and Utah on the way to Chicago.

Because of last week's overflow crowd, Devlin urged all students to get there early enough to get a seat.

Coming attractions are as follows:

October 21—Enchanted Isles.

October 28—California and Its Natural Resources.

S. F. Municipal Theatre Offers New Student Rates For Productions

The eight outstanding plays scheduled for the 1949-50 season of the San Francisco Municipal Theatre are being offered students on the City College campus at a total cost of only $5.

This was made possible through a special student rate plan provided this year for students of Bay area colleges and schools, David W. Hunter, managing director of the Municipal Theatre, announced.

The new season of the Municipal Theatre opened yesterday with Strange Bedfellows, a sophisticated Broadway success.

Succeeding attractions of the 1949-50 season are as follows:

The Glass Menagerie, by Tennessee Williams—to open November 3, 1949.

A Christmas play—to open December 1, 1949.

Amphitryon 38, by Jean Giradoux; adapted by S. N. Behrman—to open January 19, 1950.

Tale of Two Cities, from the novel by Charles Dickens—to open March 16, 1950.

Arms and the Man, by George Bernard Shaw—to open June 1, 1950.

Another Part of the Forest, by Lillian Hellman—to open July 13, 1950.

Visiting Delegates Discuss Regional Conference Proposals

The annual Regional Conference of the California Junior College Student Government convenes at City College's west campus student lounge today, October 7.

The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the agenda of the coming Junior College conference which will be held on October 27, 28, and 29 at San Bernardino, California.

Delegates representing 15 Northern California junior colleges will meet here today to discuss ways and means of effective student government activities.

Colleges to be represented are as follows: Menlo, Modesto, Hartnell, Placer, Vallejo, Grant Teeh, Yuba, Stockton, Lux, Napa, Lassen, San Bernardino, Sacramento, Marin and Santa Rosa.

The delegates register from 9 through 9:30 a.m. Ronnie Morrison and the council committee will handle registrations, and Joan Marenda is the official recorder.

An official roll call will be taken immediately after the council has been assembled. Then the meeting goes into session.

Associated Student President Harry Williams is slated to deliver the welcoming address to visiting delegates.

Edward E. Sandys, dean of general college courses, will follow with a talk on activities for students.

There will be group discussions of student government in action. Also, the group will offer clarifications on how regional directors should be selected.

Greatest discussion on the agenda will be that of mandatory purchase of student membership cards.

Williams Issues Statement On Investigating Committee

REGRETTING the unfortunate choice of words when he called for an "investigating" committee to "find out what goes down at The Guardsman", Associated Student President Harry Williams issued the following statement:

"On behalf of the student council I would like to clear up a misunderstanding that occured over the appointment of an investigating committee concerning The Guardsman. The council and myself have complete faith in The Guardsman staff and faculty advisers. The appointment of this committee was not directed against anyone connected with the student newspaper."

President Williams also had a suggestion to make concerning a survey of all student activities. This letter will appear in next issue's letter-to-the-editor department where it will be given the consideration it deserves.

The staff of the student newspaper has invited this committee to act as "observers" through a two-day deadline and makeup period. After this period they will be invited to use the letter-to-the-editor department to make any constructive suggestion.

THE logical extension of this "investigating" business could easily be to send another committee down to the gymnasium in order to instruct Coach Klemmer in football tactics. If the council considers this sort of thing their responsibility, we presume they can demand a switch from the T-formation to the single wing or tell Coach Klemmer who they think should be quarterback. We are sure he would appreciate this.

The drama department would also enjoy a council committee telling them what plays to produce and offering suggestions as to how they should be directed. We are sure the A Cappella choir would welcome a committee telling them what to sing with suggestions about the proper tone and key.

As may be seen, such a precedent opens endless possibilities for more investigations. We do hope they get around to telling the girls' soccer team how to adjust their shin guards. After all, if any phase of student activities is neglected in this humorous business, it might be considered a slight.

Counterpoint: Stalin's Son Becomes Russia's Youngest General

By WALT HEIL

ONE of the young men in the Soviet camp who has caused raised eye brows and large amounts of newspaper space to be devoted to his escapades of late is Vassili Josefovich Stalin, Premier Joe's youngest son.

At 29, young Stalin, a short, stocky, brown-haired man, is the youngest general in the Soviet Air Force. His promotions came fast, helped along no doubt, by the fact that he is the son of the top man in Russian politics.

UNCLE JOE AGREED

Attending Moscow University, which trumpets Marxist ideologies adequately, when the war broke out in 1941 he persuaded his father to let him become a flyer. In the fall of '41 he was commissioned a lieutenant. His war record is vague, and Soviet papers never mention it. However, when the war ended he was a full colonel.

Shortly thereafter he was placed in command of the 5th Fighter Division, naturally this mean another boost in rank. Stalin's division was stationed near Berlin and soon the rank and file of Soviet aviation clamored to be detailed to his group.

At this point his behavior began hitting the headlines of the papers, capitalist and otherwise. He was not a model general. The men clamoring for admission to his group fell off and stories of brutality filtered out.

WIFE BEATER

In the evenings when he came home from a hard day at the flying field he got himself into an intoxicated state and made life miserable for his wife and children. He dressed sloppy, beat his wife, who lived in fear of him, and caused many scandals.

In short, he was an arrogant wastrel in the best tradition of domineering czarist aristocracy. The serfs were no worse off under Alexander I of the House of Romanov than they were under Stalin senior and the rest.

NO VOTE WORRIES

If the son of an American president caused the scandal and conducted his life in the manner which Stalin junior does, it can be stated with frank assurance that the president would not be around anymore after the next election. The American public demands that high government officials have a model family. It makes vote getting easier. With one party in the land, the Soviets need not worry on this account.

However, the American president could quickly see to it that the wayward son mended his ways or send him out of eyeshot. Or is it ear shot?

But this is not so with young Stalin, his name keeps bobbing up in print, with accounts of his latest escapade. The day may soon come when he oversteps his bounds and then his father will have to put some sort of order in his life.

Looking-Up

BY DICK BRIGGS

THE perils of swinging from a 45-foot high wire has no fears for one-time trapeze queen, Georgia Watkins (pictured above), who feels more secure hanging by a shapely leg from a cloud-high clothes line, than facing the unpredictable terrors of college midterms.

The once circus debutante confesses she's had a few bad falls from a 50 foot trapeze bar, but nothing compared to spills she's taken this semester in Italian 21a—not even the time she missed one question on an Italian grammar exam.

BIG TOP CHAGRINED

Before entering City College, Miss Watkins observed, her big-top lion trainer friends commented upon her brave and determined spirit in sacrificing the safe and calm atmosphere of circus life for the drudgery and dangers of college, where D and F marks lurk menacingly behind every term paper.

Miss Watkins' early aptitude for the high wire was noticed when she fell from her high chair at two. Her father, immediately pleased by her prodigal ability, graduated her to falling off six foot high-wires, which she executed with little less physical anguish than her recent combat with the last day registration line.

FAMILY TRAPEZE ACT

Bored with slipping off tight-ropes, Miss Watkins turned high flyer at 12 through her father's professional guidance, and specialized in trapeze acrobatics with her mother, and later joined her uncle and father's flying act.

Employees of the big-top live in a continual element of danger, though the Shrine Brother's circus queen emphatically cried her preference in tackling an occasional escaping lion, to tangling with the peculiar, furless type of wolf found on most college campuses.

Later when high tension of swinging by a toe-nail on high trapeze bars became commonplace by routine, Miss Watkins looked to satisfy an unrelenting desire for daventure in the U. S. Marine Corps.

COLLEGE FRESHMAN NOW

Service life proved duller than a period in Psych 10, so the circus star disdained expert counsel and surrendered to an existence renowned for its mystery and wild confusion: The way of a college freshman.

Confident that college life is too reckless for even those most strong-hearted and quiet-nerved, Miss Watkins is contemplating pursuing a less strenuous and more sane enterprise, like sailing to the moon on a husky blown wad of bubble gum . . . (ruff! . . . we'd like to make the trip too!)

Trapeze Queen Trades Dangers Of Circus Acrobatics For Perils Of College Life

Quips on Campus

By Dayton Lawson

This week's wash of quotations may be received with mixed emotions: Some of the clients are pleased, and some are not:

"One of the prettiest campuses I've seen in a long time. Kind of like an oasis sitting out here in the middle of Ingleside." (Curley Jacobs, popular S.F. band leader, here looking over the plant with his charming wife, the former Betty Bolden.)

"Now that I've installed a television set in my Hurley Village hideaway, visitors are welcome to catch the Friday programs if they are free during college hour . . . Please flash your Associated Student card." . . . (Roy Williamson, popular student and dog fancier.)

"It's not so much that Math 21 is so difficult for me; it's just that Mr. Gaffney asks me the wrong questions." (Boris Orloss, current runner-up in the Ocean Ave. pin-ball derby.)

(Cont. from last week): "PLEASE pick up your lunch bags, willya, huh?" (Janitor in Men's Gym.)

Spotlight: College Deans Keep Schools Running Despite Students

By KEITH GARDNER

NOT too long ago Colliers magazine came out with a story entitled Troubles of College Deans. Now if everyone thinks he can control his tears for a few moments, we'll pass this sad tale along.

A dean, it seems, is a combination warden, policeman, counsellor, banker, foster parent, and weeping wall. Now, we've heard of dual personalities before, but this is ridiculous.

1,750,000 EYES

Just to make sure that the dean takes a properly sober view of his responsibilities, there are nearly 1,750,000 pairs of American parents whose offspring are enrolled in college. With that many eyes focused on the backs of their necks, deans can be excused for looking like a Los Angeles cop whose phone is tapped.

Strangely enough, students are not the big worry to a dean. That honor seems to be held by instructors, which should really be no surprise to students.

One dean at a mid-western college even conducted a poll whereby students rated their instructors' teaching abilities. There is some doubt whether the loud noise heard a few weeks ago was a Russian A-bomb or myriads of instructors simultaneously blowing their tops.

MIDGETS

At still another mid-western college a dean stated that each student has approximately 2.2 love affairs during his college career. Now that two-tenths of a love affair has been worrying us for some time. Does it stand for a mere infatuation, a childish bit of puppy love, or was there a midget involved somewhere?

One large university has set up a clinic to help deans solve student problems. A student with a terror of public speaking, for instance, is made to shout at a clinician for hours. After about four treatments the stage fright is generally cured. Of course, chronic laryngitis has probably set in by then, but who cares?

FLOODS

Incidentally, statistics have just reached us proving that if all the deans in America were divided by three there still wouldn't be enough to protect students from instructors. Jui jitsu is therefore recommended as an excellent method of self defense.

Next week's topic will be Loafing, both in and out of classrooms. Having graduated cum laude in this phase of college work, we are considered an expert on the subject.

Victims Of Languageitus Virus Jam Psycho Wards; Symptoms Given Here

Latin is a dead language.
Dead as it can be.
First it killed the Romans,
And now it's killing me!

Languangeitus, sometimes known as Mortus Aflictus Murdus Disparum, is a disease of vicious and many forms.

The primary symptoms of this malady, which is confined almost completely to educational institutions, are as follows:

The patient shows signs of dementia parla. he wakes up in the middle of the night babbling strange words. In advanced cases, the patient is found walking in his sleep and waving his hands.

The patient also becomes hardened to certain letters. Other consonants especially "F" send the patient into paralytic, unchromatic fits. Red "F" results in "Bullmentium Majorum."

The patient loses all interest in pleasures and becomes a social leper. He mumbles constantly strange words and may be seen referring constantly to a worn book.

The gnashing of teeth is an advance symptom and usually occurs only in the presence of a certain type of instructor.

Usually toward the end of a semester the symptoms of an advanced case appear. The patient's hands begin to shake and his hair begins to grey.

This is the crucial point in the case history of the patient.

Some patients suddenly become very gay, and all symptoms disappear. They quote cheerfully words in foreign tongues and laugh at the thought of the past months.

And then there is the other type of patient who becomes permanently afflicted. The only course in such cases is to dress the poor beast in a strait jacket and place him under observation.

Contrary to the ideals of the S.P.C.A., it might be better for a doctor to shoot these advanced cases of Mortus Aflictus Murdus Disparum Finitum.—By Bill Thomas.

Student Lounge Has Typewriters

By Felton White

Typewriters aren't a dime a dozen, but a thin ten cents will assure a half hour's use of one.

And what's more, you don't have to be an expert typist, either. Indeed, you need not be a typist at all; the old-fashioned method of "hunt and peck" is quite in vogue. And two or ten fingers, whichever comes naturally, is permissible.

These "Jems" of mailtreatment, in the form of two new, ultra-modern type-o-matic typewriting machines, are installed in the student lounge for trial and error use.

Just push the ten cents 'round and keys'll go up and down, ah ho, ah ho, the keys'll go up and down.

These machines are the project of the Associated Students and were installed under the auspices of Cathray typewriting company as a special service to students, Dean of Men Edwin C. Browne announced late yesterday.

Type-o-matic or pay-as-you-use machines, have been successfully employed in other institutions of higher education.

Signup Deadline Today For Intra Basketball Tourney

Deadline for intramural basketball signups will be today, according to a statement made earlier this week by director Tom Wilson.

By Tuesday of this week, ten teams had entered the tournament, but many more were expected to sign up during the final few days.

Thursday, October 20, will be the final day to sign up in the intramural tennis and landminton. Tennis, which will include both singles and doubles, will be played at any time convenient to the players participating.

Badminton will be played on Friday mornings, or in the 8 a. m. badminton classes. Times for the games may be decided by the contestants.

Signups for intramural ping pong close Friday, October 14.

RAMblings . . .

By Gene Van Dyke

THE college takes one big step closer to achieving bigtime football status when they face Monterey Peninsula College Saturday evening, October 15, in a NCJC Conference game at Monterey.

Of course, the game is of high importance to the team and its coaches. However, one of the outstanding features connected with the tilt is that it will be broadcast.

Radio station KDON, advertised as "Your power station for the Monterey Bay Area and the Salinas Valley," will air a play-by-play account of the contest.

Sportscaster Ernie Russell will be the voice at the microphone. Pregame and half-time activities, including bands and stunts will also be described.

KDON has additional complete studios situated in Santa Cruz, Watsonville and Salinas. The station's are owned and operated by the Central Coast Counties Radio, Incorporated.

Local interference and the long distance separating San Francisco from Monterey make it impossible for any clear reception anywhere, excepting the immediate area covering Santa Cruz County.

Vallejo broadcast the Chaffey College-City College Gold Dust Bowl game of last season. Other than that, Salinas is the only known city that has gotten behind their respective NCJC Conference teams and aired the games. The "Lettuce City" also covers baseball and basketball.

Best wishes, with the hope of complete success, are extended to the operation of KDON's efforts to bring the college into the home of America's large group of football fans.

WAA Offers Badminton Class

Students interested in badminton are invited by Nancy Sparks, newly appointed WAA sponsor, to take part in co-educational badminton, an activity planned for this semester. The class will be held in the women's gymnasium Wednesday from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Miss Sparks named softball, Mondays at 3:00; basketball, Fridays at noon; badminton, Wednesdays at 4:00; and tennis hours undetermined, as the outstanding women's activities for the coming semester.

WAA holds weekly meetings in Room 140 of the main building during college hour. All students interested in WAA affairs are invited to attend these meetings. Florence Loo will take over duties as president of the WAA this semester.

Forward Wall Battle Looms As Klemmermen Host Strong Menlo College In Conference Opener

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

Menlo College, NCJCC runner-up to City College in 1948 and always a football powerhouse, invades San Francisco tomorrow night to clash with the Rams in the conference opener at State Field. Kickoff time is at 8 p. m.

The local's 24-9 victory over the Oaks in the conference title tilt last year should provide the necessary incentive to make this a grudge game.

Last week the Oaks rolled over Hamilton Field 32-6 with fullback Charles Esseglan scoring three touchdowns.

Pokey halfbacks Ken Daoust and Tom McCormick and blocking quarterback Ray Gonsalves round out Coach Roy Hughes' single wing backfield. All are returning lettermen.

The rugged Menlo line is headed by three San Franciscans: guards George Johansen and Jim Molkenbuhr, and tackle Al Casten.

The Oaks, however, will have their hands full in trying to stop the passing of quarterback Al Nethercutt, who carried the Rams' offensive burden last week while completing 13 out of 17 passes. Nethercutt has a protective pocket formed by the line to work with what compares with that of the Cleveland Browns.

Backbone of the college eleven is the powerful forward wall that held the California Poly Frosh to a mere 58 net yards gained last week. The line has four all-conference candidates in ends Frank Puckett and Don Sessions, tackle Leo Camp, and guard Don Morettini.

Coach Grover Klemmer is blessed with strong reserve linemen. There was very little difference between the first, second and even third string lines last week.

Klemmer's main worry is his ground attack. In the first half of the California Poly Frosh game it showed signs of speed and power as it picked up 72 net yards gained. However, it seemed to bog down in crucial situations and depended on Nethercutt's passes to give it a shot in the arm. Matters became worse in the second half. The Rams' net yards gained came to minus three yards.

In last week's encounter San Francisco lost the ball three times on fumbles. Each time was in the middle of a sustained drive. With a game under their belt, however, the lackfield shouldn't commit any costly fumbles.

Fullback Bob McBride and tackle George Hart, injured in the first half of last week's game, should be ready for action tomorrow night.

Local Soccermen Gain Experience, Encounter California Aggies Next

With the San Francisco State game firmly under their belts, the soccer players of Coach Roy Diederichsen face California Aggies on the Aggies' field tomorrow.

San Francisco State gave the local squad much needed experience as only eight returning players greeted Diederichsen this season. Although these eight are supported by prep stars as well as many new turnouts, the club as a whole needed experience which only a game can give them.

Last season the Rams downed the Aggies twice.

With the appearance of Santa Clara and UCLA in the conference, and with such tough games as the University of California, Stanford, and USF, last season's champs, in the offing, Diederichsen reported that his squad will need to be experienced as they have no weight to throw around.

The lads do have an excess of speed in order to make up for their lack of weight and the passing of the squad improved, Diederichsen reports.

Too late for publication, the results of the opening contest with San Francisco State will be found in the next issue of The Guardsman.

BILL FISCHER, Ram coach, has his forward wall in top shape for tonight's "battle of the lines" with Menlo in the conference opener.

Consensus Picks Rams 18-10

Carrying on the tradition of going out on a limb each week with football predictions, The Guardsman staff invited six faculty members to join them in forseeing the outcome of the Ram, Menlo grid battle.

Intellectual abilities not being equal, the staff has nothing to lose and everything to gain if they can outguess the college masterminds.

Round 'n About

Clan To Be Formed By Two-Beaters; More Dignitaries Named By Clubs

PHI Beta Delta Shipwreck dance last Friday evening was proof positive (apologies to P. Lorrilard) that campus social events are still tops in entertainment.

What with the crowded floor, the nautical decorations, and the tantalizing rhythms provided by the Ben Watkins' band, how could one help but admit that the affair was a terrific success? Congratulations, men!

While awaiting announcements of coming clambakes that will equal last week's triumph, Beta Phi Beta fraternity announced officers appointed recently by president John Harness. These are as follows: Parliamentarian, John Horstman; sergeant-at-arms, Vic Goria; athletic director, Don Englefried; CAB, Jaek Webb; and publicity, Agent, Don Ward. Much faith is placed in such fine men. (unquote)

Delta Psi sorority officers announced in an earlier edition are now null and void as new ones (even newer than previously) were disclosed by a member this week. President for the fall semester is Joby McCann, who will be aided and abetted by vice-president, Ginny Cutler; pledge-mistress, June Welch; recording secretary, Jo Anne Knights; corresponding secretary, Barbara Walker; treasurer, Dot La Rocca; historian, Doreen Mannion; CAB, ditto; and sergeant-at-arms, Ruth Hammond.

Heard tell that plans are now in the making for the formation of a Hot Jazz Society on the campus. Membership will be limited to those who enjoy GOOD jazz music. Advocates of Dizzy Gillespie and Benny Goodman please make themselves scarce.

True lovers of Le Hot are asked to leave their names, phone numbers and suggestions (constructive only) with this reporter, who will pass them along to the schemers.

Variety Club has been newly formed this semester and is looking for talent (special abilities, that is!) A number of hospital shows and variety acts are planned. Any and all talented students who are interested please leave names and phone numbers in the Associated Student office.

Zeta Chi sorority snuck in a rush tea unobserved on Sunday, October 2, at the home of sister Mary Ann Johnston, with many of the alumnae helping the active members serve. Food was reported (by the dishwashers) to be terrific.

Zet Chi's were also surprised and pleased by the summer marriage of sister Peg Logan to Alpha Sigma Delta Joe Schultz. Our congrats, too.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity dignitaries for the fall semester were announced this week as follows: president, Irv Marks; vice-president, Ron Bordi; secretary, John Wark; treasurer, George Sergeeff; CAB, Jerry Tuttleman; historian, Paul Hester; custodian, Bob Sieker; pledge-master, Boris Orloff; sergeant-at-arms, Vito Ciarfaglio; and brother-at-large (hmm), Norman Reger.

Reminder to organization leaders: Deadlines for club news are Monday noon for Friday's paper and Wednesnoon for Tuesday's paper.

Hope everyone, but everyone, turns out to enjoy the freshman class dance at the Sir Francis Drake hotel tonight.

Former College Journalist Succeeds In World Of Politics And Publicity

By Bob Jones

Dean Lipton, student at the college in 1938 and 1939, when he was on the editorial staff of Forum, college literary and art journal, has made quite a showing since leaving the campus.

At present, Lipton is employed as a publicist by the Citizen's Committee Against Daylight-Saving Time and is also chairman of the publicity committee of the Young Democrats of San Francisco.

Upon leaving the college, Lipton received his Bachelor's Degree in journalism at Woodbury College in Los Angeles and has since been employed as a reporter for the Helena Independence, Helena, Montana, and the Los Angeles News.

He has been editor of both weekly and monthly periodicals, including a United States Army publication. At present, Lipton is devoting his attention to political and commereial publicity.

Floriculture Course Here Unique In United States

"Our course in floriculture is the only one of its kind in the United States," John W. Lawrence, the college's flower shop instructor, said recently.

According to Lawrence, 90 students have signed up for the five courses offered this year. Within the space of time required to complete one semester, these students will have received instruction on details of the retail flower business.

These details will include such subjects as the following: buying and selling; designing funeral or wedding arrangements and the making of objects as large as a window display or as small as a corsage. Anything that is done in a florist shop is duplicated in the college's flower shop.

Lawrence said that sometime in the future the flower shop will hold "Open House" and, for the first time, present a flower show to which all students, the faculty, and the administration will be invited.

College Variety Group Seeks Student Talent

Singers, dancers, group skit players; comedy script writers, comedy teams, acrobatic artists, impersonators, magicians, and "combo" musicians are being urged by the newly organized Variety Group to participate in college rallies and hospital programs.

The Variety Group is working jointly with the Rally Commission in endeavoring to form several individual troupes of artists, thus enabling everyone to display talents in as many appearances as possible.

Application forms can be obtained at the Rally Commission office, main floor, Building 2.

Hotel Convention Delegates Taste And Test Student Culinary Work

Students of the college's Hotel and Restaurant Division are having their culinary talents put to the extreme test in serving buffet luncheons to the delegates of the 38th annual convention of the American Hotel Association in San Francisco last night and tonight.

The menu consists of a hot entree, cold cuts, salad, and desert, according to Hilda Watson, chairman of the division.

The students have also been invited to take an active part in the meeting and give a demonstration of the program and teaching methods used at the college.

The training program set up by the Hotel and Restaurant Division at City College is a standard for other two-year colleges throughout the country, and is so recognized by the American Hotel Association, Joe H. Jacobs, president of the association, said.

Choir 100 Per Cent Associated Students

College A Cappella Choir is the first campus organization to have 100 per cent membership in the Associated Students, Al Hernandez choir manager announced this week.

The 70 members of the choir, who will appear for the first time this semester at today's college hour rally, have also elected fall officers.

Speech Tournament Highlights Homecoming Celebrations

One of the highlights of the third annual Alumni Homecoming Week, from October 17 to 21, will be the Speech Tournament on Tuesday, October 18.

Featured on this program will be a 10 minute oration, based on anything concerning the life around the college, its history, traditions, or any of its many activities.

Following the oration will be a five minute extemporaneous talk, on any of thirty topics, given to the contestants one hour before they are to speak.

Last, but by far the hardest, will be a three minute impromptu talk when the topic will be handed to the contestant as he reaches the platform.

Eliminations will be held the week before the tournament, until the number is narrowed down to five. Participation in the contest is not limited to members of Phi Rho Pi, Honor Speech Society, but is open to everyone.

Judges for the tournament will be five of the college alumni. The winner of the contest will be determined according to the point system. He will be awarded a medal and a perpetual trophy, on which his name will be inscribed. This is the first occasion where the alumni present a trophy to a student-fostered activity.

Joe Schwab, student debater, is handling all details for the program concerning students and alumni. He is also in charge of the selection of the trophy and medal.

Students interested in entering the elimination contests should see either Michael Griffin, sponsor, or Schwab for details.

Poetry Association Asks Student Contributions

The National Poetry Association is now conducting its annual contest to select verse for publication in the Association's Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

Contributions should be mailed to the National Poetry Association, 3210 Selby Avenue, Los Angeles 34, California. The deadline for entries is November 5.

Each verse must carry the following statement: "The verse entitled .....is my own personal effort. Signed ....."

The address of the writer and the name of the college he attends must also be included. Dennis Hartman, secretary of the association warned, or copy cannot be accepted for publication.

There are no charges or fees to writers.

The registrar's office received a telephone call from Switzerland from an enrollee who wished to be sure of admittance to clear his visa.

Plans For Million Dollar Buildings Revealed

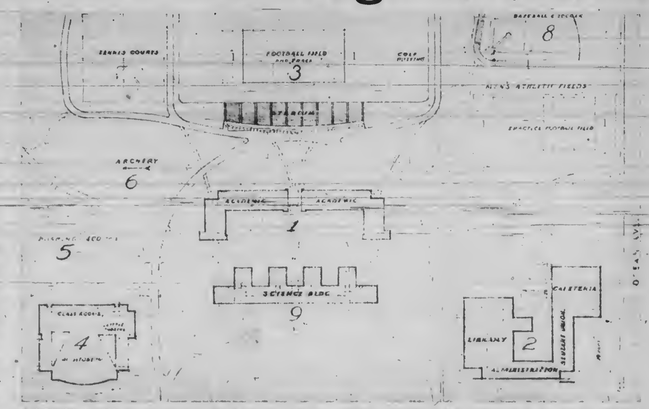
Library And Academic Structure Shown In Preliminary Designs

By Bob Jones

An appropriation of 2,500,000 dollars will finance the construction of two new buildings which herald the college's movement from the west campus back to Balboa Park.

The San Francisco Board of Education approved that amount to start construction of a new academic building, parallel and to the east of the present main building, and a new college library at the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues.

According to Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, the drawing of the architectural plans will begin "very soon." A preliminary drawing has already been submitted by the architect for approval.



The academic building, after its construction, will be used for the majority of classroom work. The main building will be converted to the science building, where science classes and laboratories will be located.

A few subjects, other than science courses, will be presented in the science building. These will be selected according to their importance to the science students.

Although the present plan places the new library at the corner of Phelan and Ocean Avenues, President Louis G. Conlan said that it is quite possible that the structure will be erected in a more central location. What site is finally selected for the new building will be determined on the basis of convenience for the majority, he said.

If after the two new buildings are completed there is a sufficient remainder of the appropriated funds, a new football stadium and swimming pool may be included in the immediate construction plans. However, President Conlan stressed that this is only tentative.

The preliminary drawing includes other buildings and athletic areas, but it has not been decided as to where they will definitely be located. The present plan places a large theatre building northwest of the main building. A 400 car parking lot has been planned just behind and east of the theatre.

BUILDINGS SLATED for construction with first appropriations are as follows: (1) New Academic Building, (2) New Student Union and Library Building, (3) New Concrete Stadium and Football Field, Swimming Pool (not shown) located between existing gymnasiums. Proposed locations for future additional new construction: (4) Auditorium and Little Theatre, (5) 400 Car Parking Lot, (6) Archery Range, (7) Tennis Courts, (8) Baseball and Soccer Fields.

Plans Ready For AWS Traditional Frosh Tea

Plans are now in progress for the traditional Associated Women Student freshman tea, slated for Tuesday, November 1, AWS President Helen MacKay announced yesterday.

While this tea is primarily to welcome new women students, all women are invited to attend, Miss MacKay said.

Tea and refreshments will be served by AWS members from 2 to 4 p. m. in the student lounge, Building 2, in an effort to make newcomers feel at home.

Additional details for the tea will be completed at the next AWS meeting on Monday, Miss MacKay added.

Alumni Sponsor Dinner October 17 In Honor Of President Conlan

A dinner sponsored by the City College Alumni Association in honor of the new President of the College, Louis G. Conlan, is set for Monday evening, Norm Reger, Alumni Association liaison officer, announced yesterday.

The dinner, in honor of President Conlan, will be given in the faculty dining room on the west campus at 6:30 p. m.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools, will appear as the guest speaker. He will speak a few words in honor of the new president.

As the dinner occurs during Homecoming Week, the Homecoming Queen will be introduced by Frank Bayol, Associated Men Student president.

Two films also have been selected to be shown after the dinner, one of which will be on last year's Mardi Gras, the college's largest affair of its kind. The other film will be a select restaurant movie from the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

In his capacity as the Alumi liaison officer, Reger urged all prospective graduates to join the association and also to take part in Homecoming Week. Tickets for the dinner are priced at two dollars and twenty-five cents.

One of the services that the Alumni Association offers is the procurement of jobs for members through Joseph A. Amori, college placement director.

Columbus Holiday Leads To First Guardsman Issue Cut

Celebration of Columbus Day tomorrow will be observed on campus by closing of all classes.

This holiday has special significance to The Guardsman. Since Wednesday is a necessary make-up day for the following Tuesday's issue, the paper will not go to press Tuesday, October 18.

Normally The Guardsman staff returns on a holiday to make publication possible on their regularly scheduled dates. Recent cuts in The Guardsman budget, also experienced by other departments, has forced a reduction in the number of issues to be printed this semester.

As a result of tomorrow's holiday, The Guardsman Editorial Board decided an issue dropped at this time would be most feasible.

In accordance with the council's decision two more issues may be cut later in the semester.

Editor Dick Brennan expressed his regret that "college activities, particularly Homecoming Week, can not possibly be covered as extensively by the staff as we would desire."

Phi Beta Rho Wins

Presentation of the first Scholarship Plaque to the campus organization attaining the highest grade point average during the Fall semester was awarded to Phi Beta Rho at the college hour rally last Friday.

Ruth Cristandi, Phi Beta Rho president, accepted the plaque from Don Jensen, Alpha Gamma Sigma adviser.

The Student Council initiated the competition last semester.

Rally Set For Friday With Newman Club Dance Slated For Evening

Sharing the spotlight on Friday's social agenda are the college hour rally, to reveal the Associated Men Students' homecoming queen, and the evening's Newman Club dance.

The homecoming rally will feature not only the naming of the queen, but also entertainment to rouse spirit for the Ram's seasonal football tilt against Monterey.

Performances by the newly formed Variety Club will include the talent of Roy and Betty Burt, Dave Irvine, and Brice Sheldon, as announced by program director Bill Hansen.

Juke Box Jump is the theme of the Newman Club's dance which lasts from 8 to 12 p.m. in the student lounge, Mary Perry, club co-sponsor, announced.

Records ranging from hot jazz to sentimental melodies will provide the informally clad dancers with their favorite music. Bids for the affair are 50 cents for stags or 75 cents per couple.

Chairman for the club dance committee is Caroline Grey. She is assisted in her efforts to make this dance a success by Richard MacFarland, Frank Meyn, Pat McKenny, Mary Dowd, Lloyd Baumann, Jeanne Dashback, and Sue Gorman.

Guests of honor at the dance will be Dean and Mrs. Edwin C. Browne, Dean and Mrs. Louis Batmale, Dean and Mrs. John Brady, and Dean Margaret Dougherty, Miss Perry revealed.

Cokes will be served at the dance.

Other college hours during the semester will adhere to the following schedule: October 14, rally; October 21, club meetings; October 28, midterms; November 4, club meetings; November 11, Armistice Day; November 18, club meetings; November 25, Thanksgiving vacation; December 2, club meetings; December 9, midterms; December 30, rally; January 6, club meetings; January 13, election rally; January 20, club meetings; January 27, award rally; February 3, finals.

Women Students Urged To Apply For Coveted Denman Scholarship Awards

Two James Denman scholarships of $125 each will be awarded to two outstanding City College women students, who are graduates of a San Francisco public high school.

Students interested are requested to write a letter of application and deliver it to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, at her office in building 2 before October 25.

The Denman scholarship is awarded annually to the two women, who have proved their merit on the basis of scholastic achievements and leadership in high school activities. The award is offered by the late James Denman's children, Judge William Denman of the Superior Court and Mrs. Mary Cheatham.

James Denman was a former Superintendent of Schools and president of the Board of Education. Denman Junior High School was named in his honor. Members of the selection committee will be named at a later date. Last year's winners were Joyce Anderson and Marian Chin.

Poster Cleanup Advised

Because numerous complaints have been registered recently concerning old posters and advertisements still in the public eye, groups who advertise dances, programs and other get-togethers should remove them when the event is over, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, said recently.

Casting And Production Schedules Fixed For Much Ado About Nothing

Casting for the Shakespearean production, Much Ado About Nothing, slated for the evenings of November 17, 18, 19, 21, 22, and 23 in the Little Theater, has been completed, Paul Elhson, drama instructor, announced.

Parts in the play have been double-cast whenever possible and include the following students: Jane Howarth as Beatrice, Jim Carlson and Ronald Zimmerman, who alternate as Benedick, George Jackson in the role of Don John, Leonard Wolf as Boracbio, Bill Hansen as Dogberry, William Matheson, who plays the part of Verges, and Vivian Breslin and Mary Cooke as Hero.

The play was adapted from an Italian novel, Biondello, written in 1598, with the characters and story having been developed from Shakespeare's imagination.

Set in Messina, Italy, the story involves a forced love affair between Beatrice and Benedick, whose constant biekering forms a humorous theme. A sub-plot running through the plays consists of the attempts of Don John, villianous illegitimate brother of the Prince of Aragon to upset the wedding of Count Claudio to Hero. Beatrice's cousin.

Christmas Hiring Underway By Placement Bureau

Christmas hiring is already underway with firms and agencies recruiting student workers for the various job openings, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced today.

Extensive studies made in the employment field have pointed out the fact that employers want student workers to begin full-time Christmas employment early in December.

City College students will be in a favorable position this year as it has been decided to close on Friday, December 9, enabling students to begin work on an early pre-Christmas date. This college is among the first in the Bay Area to inaugurate this policy, Amori said.

Many stores have already hired student workers, but Amori stressed the fact that although many jobs are still available, employers are not accepting anyone who has not filled out the proper form with the placement service.

At the present time, Christmas help is needed in sales, stock, wrapping, cashiers and delivery. Most of these jobs are open for immediate part-time placement due to the employers desire to train their workers before the Christmas rush. There is little demand for clerical workers for Christmas, it was added.

Students wishing to work as post office clerks should apply at the placement service now. As yet the number of placements needed is not known, but last year 1,500 students were employed in the various post offices in the bay area.

It is believed requirements will be the same as last year, with veterans being placed first, followed by non-veterans over 21, and women being placed last.

AMS Poll Reveals Benefits For Student Card Holders

LAST week the Associated Men Student Advisory Board polled a representative group of non-Associated Student card holders. Those polled were not told that the survey was to be used to determine why they had not taken advantage of the benefits of Associated Student cards.

The answers to the questions were spontaneous and the interesting results are as follows:

Fifty-five per cent of those polled felt that they should have a voice in student government, although, one can neither vote nor hold a student office without an Associated Student card.

Seventy-five per cent knew of the recent strides made by major sports, possibly without knowing that only through student funds can we outfit the teams properly and send them throughout California for their conference games.

SEVENTY-SIX per cent will attend the home games this semester and will pay $1.00 for admission, whereas Associated Student members will be admitted free.

Seventy-seven per cent of those polled read the college newspaper, The Guardsman, possibly without knowing that the funds allocated to this publication are budgeted from the Associated Student funds.

Eighty-four per cent of those approached will attend various college functions during the semester which are supported entirely by the student budget. The same percentage will ride a streetcar or bus to and from college and will have to pay full fare. Members can purchase tickets which will save them $2.00 per month or $10.00 per semester.

ACCORDING to these statistics the majority of the students who do not have Associated Student cards are interested in college activities.

Although it must be remembered that these figures are the result of an informal poll, the results are still interesting. The only possible conclusion is that a good many students do not realize the full extent of the benefits. The Editor is therefore pleased to cooperate with AMS President Frank Bayol in presenting these statistics.

Counterpoint: Sicilian Thug Carries On Robin Hood Tradition

By WALT HEIL

ROBBING the rich and helping the poor was a practice set up by Robin Hood, a legendary character from the days of Merrie Old England.

The latest of these so-called champions of the people is dark, handsome Salvatore Giuliano, a bandit leader of the the old style bandit chiefs. Contrary to most beliefs Giuliano is not a Chicago gangster of the Little Caesar type, but rather, an old fashioned robber on the lines of a Western desperado.

OPERATES IN SICILY

Giuliano operates on the island of Sicily in the vicinity of Palermo, the most important city on the island.

There for six years the youthful bandit chief, his aides, and men, have led a life of crime, paralleled only by that of John Dillinger. In the span of those six years Giuliano has the dubious distinction of having killed over 200 people.

Murder and death aren't his only forte. He also specializes in kidnapping, a practice he has found to be highly lucrative. The nobility of Sicily are his main victims in this, with barons and dukes bringing the highest prices. Along with helping the common people occasionally, Giuliano, has built up a reputation of the common folks' friend.

GOVERNMENT DRIVE ON

Tired of all this unlawfulness, and rightfully so, the Italian Government recently began an all out drive to capture the bandit leader dead or alive.

Mario Scelba, Minister of Interior, and himself a Sicilian and something of a strong man, sent 2,000 carabinieri out to get Giuliano. Equipped with modern tools of war the small army began the search. Paratroops, mobile units, machine guns are being used to bring the Sicilian to justice.

To date their efforts have been in vain. Playing hide and seek, the bandits have eluded the police army in the mountains and made forays into police areas. Expert at dodging the police, Giuliano can not be caught too easily.

Although no love is lost between Scelba and the communists, he must protect them too from Giuliano's attacks. He regularly bombs the party headquarters and terrorizes the Reds, who are adept at terrorizing themselves.

IDOL OF THE PEOPLE

Granted that the bandit king is the idol of the people he often brings trouble to innocent peasants who shield him from the law. Many have been booked in police courts for withholding information on the whereabouts of his men.

His aid to the poor is mostly mythical and of pure fabrication that comes with all legends. But the people can't see it this way and they pray for his well being.

Above all he is a criminal and murderer for which he must be brought to justice. He can't keep dodging his fate for long.

Skates Used To Defeat Hill 29

Some people never give up!

Latest innovation, invention, or idea is the use of roller-skates while traveling down from the main building. An energy-saving student made the first run last week and put the roller derby to shame.

The results of the first run, which took 15 seconds, were two students injured, one stunned. Various minor cuts and bruises were received by others who happened to get in the way of the enterprising skater.

The campus police have been petitioned to patrol the paths.

Looking-Up . . . Psychology Instructor Has Unique Pastime As Ghoul Creator; Egger Dreams Up Monster

BY DICK BRIGGS

WRITING sagas about Gussie and Gertrude Ghoul is a pleasant pastime for Norman Egger, campus Psychology instructor, who dreams up his grisliest ghouls by inviting horrible nightmares with midnight snacks of cucumber a-la-modes.

Egger comes by his talent as a ghost script writer and storyteller supernaturally. In conjuring up spooks at a typewriter, horrifying ghouls flow-up en masse like smoke puffs into fantastic squat and cylinder shapes, where Egger snatches the ghastliest with his mind's eye and molds them into a well planned plot.

PLAY TOO WIERD

At times Egger even outdoes himself. A popular radio show reeently returned his submitted seript with a shakily scribbed notation, "This is excellently written, but, brrrrr, it's just a little too wierd, even for us!"

To Egger, a ghastly ghoul story requires several extra strong thought impulses to create ghosts, plus application of sound psychological theories to the action of morbid characters. This, with an excellent imagination for molding ugly situations and unusual looking ghouls into exciting plots, is requisite.

WON WRITING AWARD

At San Diego State College, as a student, instructor Egger won first place in a short-story contest, and since earning his A.B. degree has written and had published eight stories, several appearing in Anthologies of Ghost Stories.

Writing ghost stories with special emphasis on suicides is particularly significant to Egger, who presently is planning a series of fiction stories to describe impressions by those in a psychotic condition.

"MOUNTAINS" OF NOTES

Partieipation as clinical psychologist conduetng interviews on attempted suicides, has provided the City College instructor with drawers of notes useable for creation of plots. Egger, however, is unhappy in announcing that pressing work has caused indefinite postponement of his continuing writing.

Like Frankenstein, Egger, too, created his monster. Once he conceived a ghoul so terrible and it caused such an electrifying shock that Egger's hair is still standing on end.

When asked if City College students were ever characterized in his fiction stories, Egger grimaced fearfully, "E-zombies, it's maddening . . . they're too ghoulish even for my stories."

Spotlight: How To Meet The Girl Friend's Family Or Slow Death

By KEITH GARDNER

ONE of the principal drawbacks in having dates is the necessity of Meeting the Family. We can't recall a more engaging custom in the entire history of the world, and we've been trying for almost 12 seconds. It usually goes something like this:

First we knock at the door and are admitted by a small gnome in a cowboy suit who wants to play Roy Rogers, and just guess who Trigger's gonna be. There are two methods of dealing with brats like this:

TWO METHODS

(a) Dash their brains out against the floor.

(b) Dash their brains out against the wall.

Next we enter the living room and are introduced to the family. They are not friendly. They wonder whether our intentions are honorable or not. We don't tell them. Let 'em worry for awhile.

Daughter now leaves the room and we are alone with the family. A long, uncomfortable silence now ensues. Finally we break it. We say, "Nice day isn't it?" Nobody says a word. This is probably beeause it is night.

BUTTERSNIPE

The members of the family now gather at the far end of the room and whisper quietly among themselves. We catch scattered bits of their conversation. "Buttersnipe" and "Egghead." Obvlously they are discussing their dinner.

Along about this time Father decides to get friendly. He comes over, sits down next to us, and tells a joke. It is very funny. Everyone laughs. King Tut probably laughed when he heard it.

Junior even comes over and apologizes for his behavior. We smile at him, and he sits down beside us. Look out! He's got a hatpin! It's too late. That kid's going to be splattered all over the floor yet.

Daughter re-enters the room at this time. With a few skillful touches of makeup she has transformed her features into something quite distinctive. Like the face on an iodine bottle.

FLATTENED

Now we are ready to leave. We say a pleasant goodbye to everyone. We even give Junior a friendly pat on the head, flattening it slightly, and finally step out the door.

By the way, today's effort was to have been devoted to Loafing, but since our notes on this interesting subject are mysteriously missing you will just have to improvise for awhile.

Williams Offers Plan For Improved Student Activities

• Committee Proposed

Editor, The Guardsman:

The purpose of the committee is to find out what the students are interested in at City College. A survey to determine the extent of student interest on student government, newspaper, social activities, and athletics will be conducted. It is my plan to have the committee work out a questionnaire, to be presented to the students through The Guardsman or some other medium.

My purpose in conducting this survey is to help develop an interesting activity schedule for ALL students. Student cooperation in commenting constructively will be appreciated.

HARRY WILLIAMS,
Associated Student President

Editor's Note: Such a survey may very well be a good idea and we are ready to help President Williams develop a more interesting activity schedule. However, because of lack of space due to budget cuts, we think this survey should be conducted through some other medium. Possibly the psychology department might be a better means of reaching a representative cross-section of the students.

• Thanks Expressed

Editor, The Guardsman:

The officers of the Associated Women Students wish to express their thanks for the assistance they received from the women who volunteered their help during registration.

Various members of the faculty have also expressed their appreciation for the help which they were given with the new students.

Helen McKay, President
Associated Women Students

• Shine 'Em Up?

Editor, The Guardsman:

Where do you have your shoes shined? Well, if some students, mostly veterans, had their way, they'd shine 'em up for you—for a small fee, of course. Inquiries have been received lately in certain corners about the feasibility of opening a stand, tentatively located near the Snack Bar. Besides furnishing a convenience for students, the stand could help the operators defray part of their college expenses. Any suggestions?

Jake Jones

Editor's Note: We like the idea, Jake. Perhaps you could get the necessary funds to get the stand started. Retail Management students would also be highly interested, no doubt.

Rams Defeat Menlo In Conference Opener

READY FOR BATTLE is the Rams' first string varsity, who will meet the Monterey Lobos Saturday night at Monterey in their second conference game of the season. The bruising forward wall consists of (from left to right) Don Sessions, Leo Camp, Dick Sacceni, Jim Fales, Don Morettini, Bob Williamson, and Frank Puckett. The backfield, composed of shifty, fast backs, is (from left to right), Rotea Guilford, Walt Jourdan, Al Nethercutt, and Marv Crews.

Brown's Two Touchdown Runs Decide 20-14 Fray

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

Cox Stadium, Oct. 8—Fullback John Brown's two touchdown sprints in the final period tonight gave City College a 20-14 victory in their conference opener against Menlo College.

It was the Rams' 14th straight win and their second of this season.

Menlo had a 14-6 lead at the beginning of the fourth quarter when Oak fullback Charles Esseglan, attempting to punt, fumbled the ball out of his end zone giving the Rams a safety and thus setting the stage for Brown's two dramatic runs.

Edger West started the Rams' touchdown drive hy recovering a fumble on the Menlo 33-yard line. Quarterback Al Nethercutt, who up to that time had only completed one pass, began pitching again. After having his first two passes fall incomplete, Nethercutt connected with end Don Sessions for six yards. On fourth down and four yards to go Nethercutt faded back for another pass, then suddenly handed the ball off to Brown on a trap play. Brown dashed through the center, cut to his right, and shooke off numerous would-be tacklers as he scampered 27 yards down the sideline for the touchdown that knotted up the ball game 14-14.

Bob Marcus' eonversion attempt was wide.

In the dying moments of the game the ever present Brown recovered Essegian's fumble on the San Francisco 47-yard stripe. Nethereutt finally found the range and threw three first down passes to Sessions, Rotea Guilford, and Frank Puckett, respectively. The latter being thrown out of bounds on the Oak nine yard line. On the first down Brown powered his way off tackle for the remaining yardage and the winning touchdown.

Menlo seored first in the opening quarter on an Esseglan paced 73-yard drive that climaxed by a 19-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ray Gonzalves to end Jim Bozzo. Dave Rosenkrantz made the first of two conversions.

Behind the running of Guilford, Jerry Olmstead, and Walt Jourdan, the Rams fought back with a 67-yard touchdown drive. Jourdan crashed over from three yards out.

In the third period Tex McCormick fumbled his way over from five yards out after a 50-yard drive to conclude the Menlo scoring.

Improved Lobos Point For Upset In Tilt With Rams

Monterey Peninsula College, newest member of the NCJCC, plays host to Coach Grover Klemmer's Ram gridders at Monterey Saturday night in what should prove to be an entirely different story from last season's affair.

The Rams ruined the Lobos' league debut last year with a 37-0 lacing through the outstanding play of Ollie Matson and Bob Toquinto.

Throughout the remainder of the 1948 season Monterey was the doormat for the rest of the conference.

This year the Lobos have taken a new lease in life. In their season opener they routed the highly touted Grant Teeh College 26-0. In one year they have elevated themselves from league doormat to title contender. No longer will rival coaches look forward to the Monterey game as a breather. The Lobos are liable to defeat any conference foe this season and Saturday night's game with the Rams is no exception.

The strengthening of the Monterey squad is a boost to the conference. Any league, like the proverbial chain, is as strong as its weakest link. Before, the team that had the Lobos on their schedule had an advantage over one that didn't in the race for the conference divisional title.

Attendance is another factor that will be aided by the 1949 version of the Monterey football team. They were a poor drawing card in 1948 on the road, although they did draw over six thousand in their season opener at San Francisco.

Although their playing left much to be desired, the Lobos had the best looking uniforms in these parts. Maybe the quality of their brilliant purple and white suits showed up in the quality of their play.

Date For WAA Annual Horse Show Undecided

Entries for the annual Horse Show will be accepted by Women's Athletic Association sponsor, Nancy Sparks, in the women's gymnasium, although a definite date for the affair has not been determined.

Last semester the show was held Friday evening, June 3, at San Mateo's Gymkhana Club. College of Marin, San Jose State, San Francisco State, Mills College, California, Stanford and City College competed in the beginning, intermediate and advanced riding.

San Mateo holds the Horse Show's perpetual trophy Twelve of the college's riders took part in last year's show.

Other sport's offered to women students are badminton, basketball, softball and tennis. There will be an open class for co-educational badminton.

Experienced Gained As Hoopmen Play Nights

Trying to give his future basketball team as much experience as possible, Coach Ralph Hillsman has entered many of the students of his gymnasium class in the Commerce High School night league.

If the league offers nothing else, it will give the team a chance for much needed experience, and enable them to recover their form after slacking off during the summer vacation.

Hillsman has high hopes of developing his team into a sharp outfit before they begin their strenuous defense of last year's championship.

RAMblings . . . Compton College Receives Clean Slate; Klemmermen Passing Attack Surprises

By Frank Monte

COMPTON College, the football tyrant of the two-year colleges, was accused last week of conducting full-time scrimmages during the summer. The outcome: the Tartars were given a clean slate.

In the same conference, Pasadena City College lost eight of its players, declared ineligible because they came from other junior college districts. There was no rule to back up the Western State Conference's action, but nevertheless, eight men were left holding the bag searching for another college to attend.

It seems that Compton always comes out on the good end. What is that "charm" that lures so many good players to the Tartar's door? It's no wonder they produce such powerful grid teams. Until September 1, it was one of the very few two-year colleges that offered its players room and board while City College has always worked on a "pay for free" basis.

All this babble about Compton brings to mind last year's Little Rose Bowl game held at Pasadena. The Tartars completed the season undefeated, but so did the Rams. When time came to pick the Western representative, the southern Little Rose Bowl Committee picked the southern team. Compton did a good job in defeating Duluth College from Minnesota, but City College should have been given more consideration.

Loaded with such fine running backs as Bob Guilford, Walt Jourdan, and Marv Crews, and little known about the Rams' passing offense, it was surprising that an aerial attack was the main weapon in the Cal Poly Frosh game. Quarterback Al Nethercutt, with the help of a good line, completed 13 of 17 pass attempts, a good average in any league, and amassed a total of 189 yards. If Nethercutt continues "slingin' 'em," and the ground attack rounds into shape, the Klemmermen should be a hard combination to beat.

Intra Basketball Begins; Swimming Meet Time Posted

Place and time for the intramural swimming meet will be posted on the bulletin board in the men's gymnasium this week, Director Tom Wilson said yesterday.

Many students have already signed up for the meet, but anyone still desiring to enter may do so until the day of the meet.

Signups for intramural foul-shooting will commence this week and continue for an indefinite period, according to Wilson, and any student will be eligible to compete.

The shots will be taken 25 at a time, and the winner will be the person making the most out of 100. Free throws may be taken at any time, but must be taken in the presence of one of the intramural managers.

The managers for intramural sports will be Bob Lakin, Bob Brown, and Karl Monte, and persons wishing information may contact them.

Another large turnout of teams is expected in intramural basketball, but a list of the teams is not available at this writing. In the past two tournaments the Balboa Alumni Athletic Club has entered squads which have taken the championship, and again this season, they seem to be the team to beat.

Last Minute Goal Gives Soccer Team Two Up Tie With State

A last minute spurt and a timely goal by Jose Rodiquez gave the Ram soccer team a two to two tie with San Francisco State on the State turf last Wednesday.

After leading in the initial quarter because of a goal by Mario Barrerie, the locals fell victim to State's powerhouse attack and went into a second quarter tie. The contest remained deadlocked until the last four minutes when charity gave State a goal and the lead by two to one.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's lads eame to life after that goal and ran the Gators ragged. With but seconds to go in the game Rodiquez booted home his game-saving tally.

Nell Decker, veteran right fullback, sparked the local attack. He was aided by outstanding play on the part of Earnie Smith, Robert Dutwyler. Decker was given the nod for All-American points at the post-game coaches and officials meeting.

The player receiving the most points throughout the season will represent City College in the All-American soccer game which follows the regular season and is played back east.

Saturday, October 15, the local club faces the powerful California Bears at Berkeley.

Jayvees Practice Daily

Under the leadership of Mentor Roy Burkhead, the junior varsity or City College Lambs have played no games to date. The lambs who also feature the T-formation have been busy with daily practice and scrimmages with the varsity. Their schedule consists of high school opponents.

For a tasty treat.

Lost Articles Tie Up Switchboard

"Number Please" Not Operator's Only Job

Five days a week Marie Dyson sits in the privacy of her glass enclosed cage on the first floor of the main building answering telephone calls and giving out all kinds of information to bewildered and confused freshmen who need complete directions to get from the first floor to the second.

In addition to her aforementioned talents, she is also secretary, major stockholder, and managing director of the college corporation that deals with lost and found articles.

In this sideline, the largest volume of business is in the search for the rightful but careless owners of various pens, pencils, purses, wallets, books, and binders.

Motorcycle Misplaced

One could conceivably get quite bored over a period of time in dealing with a steady stream of such trinkets, if it were not for an occasional lost giraffe, two headed frog, or motorcycle, to break the monotony.

The frog and giraffe haven't put in an appearance yet, but in this case the motorcycle is very, very real.

Not only did a student come bounding up to the window last week with a dollar bill that he had found, but immediately following that, another frustrated student leaned his weary body on the office desk top and asked Mrs. Dyson if she had his motorcycle.

MARIE DYSON, City College switchboard operator, would lead a dull life in her glass enclosed "cage" if it weren't for requests for everything from a lost giraffe to a missing motorcycle.

After a careful search through the waste basket, files and office drawers, he was assured that there was no such animal on the premises.

Articles Pile Up

Lost articles collected by Mrs Dyson are already accumulating in the lost and found department, Building 2, with over 100 items turned in so far this semester.

The following are a few of the many items: A stuffed kangaroo, also found was a hangmen's noose, which so far hasn't been claimed by the owner, a frustrated student no doubt.

Only about 25 per cent of the items have been claimed, and students are urged to report to the lost and found department to claim their lost articles.

Items that are not claimed by the end of the semester are given to some charitable organization.

New Office Rooms Assigned Campus Administration Heads

Complete listing of changes in location of administrative offices both in the main building and on the west campus was recently released by President Louis G. Conlan.

President Conlan has his office in Room 126 of the main building.

Marcus Skarstedt, coordinator of the Division of Instruction has his office located in Room 121 in the main building.

Grant F. Marsh, coodinator of the Division of Student Welfare, is in Building 3 on the west campus.

Oscar Anderson, coordinator of the Division of Educational Management is located in Room 126 of the main building.

Dean of University Parallel Courses, Lloyd Luckmann is in Room 121 of the main building.

Dean of General College Courses, Edward Sandys, can be found in Room 148 in the main building.

Dean of Semi-Professional Courses, John Brady, can be found in his office in Room 149 in the main building.

Dean of Men, Edwin C. Browne, is located in Building 2 on the west campus.

Dean of Women, Margaret Dougherty, will have her offices in Building 3 of the west campus when the registrar's office is moved to the third floor there.

The office of Louis Batmale, assistant dean in charge of student activities, is in Building 2 on the west campus.

Location of Associated Student Offices is in Building 2 on the west campus.

For the location of other faculty members and of Associated Student offices, the Administartive and faculty directory of City College, San Francisco, can be consulted.

"Europe is the keystone of peace," Doctor John K. King, a veteran of old college days at Galileo High School, said recently.

King, a veteran of the Pacific War who has just returned from Europe, is a graduate of the University of California. He is also a graduate of Geneva Institute of International Affairs with a Ph.D.

He stated that the United States is no longer the isolationist nation of the world but that Europe is more isolationist than the United States.

The Marshall Plan, he asserted, has taken the initiative from the Russians but should only be considered as stop gap aid. Europe, he contended, will need aid long after the end of the Marshall Plan in 1952.

"America," he warned, "will have the choice of continuing E. R. P., setting up another type of aid program, or deserting Europe entirely.

"Europe is the keystone of world peace and perhaps world prosperity."

He also commented on the large birth rate in Europe which he said was a major problem. Dutch families, he said, range on the average from six to sixteen children.

King said he could see no immediate solution to Europe's problems. Only England, he declared, is facing the current economic crisis. All the other countries are living on a day to day planning.

The other European countries, he warned, would eventually have to face crisis similar or worse than the one England is now facing.

Eleven Organizations Now 100 Per Cent AS

Eleven campus organizations have reached 100 per cent in Associated Student membership, Dean Louis Batmale announced last Friday.

They are Phi Beta Delta, Women's Athletic Association, Block SF, Strikes and Spares, A Cappella Choir, Inter-Fraternity Council, Delta Psi, The Guardsman Editorial Staff, Theta Tau, Phi Beta Rho, and Kappa Phi.

Phi Beta Delta was the first to reach the top goal, rather than the A Cappella Choir as was incorrectly announced in last Friday's issue of The Guardsman.

Pre-Nursing Courses Offered Here In Response To Hospital Plea

Because the present shortage of trained nurses continues to threaten our nation's health, recruitment of student nurses is being made more attractive by a revised course of study inaugurated at the college this semester.

At present approximately 180 young women are registered, some of whom are in residence training at Mary's Help, Mt. Zion, St. Francis, Franklin, St. Lukes, Children's and French Hospital Schools of Nursing.

The new subjects are known as the "twelve" series and include bacteriology, psychology, nutrition, anatomy and physiology, which are designed as General College courses and are transferable for university credit with one grade point reduction.

Kenneth L. Hobbs, acting chairman of the biological science department and the program's co-ordinator, has been working in close conjunction with the administrators of seven San Francisco Training Schools to make requirements in these subjects uniform.

A prospective trainee may enroll in this program with the assurance that if she later decided to enter a field other than nursing or to marry, the work taken here will be of practical value.

Season Tickets At Bank

Season tickets for the San Francisco Municipal Theatre may be purchased for $5 from the student bank, Dean Edward Sandys said recently.

The theatre, located at the Marina Junior High Auditorium, Bay and Fillmore Streets, will produce eight plays during the 1949-50 season.

Strange Bedfellows, a sophisticated Broadway success, opened the season October 6. It will run for three consecutive weekends, followed in order by these productions listed below:

The Glass Menagerie, by Tennessee Williams; a Christmas play; Amphitryon 38; Tale of Two Cities; Arms and the Man, by George Bernard Shaw; and Another part of the Forest.

Students Scurry To Music Centers; Newmans Stage A Juke Box Jump

SEEMS that college activities aren't only centered on the campus! Seen recently enjoying the terrific music of Jack Sheedy and the boys at the Club Hangover on Bush Street was a group of our more intelligent students (names withheld by request).

Also seems that this crew gets around because they were observed not too long ago gobbling up the merry music exuded by sensational Julia Lee at Circus. For our money, these are intelligent boys!

Concerning campus activities, heard tell that the Freshman class dance at Sir Francis Drake last Friday evening was one of the best flings of the semester to date. It was even enjoyed by the representatives to the Regional California Student Government Conference being held here. Congratulations, chillun, on your triumph.

New men in top spots of the Newman Club were disclosed this week as being the following: president, Neil Fahey; vice-president, Sue Gorham; corresponding secretary, Mary Dowd; recording secretary, Joan Cosgrave; treasurer, Pete MacKenzie; and sergeant-at-arms, Alvin Gamma. Mary Perry and John Selig retain their positions as faculty advisors.

The semi-annual Newman Club dance, theme of Juke Box Jump, will be held from 9 to 12 Friday, October 14 in the west campus student lounge. Dr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Browne, Dean and Mrs. Louis Batmale, Dean and Mrs. John Brady, and Dean Margaret Dougherty have been invited as honored guests. Should prove to be an interesting dance!

Beta Phi Beta pledge master, Ernie Viechio, was last seen collecting cigar butts for the pre-smoker to be held Sunday, October 23.

Women's Athletic Association announced Florence Too as new president recently, and extended an invitation to all women students interested in WAA activities to attend the club's meetings in Room 140 during college hour.

Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society adviser, Don Jensen, announced a special meeting to be held this coming Thursday, October 13 at 2 p.m. All of the 60 members are requested to make extraordinary effort to attend. Place of the gathering will be announced on the bulletin board.

Jensen also said that the list of second and third semester members of the society will be released soon. Still waiting for news of the AGS annual award to the campus organization with the greatest number of honor students, though!

Exclusive! The Inter-Fraternity Council has announced new officers for the fall semester, which are as follows: president, George deDrioste, Beta Tau; vice-president, Monroe Johnson, Phi Beta Delta; recording secretary, Carl Pederson, Beta Phi Beta; corresponding secretary, Tom Dill, Tri-Epsilon; treasurer, Danny Lagan, Alpha Sigma Delta; and faculty advisor, Dean Louis Batmale.

For those who aren't in the know, the Inter-Fraternity Council is made up of a collection of fraternity men endowed with the old college try, and their purpose in life is to further the ideals of the college and promote good will between the member fraternities. 'Nuff said.

Period, end of report. G'night, Sam.

Homecoming Week Queen Crowned; Festivities Start

Homecoming Week spells out five colorful days for the Associated Students beginning at 10:40 a. m. today when President Louis G. Conlan will inaugurate the week's ceremonies by crowning the Homecoming Queen and introducing Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, former college president, in the auditorium during college hour.

Students will take a back seat on Monday, while Associated Student President Harry Williams and Associated Men Student's President Frank Bayol take to the KFRC air lanes from 12:45 to 1 p. m. to discuss San Francisco City College and the Homecoming Week. An alumni dinner is planned for the same night.

Room 136 is the scene of Tuesday's program which the AMS is sponsoring and will award a trophy to the winner of a speech tournament. Everyone is invited at 8 p. m.

Spotlighting the week's activities will be the Homecoming basketball tilt on Wednesday, October 19. Shooting for the North bucket will be President Conlan's 1936 championship team matched against Coach Ralph Hillsman's champion five in 1949. No odds are given. Also on the bill will be an exciting trampoline act and possibly other sport exhibitions.

The KFRC orchestra will be on hand at 8 p. m. Thursday night, to perform for a bonfire on the west campus, and 9 p. m. marks the start of a large Homecoming Dance in the auditorium — where student card holders will be admitted free except for tax. All other couples will be charged one dollar per couple and will see Polly Lawrence, KFRC vocalist, perform with the orchestra in putting on a show for the students.

The climax of the week's schedule will come at Cox Stadium where the City College of San Francisco Gridders will encounter eleven men from Los Angeles City College starting at 8 p. m.

Newman Club In 'Jump' Tonight

Amid autumn-colored decorations, students will dance to the music of their favorite records at the Newman Club's Juke Box Jump tonight in the student lounge.

Admission to the affair, which is from 9 to 12 p. m., is 75 cents per couple or 50 cents for those who come stag, according to Ronnie Morrison, Associated Student vice-president, who heads the social committee. The dress is sport, she added.

"This dance should prove to be one of the best the Newman Club has ever sponsored," Miss Morrison told reporters; "and I hope a lot of people turn out for it."

Honored guests for the occasion are Deans John Brady, Edwin C. Browne, John Batmale, and their wives, and Dean Margaret Dougherty, Mary Perry, Newman Club sponsor, announced.

Alumni Greet Conlan Monday Night

Members of the Alumni Association will open activities for Homecoming Week with a dinner given in honor of President Louis G. Conlan in the faculty dining room on the west campus at 6:30 p. m., Monday.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools, who will honor the new president.

Master of ceremonies will be Trev Burrow, former president of the Associated Students and Editor of the Guardsman. Burrow is now Associate Editor of the Piver Publications.

In an interview Burrow said, "There will be no long winded speeches, they will be short, sweet, and to the point.

"In the way of entertainment, we will show moving pictures of the 1949 Charter Day Dinner and some movies taken at last Spring's Mardi Gras. All those attending should arrive early, around 6 p. m. so there will be time for a pre-dinner gab feast, at which time appetizers will be served."

Joseph A. Amori, placement director of the college, who handled all arrangements for the dinner, stressed the importance of the Alumni Association because of the placement services and opportunities offered its members.

A charter Life Membership costs just $10.00. This rate will be available only while Charter Memberships are being accepted.

A resolution has been passed by the executive board to substantially increase the life membership fee when this classification has been closed. A Subscriber Membership costs $5.00 a year. Other classifications will be announced later.

For information about joining, correspondence should be addressed to the college bank, Ocean and Phelan Avenue San Francisco; Dr. Richard B. Kelley, chairman, Alumni Executive Board, 276 Claremont Boulevard, San Francisco; Gloria Swiecgood, secretary, Alumni Executive Board, addressed to the college.

Increase Seen In Enrollment Here

Figures released by the office of the registrar reveal that enrollment for the Fall semester has reached 5404, an increase over last year of slightly more than 250 students.

The number of male students on the campus outnumbers the women students by almost three to one, as there are 3944 men to 1460 women. Of the 3944 men enrolled more than one-half have sophomore standing, while four out of every seven women are freshmen.

Veterans compose a great part of the total enrollment, with 1090 veterans enrolled under one or another sections of the G. I. Bill educational program, and an additional 391 attending college without benefit of government aid.

DR. A. J. CLOUD, first City College president who retired this June, will receive a lifetime Associated Student membership card today.

College Hour Rally To Honor Former President A. J. Cloud

Honorary lifetime Associated Student membership will be presented Dr. A. J. Cloud, retired president of City College, at a Homecoming Week rally to be held during college hour today in west campus auditorium.

The rally will be spiced with entertainment designed to raise enthusiasm for the Ram's second league tilt against Monterey Junior College.

A fast moving comedy team will be presented by the Variety Club in the persons of Don Stevens and Paul Andrews.

A combo that reports say is really put together and stays together will feature Milt Kastner on the piano and Mario Surrachi on the bass.

Joan Anderson, Jim Bogue, Dave Irvine, Jack Oakes, Pat Von Hessler, and Bobbie Andress comprise a sextet to further entertain students.

Students who left the rally early last week to be certain of getting to class on time missed some good entertainment, Urb Cummings, rally commissioner, said.

The rallies, he stated, will always end ten minutes before the beginning of the next period, and there is no necessity to leave earlier.

College hour scheduled for Friday:

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9:50 to 10:30
College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Guardsman Wins Top ACP Journalism Award

The All-American Award—Pulitzer Award of college journalism—was won for the eleventh consecutive semester by The Guardsman on consideration of campus newspapers published during last semester.

The Guardsman has won the Associated Collegiate Press' most coveted award 15 times in 17 semesters.

The Spring '49 staff was headed by Editor Roy Pasini, and included Dale Butterfield, Managing Editor; Larry Baldocchi and Dick Brennan, Assistant Managing Editors; Richard Briggs, News Editor; Nancy Loughlin, Feature Editor; and Walt Roessing, Sports Editor.

New Courses Open Here For Secondary School Instructors

A teacher's training program has been set up at the college this year to provide elementary and high school teachers of San Francisco with certain courses that they could not receive elsewhere.

At the request of the office of the Superintendent of Schools, the college has made available several courses, to provide teachers of San Francisco's public schools with knowledge and advanced training that will aid in the improvement of their teaching.

According to Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, the program was instituted at the college for the first time this year.

Subjects offered at the college are the use of radio in the classroom, the theory of drawing, and ceramics, presented, respectively, by instructors, Henry Leff, Cecil Aggeler, and H. Roy Walker.

The subjects are offered at the college between the hours of 4 p. m. to 6 p. m., so that the teachers attending may conduct their own classes.

The class in drawing, according to Aggeler, is composed, mostly, of high school drawing teachers. The course is divided in two, he said, one being the theory of drawing, while the other is a workshop.

Opera Ushers Still Needed

Students interested in ushering at the San Francisco Opera House for the remainder of the 1949 opera season may now obtain admittance passes from Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

Those interested must appear at the Opera House by noon for the afternoon performances, Dean Dougherty said.

The operas to be presented include: Aida, Faust, Carmen, Don Giovanni, and Tosca.

Dean Dougherty's office is on the second floor of Building 2 on the west campus, and is not scheduled to be moved to Building 3, as incorrectly listed last Tuesday.

Budget Breakdown Released; Low AS Card Sales Cause Cuts

By Clarence Whitcomb

Details of the fall semester's economized Associated Student budget were clarified in an interview with Louis Batmale, assistant dean, on Monday.

Council members Harry Williams, Jim Anderson, and Dan Lagan, several weeks ago accepted the recommendations of faculty board members Oscar Anderson, controller, and Batmale, to slash most estimated appropriations and help the sagging college finances.

Departments hardest hit by the budget-minded council were football, drama, and The Guardsman; many activities will be curtailed in these departments to met the new appropriations.

Batmale announced that the economies were recommended to the council after careful study. The first step in arriving at the various departmental allocations was to have the departments fill out a form with their estimated expenses for the semester.

The over-all estimate was $33,000; this amount was entirely too high. The council then figured the budget on the basis of anticipated income for the semester.

This amount was arrived at by estimating the income from these activities; Associated Student card sales, $15,000; out-of-town football, $1,000; Guardsman advertising, $1,000; football local, $1,200; and drama, boxing, basketball, and dances, $300 to $500 each.

Anticipated income was less than two-thirds of the original request, the committee went into further studies and finally passed a revised budget based on what they feel will be a fair allotment to each department. So far this semester Associated Student card sales are lagging, with only 2775 cards sold of the estimated 3,000.

Batmale added that an increase in Associated Student card sales will make possible greater allotments in the future, and that those sales must be stimulated for a fuller student program next semester.

Rugged Backwoods Shown In Yellowstone Park Cinema

Continuing the fine selection of movies presented every Friday as part of the college film series is Yellowstone and the Grand Tetons, a kodachrome film, Madison Devlin, audio visual aid director, announced.

"Released by United Airlines, it will take the audience by airplane to Yellowstone where the plane lands. Then, instead of seeing the resort areas and other attractions near the highways exclusively, the audience is shown some of the rugged back country where few people are able to penetrate. This film is undoubtedly one of the finest the college has ever obtained as regards the scenic beauty portrayed," Devlin commented.

All students and faculty members are urged to come early if they want seats.

Shown in Room 136 every Friday during the hour following college hour, the college film series has proved to be popular, students said.

Petitions For Club Charters Due October 21

All petitions for club charters and membership in the Club Activities Board must be in at the next meeting Friday, October 21, Frances McCarthey, CAB president, revealed today.

The CAB acts as a coordinating agency for all chartered organizations on the campus. The following clubs have petitioned for membership, and more are expected before the deadline:

Radio Club, Zeta Chi, Gamma Phi Upsilon, Alpha Phi Omega, Latin American Club, Beta Phi Beta, Beta Tau, Hotel and Restaurant Society, Block SF, Women's Athletic Association; Phi Rho Pi, Lamba Alpha, Inter-Fraternity Council, Theta Tau, Delta Psi, Tau Chi Sigma, Strikes and Spares, Phi Beta Rho, Phi Beta Delta, Alpha Lambda Chi, Kappa Phi.

All membership clubs elect one member to represent the club at CAB meetings. The meetings are open forum discussions, with members suggesting plans or discussing club programs. The president of the CAB represents the board in the Student Cabinet.

The CAB offers several rewards during the semester; one is the Associated Student membership award of $20.00, which goes to the club having 100 per cent card holders. Last semester Phi Beta Delta won. Also an award is given for the highest scholastic honors, this award was given to The Phi Beta Rho for last semester's award.

Membership clubs are also urged to submit their social calendar for the coming year to the CAB, Miss McCarthy added.

The officers for this semester are Miss McCarthy, Joan Talbot, vice-president; and Carmel Lee, secretary-treasurer.

Plans are already under way for the spring Mardi Gras, and all clubs are urged to prepare now, as booths will be limited this year.

High School Vocabulary Out Of Place On College Campus

VOCABULARY, the one universal measure of a person's education and social position, is our topic for the day. As a college vocabulary is one indication of the degree of maturity reached by local students, we feel that any holdover, high school vocabulary is as out of place on City College campus as a tricycle on the parking lot.

First, local faculty members are called instructors, not teachers, please. Should they have a Ph.D. after their name, then they are respectfully addressed as Doctor.

Second, the Associated Students are not the "student body." Nor do we have "student body cards" at City College. Card holders are rather members of the Associated Students. Also, one's fellow students are not "the kids," unless, of course, they wish to be treated as such. The point of all this being that we can only hope to be treated as adults when we act and talk accordingly.

AS the San Jose State College Spartan Daily did us the honor of reprinting a feature story from a recent issue, we would like to return the compliment with a few lines from their fine editorial called "A Bill of Student Obligations."

By registering as a student at college, this editorial states, one takes upon himself certain obligations towards his fellow students, towards his instructors, and towards the larger community which makes possible the educational opportunities of college life.

One of the main obligations mentioned was the obligation to become informed, so far as information is available, concerning the aims of the college, its traditions, its facilities and its regulations.

May we add to this that it is also the duty and obligation of every member of the Associated Students to keep himself informed on the actions of their representatives, the Student Council. It is only through more active interest that we can achieve more active participation in campus activities.

Before closing up shop for the day, we would like to apologize to Dean Margaret Dougherty for printing the wrong building number for her office. To get it straight, her office will continue to be in Building 2.

Counterpoint: World Series Disrupts Nation As Results Pour In

By Walt Heil

NOW that the fever pitch temperature of the World Series has died down and all the statistics are recorded on black and white, it seems appropriate to examine its effects on the American people.

The exciting finishes in both leagues left the fans limp, whereupon they were immediately confronted by the spectacular Fall Classic. Business operations slowed down, and for one quick week the series demanded and got top play in all the newspapers throughout the nation.

U. N. SLOWS

It was reported that a United Nations leader on the political committee at the General Assembly attempted to delay debate on the important problem of Greece to attend the games. Court procedures on important judicial cases slowed down so the judge could get the results of the games.

Radios in flourishing bistros blared the play-by-play, while in the East those who didn't have tickets sat on high stools and watched the series over television. Elsewhere radios sounded forth in shoe shine stands, homes, cars, offices, and in barracks in Germany and Japan.

Here at City College, intellectual pursuit was momentarily disrupted as portables and car radios, coupled with word of mouth methods brought the latest scores. One instructor, to gain Dodger rooters "promised" his class a day off if the Flock won. Classroom life was plainly disrupted.

LATEST REPORTS

On Montgomery Street, in the heart of the West's financial district, a huge pin-ball effect board lit up and showed the motly throng of business men, messengers, and truck drivers the progress of the game.

In other circles money was laid on the line in wagers both large and small on the outcome of each individual game and on the series as a whole. Some people lost and some won. As the Yankees went, so went the dollars.

DODGERS GO DOWN

Meanwhile the games themselves were well played. The play ranged from dull, precision-like games, as in the first two, to thrilling hard hitting ones, as in the last three. The Brooklyn entry showed the fans the best way to lose. They went down hustling until the last out in each game. The U. S. public is always sentimental for the underdog, and the population loved the Dodgers for their fight.

By far the best player in the series was Joe Page, nonchalant relief pitcher for the Yankees. Three times the great reliefer went in to aid stricken mates. Time and again he stifled Dodger hats with men on base. Page gave the men of Casey Stengel the edge, otherwise the clubs were just about even.

It all added up to a great world series. As the streamer headline on the Brooklyn Eagle said, "Wait 'Till Next Year."

Ladies Win In Split Over Yell Leaders

Publicity Man Wants Woman Football Squad

A move to remove feminine yell leaders and replace them with male yell leaders has met with opposition and approval, both heated.

Deciding that baseball is over for another season, a group interested in watching football only, proposed that all yell leaders be male.

However, the movement was contested by another group which stated that the only way they can yell at top efficiency is under the direction of female leaders.

An energetic publicity man met with both groups later and proposed a solution to their problems—a female football team. However, the Block SF Society objected.

"Good! A terrific game!"

Looking-Up . . . Small Town Publisher Finds Newspaper Work 24 Hour Challenge, But Loves It

By Dick Briggs

PUBLISHING a newspaper can be a one-man job the way City College graduate Mel Hansen does it, but the operation offers more problems than a one-arm paper hanger with hives.

Somewhere between his courses in Journalism and work with the San Francisco Examiner, Hansen decided to turn publisher, and on August 1 he dug toe-deep into his money sock for a down payment on the Coast-side Comet, a weekly newspaper located in nearby Sharps Park.

First off, Hansen was confronted with the problem of minimizing all labor to a one-man job. Little acquainted with the mysteries of Webb Presses and make-ready methods, Hansen found the linotype machines more exasperating than arguing with English professors to tear up cut slips. At length Hansen plunked out words on the keyboard and just got the paper out."

Sharps Parkers accepted the young publisher with almost indifference, until they discovered quiet, grim-faced Hansen could laugh, and they welcomed him into their hearts.

Once Hansen inadvertently arranged page forms in improper order so an insert was printed upside down. A reader queried sarcastically if the editor was starting a new trend in newspaper makeup, and almost never tongue-tied Hansen quipped, " . . . just wanted to condition you for some of my revolutionary ideas on journalism I'm trying out soon."

So far editor Hansen has been too preoccupied publishing his weekly to worry about improving the "bigger" newspaper industry. But his subscribers are just as satisfied reading from old style makeup as long as his folksy writing style remains unchanged. Hansen's sentences read quickly with typical big city mannerism, but yet they retain an almost chatty quality reminiscent of pleasant reading hay-seed weeklies.

Now almost accustomed to an 18-hour schedule, Hansen composes news stories at the linotype keyboard, and even finds a spare minute for quick coffee before soliciting advertising during lunch hour.

To 23-year old publisher Mel Hansen, whose circulation covers all communities from Pedro Valley to Broadmoor Village, a small town editor takes more beatings than a bass drum, but as he says, "it's fun, and I love it."

Spotlight: On Commercials; Modern Ad Writers Ruin Reason

By Keith Gardner

SOONER or later a columnist is expected to write a scathing attack on modern-day advertising. The system is to flip open a magazine, pick a few ads, then tear 'em apart verbally. Well, let's try it.

As a general case take the sophisticated lovelies that appear in The New Yorker. These models are probably the greatest ego deflaters ever known. We even got a bad case of frostbite from the icy, down-the-nose stares they give.

SHOCKING

Then there is one by somcone called Schiaparelli concerning a perfume known as Shocking. This tidbit is illustrated with a picture of a not-so-Little Red Riding Hood in a costume that would send the Johnson office into fits, being chased by a large wolf. Remember girls, the next time one of you feel like running the mile with an overgrown coyote, don't forget your Shocking.

The folks who make Planters peanuts, however, have added a real gem to the world's great poetry. It goes like this: "Planters in the springtime, Planters in the fall—Folks love Planters anytime at all!" We don't believe the world will ever see verse of that quality again. In fact, the noise you hear is Tennyson spinning like a top in his grave.

Another jewel is by the makers of Community silverware. This contains the statement, "The happiest brides have Community." We might add that husbands are helpful too, but if you've got silverware they aren't really necessary.

NO TEETH?

The pick of the lot, though, features a gentleman who glares at you like a prosecuting attorney and asks, "Are you reducing tooth decay with Amm-i-dent ammoniated tooth paste?" We hope the Amm-i-dent people can stand up under the shock, because the answer is "No."

In fact, after reading these ads we've sworn off perfume, peanuts, silverware, and tooth paste. The perfume and peanuts were a cinch, but it's tough trying to look nonchalant with a steak in one hand, and this steel wool is ruining out teeth. We'll stick with it, though. Right down to the last molar.

Fire Bells Reveal Burning Desire To Learn

By Bill Thomas

The clanging of fire bells recently seemed to have little effect on the studious students of the college.

It was suggested that the earnest searchers for knowledge did not comprehend what the bell was for.

As one student put it, "We thought they just needed a janitor in a hurry. Besides this building is supposed to be fireproof!"

However, the sight of a man in a dark blue uniform tearing at his hair and desperately examining a stop watch as he timed the exodus of students from their classrooms seemed to indicate that something was amiss.

The sight of the unhappy inspector conjured a vision in the minds of many something like this:

The firebell rang. Nobody paid any attention as the instructor, unperturbed by such minor annoyances, continued to lecture on the great writers of the world.

With great artistry the instructor painted the sight of hell as Dante saw it in his Divine Comedy. He told of the river of blood, and several members of the class shuddered. He told of the punishment awarded those who did violence to ART and the whole class shuddered.

He described the flames of hell, and the whole class felt it could smell the smoke and hear the crackling of wood.

He described the blistering flesh and the burning bodies. The whole class felt it was blistered and burning.

The instructor coughed and reached for his handkerchief. Suddenly there was a scream as flames shot past the windows.

The door was too small and Tubby was the death of them; he got jambed in it.

Twenty-four eager students passed from this world to check up on the accuracy of Dante's tale.

The unhappy inspector watched the last student casually leave the main building. As he stepped into his red car the inspector was overheard muttering "next time I'll bring along a smoke bomb or two," and a few seconds later, "maybe a little atomic fusion would be better."

Police today are searching for a blue uniformed man who mysteriously escaped from a local hospital

Shasta Proves Tough For Instructor

For all her fitness, Gloria Swiegood, women's physical education instructor, found her Labor Day hike to the top of Mount Shasta a rugged and laborious one.

Accompanied by two friends, she packed in to Horse Camp and continued the next day towards the peak. When only a few hundred feet remained between her and the guest book at the elevation of 10,000 feet, she looked up and saw another hiker standing at a 45-degree angle, the force of a 50-mile gale as support. She then decided that her name on the record would be hardly worth the risk.

Rams Seek Fifteenth Straight Win; Game At Monterey Third Of Season

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

Undefeated in their last 14 games, two of them this season, Coach Grover Klemmer's grid machine journeys to Monterey tomorrow night in an attempt to make vastly improved Monterey Peninsula College victim number 15.

The Lobos, 1948 conference doormat, however, will not be easy pickings. They have inherited almost the entire championship Monterey High Toreador team of last year including the coach, Jim Tidwell.

So far this season Monterey has romped over Grant Tech College 26-0 and lost a hard played 6-0 decision to a rugged Modesto College eleven.

Tomorrow night's affair should prove to be a grudge game. Last year the Rams ruined the Lobos' conference debut 37-0 in the season opener. The Lobos would like nothing better than disrupting the locals win streak.

Mainstays of the Monterey line are co-captains Phil Mirabelli and Jim Cunningham. Mirabelli, 5'8"-210-pound tackle, made all-state in Nevada while in high school and was a letterman with the Lobos last year. Cunningham, 6'3"-195-pounder, plays end and switches to halfback on defense.

The backfield is paced by quarterback Dick Narvaez, who played fullback with the St. Mary's Frosh last season. He shifts to right end on defense.

The Lobos' line averages 189 pounds and the backfield 176 pounds as compared with 187 for the Ram line and 167 for the backfield.

The Ram ground attack improved considerably in the Menlo game through the running of Rotea Guilford and John Brown. Guilford picked up 72 yards for an average of 7.2 yards per carry, while Brown gained 42 yards for a seven yard average.

Once again the rugged Ram forward wall proved it is the squad's backbone. The fact that the line is deep in reserves makes the locals a second half team as illustrated in the Menlo game. In the first half the Oaks' outstanding backfield gained 121 net yards while in the second stanza, they were held to a mere 20 yards net gained.

PREPARING RAM ENDS for passes they will undoubtedly be called upon to receive from college passers is end Coach Ralph Hillsman.

Picker Goncalves Gets Prize; Consensus Picks Rams By 19 Points

Because of his sensational and accurate prediction of 20-14 on the outcome of the Menlo College-City College football game, Bob Goncalves was awarded the air out of the game football and given the title of "Picker of the Week."

The faculty prognosticators strengthened their forces this week with the addition of President Louis G. Conlan to their team.

Local Soccer Squad Meets California Bears Tomorrow

California's Golden Bears host the Ram Soccer team at Berkeley tomorrow in the team's first meeting this season. Last year City College tied one and lost one to the Bears.

Mentor Roy Diederichsen views the future with optimism after last week's victory over the California Aggies at Sacramento. The Rams were forced to depend on their speed and deceptiveness during the early part of the season and getting the club into shape was a problem.

Now, through switching of players and because the lads are getting rough, tough, and ready, Diederichsen predicts that the club will be as good as last year's which took second place in the conference, if not better.

The second string, which is interchangeable with the first, has gained much needed experience in two contests thus far and are really on a par with the initial team.

Intra Basketball Tourney Begins Four Week Schedule

Intramural basketball began a bruising schedule of 43 games, which will continue for the next four weeks, in the men's gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

Schedules for each of the 21 teams entered in the tournamment will be posted in the men's gymnasium, the main building, and The Guardsman office each week.

Playing times for the games will be 3 and 4 p. m., and a request has been made by director Tom Wilson for the 4 p. m. teams to stay off of the courts until the time for their game has come, so as not to interfere with the contests already in progress.

Three leagues consisting of seven teams each have been organized. They are are follows: The American League, which has the Terrors, Ramblers, Basketeers, Hoopsters, the Balboa Alumni A. C., Newman Club, and the Hotel and Restaurant teams; the National League, which consists of the Black Jacks, Crusaders, Ramblers, Lowell A. C., Washington 130's, Eight Balls, and the Balboa Buccaneers; and the Pacific Coast League, which includes the Gooks, River Rats, Beer Caps, Beavers, Hornets, Alameda A. C., and the Balboa Pirates.

Carl Simonion has taken over the position of head intramural manager that was filled by Harvey Roselle last semester.

Large Turnout For WAA Activities

Eighty college women turned out for the Women's Athletic Association events last week, the largest turnout in the past two years.

All women students interested in the sports events were urged to sign up as soon as possible at the women's gymnasium. It was also learned that anyone interested in taking up sports other than the one scheduled for WAA credit can do so by signing in with the physical education classes of that sport.

Sports not in the WAA schedule are hockey, archery, swimming and volleyball.

Further information on any of these sports can be obtained from Nancy Sparks, WAA sponsor.

RAMblings . . . San Francisco, Los Angeles City Rivalry Receives Partial Settlement On Gridiron

By Gene Van Dyke

THAT eternal strife for recognized dominance between San Francisco and Los Angeles in all activities, including weather, goes on the block again October 21, when LACC travels to San Francisco State's Cox Stadium, where they will meet the college eleven in their traditional struggle.

Competition between the two metropolitan cities is always keyed to the boiling point. Commercialized to the extent of a quiz program is the keen rivalry existing between California's largest cities.

Lefty O'Doul's Seals have met Bill Kelley's Angels in their respective series throughout the Pacific Coast League season. Buck Shaw's 49ers have clashed with Jimmy Phelan's Dons and now comes game time for the annual CCSF-LACC meeting on the gridiron.

The series had its origin in 1935. Los Angeles edging the Rams 7-0. San Francisco took the 1936-37 games, 12-0 and 20-7. Both of these years the southerners were Western States Conference champions. LACC was on top again in 1938-41 and '42, while CCSF, then SFJC, won in 1939 and '40.

Suspension of football was necessary in 1943-44 and '45 because of wartime restrictions which hit most colleges.

After the three year discontinuation, the series was resumed. In 1948 the Rams racked up the largest victory margin of the eleven meetings to date, winning 21-6.

To add in intensifying the importance of the game silver footballs with scores engraved on them, go to members of the winning team. A trophy is retained by the college that scores three victories in succession.

When the Cubs come to town, Red Hand, their coach, will have his club molding an attack from a mixture of the single wing and T formation. He seems to favor such a variety; for he feels it allows his speedy backs an opportunity to give forth with their best possible running performance.

Hand lost 24 of last season's lettermen, ten of whom were first stringers. It is necessary he forms the entirety of his squad from high school prospects.

His tentative starting team has a weight average of 190 pounds. The crimson and blue backfield scales 176. His line averages 198.

Earn-While-You-Learn Program Places 73 In Jobs

The Business Education Department's earn-while-you-learn program took the limelight yesterday when Glenn Mercer of the Business Education Department announced that 73 students, who earned six units each during the summer, were placed on jobs throughout the Bay Area.

In the transportation department, 42 students performed such duties as stock work, delivery, shipping, receiving and traffic duties. "Forty students gave satisfactory results," Mercer stated.

"From the Merchandising Division, 32 students were placed in drug stores, shoe stores, hotel stores and various dry goods stores throughout the Bay Area. Eighty-five per cent of the students were successful," Samuel Ziegler, an instructor, pointed out.

Students may earn a maximum of 12 units toward a certificate in merchandising or transportation by obtaining six units for a summer's engagement of four units for a semester's part-time work.

Locker Combinations Broken; Care Urged By Controller

Carelessness in guarding locker combinations on the part of many students has been the cause of several locker burglaries so far this semester, Dr. Oscar Anderson, controller, announced yesterday.

"Students should be very careful about their combination, and not allow anyone to see their number. Locker combinations are changed each semester," Anderson said.

More students signed up for lockers this semester than ever before. All of the 400 lockers were taken the first day, forcing many students to carry their books and coats for the rest of the semester. Last year locker requests were much lighter, Anderson added, with many lockers going unused.

In the over-all college planning program additional locker space will be provided, but this won't take place for several years, so students desiring a locker next spring should sign up early on the day lockers are given out to assure receiving space.

Guardsman Staff Cuts First Issue Tuesday

Because of a limited budget The Guardsman staff cancelled the previously listed issue for next Tuesday, October 18.

Recent cuts in The Guardsman budget, also experienced by other departments, has forced a reduction in the number of issues to be printed this semester. The next issue will be distributed Friday, October 21.

Boxing Voted To Major Sport

Boxing at the college was elevated from a minor to a major sports activity with a 15 to 4 vote by the Student Council committee at its seventh consecutive meeting in Room 6M last Tuesday noon.

The proposal for making boxing a major sport was submitted by varsity Coach Roy Diederichsen. Since more or as many students participate in boxing bouts as there are students participating in football, it was decided that boxing should become a major sport.

Every other two-year college in the Northern California Junior College Conference recognizes boxing as a major sport. The College will, therefore, join the ranks of other two-year colleges in making boxing a competitive sport; thus, it will be classified along with soccer and baseball.

Other discussions on the committee's agenda were the choosing of executive committee officers and the passing of the rally committee's constitution proposals.

It was suggested that potential officers be "questioned" as regards qualifications and experiences in student government before being accepted for office. The motion was debated and tabled for the next council meeting.

The constitution proposals were unanimously approved by the committee.

Two Discussions Set For Debaters

Two debates, one each with San Jose State College and San Francisco State College, are scheduled for the week of October 23, Michael Griffin of the speech department announced last week.

Three teams, composed of Arnold Cooper and James Anderson, Randal Street and Marcella Lewis, and Joe Schwab and Emery Roland, will debate here with San Jose State on the topic, "Resolved, That the United States Should Nationalizze All Basic Non-agricultural Industries" and with San Francisco State team on the same topic at State campus.

Symphony Forum Opens Concert Ticket Sales

Season tickets for the Thursday evening student series of symphony concerts go on sale Wednesday, October 19 at the student bank, Meyer Cahn, sponsor for the college's chapter of the symphony forum, announced.

There will be 17 Thursday concerts reduced to special rates for college students. Outstanding instrumental and vocal soloists will appear on the programs along with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Pierre Monteux. All concerts begin at 8:30 p. m.

Forum Club Debates Controversial Issue

"Is a welfare state a menace to American democracy," will be the issue taken up when the Forum Club holds its initial meeting and discussion tonight at 8 p. m. at the home of John Gerstung, sponsor, 157 Kensington Way.

Anyone wishing to do so may attend the meeting and take part in the debate of this controversial subject which is expected to prove interesting as well as important, Forum members said.

More meetings will be held to enlighten the students of this college in the matter of world affairs and ideas.

Round 'n About

Partytime Features Previous Week; Tau Chi's Plan Huge Dancing Bash

WELL, rush season is just around the corner and then things should really be popping in club circles. But for now, organization news is just usual stuff.

Phi Beta Rho sorority has something to be proud about, however. The girls were awarded the first Scholarship Plaque at simple ceremonies at last Friday's college hour rally. Reason for the presentation: they were the campus organization attaining the highest grade point average during th spring semester. Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society did the honors.

Hillel Society members are proud of something, too; namely their new officers for the fall semester, these being the following: president, Ernest Glaser; vice-president, Irwin Phillips; secretary, Miriam Rubens; CAB representative, Sheldon Manaster; CAB alternative, Bob Horn; sergeant-at-arms, Harry Spatz; and treasurer, Wally Levin.

Beta Phi Beta fraternity men all had a sentimental time at their first joint meeting of the semester held last Tuesday night. The meeting was with their sister sorority, Phi Beta Rho, and was held at the home of brother Jack Webb.

Mu Iota Psi, music society of the campus, also went partying this week. The occasion was a "get acquainted" social staged at 260 San Fernando Way, Tuesday night. The music was enjoyed by all.

Sisters Joan Talbot, Mary Ann Johnston, Kitt Sornborger, Pat Pappas, Carla Jo Pennington, and Peggy Schultz of Zeta Chi sorority joined high society of the bay city last Friday and Saturday. The ladies broke into the "400" modeling at benefit fashion shows for the Goodwill Industry from 1 to 4 in the afternoons. Wages received consisted of tea and cookies. Hmmm, not bad.

Tau Chi Sigma fraternity sponsor, Maurice Power, disclosed this week the organization's new officers. They are as follows: president, Jim Reed; secretary, Jim Potter; treasurer, Joe Gentile; and CAB, Jim Ramsey and Jack Orr.

A terrific semester is planned for the fraternity by these leaders, including a good rushing season. In a recent interview, Power mentioned a dance to be presented by the Tau Chi's on Friday evening, November 4, but the name of the band, the price of the bids, and other details were lost in the shuffle. Have 'em for you soon, though.

Response to the plea for those interested enough in jazz to join a new organization on the campus has been pretty good, but not good enough to warrant the club becoming official. Come on, two-beaters, turn your names into this reporter soon so we can get the joint jumpin'.

Theta Tau sorority will present a coffee this Sunday evening, October 16, at the home of sister Fonda Chudy.

Hurley Village Rummage Sale Nets Fund For Playground Hut; Students Teach Arts, Crafts

Proving that a little ingenuity still pays off, the Hurley Village Playground Committee last week threw together some old clothes, toys, and books and held a rummage sale from which they netted $65.60.

The proceeds will help buy equipment for a new recreation hut which is being planned for the children on rainy days. When and if it materializes, the hut will be under the supervision of students from the College's Recreational Leadership Division who will teach arts and crafts.

Plans are also underway for blocking off the south end of Judson Avenue to create space for basketball and volleyball courts.

Considering the fact that nothing at the sale was priced at more than one dollar, Ellen Mullens, chairman of the committee, said she was most pleased with the results and expressed her thanks to everyone who helped.

Amori Issues Call For Needed Blood Donors

"One hundred blood donors are urgently needed by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, and students will be paid $25 for one pint, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced this week.

Students interested should report to the student lounge on Monday, October 24, between 10 a.m. and 12 noon to sign up, Amori added.

All types except Type A donors are needed in this call. But Amori warned former donors from the college that the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank requires a minimum of three months to elapse before a donor can give his blood again.

Pi Mu Gamma Starts Drive For College Blood Bank

Organization of an inter-campus blood bank commences next month when Pi Mu Gamma begins an all-month November drive for blood donors, according to John E. Hare, club sponsor.

Advantage of a City College blood bank, restricted to use by campus students, faculty members, and families, is to offer pint transfusions at a low six dollar fee. Emergency transfusions from San Francisco hospitals are standard priced at $32.50 per pint.

Donors are requested to file a pledge card in the name of "City College of San Francisco Reserve Blood Fund," to the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, 2180 Washington Street.

Notification of receipt of pledge card will be made by the Irwin Memorial Hospital with a special appointment card, announcing the date and time for donation.

Usual time required for a blood donation is approximately 30 minutes.

Applications For James Denman Scholarships Due By November 1

Women students who formerly attended San Francisco public high schools were advised this week by Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, to apply for one of the two $125 James Denman Scholarships before Tuesday, November 1.

The awards, given annually to the two women students who have outstanding records of scholarship and leadership in high school, are gifts of Judge William Denman and Mrs. Mary Cheatham, son and daughter of the late James Denman.

Money for the scholarships is provided by the Denman Medal Fund, which formerly awarded girl grammar school graduates medals for achievement. This award was discontinued in 1939 and then immediately followed by the presentation of the awards at the college.

James Denman was a leading educator in San Francisco and was the superintendent of schools during the latter part of the last century. He was later elected as president of the Board of Education.

CAB Calls For Organization Charters

Twenty-One Groups Already File Petitions For Official Recognition

Petitions for all college club charters and membership in the Club Activities Board must be submitted today, in Room 2B, Frances McCarthy, CAB president, declared.

Club charters are required of every group and organization desiring to be recognized on the campus. The CAB, composed of one representative from each club and acting as a coordinating agency for all chartered organizations, serves to promote the general interests of all membership clubs, Miss McCarthy said.

The Pep Club, a special rooting organization for college teams, will meet in Room 9K, Dave McKay announced Tuesday.

The following groups have petitioned for membership, with more being expected before today's deadline:

Radio Club, Zeta Chi, Gamma Phi Upsilon, Alpha Phi Omega, Latin American Club, Beta Phi Beta, Beta Tau, Hotel and Restaurant Society, Block SF, Women's Athletic Association, Phi Rho Pi, Lambda Alpha, Inter-Fraternity Council, Theta Tau, Delta Psi, Tau Chi Sigma, Strikes and Spares, Phi Beta Rho, Phi Beta Delta, Alpha Lambda Chi, Kappa Phi.

All membership clubs are requested to submit their activity calendar for this semester and next semester to the CAB, Miss McCarthy added.

CAB officers for this semester, in addition to Miss McCarthy, Joan Talbot, vice-president, and Carmel Lee, secretary-treasurer.

Clubs To Meet During Today's College Hour

College hour today is scheduled for club and faculty meetings, Louis Batmale, assistant dean of men, declared yesterday.

Five more campus organizations were assigned permanent rooms to conduct meetings. They were Tau Chi Sigma, Room 254; Alpha Lambda Chi, Room 303; Filipino Club, Room 309; Rally Committee, Room 4K; Radio Club, Room 405.

Activities during college hour next week will be cancelled to enable instructors to have a full period for mid-term examinations, commencing Monday.

Season Tickets For Symphony Forum Now At Student Bank

A few remaining Symphony Forum special season tickets for the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra's 38th season will be available at the student bank until Wednesday, October 26, Meyer Cahn, college sponsor of the symphony forum, said yesterday.

Orchestra, Grand Tier, and Dress Circle seats cost $22.80 and Balcony and Balcony Circle seats cost $15.60.

The opening Symphony Forum concert on the campus is schedule next Friday, October 28, at 12 o'clock.

Zena Blair, renowned San Francisco violinist, has been chosen as the artist of the program.

The Symphony Forum campus representatives in charge of the program are Lois Arfsten, Bill Murray and Bob Tefft.

There is to be no admission charge for this program and all students and instructors of the college have been invited to attend.

This concert is the first step this semester by the forum to promote interest and greater appreciation of symphony music. Membership in the forum is open to any student who wishes to join.

The forum is a member of the inter-collegiate Symphony Forum and is sponsored by the San Francisco Music Association.

California High School Students Holds Speech Contest At College

Students from 87 of California's high schools will take the speaker's platform on Friday and Saturday, November 11 and 12, during an invitational speech tournament sponsored at the college by Phi Rho Pi, speech honor society, tourney director Irwin Phillips announced recently.

Preliminary judging will be done by students from the college. University of San Francisco, and San Francisco State College while the final decisions will come from Judge H. A. Van der Zee, Judge Alvin Wenberger, and other judges from municipal and superior courts in San Francisco.

Participants will engage in various types of speaking, including debate, oratory, radio, dramatic declamation, oratorical declamation, extemporaneous speaking, and impromptu talks, Phillips said.

Two debates, one each with San Jose State College and San Francisco State College, are scheduled next week on the topic of industrial nationalization.

Associated Students Get Football Rates

Admission to college games tomorrow and Sunday at reduced rates is available to Associated Student members. The rates for members and non-members follows:

Stanford versus OSC, Saturday, October 22, 2 p.m., at Stanford, with Associated Student card, $1.00; without, $1.50.

St. Mary's versus USF, Sunday, October 23, 2 p.m., at Kezar, Gate 21, with Associated Student card, 75 cents; without, $1.50.

Basketball games at the Cow Palace, 75 cents to Associated Students, $1.50 to others.

Parking Area Serves 300 Student Drivers

Parking permits have been issued for this semester to 300 college students filling the available west campus parking area, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced today.

Anticipated improvements planned before the semester is over are expected to open a large new area for parking behind Building 13, Browne added.

Until improvements are made, students without permits to west campus parking facilities will be forced to use the dirt area behind the west campus on Ocean Avenue.

It is hoped the parking improvements will be made before the rainy season, when the area on Ocean Avenue is turned into a big mud flat, forcing car owners to park elsewhere or take the chance of finding their car stuck to the hubcaps in mud.

When the improvements are finally made, car owners should consult Dean Browne in order to obtain a permit entitling them to use the new parking area.

Faculty Association Tea Honors President

Members of the Faculty Association honored President and Mrs. Louis G. Conlan and 11 new instructors at a tea in the student lounge late yesterday.

Preparations were handled by Mildred Bernard, chairman, Faculty Social Committee, and John Gerstung, Faculty Association president.

Musical entertainment was provided by Jean Bonocorsi, Roy Burt, Adele Lee and Shirley Smith of the Opera Workshop, who sang selections from Carmen and Madame Butterfly. Aileen Fealy was the accompanist.

The pastries served at the tea were made by the students of the Hotel and Restaurant Division's bakery shop.

Cub Scouts 'Alarm' College While On Tour Here

Turning in fire alarms without threat of reprisals was only one of the many things the Cub Scouts of Troop 95 did on their recent tour of the Fire College here.

This month being fire prevention month, the Cubs were escorted through the fire college departments and show the intricacies of fire control and prevention by Lieutenant A. Potten of the San Francisco Fire Department.

The scouts investigated the different types of fire extinguishers and were allowed to turn in fire alarms and watch them come out on the "tape."

Mrs. Madison Devlin, wife of Madison Devlin, of the audio visual aids department, is Den Mother for the cubs, and both accompanied them on the tour.

The Cubs are of Den 9, Pack 95, and meet at Columbus School.

Devlin is also sponsor of Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity composed of college men who are or have been affiliated with the Boy Scouts of America. The purpose of the organization is to render service to the college.

Naval Reserve Solicits Men And Women Recruits For Weekly Duty

By Bob Jones

Non-veteran women, from the ages of 18 to 40, are now eligible to join the Active Naval Reserve and earn up to $30 per month, Lieutenant (jg) L. N. Hoffman, San Francisco Naval Reserve recruiting officer, said yesterday during a visit to the college.

"This is a new deal," Lieutenant Hoffman pointed out. "As of July 1, women who have never served in the armed forces may join the Naval Reserve." He added that the age limit, 18 to 40, applies only to non-veteran women, and that women with previous experience in the Naval service are eligible to enlist until they have reached their 64th birthday.

Submarine Training Offered

Men, whose ages range from 17 to 29, have opportunity to join the Submarine Naval Reserve. They will receive training in a "dryland submarine" that is capable of duplicating every situation experienced with one of its seagoing sisters. One night a month, trainees will be taken aboard and given the opportunity to operate a real submarine.

Although it is desirous they join the Naval Reserve, Hoffman said, "The Navy urges students to remain in the school of their choice until they graduate."

During the summer months of two consecutive years, students belonging to the Reserve can take advantage of a program which will take them to San Diego for training. During these periods of active duty, the student-sailors will be paid $100 a month. Upon their graduation, they will be handed an Ensign's commission in the Naval Reserve along with their college diploma.

Pay Grades Reinstated

Naval veterans, and in most cases veterans of other branches of the Armed Forces, by joining the Active Reserve will be reinstated in their former pay grades, he said.

Veterans who have not received all the medals that they are entitled to may do so by applying for them at the Naval Recruiting office at the Federal Building.

Lieutenant Hoffman presents a radio program over radio station KVSM every Thursday afternoon at 1:45.

Council Members Propose Another College Yearbook

LAST Tuesday's Associated Student Council meeting saw a spirited and interesting discussion about, believe it or not, another yearbook. We think, then, that it is time to present to the students at large some of the facts about last year's financial fiasco, Ram-Pages.

Speaking of this matter, we are reminded of the story about the first grade math teacher. She took a look at her little student, Wilmer, and feared that she was going to have trouble with him. But, as she explained arithmetic, she was pleased to note that he was paying close attention. After she had done several problems on the blackboard, she asked: "Are there any questions?"

Wilmer had one: "Where do the little numbers go when you rub them out?"

WE are here concerned with what happened to the little numbers. To be more exact, 8000 little numbers were rubbed out last year.

The unpleasant fact is that every student activity on campus is suffering this semester for last year's mistake. Since the sale of Associated Student cards this semester is approximately equal to last semester, the heavy slashes in the budget were due primarily to this 8000 dollar loss.

The proposal was made, in all seriousness, that the price of Associated Student membership be raised to $6.50 thus giving enough money for another yearbook. This yearbook would then be given away "free" to all members of the Associated Students. The logic of this word "free" escapes us for the moment.

The unpleasant, but inevitable, conclusion concerning the disappointing sale of last semester's Ram-Pages is that the majority of students are not the least bit interested in buying a yearbook. We wonder then if this new proposal is not taxing all the members for what only a few want. Any examination of the facts about last year's yearbook will make it painfully obvious that this few is few indeed.

WE consider this a matter of concern to every member of the Associated Students. After all this is your money and it is your duty and obligation to inform the council members about your opinion. We herewith invite comment, pro and con, through the letters-to-the-Editor department.

Counterpoint: Muni's Latest Debacle Could Have Been Prevented

By Walt Heil

EARLY this week all four downtown dailies bannered a story on the Municipal Railway's latest deficit or saw fit to give it top space on page one.

The dailies reported to their readers that the Muni was in the hole for 2,488,357 dollars. It was also reported that this total was some odd 800,000 dollars higher than the previous year. A big loss.

Main reason given for this tremendous loss to the taxpayers' money was attributed to higher operating expenses. Wage boosts for employees constituted a minor factor in the loss.

OTHER FACTORS

When analyzed, however, other factors creep into the problem. Gasoline, oil, power, maintenance costs went up, adding to the deficit.

Still another factor was laid to the loss. Fewer passengers boarded Muni vehicles because of the raise in the fare, which was boosted to a dime late in 1948.

At the tag end of the stories the auditors recommended an engineering survey to find exactly where the money went. Or as the dailies said, "ascertain the costs."

Such a survey was conducted last winter while Muni officials smugly went about their business, never dreaming of the big losses they would incur on the public of San Francisco.

JENKINS SURVEY

At the time the city hired Arthur C. Jenkins, a consulting engineer, to probe into the carcass called the Muni Railway and find out what was wrong. He found plenty.

When he concluded his survey, Jenkins recommended an eight-point program which would save the city two and one-half million dollars and bring the railway out of debt. It cost the taxpayer 20,000 dollars and in the long run would have saved a lot more than that.

Yet, the city fathers, in the big domed building on Polk Street, rejected the program.

Even a Math 51 student at City College would have seen the point and the savings involved.

The program had great appeal to the family man who had to watch his nickels and dimes closely. Jenkins proposed a five cent run on Market Street to the Twin Peaks Tunnel.

COULDN'T PREVENT DEBACLE

Granted that Jenkins' plan could not have done much to prevent the latest debacle it could have been organized and put into effect to halt future losses and get the railway into the black.

As aforementioned, the Jenkins plan had a wide appeal to the public, as it proposed more streamline trolleys, faster service, and above all it would have saved San Francisco the whopping sum and two and one-half million dollars which it lost this week.

Battle Of Lockers Lasts All Semester

Because of student aversion to carrying armloads of books from class to class, the small cubicle known as the locker was invented.

From the day lockers are issued to the last final examination is completed, the struggle is on. With only 200 lockers available to over 5,000 students, the battle for lockers is heated, and only 400 of the most valiant emerge triumphant.

Since there is no choice of location, the short student has to climb to reach his top locker while the tall fellow has to lie flat on the floor to get at his lower one.

The only solution to the problem seems to lie in buying a car and parking it near class.

Looking-Up . . . Boxing Champ Takes To The Hills For Training Towards Teaching Post

By Dick Briggs

KNOCKING-OUT six-foot gladiators is easier than punching keyboards for campus sportsman Tony Compagnone, one time Navy middleweight champion, whose closed knuckles pack more wallop than a tumbler of knock-out drops.

Within two years of service boxing, Compagnone won 23 in 26 bouts and the Seventh Naval District Boxing Championship, but despite his long training in physical persuasion, tall, muscular Compagnone has yet to win an argument with quiet, firm voiced Mrs. Compagnone, who always has the last word.

16 DECISIONS

The victory chain for half-crouched fighting Compagnone extended to 16 consecutive decisions and three knockouts.

Programed against an experienced slugger, Bob Bodonough, in his first fight, Compagnone was badly beaten in three rounds, but six months later returned and defeated this same opponent decisively for the middleweight Navy championship.

When not shadow boxing or outpunching sparring partners, he keeps in condition through rigorous outdoor activity of rugged mountain hunting, trout fishing trips, and campfire pinochle games.

MARKSMAN TOO!

Ring experience taught Campagnone never to underestimate a foe, and its influence had notably affected his hunting. This summer, deer hunting in high brush country near Vacaville, Compagnone jumped up from his sitting position when a rattler buzzed. The snake slithered under a rock ledge and coiled when Compagnone shot its head off with the first shot.

Never too reckless, he fired six more cartridges into the dead snake. "Just wanted to make sure it was dead," he said.

Conscious of graduation and starting a career, Compagnone is fast commencing a toughening up program noted for its hazards and requirements of top physical condition and stamina—school teaching.

EQUAL TO STRAIN

Compagnone is worried that answering rapid-fire questions from ten year olds might quickly wear him down, though with two more years of arduous training he thinks he might be equal to the strain.

When commencement time rolls around Compagnone expects to be ready, however, for any of the unlikely questions grammar school students will ask him.

Spotlight: Midterm Madness Returns; Diary Shows Typical Case

By Keith Gardner

IF there is any one thing guaranteed to drive a college student off his rocker it is probably midterms. Having passed through a number of these trying periods, we feel qualified to speak on the subject.

There are some of you, no doubt, who have never sweated out a midterm exam before. Frankly, we don't know just how to describe the experience, but you can get nearly the same effect by standing in a pail of water and sticking two fingers in the nearest light socket.

To elaborate, take the case of K. G., a strikingly handsome young man who recently ruined his reputation by being seen in public with members of The Guardsman staff.

DIARY

During the last outbreak of midterm madness he kept a minute-by-minute diary. Libel laws being what they are we've had to censor certain parts, but essentially it goes like this:

"Mid-term today in Old Soandso's class. Wonder what he'll give us? Oh, well, too late now. Better hurry. Don't want to be late today. Wish hands would stop trembling. Nothing to be nervous about. Never oughta show fear in front of instructors and wild animals though.

"Good thought there. Write a paper on it some day. How to train wild animals and instructors.

"There goes first bell. Face is twitching now. Really nothing to be frightened about. Worst I can do is (sob!) flunk.

ESSAY TYPE

"Made it to class on time, anyway. Wonder what type of test he'll give? Just as long as it's not an essay. No need to worry. They never give essay tests in a course like this."

To elaborate, take the case of K. G., a strikingly handsome young man who recently ruined his reputation by being seen in public with members of The Guardsman staff.

Needless to say, the test was essay. But there is really no need to take such a pessimistic view as our friend did. Actually, taking a midterm exam is almost as easy as cutting your throat, and if you've got an exam week schedule as tough as ours it may not be a bad idea.

(Editor's note: Columnist Gardner is currently enjoying an extended vacation at a small, private resort [the Reptile Hole Rest Home is not a nuthouse in the conventional sense of the word] where he occupies a room that is luxuriously upholstered from floor to ceiling.)

Milk Fund Goal Set At 75,000

By Clarence Whitcomb

Milk funds for the needy children of San Francisco were boosted considerably when 13 City College women sold tickets for the Saints' and Sinners Club at the Valentino-Charles championship bout lost Friday evening.

Dr. Herbert Clish, superintendent of schools, is chairman of the San Francisco Milk Fund for Needy Children, a charitable organization, sponsored by the Saints and Sinners. This club is a philosophic organization and is interested in the school children of this city.

The club hopes to raise $75,000, after a survey showed then that more than 2,000 children in San Francisco do not receive sufficient milk.

The students, who donated their time, opened this worthy cause by selling tickets to the 20,000 fight enthusiasts at the Cow Palace.

Tickets were sold for $1.00 each, and the prizes, which are donated, will be awarded after the drawing Friday, October 28.

First prize is $10,000, with many more awards to other lucky ticket holders.

The 13 students, who gave their time and services to the needy, are all members of the various college sororities.

The following women aided in the drive:

Nathalie Hanson, Lou Anne Cota, Ruth Creiante, Ruby Connolly, Pat Edwards, Angie Guerra, Norma Meches, Jackie Lantheauve, Rita Fabris, Miriam Lagan, Beatrice Groger, Mary Ann Johnson and Joyce Broughton.

The drive, after getting off to a fighting start, will continue with volunteers posted at booths located in the downtown area and through various mothers' clubs of San Francisco.

Bay Meadows has also donated its receipts for the last day of racing, Saturday, October 29, to further boost the swelling contributions.

Many well-known San Franciscans are members of this active club including civic, educational, and prominent business leaders.

Dr. Clish expressed hope other students will follow the example set by these women by buying tickets to give milk to the needy children of this city.

Bucket Brigade In Window Wash

Seven City College students narrowly missed a trip to the county hospital today, horribly slashed about the head and face.

Police are conducting an intensive search for the men who washed the windows in the west campus buildings and boardwalk. They did such a thorough job that it is impossible to tell if there is even any glass in the windowpanes.

Since the windows were so dirty that most people were even unaware that the west campus boardwalk had windows it is understandable how the the seven students mentioned nearly stuck their heads through supposedly empty windows.

Students and faculty alike were warned to be on the lookout for the men who created this terrible situation. They are reportedly armed with buckets, scrapers, and dry cloths. Use caution when approaching them.

Rams Prepare For Los Angeles Cubs; Unbeaten Grid Record Goes On Block

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

Arch rival Los Angeles City College invades Cox Stadium tonight to tangle with the unbeaten college eleven in the 12th exciting episode of the Cub-Ram grid series. Kickoff time is slated for 8 p.m.

The locals hold a 6-5 edge in the series that has been so hot in competition that neither team has won by more than two touchdowns. The largest rout was in 1946 when the Rams handed the Cubs a 21-6 lacing.

Further evidence of the keen competition is that neither team has been able to win more than twice in a row. In the 11 previous encounters San Francisco has scored 85 points while Los Angeles has tallied 74. The 1943 through 1945 games were curtailed due to the war.

Last season the Rams racked up a 13-0 win.

Earlier this season Los Angeles received an unmerciful 49-0 thrashing at the hands of Tyler College of Texas, who were impressing for the eastern bid to the Little Rose Bowl.

Tailback in Coach Red Hand's single wing backfield is 185-pound Tom Novikoff, brother of baseballer Lou. The remainder of the backfield is filled out by Rudy Ybarra, Bob Lopez, and letterman fullback Bill Clark.

Two former Los Angeles All-City prep stars, end Bud Apperson and center Jim Cellino, spearhead the Cub forward wall.

The Cub backfield and line average weights are 176 and 190 pounds, respectively, while the Rams weigh 167 and 187 pounds in the backfield and line respectively.

Coach Gover Klemmer's grid machine, only unbeaten team in the Southern Division of the NCJCC, is currently working on a chain of 15 consecutive games without a defeat.

A surprisingly strong Monterey Peninsula College almost upset the Ram applecart last Saturday night when they held the locals to a 13-13 deadlock in Monterey.

After the Rams recovered a Lobo fumble on the first play of the game, John Brown threw a 31-yard pass to Don Sessions on the Monterey 8-yard stripe. Following an offside penalty, Al Nethercutt tossed a 13-yard touchdown pass to Frank Puckett. Brown converted with Dick Carillo holding.

Monterey came abreast to the Rams at the beginning of the second period on a 26-yard paydirt pass from Al Matthews to Jim Cunningham. Matthews ran over the conversion. After intercepting a pass on the Ram 25-yard marker early in the second half, the Lobos took a 13-7 lead. John Anastasia powered over from one yard out for the tally.

Later Marv Crews returned a Lobos punt from the San Francisco 35-yard stripe to the Monterey 38-yard line. On first down Nethercutt passed to Puckett to knot the score.

At the present the Nethercutt to Puckett pass combination, which drew acclaim in Monterey, is the Rams' only reliable offensive threat.

COMPRISING A GOOD PART of the Ram's forward wall are two All-Conference candidates, right tackle Leo Camp (left) and left end Frank Puckett. Puckett was the mainstay in the Monterey-City College game, scoring both touchdowns from passes and has won high acclaim in all games thus far with his sensational catches. Camp, 185 pound tackle, has spelled trouble for all his opponents with his consistent type of play. —Photo by Harrington.

RAMblings . . .

By Gene Van Dyke

ALTHOUGH the college team did not lose to Monterey Peninsula College they relinquished their undefeated, untied standing when the Lobos held them at a 13-13 standstill Saturday night.

Thumbing through The Guardsman files, we did some research into the subject and found the last time a Ram football squad lost was at the close of the 1947 season, one year prior to the inauguration of their current winning streak.

The defeat, issued at the hands of the Long Beach Vikings, incidently, is one of the few, but worst black slough ever in Ram football history. Scoring in every period, save the second, a strong Viking machine marched to a 34-0 Thanksgiving Day win.

Immediately following Saturday evening's contest, Lobos Coach Jim Tidwell, grinning from ear to ear in appreciation of his squad's concrete performance, conferred congratulations on end Frank Puckett's brilliant pass receiving show.

Monterey fans have watched the Lobos get hashed over by "big wig" NCJC Conference elevens since its inaugural season. Tidwell now feels, and he has good cause in doing so, his Monterey club will win a good share of their ball games this season.

* * *

We won't venture so far as to say that quarterback Al Nethercutt's pass patterns are approaching the efficiency of the Frankie Albert status. However, Nethercutt's pitching has been instrumental in winning games to date, and has extricated still another defeat.

Displaying a high calibre of style in his pass acceptions Saturday at Monterey was ponderous end Puckett. He counted a pair of touchdowns on throws of 38 and 13 yards.

The colleges mannerisms in scoring seen to favor the aerial route. With an impressive showing of such talent their seems to be no tendencies towards thwarting a successful passing attack on the part of play-producer Grover Klemmer.

Unbeaten, Untied Standing Lost By Rams; Loss In 1947 Final Begins Winning Streak

Klemmer still has backs that are capable of going all the way in Rotea Gilford, John Brown, Walt Jourdan and Jerry Olmstead. His running game isn't polished to perfection, but it clicks for the necessary yardage.

Starters Listed For Cub-Ram Tilt

Ready for battle in tonight's contest between Los Angeles City College and the locals are the following first string elevens as revealed by Coaches Grover Klemmer and Milton "Red" Hand.

Admission will be free to holders of Associated Student cards and general admission will be one dollar.

Consensus Tabs Locals Three Point Favorites

With neither team the victor, the weekly predictions all went out the window when Monterey Peninsula College tied the Rams 13-13. Dean Edwin C. Brown proved the wisest with his 13-6 pick, while Dean John Brady must have been off in a cloud with a 42-0 guess.

With everyone on the comeback trail, the weekly pickers studied their dope sheets and came up with the following prophesies on tonight's battle between Los Angeles City College and the locals.

Badminton, Tennis Signups Today

Deadline for intramural tennis and badminton will be today, according to a statement issued earlier this week by director Tom Wilson. Game times will be decided by the participants.

Wilson also stated that intramural swimming has been abandoned because of a lack of facilities.

Intramural basketball was inaugurated last week with the playing of only one game of six games scheduled. In this one game, the Beavers rolled over the Gooks by a score of 63-36.

Deadline for touch-football will be Friday, October 28. Each team will consist of eight starters and two substitutes.

Rules for touch-football are as follows:

1. No cleats shall be worn by any players.
2. Game will consist of 25-minute halfs.
3. Two times out per half per team, to be counted in playing time. No time out in the last five minutes of play.
4. Eight players per team, plus two substitutes.
5. Each team will receive five downs, but must gain 20 yards for a first down.
6. Five men must be on the line of scrimmage on each play. Three men must be in the backfield.
7. No blocking by leaving the feet until contact has been made with the opponent.
8. No tackling.
9. Players must be touched with two hands on any part of the body or legs to be downed.
10. Every player eligible to receive a pass except for the center.
11. Tie games to be decided by greatest gain of yardage in six downs starting at the 50-yard line.
12. No varsity players, who are at present working with the team, are eligible.
13. Scoring will be figured the same way as regular football, six points for a touchdown, two points for a safety and one point for a conversion.

Persons wishing to participate in intramural boxing may sign up any time within the next few weeks, according to Coach Roy Diederichson. Dates for the tournament are not yet decided upon.

Boxers who have had no experience, or who have never reached the finals in past tournaments may enter the coming contests.

College Horseback Club Ride Set For Valley Of The Moon Ranch

Valley of the Moon, Jack London's Sonoma County Ranch, will be the scene of the beach ride of the college horseback riding club, according to Bob Ott, club president.

Following the four-hour afternoon ride, probably to take place over the Thanksgiving holidays, an evening banquet will be given in the historical dining room of the converted dude ranch.

The cost of the ride, which any student of the college, who is "capable of staying in the saddle," can participate in, will be approximately $2.50. This does not include the price of the dinner as that depends upon the individual.

Interested persons may obtain further information concerning the beach ride from Riding Club sponsors Laurine Bergin and Rose Kraft in the women's gymnasium and Room 108.

The college riding club, which will play host to the club of San Mateo Junior College, consists at the present time of the following officers and members: Bob Ott, president; Merritt Olds, vice-president; Pat Simmons, secretary and treasurer; Wanda Hodges, social chairman; Josephine Parventi, publicity chairman; Leslyn Ryan, Ken Abernathy, Bob Parr, Vicki Carfagni, Millie Antipa, Elizabeth Stobbe, Charles Dulgemage, and Mary Campau.

Regular meetings of the Riding Club are held in Room 108 during college hour.

Soccermen Receive Bye After 2-1 Defeat From California Bears

College soccer players take a bye tomorrow after bowing to the California Bear 2-1 last Saturday at Berkeley.

Azturo Godoy scored the first goal of the game and attributed the Ram offering for the day, early in the initial period. But a big, hard-playing, powerful-kicking Bear team closed the gap in the second quarter, leaving the halftime score at one to one.

The score remained deadlocked until the waning minutes of the contest when, through poor defense on the locals' part, the Berkeley contingent booted their game winning goal.

City College player Nikolai Vasilieff rated points for All-American soccer team honors for the second game in a row. Nick, as he is dubbed by team-mates, played inspired ball appearing all over the field and boosting the local effort. In defense he also stood out, making at least three saves of definite California scores. Coaches and officials voted him the outstanding player of the day.

At the end of the season two players from this conference will travel to St. Louis to compete in the All-American soccer playoffs against players from all over America.

Winter Wind Blows In Fresh Clubs; Homecoming Dinner Proves Success

SEVERAL new organizations have put in appearances at Balboa Park recently to brighten the old campus, which incidentally needs brightening on these cold wintry days.

The first of these is being formed under the auspices of John Hare, science instructor, which will take members on field trips around 'n about the city.

In the realm of field trips, the club will go on its first 'today, visiting the City and County Hospital. A second one to Moss Beach (for scientific reasons only) is scheduled for the early part of November.

Following a recent trend, the club also plans to present an annual award to an outstanding campus society. Pretty soon everyone will get one! Anyway, for more information, students may consult the bulletin board outside Room 345, Hare announced.

Of the functions being planned for Pi Mu Gamma Society, the most important by far is the initiation of a campus blood bank by two of the members, P. Bana and Bill Falkwich. Vampires, no less!

The second new "headache" for the CAB is the college chapter of Alpha Omega Flying Club. Now, the AO Flying Club is for students interested in learning to fly (in planes, of course), licensed pilots, and all red-blooded, aviation-minded American younsters who wish to keep abreast of the rapidly progressing flying world. (unquote)

Herbert S. Brannon, student sponsor of Alpha Omega, advises those interested in reduced rates for flying, or winging their way inexpensively to college football games, or cheap sighseeing tours by air, to look into the club in Room 132 during any college hour.

David Brewer, president of Collegiate Christian Fellowship, announced this week that Dr. Gilbert C. H. Bellshaw, who was for five years chaplain at San Quentin prison, will address the group on the subject, "What Does Christianity Mean To You?" today during college hour in Room 200. All students and instructors are invited to hear Dr. Bellshaw. What about alumni of San Quentin?

By way of a correction for an announcement in last week's Guardsman, the organization receiving the award for having 100 per cent membership in the Associated Students first was Beta Tau fraternity last semester, and the successor for this semester is Phi Beta Delta fraternity. That's all!

An important meeting of the Pep Club will be held today during college hour in Room 9K, west campus. The Pep Club is affiliated and subsidiary to the Rally Commission, and its members spend their time promoting the old college try for sport and social activities. Anyone interested in reviving college spirits are invited to join.

Jazzers, don't be scared! Come on out in the open and turn in your names to this reporter so that the Hot Jazz Society can get rollin'.

Beta Phi Beta fraternity brothers report that Morie's Point down on the coast road is a good place to spend an evening, witness their social held there last Saturday night. Other campus clubs are invited to sample the Point's hospitality.

Add ems: The Alumni's Homecoming dinner Monday evening turned out to be a huge success, and congratulations are to be extended to the Hotel and Restaurant Division for their terrific vittles-and-service. The inch-thick steaks were really appreciated. (Especially by us.)

Now, I lay me down to sleep . . .

Hotel Group Attends Coronado Convention

Hilda Watson, chairman of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, and three students attended the California State Hotel Convention at Coronado on October 11, 12, and 13, where they submitted the annual report on the division's progress and the placement of graduates.

A Resort Hotel Advisory Committee formed at the convention with George Hoberg as chairman will meet at City College within a month.

The committee, which is comprised of owners and managers of resorts throughout California, will discuss new courses in resort management which may be offered at the college next semester.

Lawns To Adorn Main Building Landscape

Steps were taken towards beautification of the college's permanent campus Monday, as workmen from the Department of Buildings and Grounds of the San Francisco Unified School District began the planting of a new lawn on the northern and southern ends of the present main building, President Louis G. Conlan announced yesterday.

The new lawn will be planted in the areas between the main building and Cloud Circle, and will run east and west between the present lawn and the site of the proposed academic building.

The two areas have previously contained nothing but dried grass, weeds and occasional tree stumps.

Floriculture Department Plans Extensive Landscaping Work

By Robert R. Johnson

Plans were put in action by the Floriculture department last Friday for an extensive landscaping program designed to further beautify the area surrounding the greenhouse and adjacent buildings, according to Harry E. Nelson of the Floriculture department.

The program consists of two major porjects:

1) Construction of a red brick patio in the corner formed by the connection of the greenhouse and the class rooms, underway Friday.

2) Construction of a four level terrace on the east side of the class rooms.

Informal ground breaking ceremonies were first conducted on the patio project, when the longitudinal frames were set for the pouring of the cement. Engineering students surveyed the site the next week, after which the Landscape Construction class began actual construction of their project under the guidance of John R. Herman, instructor.

Purpose of the patio, besides reasons of appearance, is to provide a comfortable place, perhaps even luxurious, for students and faculty members of the Floriculture section to eat their lunch and to receive visitors.

"The patio will be 20 feet long, 16 feet wide, and will be bordered by shrubs, flowers and trees, all grown in our nursery," Nelson declared. "This project will afford our landscape students an opportunity to acquire plenty of practical experience and, give them the pleasure of contributing something permanent to the college.

"Our second project, the terrace, will involve a good deal more work than the patio," Nelson added. "At the present time we are only in the blueprint stage. A project such as this is not financed by college funds. Consequently, we are compelled to acquire the necessary materials through our own efforts. In this case, Eaton and Smith, construction contractors, have offered to give us the needed rock."

The four level terrace, when completed, will change one of the ugliest spots on the campus to quite probably the most attractive, Nelson believes. Plans call for part of the terrace, which is to be made of rock, to have flowers and shrubs, and the rest to be in lawn. Besides making this particular section more attractive, the terrace will also serve to retain the small hill which is gradually being washed away.

"A sprinkler system is being given consideration," Nelson added. "The problem is getting the pipe."

Municipal Railway Cuts Into Off-Campus Parking

An estimated 300 City College student-motorists were hard pressed for adequate parking space early last week as Municipal Railway Company's workmen proceeded to block off the hitherto Ocean and Phelan Avenue parking area.

The Municipal Railway system has taken a temporary lease on this property. It will be used as a temporary storage depot for storing old pipes and rails that are being taken up from streets in the downtown area and vicinity.

Many rails and pipes have already been stored there, and the area was blocked off with some of the rails.

This property is not a part of the college's tract, but students in dire need of sufficient parking space began using it several years ago to meet their parking difficulties. Since that time it has been the center of privileged parking for many hundreds of students driving to college each day.

Relinquishment of the parking area had been expected by students since early last semester.

On February 16, 1949, the City Real Estate Department offered this property for sale to the highest cash bidder for not less than a 120,000 dollars; however, there were no takers; it is still officially the property of the City Water Department.

Registration Numbers System To Continue

Reelstration by numbers which replaced the alphabetical system this semester proved very successful and will be continued in the future, Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare, said yesterday.

In line with the policy of streamlingling the registration system, the offices of counsellors and advisers and the sign-up rooms may be moved to the west campus next semester in order to make everything more centrally located, Marsh said.

South Pacific Subject Of Film To Be Offered Today In Room 136

Maintaining the high caliber of movies shown every Friday by the audio visual aids department as the main feature of the college film series is Enchanted Isles, a kodachrome film.

This was announced today by Madison Devlin of the audio visual aids department.

Released by Standard Oil Company, Enchanted Isles gives the audience the opportunity of seeing the South Pacific in the comfort of a chair, Devlin declared.

"The film shows a variety of interesting sights, outstanding of which may be the native dances done to the accompaniment of native music," he added.

Shown every Friday in Room 136 during the hour following college hour, the college film series is becoming increasingly more popular with students and faculty members alike. "For this reason," Devlin said, "and because Enchanted Isles is such a wonderful picture, let me urge everyone to come early if they want good seats."

Council Votes Unanimously For New West Campus Parking Area

A proposal submitted to the Associated Student Council seeking to open for parking purposes that area between the auditorium and Building 13, the Waldorf, was passed unanimously by the committee at last Tuesday's council meeting.

It was suggested that part of the fence along that area be taken down and a gate placed there for easy access. However, someone pointed out that it would not be possible as the college does not own the property.

Associated Student President Harry Williams proposed raising the price of Associated Student cards during the spring semester from $5.00 to $6.50 to pay for a free yearbook.

Administrators Push Student Store Plans

Donation Of Stones Speeds Up Work On Planting New Lawn

New developments for planting of a lawn on the rear East Campus were realized today, when 2000 cobblestones were donated by Eaton and Smith Construction Company for building of a wall which will extend down Circular Avenue.

This is just one phase of the plans now being undertaken to beautify 60,000 square feet of barren waste land situated on the east campus behind the gymnasiums, Harry Nelson, floriculture instructor, announced yesterday.

The soil located on the east side of the men's and women's gymnasiums will be plowed and water pipes installed by Ray Milani, head gardner and his crew in the near future. The floriculture classes will later plant grasses and shrubs in this area.

Since 1943 Nelson has completed two reports providing for a sprinkler system and the selection of various types of shrubbery. The two reports have met with the approval and action is expected soon.

The college's recently acquired $2,500,000 appropriation as a part of school bonds voted by citizens last year, has made the beautification blue print possible, Nelson indicated. The major difficulty in the undertaking is the construction of the necessary piping, Nelson said.

LOU BATMALE, assistant dean in charge of student activities, attended a meeting to consider a student co-op.

Request Will Go To School Board

Plans for an on-campus student store were pushed ahead last week when administration officials mapped preliminary steps for its installation, President Louis G. Conlan, announced yesterday.

The new venture was discussed recently at a meeting in which President Conlan, Oscar Anderson coordinator of the division of educational management, Louis Batmale, assistant dean in charge of student activities, and John Brady, dean of semi-professional courses, participated.

The student store will be developed from experience gained from the operation of similar enterprises at other colleges, President Conlan said.

The administration is now preparing a statement to submit to the superintendent's office. If approved, the plan will be passed on to the Board of Education, and finally for discussion with the Student Council.

What must be determined first, President Conlan said, is the extent of the operation. This will include location of the store, fundamental policies, type of management, and to what extent student help will be utilized. The store will be started on a small scale, he said, and expanded as experience grows.

If possible, students who are majoring in subjects that parallel the experience that might be gained from working in the store will be hired. Payment for such work will be based on that of the "downtown scale."

JACK BRADY, dean of semi-professional courses, made a survey last year for student store plans.

Violinist To Play In Concert Here Friday

San Francisco's promising best in concert entertainment graces City College this Friday when prominent violinist Xena Blair appears as guest artist in the west campus auditorium at 12 o'clock.

The program, provided admission free by the Symphony Forum, offers a prelude to what students may expect in musical entertainment, through college association with the forum, Bob Tefft, local representative, said yesterday.

Campus representatives in charge of planning Friday's program are Lois Arfsten, Bill Murray, and Tefft.

Season tickets for Thursday night student performances of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra will be available until tomorrow through college forum sponsor, Meyer Cahn.

Prices are as follows: Orchestra, Grand Tier and Dress Circle seats cost $22.80, and Balcony and Baleony Circle seats cost $15.60.

These tickets at reduced rates were made possible through the Symphony Forum, which was founded originally at the University of California, and has spread now to 37 colleges in the Bay Area.

Committee Offers Foreign Students Plan For International Friendship

Foreign students attending City College will be interested to know that plans are being formulated to develop a semi-annual affair to promote better understanding among the various countries represented, it was learned in an interview with Charles Schwieso, secretary of the American Friends Service Committee.

The committee is interested in the problems facing foreign born students attending the colleges of America, Schwieso declared.

City College has at the present time more than 200 students who were born outside the United States. Schwieso is touring the five western states, speaking to faculty members of the colleges in hope of uniting behind some plan of action.

This committee is well known in charity work abroad and won the Nobel prize in 1948 for their relief work in Europe.

Schwieso added that plans are in the preliminary stage and no definite action is anticipated for some time yet.

Foreman Seeks Voters For Ballot

P. L. Schlesinger, City College foreman of janitorial workers, yesterday issued an urgent plea to student-voters for "100 per cent support" of amendment 8 ballot granting San Francisco Civil League employees one week vacation extensions.

The charter amendment is sponsored by San Francisco improvement clubs, Teachers' organizations, Central council clubs, Civic league members, Service organizations and City College Faculty Association. Also it was un-officially endorsed by Mayor Elmer E. Robinson.

Midterm Grades To Be Announced In Classes

Midterm grades will be given out by classroom instructors again this semester following the system that was used previously, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced recently.

This system, he said, is easier for students as well as the faculty since it eliminates assigning of rooms and an extra college hour.

College Records Find New Residence

By Roberta Jackson

For the third time since the creation of the college in 1935, records which tell college history in terms of students, as developed in the registrar's office, are situated in a new location.

With the opening of the main building in 1940, the registrar's office moved to that site from its temporary headquarters at Galileo High School; and today it opens its doors on the second floor of Building 3 on the west campus.

Numerous records, file cabinets, desks, and miscellaneous items cause quite an extensive moving operation, according to Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

The office and files are located on the second floor of the building, while the IBM machines and equipment occupy the first floor.

Another move by the office that permanently preserves the past, is the photographing of all student records up to 1940 on micro-film. These files are now easily accessible in a portion of one drawer, in contrast to the 20 cabinets they formerly filled.

Miss Learnard also said that plans to photograph the remaining records of college students on micro-film are now in progress. They will probably be photographed in five-year sequences, she added.

This move of the registrar's office is the result of a plan to center the counselling and registration offices together for easier co-ordination of the two.

It follows along with the other office changes that have come about because of addition of administrative officers.

MARY JANE LEARNARD, registrar, moves 14 years of college history to new quarters in Building 3.

Full Time Positions Now Open For College Students

Immediate full time positions are now available for students, though little call has been made for part time workers, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced yesterday.

Permanent full time work is open for those qualified as a junior accountant, clerk typist, and salesman.

Several firms are looking for reliable students to fill openings as countermen, route men, newspaper delivery work, typist, and a night attendant in a veterinary hospital.

Christmas hiring is increasing, Amori added, with more than 1,000 students placed so far for the holiday season. Many positions are still open, and interested students should report to Building 2 in the near future, as the college will close Friday, December 9, instead of the usual later date.

Students wishing part-time or full time work should watch the opportunities bulletin board in Building 2, second floor, for the latest job placements, he added.

Scenes For Comedy Nearing Completion

Scenes and sets for the college production of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing are beginning to show definite shape as the evenings of presentation roll near, announced Paul Ellison, drama director.

Cast in the play's leading roles are the following students: Jane Howarth as Beatrice, Jim Carlson and Ronald Zimmerman, who alternate as Benedict, George Jackson as Don John, Leonard Wolf as Boriachio, Bill Hinsen as Dogberry, William Matheson in the part of Verges and Vivian Breslin, and Mary Cooke as Hero.

Performance dates are set for November 17, 18, 19, 21, 22, and 23.

November 9 Last Day To File Course Drops

Final day when students may drop a course is Wednesday, November 9, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced yesterday.

Drop slips must be filled out and approved by the student's counsellor, and then, after approval by department heads, returned to the registrar's office.

Harry Williams Proposes CAB Structure Change

FRANCES McCARTHY, Club Activities Board chairman.

Proposal for changing the structure of the Club Activities Board, the coordinating body of all college clubs, was presented by Harry Williams, Associated Student president, last Tuesday, following a meeting of the Student Council.

Plans call for the formation of a new group of representatives to meet with the CAB. All of the various types of clubs and societies chartered in the CAB are classified according to their purpose of organization, such as fraternal, civic, religious, recreational, social, hobby, and art. Clubs of each classification would then meet as a group and elect one student to represent their general interests at CAB meetings.

The primary object of this plan, according to Williams, is to further coordinate club activities on a broad scale.

Although Williams' proposal has not encountered any serious opposition, it is generally believed that it will require a good deal of deliberation and effort to put the plan into effect.

For a change of this nature, members of the CAB must give a vote of approval, which if secured, must then be ratified by the Student Council.

Another proposal, given by Norman Reger and George d'Urioste, council members, dealt with including the yearbook in the purchase of an Associated Student card. "This would cause a slight increase in the price of the Associated Student card," Reger declared.

With various reactions received to the last proposal, it was decided to compose a questionnaire as to the advisability of such a plan, and submit it to the members of organizations represented in the CAB. If the outcome of the vote favored the price raise of Associated Student cards, then the questionnaire would go to all the students in the college.

Final action by the Student Council is dependent on receiving a decisive response from all students for the proposed change.

The Publicity Committee, represented by Chairman Nick Cholous on the Student Council, expressed its desire to have a representative from each club meet with the Publicity Committee to formulate publicity for the college.

This publicity, according to Cholous, is highly important as regards supplying high schools with information concerning City College.

Possibility For Campus Student Store Improves

POSSIBILITIES of a Student Store are looking up this week as President Louis G. Conlan met with the committee formed to consider the advantages and values of such a plan. As we have said, such a plan could become the chief source of money for student activities at the same time give reduced rate service to Associated Students.

This is not a new plan and we sincerely hope that this is the semester wherein the first steps are made toward bringing to the students of City College the same advantages enjoyed by so many other bay area colleges.

Discussing this idea along with President Conlan, were Dr. Oscar Anderson, Jesse Louis Batmale and Jack Brady. It is the plan of this committee to start the co-operative store on a small scale, and later to expand as the college and the students gain experience in the operation of such a venture.

A survey of student stores at other colleges shows the enormous value of such a venture and, although there are many problems to be solved, we hope to see a City College student store in the near future.

IT seems necessary at this time to bring to the attention of the students at large the purpose and function of the Publications Board. It is the purpose of this group to approve all publications for campus distribution.

No organization may legally post or distribute any literature of any type on City College campus without the approval of this board. No literature bearing the name of the college may be distributed off campus without approval of the Publications Board.

THE function of the Publications Board is to protect the name of the college and to avoid duplication of effort and expense in the publication of any material. All posters must be signed by a member of the Publications Board before distribution. So far this semester the board has taken no action, but in the future action must be taken where the rule is violated. Remember this rule was instituted solely to protect the name of the college.

Counterpoint: Channel Swim Just One Of 1920 Style Stunts

By Walt Heil

THE trend of American behavior since the end of World War II is increasingly swinging to the light-hearted mannerisms of the roaring 1920's.

Women have gone back to bobbing their hair, skirt hemlines are being raised, prosperity is with the nation, and Al Jolson is still the "world's greatest entertainer."

Lunatic stunts, performed by carefree individuals, are thriving all over the nation. Flagpole sitters are continually breaking the record for staying aloft on a swaying pole the longest possible time. Airplanes fly over cities that sponsor the flights and break endurance records without landing for fuel, food, or sleep.

CHANNEL SWIMMING FAD

But, the craziest fad that caught the public's eye was swimming the English Channel for publicity and Yankee greenbacks.

The Shirley May France fiasco started the whole thing until newspapers were filled with stories of her "daring" attempt to master the elements. Other swimmers tried too, only a handfull made it. It was all a sharp promoter's fol-de-rol. Whatever that is.

A trained seal made a laughing stock out of the whole bunch of would-be channel swimmers when he swished across the channel in six short hours. And at only 18 months of age.

It was an easy stunt for a seal to do and pointed out how silly humans are when they venture out of their natural habitat. In short, it was downright laughable.

PRINCETON SATIRE

As good as the seal episode was, Princeton University students came up with an even better satire on channel swimming. They did a take-off on Miss France's much ballyhooed dip, and George Montgomery, Tiger student, splashed across the Princeton Channel, 140 yards wide.

The satire started with Montgomery being covered with axle grease, doused with flour, toy watches hung on his arms, and dressed in a woman's baggy bathing suit. An anxious "father" went along in a canoe to see that all was right.

Handlers fed him beer through a tube to build up his stamina and just yards short of his mark, Montgomery was pulled out of the rippling water, "for his own good," as was the case with Miss France. However, Miss France reportedly came out of the water weeping at her failure, Montgomery laughed and bussed his girl.

SILLY PEOPLE

It just goes to show how utterly silly people can get sometimes. The Princeton episode was indeed a sharp satire on channel swimming and may be analyzed as a satire on other nonsensical goings on.

Think of the publicity for City College if one of its students swam the bay. Think of the money a clever guy could make. Hey, Terry Ryan . . .

Nation Envies Junior Colleges

"California's junior colleges are the envy of the nation," according to Dr. Wilford M. Aikin, noted educator, in a recent article which appeared in The Chronicle commemorating the more than 25 years' experience of the junior college system in California.

Around the Bay Area and adjacent cities there are eight "People's Colleges" serving the populace. Santa Rosa, San Jose (also a four-year college), Napa, Vallejo, Kentfield (College of Marin), San Mateo, Stockton, and this college all qualify as two-year colleges.

Four-year colleges have a fixed curriculum which attracts students interested in certain restricted academic fields, said Aikin, while junior college courses are adapted to suit the individual.

Looking-Up . . . Junior Grade Halliburtons Enjoy Island Hospitality

By Dick Briggs

SEA adventures in tropical Tahitian waters are now old stuff to City College student Jack Lang, who captained an ocean-beaten 34-foot sloop into Honolulu last week and logged in "finish" to a summer cruise of exploits with raging seas and native dancing girls on moonlight rendezvous in the seldom-reached Society Islands.

This column earlier reported Lang's arrival in Tahiti (October 4 issue) and promised more detailed information when the skipper and three companions returned home.

LANDFALL

When 33 days from Los Angeles, the crew saw first sight of the Society Group — Marguesas Island, a thick square of land looking emerald toned and "awesome" from far out on shipboard.

In port Nuku-Hiva the crew met their first local celebrity in a distinguishly titled old sailor called "Trader 300," who obtained fresh cocoanuts, mangoes, papayas, oranges and lemons, and directed Lang to pinpoint Takaroa Atoll.

Enroute however, a violent wind slashed huge sections of the sails and forced the ship into refuge at Manini, miles west of their destination. At Manini, Lang and companions were welcomed by native chieftains and pretty village princesses of the Ahe and Maulhi tribes.

GIFTS

At dusk during a firelight ceremony, the chieftains bestowed the adventures with hordes of chickens and cocoanuts, and entertained with dances by shapely native girls, and music from bamboo guitars.

At dawn the village's stronger men were selected to accompany the crew through jungle trails into a seldom visited inlet, too dense with reefs for navigation by larger boats. The native leader gave directions and the tourists began their first experience at pearl diving.

Before departing from Ahe three days later, the island king ordered the ship's hold loaded with food provisions, and made a parting oration in tribute to the unseverable bond of friendship that grew between the tribe and the short-visiting Americans.

GIFTS

TOWED IN

Voyaging homeward, choppy seas and moisture caused failure of all but one navigation instrument, though with good sailor's luck many navigated to Bora Bora and resumed to Honolulu where, outside port, the engines faltered and the Coast Guard towed the sloop into port.

Spotlight: How To Commute On A Bus, Or Wrestling Made Easy

By Keith Gardner

HAVING already recorded in this column the evils of commuting by automobile, we herewith present the other side of the story.

Travel, the old maxim tells us, is broadening. This is especially true if it is done in a sitting position, but the average student who commutes via the public transportation systems needn't worry at all.

NO SEATS

No one gets a seat on the busses these days without a personal recommendation from the manager of the company, or a certified statement proving that the bearer is 126 years old, purblind, and completely paralyzed. The rest stand.

Even if, by some odd quirk of fate, you do manage to get a seat, the battle is only half won. Someone is bound to flop down next to you and try to occupy nine-tenths of the seat.

This type can generally be discouraged with a good, hard thrust of the elbow. Incidentally, such methods are highly endorsed by physicians who specialize in bone-setting.

KARLOFF

Sitting is still infinitely preferable to standing, though. Standees are prone to catch an unusual affliction known as Karloff's disease. The symptoms are a blank stare, rigid knee joints, and a habit of snarling at old ladies. The author of the Frankenstein stories is said to have been a steady commuter.

Don't get the impression that all is hopeless. There is a lighter side to the story, yet. A fellow named Smith wrote a book in which he tells of a man who would stop streetcars, tie his shoelaces on the lower step, then cheerfully wave the car on its way. As soon as the fracture heals we intend to try this again ourself.

In conclusion we might as well pass along the information that the only difference between a can of sardines and a bus full of commuters is that the sardines are dead. On second thought maybe there isn't any difference at all.

Local Graduate Gets Emporium Position

Phyllis Pabst, fall '45 graduate of the college, has been appointed head buyer for the collegienne active sportswear department of the Emporium, Virginia Gonn of the merchandising management department announced recently.

Miss Pabst, a straight "A" student in merchandising while attending City College, has worked at the Emporium since before her graduation, and was formerly assistant buyer in the neckwear department.

The success of Miss Pabst is only one instance of former City College graduates making good in merchandising. Many more are employed in this field.

DISCussions Of Some Current Music, Both Swing And Bebop

By Don Cunningham

Strangely enough the West Coast, known for many years as a haven for the Mickey Mouse brand of commercialized music, is rapidly developing into the jazz center of the nation.

Since its early war days at the Dawn Club, the Lu Watters aggregation has been the sole representative of the New Orleans beat in the west. San Francisco's notoriety in musical circles is founded on the city's hardy support of such banal outfits as those fronted by Leighton Noble and Freddie Martin.

Previous to the Jack Sheedey dixie cats' recent engagement at the Sir Francis Drake, no jazz group had ever played at a leading San Francisco hotel.

Sheedey's success at the Drake has secured for the bunch a permanent stand in the increasingly popular Club Hangover. Among the other pioneers of jazz on the coast the names of Bunk Johnson and Kid Ory can never be ignored.

As of late, the local dispensaries of notes and bars on the campus have been enjoying the harvesting of a bumper crop of musical corn.

A deluge of Sammy Kaye platters has engulfed the Snack Bar along with the inevitable, distasteful wax stylings of one Billy Eckstine.

The juke box at the Bar, once the proud amplifier of the commendable efforts of Dizzy Gillespie, Charlie Parker, and the other exponents of progressive jazz, is now an uninteresting smudgepot of waltzes and saccherine pop hits.

Music, like any other form of art, should progress rather than remain in a passive state. The only way this can be accomplished is to educate the public. The hackneyed musical styles of 20 years back are not fit fodder for this generation.

Rams Suffer First Setback In Two Years

LACC Evens Series With 31-7 Victory Over Klemmermen

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

COX STADIUM, Oct. 21—Inspired Los Angeles City College unleashed a powerful ground attack tonight to hand the college eleven an unmerciful 31-7 lacing in a non-conference game.

Behind the brilliant play of halfbacks Tom Novikoff and Jim Durant the Cubs evened the north-south series at six wins apiece and racked up the highest margin of victory in the series' history.

Novikoff virtually broke the Rams' back when he returned the opening kickoff 90 yards to score. This was all the encouragement the Cubs needed as they rolled on to tally four more touchdowns and make the Rams first defeat in 16 contests a decisive one.

After the opening touchdown, however, the locals came back on a 73 yard drive to even the score. John Brown and Cledus Washington paced the drive with Brown finally reaching pay dirt after a 14 yard romp around left end. Al Look converted.

From then on it was all Los Angeles. Midway in the second quarter the Cubs intercepted a pass on their own 37 yard line to commence a 63 yard touchdown march that was climaxed by a one yard plunge by fullback Gary Smallwood.

Paced by the running and passing of Durant, Coach Red Hand's charges pushed 64 yards early in the third period for their third tally. Durant ended the journey by crashing over from two yards out to score the first of his two touchdowns. Only a few minutes later he scored again from two yards out after the Cubs had recovered a fumble on the San Francisco 35 yard marker.

Taking advantage of Jerry Oimstead's misdirected 13 yard punt that went out of bounds on the locals 21 yard stripe, the Cubs wound up the night's scoring with a 20 yard pitch from Durant to Jim Connors.

It was apparent that many Rams, who were injured in the Monterey game and forced to miss practice during the week, were stale and not playing their normal game.

MAINSTAY in the Ram forward wall is powerful 210-pound right tackle Bob Williamson, who works both the offensive end defensive positions.

Lamb Gridders Invade Marin College Today

Coach Roy Burkhead's junior varsity football squad treks to Kentfield today where it tangles with the Marin College junior varsity.

Last week the Lambs won their season opener against the Mission High Reserves 13-0. The locals scored in the third quarter on a 15-yard romp by halfback Lonnie Johnson and a 35-yard intercepted pass return by center Charles Shamblee, who displayed the running ability of a halfback. Pat Patterson converted.

Burkhead has also scheduled games with the junior varsities of Polytechnic High, San Francisco State, Balboa High, and Lincoln High in that order.

Soccer Squad Invades University Of San Francisco Turf Saturday

After a week's bye, practice resumes with the accent on passing and speed as the Ram soccer team prepares for their tilt with the University of San Francisco on the Don turf Saturday morning.

Mentor Roy Deiderichsen is experimenting with players, moving Nick Vasilieff to center half from his fullback position to take advantage of his powerful kicking.

Kicking goals from any distance loomed as a Ram weakness in the California game. Diederichsen is also working on improving the team hustle which he complains is liable to collapse at any time during the contest.

Last season the Dons and Rams fought to a tie twice, but it did not affect the USF standing as they went on to garner the title.

Thus far in the season the locals have tied San Francisco State 2-2, beat the California Aggies 3-2, and lost to the California Bears by a 1-2 score.

Four games are left on the schedule: USF this Saturday and Santa Clara, Stanford, and UCLA play here the following weeks.

RAMblings . . . Ram-Bulldog Winner Receives Dual Headed Tom-Tom Trophy; Series Started In 1936

By Frank Monte

COME kickoff time Saturday night, when the Rams meet the San Mateo Bulldogs at San Mateo in their traditional rivalry game, both squads will be fighting for possession of the "tom tom" trophy.

Introduced in 1946, when the locals scored their largest win over the Mateans, 35-18, it has remained in the campus trophy cabinet, by virtue of 7-6 and 26-0 wins in 1947 and 1948, respectively. A Chinese tom-tom, it has an embossed Bulldog on one side and a Ram's head on the other side.

Rivalry between the two colleges began in 1936 when the peninsula aggregation humbled the Rams 7-0. Since then the townies have won seven and lost two. The worst humiliation handed the Bulldogs was in '46 when the college eleven whipped them twice by scores of 20-13 and 35-18.

Color and spirit reached its height last year, even to the extent of card tricks displayed by the local rooters, when the two teams met at Kezar Stadium before 3,500 people, and all proceeds went to the Damon Runyon Memorial Cancer Fund. Incidentally the Red and White won.

From down south comes news that John Muir Junior College defeated Compton College, 22 to 21, but to no avail. The game was declared no contest when the Western States Conference ruled Mustang Quarterback Ed Demirjian ineligible, because he was a so-called non-resident.

The words non-eligible must really carry a wallop in the Southland, with eight men from Pasadena City College already blacklisted and now Demirjian booted.

Things are so hot in the Western States Conference that John Muir has broken off all relations with the Tartars. Petitions are floating around to ban Compton from future patricio-ban Compton from future partici- (Wow.)

Browsing through some old Guardsman files, we came across something we thought kind of funny. The parking situation was so bad in 1944 that Dean Edwin C. Brown had to ask that no more cars park on the football field. Automobile tracks were present all over the turf. (Besides the only driving that should be done on a gridiron is by the forward wall.)

Last Year's Basketball Team Loses To '36 Varsity In 25-24 Thriller

Amid the creaking of aged bones and the heckling of some 200 spectators, the 1936 college championship basketball team edged past last year's champions 25-24 in the men's gymnasium, last Wednesday night.

Showing that he still has the fight that made him a star in 1936, forward Ernie Loustalot paced the winners with nine points, while the rest of the team, consisting of Guido Nicco, Carlyle Caine, Paul Rippon, Bill Glynn, Ed McSweeney, Bob "Red" Lowans, "Blinky" Felix Anido, and Ralph Hillsman peppered the basket from far out, and kept the points well divided.

Coach Hillsman played much the same as he did 13 years ago, a team man on offense, and a stellar defensive man, breaking up alone many of the opponents' scoring thrusts.

Cleverest basket of the evening for the "old timers" was scored by referee Tom Wilson on a play set up by the other able referee, Lou Batmale.

Leading scorer for last year's club was forward Bob Matheny with eight points, closely followed by Jim "Pop" Caldwell with six.

Second game of the evening found last year's varsity subduing this year's material 42-32.

Matheny was again high point man for the alumni with 14 points, while Dud Trueisen garnered 12. High point honors for the losers went to "Skip" Carnegie with ten digits.

Cub Coach Applauds Puckett's Work; 'LA Played Good Football'—Klemmer

By Gene Van Dyke

Dressing room conversation following the City College-Los Angeles game ran hot and cold. Cheers and congratulations came from the Cubs scene, while reserved chatter filtered from disappointed Ram team quarters.

Winning Coach Red Hand was asked to give a comparison between the City College squad of 1948 as matched with this season.

"They (City College) were better all around last year," he began. "Matson was very good. I think, though, he played better ball in other games than he did against us."

Hand added: "You lost a lot of linemen from last season. If your big Puckett, had remained in the game it might have been a different story."

When requested to compliment members of his club, Hand elaborated, "Fischer was very steady at tackle. You know," he added, "he came up from third string. Gosh," he explained, "he only weighs 185."

On the losing side, Coach Grover Klemmer emphasized: "If we had to lose, I'm glad it was in a non-conference game." He continued, "a lot of our trouble is we haven't played the single wing enough. The fellas aren't used to it," said Klemmer, "and are finding it hard to accustom themselves."

Giving praise Klemmer stated, "I think they (Los Angeles) came up here with a lot of spirit. LA played good football." Prior to Friday evening's win the Cubs had lost three straight. "A losing team always has a lot of spunk," concluded Klemmer.

"Tonight's game took off a lot of pressure and I hope the fellas will play with more enthusiasm for the remainder of the season," Klemmer concluded.

Defaults Mark First Week Of Intramural Basketball

Whether players have no interest in intramural basketball, or if they do not know when their teams are playing, is still an undecided issue as the tournament entered its second round of play last week.

Everything possible is being done to notify teams when they are to play. A schedule of games has been posted in the men's gymnasium, the main building, and The Guardsman office.

Although the second day of play was a great improvement over the first, only half of the six games scheduled were played. In these contests the Washington 130's were victorious over the Crusaders by a 53-42 score, the River Rats easily beat the Hornets 37-13, and the Balboa Alumni A. C. proved to be the big threat for the championship by manhandling the Latin-American Club 40-9.

Intramural Touch-Football Entries Due Oct. 28

Those interested in the opening intramural round robin must have their entries in by Friday, October 28, according to Intramural Director Tom Wilson. Entries will be accepted by Wilson in the office of the men's gymnasium through Friday. Managers of club or independent teams should fill out the application below.

Campus Police Force Increased By Thirteen, Totals Nineteen

Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement instructor, announced that 13 more students recently were added to the campus police force, bringing its total strength to 19 men. The swearing in ceremonies took place Thursday, October 13, at the Hall of Justice, with Chief of Police Michael E. Mitchell administering the oaths.

Students sworn in were Jerome Ammerman, Lee Bottorff, Ronald Crawford, George Berejkoff, John Drury, Robert Lovell, John McKenna, Robert Patterson, Eugene Thompson, Richard Weinand, Frances Woomer, John Dilling, Charles Lane, Jr.

On October 14 new officers for the Law Enforcement Division were elected. Assuming their new posts are Chief of Police Gordon Hall, Lieutenant Leland Johnstone, Secretary-Treasurer John McKenna, Sergeants Norman Yates and Herbert Belben. The plain clothes investigators are Irving Marks, Hershel Smith.

Members of the campus police force receive two credits for their field work. Although they are paid a small sum by the Associated Students for patroling at the games, they donate their time when on duty at other activities. Their main function is to enforce all regulations adopted by the president of the college, Fitzgerald said. This is the first year uniforms have been worn at football games.

Armand Magid Takes Honors In AMS Speech Tournament

Marking the initial appearance this semester of competitive speaking at the college last Tuesday, Armand Magid walked off with top honors in a speech tournament sponsored by the Associated Men Students as a part of Homecoming Week.

Magid demonstrated a ten minute oration, a five minute extemporaneous speech, and a three minute talk which proved too much for his opponents, Bill Hanson and Leonard Wolf, who placed second and third respectively.

Magid's name is the first inscribed on the trophy which Dean Louis Batmale presented to Phi Rho Pi, National Speech Honor Society, for future speech competition.

Students from 87 of California's high schools will take the speakers' platform here on Friday and Saturday, November 11 and 12, during an invitational speech tournament sponsored by the honor society, Irwin Phillips, tourney director, announced recently.

Preliminary judging will be done by students from the college, University of San Francisco, and San Francisco State College, while the final decisions will come from Judge H. A. Van Der Zee, Judge Alvin Weinberger, and other judges from municipal and superior courts in San Francisco. All aspects of public speaking will be presented.

Radio Students Give Play-By-Play Description Of Rams' Home Games

College home football games are now being broadcast over a public address system to give spectators a better statistical play-by-play description.

The first of these sporteasts was presented at the Menlo College game. Announcers for the games are Don Parker, Bill Sea, Johnny Kearns, all of the Radio Workshop. The public address system is furnished by the student body.

Several problems confront the sport announcers, including the lack of spotting telephones, which forces them to rely on their own judgment. No starting lineups for either team were on hand for the Menlo game, and as a result mistakes were made.

The recent trend of give-away radio programs has even spread to the campus. Last Thursday, October 20, just such a show, called Pick-a-Question, was presented by the Radio workshop class.

Eight contestants were picked from the student audience, and prizes were donated by local merchants. The half hour show was produced by Sea and Kearns, with Bob Bill as master of ceremonies.

Home Economics Class Uses Weaving Plates

Students in the textile and clothing class are attempting to work with actual plates, Claire Magnesi, home economics instructor, said yesterday.

The plates are used to spin yarn or to weave fabrics of a richer textile material, with silk or wool on the surface and cotton on the inside or back.

A series of home tests are also being made to determine the various types of fibers in certain materials.

Blind Agency In Quest For Apprentice Dog Trainers

By Clarence Whitcomb

Helping the blind offers an opportunity for the right men, and the job of apprentice guide dog trainer may be the answer for students looking for a well paying job plus a desire to help the disabled.

The Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc., an active organization that furnishes eyes to those who can not see, is offering an on-the-job training program to men interested in care and training of animals.

This organization has furnished many dogs to the blind in the past, and needs men now to train dogs for the thousands of blind who still are unable to have a seeing eye dog because of the lack of properly trained men to teach the dog its duties.

This opportunity is open to men between 22 and 26 years old, veterans receiving preference. The training school is located in San Rafael and living quarters are provided for single men at no charge.

Salary depends on qualifications, with single veterans receiving $210 per month, married men $240. The salary for non-veterans will depend upon experience and performance.

Students who can meet the qualifications should report to Joseph Amori, placement director, building 2, for further information on this opportunity.

Florence Loo Approved As Award Commissioner By Student Council

The Associated Student committee approved the appointment of Florence Loo as award commissioner, following nomination by President Harry Williams during last Thursday's council meeting.

The award committee makes all decisions relative to awards presented by the Associated Students.

All petitions for awards are presented to this committee which in turn presents them to the Student Council and recommends action to be taken on them.

The committee is composed of the President of Associated Students, Assistant Dean in charge of activities, the Men's Athletic Commissioner, and the award commisioner.

Other business on the agenda was consideration of plans for putting concrete in the area between building 13 and the auditorium. This area will be used for parking purposes. Two contractors are presently inspecting the tract in preparation for submitting bids for the job.

King Jazz Raises Head Over Bay Area: Local Cats Jump For Joy

KING JAZZ is rearing his beeeautiful head on the social scene round 'n about these parts and all the cats are jumpin' for joy!

Rockin' and rollin' commences tomorrow night with the one and only, world-famous Jazz at the Philharmonic concert at the Civic Auditorium promptly at 8:30. (How high the moon: mop, mop, mop, boom boom.)

And not only this, but lovers of le hot jazz will get their kicks come Friday evening, November 4, at (of all places) Kezar Stadium, where a jazz festival is being presented out in the wide open spaces by local advocates of the hot stuff. After about a half an hour, overcoats won't be needed.

Just as gay, but not so jazzy, will be the Tau Chi Sigma fraternity dance on the same evening. Featuring the melodies of the Kerns and Ticoulot band, the ball will start in the west campus auditorium at 9. Price has been set at 75 cents per person, or $1.50 per couple. The "stag or drag" idea is stressed by the Tau Chi's.

Block SF officers for the fall semester were announced last week as the following: president, Neill Decker; vice-president, Merv Fauss; secretary, Joe Greggans; treasurer, Dave Ramos; and sergeant-at-arms, Bob Clarke. The society plans a dance for the eve[illegible] of Friday, December 2, but details won't be announced till later in the semester.

Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society disclosed its fall dignitaries recently, too, and these read as follows: president, Renna Varellas; vice-president, Masakiro Yamashita; secretary, Virginia Cutler; and CAB representative, Lois Arfsten. These officers were chosen at the club's election meeting held on Thursday, October 13, in Room 190, AGS rendezvous for the semester.

Phi Beta Delta fraternity reportedly held a rush party in some undisclosed hideout in the Oakland-Berkeley hills last Saturday night. Why so secretive, men?

Phi Beta Rho sorority queens were overjoyed at the success of their tea held at the Western Women's Club on Sunday, October 16. They were so overjoyed, in fact, that they will hold the second affair on Monday, November 9, with the traditional theme of Circus Day.

So long for a while . . .

Kappa Phi sorority gave a shower for sister Ruth Stricker on Wednesday last. Wedding bells will ring for sister Ruth and Tau Chi Sigma Joe McCann on Friday, October 28.

A call for more spirited rooters at college football games has been issued by Dave MacKay, commander of the local Pep Club. Students may become members by visiting the organization's headquarters, room 9K, during college hour.

Duties of Pep Club members consist of making noise, and lots of it, at the college games, where a section on the 50-yard line will always, but always, be reserved for them and their voices. Cards for card tricks and megaphones will also be provided.

Beta Phi Beta fraternity had its pre-smoker on Sunday, October 16, at Flood Park down San Mateo way, affording an afternoon of fun for all members.

Not to be repetitous, but jazz again is the topic of conversation. The campus hot jazz society plotters report that things are coming along just fine with the group now, thanks to many loyal fans. Just a few more members needed, though. Step on it!

J. Leroy Thompson Speaks Here Friday

Dr. J. Leroy Thompson, representative of The Wall Street Journal, New York office, is scheduled to discuss organization of business offices and decimation of news and financial stories in Room 28, main building, this Friday, instructor of business Edward Larson said yesterday.

Dr. Thompson will speak to three groups of business and journalism students. The lectures will be 40 minutes long, followed by a question period.

Each year The Wall Street Journal sends a representative on tour of colleges and universities throughout the country where publication is used for class purposes to answer questions of students majoring in finance.

College Library Modernized; Seventy New Shelves Installed

Although not apparent to the casual visitor, a change has been made in the administration of the college library this year, according to Marcus Skarstedt, coordinator of the division of instruction.

Immediate affairs of the library are now handled by a committee composed of Clement Skrabak, chairman, and members Irene Mensing and Eleanor Blinn.

The library will, however, remain under the direction of Dr. Skarstedt.

In addition, changes which can be seen have been made in the library, too. Approximately 70 new shelves have been installed in the southeast corner, giving the library the new look.

Although the new arrangement allows less seating space, it provides a greater abundance of reading material.

Located in this newly created alcove are all the 900 reference books, which include travel, biography and history books.

Previously the unbound magazines had been located in a section to the right of the loan desk, but under the new arrangement students will find them in the new section.

Hotel Training Here Places All Graduates

Of the 35 students who graduated from the college Hotel and Restaurant Division last semester, all were placed directly in jobs except those who went on to other colleges, Hilda Watson, division chairman, said yesterday.

At present 12 graduates are employed by the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, while 17 others are claimed by the Fairmont, St. Francis, Claremont, Chancellor, and various other hotels in the bay area.

Gold Trophies Ready For Speech Tournament Here

A sneak preview in the trophy room of Granat Brother's Mission Street store last Thursday brought forth 25 gold trophies for awards at the City College Speech Tournament being held on campus November 11 and 12 for debaters from 115 California high schools.

Given for Superior Court Judges H. A. van der Zee and Alvin Weinberger, tournament debating judges, the preview was managed by Irwin Phillips, tourney director, Armand Magid, assistant tourney director, and Louis Batmale, dean of student activities.

Phi Rho Pi, speech honor society, is sponsoring the tournament, to raise trip funds for future national contests of forensic competition.

A sweepstakes trophy and gold cup will be presented to the school and student obtaining the most sweepstakes points. The remaining awards go to winners of each division and event.

Judges van der Zee, Weinberger, John B. Molinari and other municipal and superior court judges not present during the sneak preview will render final decisions while students from the college and the University of San Francisco and San Francisco State College will be preliminary judges.

Debate coach for the tournament is Michael Griffin, speech instructor at the college.

TROPHIES for 25 champions in the coming high school debate tournament planned for November 11 and 12 on campus, are being selected by contest officials Judge H. A. van der Zee, Tournament director; Irwin Phillips, student Debate team representative; Dean Lou Batmale, Tournament Controller; Armand Magid, student Debate Team representative, and Municipal Judge Alvin Weinberger.—Photo by Dittmore.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society Lists Active Members

Active membership of 49 students in Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, was revealed today by faculty adviser, Don Jensen, who commented that students should "realize that graduation with honors and recommendations to other schools requires membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma.

"Though only 49 are enrolled, many more students are eligible to become members, but have failed to make application," Jensen said.

"A student may have had the qualifications throughout his college career, but unless he has actively belonged to Alpha Gamma Sigma he is not eligible for graduation with honors or recommendations," Jensen added.

Qualifications for membership are as follows: At least 12 units, 30 grade points, a "B" average (however with less than 15 units an average above "B" is necessary) and no grade lower than a "C".

Names of the present members are as follows:

Fourth semester—Donald A. Peters.

Third semester—Richard P. Brennan, Richard A. Cronce, Pearl Fong, Joan Moore, Marian Stemike, Ben Chang Wong, Renna Varellas, Masahiro Yamashita.

Second semester—Lois Arfsten, George M. Anderson, Joseph Azzolino, David Pierce Baily, Gerald R. Brady, Marjorie Brownwood, Carlos Cheng, Virginia Cutles, Boris Goloobkoff, Barbara Low, Frank Thunberg, Osamie Toba, Owen Yeager, Charles Bergren, Arnold Cooper.

First semester—Phyllis Allen, Clifford Asviti, George Boyko, Richard Chalmers, Jean Chalmers, Arnold Cooper, Gloria D'amico, Roy Gustafson, Robert Kays, June Louie, John Low, John Lyddane, Armand Mayed, Irvings Marks, Tsoy Miy, Kenneth Parker, John Porter, Klaus Schaie, Leonard Seader, Alberta Shiras, Avdath Smith, Hershel Smith, Hurny Stehr, Tozhi Tanaka, Bernard White

Midterm Exams Cancel College Hour Today

There is no college hour scheduled for today because of mid-term examinations, Louis Batmale, dean of activities, announced.

This being the last day of examinations, Batmale suggested all students attend the City College-San Mateo football game Saturday night and give whatever remaining energy they have in support of the Rams.

Midterm grades for the first midterm period will be given out in classes during the week of October 31 to November 4, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced recently.

Vacation Job Seekers Meet

the employers' desire to train workers before the Christmas rush.

The wage scale on the various job openings is about the same as last Christmas, running from $.98 to $1.40 per hour, Amori added.

The exact date for the employment meeting will be announced as soon as it is decided.

Amori stressed the fact that students wishing Christmas employment must obtain the proper application from the placement department as employers are not accepting students who have not been interviewed by the college placement director.

Experienced sales workers are still in great demand for the holidays. Student workers are needed for wrapping, cashiers, and delivery work.

Most of the above positions are open for immediate placement because of Visual Aid Film Has State Theme

"California and Its Natural Resources" is the kodachrome movie scheduled to be shown today in Room 136 at 11 o'clock.

This was announced by Madison Devlin of the audio visual aids department which presents a different program each week at the same time and place.

In a short 40 minutes this film, released by Richfield Oil Company, manages to show more interesting features of California than a person could possibly see in a number of years.

Besides the natural wonders, the film also shows many of California's leading industries such as lumbering, manufacturing and aircraft.

Ten Campus Music Organizations Form Council To Unify Activities

Formation of a music council was begun last Friday when representatives of the ten music organizations in the college met during college hour at the suggestion of Meyer Cahn, band and orchestra director.

The ten organizations that participated in the formation of the council are the City College Band, the Orchestra, A Cappella Choir, Treble Clef, Men's Glee Club, Lambda Alpha, Mu Iota Psi, Opera Workshop, Music Majors, and Symphony Forum.

The council's aims are to unify the music interests, to create good fellowship among music organizations, to maintain performance standards of the individual groups and the music tastes of the college as a whole, and to provide a closer relationship among the large group of music students enrolled here.

Robert Tyson was elected president of the music council and Eileen Scott, secretary.

The council and the music faculty also announced that they have made definite plans to present the 15th annual Christmas Concert. The concert is scheduled Thursday, December 8.

New CAB Plan Causes Controversy

The controversial problem of adding seven more representatives to the Club Activities Board was discussed at the CAB meeting last Friday, Frances McCarthy, CAB president, stated.

After lengthy discussion, it was decided to investigate the problem more thoroughly and at the next meeting, another vote may be taken.

The proposal of adding the additional members to the CAB was submitted by Harry Williams, Associated Student president. Purpose of the seven new members would be to represent the general interests of college organizations according to their classification at CAB meetings.

Main objection to the plan stemmed from the belief that the new representatives would possess too much power, Miss McCarthy said.

Journalist Addresses Students

Dr. J. Leroy Thompson, educational services director of the New York Wall Street Journal, a financial publication, will address three groups of business and journalism students at the college this morning, it was disclosed by Edward W. Larson, instructor of business, late yesterday.

Dr. Thompson will deliver his first speech in the Little Theatre, main building, at 9 a.m. He will again address students at 11 o'clock in Room 204 and at 1 p.m. in Room 213.

His lectures will deal with effective organization of business offices, the training of news and research staffs, sources of news material, and the building and elaboration of news and financial stories.

The lectures are approximately 40 minutes long; and a question period will follow immediately after each lecture. Students are urged to ask questions on the subject. Any and all questions relative to the functions of business operations and/or business writing will be answered.

The Wall Street Journal is widely used in many colleges and universities throughout the country as text books to acquaint students with the technique of gathering, editing and dissemination of business and financial news material.

An award is presented annually by the Journal to a graduating student in the division of business and education achieving high scholastic standing and indicating potential promise in the field of finance and investment.

The award consists of a silver medal and a one year's subscription to the Journal.

High School Diploma Petitions Due Soon

Veterans expecting to obtain their high school diplomas at the end of this semester must file a petition requesting evaluation of their units, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced today.

These petitions for graduation must be filed during the weeks of October 31 to November 4, and November 7 to 10, Marsh added.

Veterans desiring evaluation of their units should obtain a petition from Mary Perry in Building 3, Marsh said.

Four College Leaders Attend State Government Conference

Four student leaders and a faculty adviser left by Western Airlines yesterday for the State Student Government Conference being held in San Bernardino Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The college's representatives at the Conference are Harry Williams, Associated Student president; Ronnie Morrison, vice-president; Frank Bayol, Associated Men Student president, and Norman Reger, Alumni liaison officer. Louis Batmale, dean of activities, accompanied the students.

Purpose of the conference is to discuss the various phases of student government and student activities. One of the major problems to be considered, according to Williams, is the compulsory purchase of student body cards.

At the last California Student Government Conference, held here October 7, 1949, it caused much heated discussion. No positive action was taken then because of the radical change in legislation involved.

Informed observers consider the chances of passage of such legislation dubious because it would require modification of the principles of free education.

While in San Bernardino the four students and Batmale are staying at the Lake Arrowhead Hotel.

The conference convened yesterday afternoon and will end Saturday afternoon. All the representatives plan on making the trip back in time for the San Mateo football game with the Rams Saturday night.

AWS Entertain Freshmen

With hob-goblins and pumpkins as decorations, the Associated Women Students get together for their quarterly tea at two p.m. next Tuesday in the Building 2 lounge. Purpose of the meeting is to welcome new members.

Martha Scott of the science department, and Mary Golding, of the counseling center, will pour tea, and AWS officers, Sandy MacKay, president; Bev Jank, vice-president; Joan Tweedt, secretary, and Michi Soda, treasurer, will serve.

Members of the Treble Clef, under the direction of Gertrude Norgard of the music department, will sing, and records will supply the background music.

Dean Margaret Dougherty and President MacKay have asked that all members turn out for the first meeting, thereby insuring a successful afternoon for the 1949 AWS season.

Dean Issues Passes For Student Ushers

Passes are now being given by Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, in Building 2 to those students wishing to usher for the Don Cossack Chorus and Jan Peerce recitals.

The Chorus will be presented on Thursday night, November 3, and Peerce sings Saturday night, November 5. Students with passes must be at the opera house by 7 p.m.

Opening Symphony Forum Concert In Auditorium Today Features Violinist

In the spotlight for the opening Symphony Forum Concert, scheduled for the auditorium at 12 noon today, is Xenia Blair, promising San Francisco violinist, pictured at left.

Miss Blair, who is a graduate of Lowell High School, has studied for nine years, most recently under the direction of Naoum Blinder, concert master of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

Performances for various musical clubs and an appearance on a Los Angeles radio program have shown her talent and ability clearly. Her program today is identical to the one she will perform in San Bernardino on November 2.

Miss Blair will be accompanied at the piano by Ludwig Altman, organist for the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra and Temple Emanu-El.

Loyal Support Of Football Team Is Vote Of Confidence

LOYALTY, defined by Webster as the act of being faithful or true to any person or institution to which one owes fidelity, is a pertinent subject at this time. More specifically, loyalty to a fine football team which last week lost its first game since 1947.

Loyalty, it seems to us, is not the mere sticking with a team that is winning all the games. True loyalty is tested by the attitude of the students after their team has lost a game or two. Stanford gave us a good example of this with the fierce loyalty displayed toward a team that did not win a single game in 1947.

Herewith then, a vote of confidence to a good football team that has always been, and will always be a credit to the college. Win, lose, or tie, we are sure the students are with them all the way.

WINNING or losing is, after all, subordinate to the manner of winning or losing. Sportsmanship is, of course, being a good loser and a graceful winner. Coach Grover Klemmer's grid team ran up a record of 15 consecutive games without a defeat, which is a nice record in anybody's league. During this time the students and the team have demonstrated that they know how to be a graceful winner.

One loss, we hasten to add, does not make a losing team, but we do think it would be a nice gesture if the student support of the football team was greater now than ever before. Every football team needs and wants support. Our team has demonstrated that they deserve plenty of support. We know that the loyal students will be out in force to give them that support for their next home game against Stockton on November 17.

COACH KLEMMER has said that last Friday's game took off a lot of pressure and that he hoped that the fellows would play with more enthusiasm for the remainder of the season. We know they will play with more enthusiasm if we all get out and root for the old home team.

A good sized group of local rooters can add a lot of color and spirit to a game and at the same time encourage the team to put forth its best effort.

Counterpoint: Alaskan Gold Strike Brings New Onrush Of 49ers

By Walt Heil

NOT since the hectic days of the Klondike in 1898 has the suffering world had a gold rush of major proportions that attracted people by the scores in search of quick riches.

But, now from the deep stretches of undeveloped land, called Alaska, another seemingly important gold strike has begun. Gold was discovered in the northeast stretches of Alaska in the Yukon River area, north of the Arctic Circle recently.

FISHERMAN FINDS

The nuggets were found by Clifton Carrol, a fisherman, in an area never before prospected. As in other gold strikes, pains were taken to keep the discovery secret. It leaked out when the nuggets were taken for assay.

From there the information was relayed to Fairbanks by a road house operator. Immediately claims were filed and from appearances it looked like a big strike. If this is true it'll be a potent weapon for the people who advocate statehood for Alaska.

At any rate, a little gold rush began. Camps sprung up and tents were pitched along the Yukon River in a two mile area. Merchants, fishermen, and trappers scurried off to the field, leaving their normal business for a quick dash into the big money.

MINERS' PROBLEMS

As any City College geology student would discover on making a study of the region where the strike was discovered, the elements present a problem to the miners.

Furthermore, the local geologist would discover that the temperature ranges from 90 to 15 above zero in October, that the ground is covered by snow and is usually under water. All these factors make it hard on the miners.

However, people who are on the threshold of success rarely let minor details such as the above stand in their way. After all, where would the United States be if several thousand persons had not crossed the plains, braving Indian attacks and other hazards.

Elsewhere in Alaska at the time of their latest gold rush, citizens have shown little or no emotion toward the strike. In the immediate vicinity, however, even missionaries caught the gold fever and filed claims. Hardware store owners reported thriving business for picks, pans, and shovels.

HOT TIMES AHEAD

If the latest strike is a successful one, Alaska may again be the scene of dance hall girls, prospectors, roaring nights and blazing days, to coin a movie cliche.

Even now the oldtimers sit on their cracker barrels and speak in reverent tones of the old days. Another Jack London may even emerge from the tangled wilds with a pouch full of story material, instead of gold.

Water Sprinklers Compete With Rain

Confusion reigned at the college during a recent rainy Monday morning as students spent considerable time dropping and picking up text books and replacing their sagging lower jaws.

The cause for all this turmoil was the sight of several sprinklers adding their feebie streams of water to the heavy downfall.

It must be admitted, though, after the first hour of classes, the glassy look had disappeared from most eyes, and the sound of hysterical laughter had diminished.

Result: The grass is greener, and wetter; the west campus windows are very, very clean; and a number of the students have received negative results on their tests for rabies.

Looking-Up . . . Back To Skates For Harassed Campus Drivers; Railway Moves Cut Autos

By Dick Briggs

CAMPUS automobile owners are discovering more parking area on a hair from a flea's knee cap with the Municipal Railway's policy of using the west campus vacant lot as storage space for surplus train rails and pipes.

That area was formerly used by students as a parking lot, who, since usurpation by the Railway, have moved to the western section of the grounds.

There is no immediate danger if the Railway does not encroach on the western section, but there is no assurance this will be the case.

City College, San Francisco's largest educational institution, is handicapped in being located near the Mission and Ocean Avenue shopping centers, which naturally have most curbstone parking utilized by merchants and shoppers.

It can be argued that San Francisco State College, situated near Market Street, a more congested area than the Ocean and Mission centers, has adequate curbstone parking, therefore why should City College require a special parking lot?

It must be remembered that State College: 1) is more centrally located and therefore more accessible by inter-city transportation than City College, 2) State College has an enrollment almost one-half smaller than City College, and 3) over 1,000 City College students commute daily between the East Bay and college, of which approximately one-half travel by automobile.

This means that, considering only the students who reside in the East Bay, 500 are completely dependent on automobile transportation, plus those drivers living in the Marina, Richmond, Bay View and other far off districts who find city bus transportation too slow. Campus parking accommodations, including the inner west campus, the vacant lots, and Cloud Drive, provide space for only 600 automobiles.

Besides being troubled in finding parking space, the student driver is perplexed to find an unpainted curbstone, else the Campus Cops, too proficient in their zest to be good policemen, start handing out parking citations like old Dewey buttons.

Should the Railway "move-in" on the western parking section, we can see only three possible solutions to the problem: 1) express buses provided by the railway from the bridge terminal to City College for East Bay students; 2) recognition of the situation by the Campus Police through being more lenient to traffic violators; or 3) complete adoption of roller skates as the chief method of transportation. Though the last suggestion is perhaps a little impractical, roller skates would take the traveler to his destination a heck of a lot faster than the Bay Area transportation systems.

Much Ado About Nothing Edited For Easier Understanding—Ellison

By Roberta Jackson

Students attending last January's production of Twelfth Night were surprised to find that Shakespeare can be interesting and easy to understand. In fact the box office was so good that many were turned away, and those who witnessed the show clamoured for more.

In response to the demand, the college players, under the direction of Paul Ellison, are now preparing to stage the Shakespearian comedy, Much Ado About Nothing, to run November 17 through 23.

Much Ado is being edited by Ellison for clarity to the student, by omitting obsolete phrases, puns and difficult meanings which cause the average person to feel that Shakespeare is beyond him. Shakespeare wrote first and foremost for the stage; and together with the editing and acting can be clearly understood.

To cite an example, the lines "Then after to her father will I break" become "Then after to her father will I speak," thus removing the outdated word "break."

These changes are done in the same manner that Lawrence Olivier edited Hamlet.

Actors are helped to get the meaning of a line in modern words, and then finally to speak the Shakespearian line with the modern inflection. Ellison explained. This is the way actors are trained for plays at the Stratford Shakespearian Festival Theatre in England, he continued.

In order to give the proper effect on a small stage, like the one in Room 28, actors have to train themselves to work their moves to the inch. This is like the professional stage, where nothing is left to chance, Ellison pointed out.

The music to be used in the production was brought over from England by Ellison. Some is the authentic music of the late 16th century, the period in which the action takes place. The rest of the music in the show is based on 16th and 17th century compositions, including Respighi's The Birds.

"I know that students attending Much Ado About Nothing will enjoy Shakespeare, and they should be able to understand the play with its modern wording," Ellison commented.

Spotlight: Roaring Twenties Return; Raccoon Coats Now Required

By Keith Gardner

DON'T be surprised, gentle reader, if one of these fine days the guy standing next to you begins to smoulder and then disappears in a blinding flash of fire.

It's not spontaneous combustion. It's Flaming Youth!

FLAPPERS

So draw up a ukelele, kids, while old F. Scott FitzGardner gives you the inside dope on the Flappers of '49.

An observant reader could have noticed the first danger signs in some of the fashion magazines a few weeks back. Being a member of the Henry Morgan school ("High winds, followed by high skirts, followed by me.") we keep abreast of these things.

But even the unobservant can't help noticing the super-short haircuts that some of the fairer sex have been sporting recently. These are known as shingle hairdos, and judging from appearances they probably were designed by a roofing contractor.

Then, on top of all this evidence came the news that a ukelele manufacturer's sales have jumped to six times their pre-war level, and the latest fairy tale of Al Jolson's life was doing enough business to make the income tax men drool in anticipation.

About all it would take to complete the picture is for a few of the boys to show up at a football game in raccoon coats. To our knowledge there is only one of these things left in the country. There were two, but one of the owners was misled as to the kind of fur in his coat. He was last seen in Siberia, running on all fours after a sleigh.

That's about the way it stacks up. Better buy yourself a Duesenberg and learn how to do the Charleston. You don't want to get the reputation of being a square, do you? Personally, we'll just take our four-cornered head over in the closet and hibernate 'til the whole thing blows over.

TORPEDO JUICE?

Well, you'll have to excuse us now. That loud explosion sounded like it came from the bathroom. Afraid we got too much torpedo juice in that last batch of home brew.

Letters To The Editor

• Spirit Problem

Editor, The Guardsman:

One of the biggest problems we are faced with is the "spirit" here at City College.

I think a good example of what can be done in the way of spirit is the way the newly formed Pep Club supported their team at the Los Angeles game.

All those who participated in this show of spirit should be commended.

Also, a special pat on the back to Norm Reger, who "helped out" the yell leaders. A few more like Norm, and we would really be in the groove.

• Help, Police!

Editor, The Guardsman:

The entrance to the west campus is terrific to say the least. Particularly on Phelan Avenue. Students must enter and depart single file and the human traffic jam during the few minutes between class is quite bad.

Maybe, the student police can help ease the situation and make the crossing safer.

Rams Face Mateans For League Lead

Tomorrow Night's Battle May Decide Division Title

By Jack Madden

(Editor's Note: Jack Madden, San Matean sports editor, has written this article exclusively for The Guardsman to give its readers a closeup on the San Mateo Junior College football team.)

The great junior college teams will battle for the Northern California Junior College Conference championship this Saturday night, for it is almost a certainty that the victor will become the "champ." In one corner will be the Rams from San Francisco and in the other the Bulldogs from San Mateo.

From my vantage point in the San Mateo press box I can see that it is a tossup; a prediction is impossible. But the Ram fans may like to familiarize themselves with some of the players who will try to get the "Tom-Tom."

Coach Murius McFadden, in his 26th year at San Mateo, has two of the greatest backs in the NCJCC; Bill Calhoon and Manny Paradero. Calhoon has been acclaimed by the coach of Los Angeles City College as the best fullback in jaysee ball, even better than Hugh McElhanney, who now plays for Washington. A smashing runner, Calhoon can gain extra yardage with two or three tacklers on his back.

Paradero, on the other hand, uses his speed and shifty running to the best advantage. Paradero does the running impossible. A weakened Bulldog squad had a 13-13 tie with Salinas' Hartnell last Friday, but in the closing minutes Paradero returned a punt 73 yards to set up the winning TD on the two. To stop San Mateo the Rams must stop this pair.

Up front, Line Coach Lee Bissett has an able crew of huskies to stop any touchdown drive. Guard Jack McComb and End Sam Nicolopulos both made second string berths on the 1948 All-Conference squad and play equally well on offense and defense. Center Wes Walters gives a team with a passing offense a headache, while Glenn Sterling is a fifth man in the backfield many times.

Defensively, as far as the backfield goes, the Bulldogs are solid. Joltin' Joe Abelar and Walt Ackemann are the nucleus of any defensive operation, with the former specializing in line-crushing and the latter pass defense.

Possibly this will be the year for the Bulldogs; it is hard to say. But if the Tom-Tom reposes under Blue-and-White care this coming year, there is no doubt that the aforementioned eight had the most to do about it.

Hillsman Issues Call For Local Cage Talent

Seeking replacements for departed members of last year's NCJCC champions, basketball mentor Ralph Hillsman issued the call for all the available college cage material to sign up Monday, October 31, at 3 p.m., in Room 107 in the men's gymnasium.

Bulldogs, Rams Pace Southern League Race

San Mateo College Bulldogs are currently leading the NCJCC southern division with a two won and none lost record. Closely following the Bulldogs is City Collegeof San Francisco, Bulldog opponents tomorrow night, with a one won and one tied slate.

Menlo College is leading the league in scoring, with 53 points, and in most points allowed with 35. Modesto has the weakest offense with eight points.

Teams Unbeaten In League Play; Locals Try For Comeback

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

Problem number one facing Coach Grover Klemmer tomorrow night when the Rams invade San Mateo to tussle with the southern division leading Bulldogs is whether or not his charges will bounce back from the trouncing they received at the hands of Los Angeles City College last week.

At the present San Mateo holds the division's undisputed leadership with victories over Stockton and Hartnell Colleges. The only defeat on their season slate is a 14-0 defeat to the powerful University of California Frosh.

If the locals win tomorrow night's rival tilt they will take over the lead and be the division's only unbeaten team in league play.

Problem number two confronting Klemmer is the condition of his squad. The last two Ram games were rugged affairs. A good portion of the team was laid up the week following the Monterey encounter. This was a decisive factor in their foldup against Los Angeles.

Frank Puckett injured his knee in the first quarter last week and later other end Don Sessions, after playing a bang-up game, collapsed on the bench. Injured backs Marv Crews and Walt Jourdan hardly got their uniforms dirty, while center Jim Fales sat out most of the game nursing a bad charley horse. It seems that guard Dick Saccani's head has been kicked more than the pigskin.

Ayy should be ready to play tomorrow night, but in what condition is uncertain.

The Rams have been a winning team so far this season not only on the field but in statistics as well. Likewise, on their season record they have one setback in first downs and a deadlock in total net yards gained rushing.

	SF	Opp.
Net yards gained	975	786
Net yards gained rushing	483	483
Net yards gained passing	492	302
First downs	48	49

Evidence that the Red and White is a slow starting club is provided by the total score by quarters. In the second and fourth quarters they tallied 20 points. Their weakness in the third quarter is exemplified by their allowing 25 points.

CCSF	14	20	12	20—66
Opponents	14	13	25	6—58

John Brown is currently leading the Rams in scoring with four touchdowns and one conversion.

Intramural Play Dominated By High Scoring Contests

With the exception of one game, the second round of intramural basketball, played last week in the men's gymnasium, was dominated by one-sided, high-scoring contests.

Only close game of the week was the tilt between the Hotel and Restaurant and the Rambler teams. The Hotel and Restaurant squad settled a nip and tuck affair by scoring in the last few second to win 41-40.

Other frays found most of the favorites coming out on top. The Beavers won over the Hornets 50-21, and the Beer Caps suffered a twin defeat at the hands of the Gooks and the River Rats, 47-23 and 33-20 respectively. The Crusaders accumulated the highest score of the early weeks of play by completely subduing the Eight Balls 71-32.

Biggest upset of the tournament so far was scored by the Washington 130's over last semester's champion Balboa Buceaneer team.

Co-favorites for this semester's play, the Bucs went behind at the outset of the contest and never recovered enough to be a threat, being defeated by a final score of 61-39.

Hal Flinn was high for the losers with 12 points, while the winner's Dick Cranow was high for the game with 26.

Defaults have eliminated the Newman Club from the league.

Soccer Team Meets San Francisco Dons

After a week's rest the college varsity soccer team invades the University of San Francisco for the team's first meeting this season. Game time is set for tomorrow morning at 10 a.m.

Ties resulted from the two meetings last season as the Rams nearly ruined Don championship hopes, but despite the local interference USF ended the season on the top of the pile.

Always a team to reckon with, the Don club is fast, big, and rough, and will give the local lads, who are light and must depend on their speed instead of brawn, a bad time.

To date the Ram contingent had won one against the California Aggies, tied San Francisco State, and lost to the California Bears.

Practice this week under the direction of mentor Roy Diederichsen has concentrated on developing the passing percentage and on getting the kicking power into shape.

RAMblings . . . State-City College Game Had Potentials, Discontinued After Eight Thriving Years

By Gene Van Dyke

FOOTBALL competition between San Francisco State and City College, which in the past was a thriving inter-city rivalry overlooked by few has, over a span of forgetful years developed into a vague remembrance of just games.

In those days, 1935-42, respective student bodies made no bones about it and categorized the affair as a "Big Game." It was a natural.

Also prevalent in the natural was the inter-city struggle for dominance. Granting the two teams couldn't complete with the likes of U. S. F. the winner was considered dictator of football proceedings in minor college circles.

Not even the Gator's Far Western Conference opponents, nor the college's Conference tilts backgrounded the "rivalry of rivalries."

Large crowds, patterning boisterous cheering sections, turned out to Seals Stadium to back their teams.

The 1937 game, won by the college 12-7, had its pregame activities broadcast over station KGGC. The game was billed as the most spectacular event in the college's history.

Scoring a 32-13 victory in 1935 City College inaugurated the series. State sneaked by the Rams the following year 2-0. It was the Gators again in 1938, this time by an embarrassing 19-0 count.

A crowd of 5,000 looked on as the Rams evened up the previous year's account with State, duplicating a 19-0 dumping. Lee Eisan's 1940 squad accounted for a 19-13 win.

Just three months preceding the attack on Pearl Harbor, the college sneaked a 7-6 victory.

A 37-yard pass from Charley Cook to Bob Jones provided City College a 6-0 win in 1942. There is no account on record of any meeting between the two colleges in 1943.

Perhaps the rivalry became overwhelmingly spirited in later years and promoters of the game decided to give it a rest.

A great natural that had a money-making framework just faded.

Pickers Place Rams Slight Favorites

If at first you don't succeeed, try, try, again. That was the attitude that most of the college prognosticators displayed after their dismal predictions last week. Although Dean Edwin C. Browne, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard, Walt Heil and Gene Van Dyke, had a winner, LACC, they were still on the sorrowful side when the locals lost 31-7.

Turning to the "tom tom" fracas between San Mateo Junior College and the Rams, most pickers were still content to go along with the home team.

Three Administrators Lead Activities

Deans Dougherty, Batmale, Browne 'Friends In Need'

By Robert Kays

Lending a helping hand whenever needed to students are three members of the administrative staff, known officially as the Dean of Men, Dean of Women, and Assistant Dean in charge of student activities.

Many students already know them well. To those who don't, a little background may serve as an introduction.

The position of Dean of Men is ably filled by Edwin C. Browne, whose duties consist of, as he phrases it, "acting as chaplain, big brother, prosecuting attorney, defense attorney, educational consultant, and housing expediter for the men students of the college."

Browne's early college education was interrupted by the first World War, during which he served as a Second Lieutenant in the Field Artillery. After his release from the Army he spent six months in Puerto Rico as a private tutor.

He then worked as a deck hand on a freighter to obtain passage back to the United States and worked his way west to California by selling books. He completed his college courses and earned his A. B. and later his M. A. from the University of California.

Since graduating from college in 1919, Dr. Browne has held the positions of Superintendent of a Southern Oregon High School, Principal of both the Eureka and El Dorado High Schools in California, and coordinator of personnel for the San Francisco School District. He was the College's first dean, "lent" to the personnel office in 1944.

The Dean of Women, Margaret Dougherty, has much the same duties with respect to the women students at City College. Miss Dougherty, who also was graduated from the University of California, taught chemistry and home economics at Girls High School, then at City College before being appointed dean of women.

The dean of student activities, Louis Batmale, works with the various student groups, coordinating activity programs and acting as representative of the president at all student functions.

Batmale was graduated cum laude from the University of San Francisco in 1934 where he played three years of varsity basketball and was vice-president of the student body.

Before his appointment as dean this semester he was instructor and coach at St. Ignatius High School, head counsellor at Commerce High School, was for two years a Lieutenant in the Navy, and two more years with the veterans' counselling program.

Proposal For Student Store in Plan Stage

The statement to be submitted to the office of the superintendent concerning the proposal for a new student on-campus store is still in the drafting stage, President Louis G. Conlan said yesterday.

It will be necessary for the administration to present a workable plan to the superintendent for approval, and if he approves, it will be forwarded to the Board of Education. Finally the statement will be taken before the student council for approval.

Council Postpones CAB Change Action

Discussion of the proposed change of the Club Activities Board, tabled during last Thursday's meeting, was continued by the Student Council Tuesday.

After much discussion, the motion was postponed for an indefinite period, or, until a committee be appointed by the president to look into the matter more thoroughly.

The idea of re-organizing the CAB is not a new project. It was submitted to the committee two years ago, but a motion was not officially made.

Officiating dean of student activities, Louis Batmale, speaking to the council, said someone took a fire extinguisher from the campus fire department last Friday night. He urged whoever removed it to please return same.

Halftime Stunts To Feature Ram Game

SAN MATEO, Calif., Oct. 28—Plans were completed by Don Guisti of San Mateo Junior College and Urb Cummings of City College here today to make the Ram-Bulldog tilt tomorrow night the best of the season.

Kickoff time is 8 p.m. at the Burlingame High School stadium, with a large crowd expected. A special section on the 50 yard line will be reserved for Ram rooters with car caravans being organized to transport all students who wish to go to the game.

During half time the joint rally committees have planned a program featuring the San Mateo Bulldog and Sammy the Ram.

A joint dance for the rooters will be held immediately following the game on the San Mateo College campus.

Round 'n About

Hallowe'en To Raise Social Dead; Trick-Or-Treat Aimed At Clubsters

SCREAMS and howls round 'n about the campus herald the arrival of the eerie celebration of Hallowe'en, and local witches and hob-goblins have turned out en masse for the occasion.

Among the first to observe the annual night-of-spooks will be the ladies of Alpha Lambda Chi sorority, who, aided and abetted by members of their brother fraternity, Tri Epsilon, will trick or treat at a Hallowe'en party tomorrow night. (Who's gonna trick and who's gonna treat?)

Alpha Lambda Chi leaders are now planning their second rush affair to be held Wednesday evening, November 2, at the home of sister Karalee Kimbirk. (More trick or treat?)

Theta Tau sorority reports a terrific time was had by all members who attended the joint meeting held last Tuesday night with Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity. No mention of the activities of the assembly, though.

Theta Taus also enjoyed the candy passed by Pat Lantheume after their recent coffee to announce her engagement to Willy Renbe of Beta Tau fraternity.

Newman Club members are having a skating party on Monday, November 7, at Skateland at the Beach. Students wanting transportation will meet in front of the St. Emydius parish hall at 7:30 p.m., so everyone can skate out there together. Rates for the affair are as follows: With own skates, 40 cents; for clamp-on skates, 55 cents; and for shoe skates, 80 cents.

The smoke was thick at the 28th semi-annual smoker of Beta Phi Beta fraternity held last Wednesday evening. Reports have it that gallons of refreshments were consumed at the gathering and all present thought the sports and Bugs Bunny films shown were excellent.

Zeta Chi sororityites can hardly wait for their first joint meeting of the current season to be held tonight with Gamma Phi Ypsilon boys at the home of Felice Quast. Reason for the celebration is the end of midterms, perchance?

Several changes and additions to the roster of the college chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, were announced this week, and they consist of the following: Service chairman, Carl Alger; corresponding secretary and transportation chairman, Ernest Bautista; publicity chairman, Paul Cooper; treasurer, Lucian Douglass; fellowship chairman, Howard Newson; parliamentarian, Gene Saper; and program chairman, Daniel Won. Whew!

Starting this afternoon at 3 o'clock, there will be a meeting for those who wish to folk dance or learn folk dancing. The place will be the women's gymnasium and Laurine Bergin, the regular instructor, will be faculty representative.

It was decided last Friday by the group, which includes Simon Medina, Eliga Tuilesu, Don Jensen, George Davis, Clayton Berling, and Bob Means, that if enough interest is shown, they will form a regular club for the purpose.

That's all, f-f-f-folks.

Students Required To Participate In Oral Examination

All second semester students must take an oral communications examination during the next two weeks, Anthony Paciotti, English instructor, said recently.

Students whose speaking performance falls below an acceptable average will be required to enroll in Communications 10-A in order to qualify for graduation, Paciotti said.

The speech tests will begin Monday, October 31, and continue through Thursday, November 10. The schdeule is as follows:

Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 9 to 11 a.m.; Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m.

Examinations will be given in Room 1, Building 19, and students are advised to arrange for an early test to avoid crowding at the end of the period.

According to Paciotti, the tests will probably consist of a short reading so that any marked defects of pronunciation can be determined.

In some cases a short speech on a topic of the student's choice may be permitted. Students with classes at the test times scheduled, he added, should make special arrangements with him.

This announcement affects not only all students attending their second semester at City College, but those who spent their first semester of college elsewhere.

On-Campus Store Survey Indicates Prospective Yearly Business Volume

By Bob Jones

Hopes of college administration officials are that the new student on-campus store, after it is operating properly, will have an annual volume of business somewhere between $25,000 and $175,000, John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses, said yesterday.

These figures were determined from a survey taken in 1948 of 23 California two year colleges.

Although there are 60 two year colleges in the state, 37 combine high school and college while only 23 operate independently, including this institution. Of that number, only four do not have book stores of their own, with City College of San Francisco one of them.

As a result of the survey, it was found that among the two year colleges which had a larger figure in gross sales, the enrollment was proportionately high as follows: Los Angeles City College, with an enrollment of 12,000, had gross sales of $250,000; the two year college at Long Beach had an enrollment of 3,000 and the gross sales were $175,000; Sacramento College's gross sales were $125,000 with 2,500 students; and San Mateo sold $65,000 worth of goods to 1,750 students.

At the bottom of the list is Grant Tech, which with 300 students made $12,000 in gross sales. This survey covers the years 1946 to 1947.

The college's student store will start on a small scale, Brady said, and will at first limit its sales to basic school supplies. The prospect of selling books is not regarded favorably, he said, because there is too much chance for loss.

However, quite a considerable amount of sales can be made with school supplies alone. Twenty-five per cent of Santa Monica and Santa Rosa college's gross sales were made from school supplies, with Long Beach and San Mateo colleges claiming 50 and 33 percent, respectively.

Although a number of the stores surveyed also contained soda fountains, one will not be included in the college's store. Board of Education regulations stipulate that such an enterprise must be operated by the cafeteria.

The percentage of profit is also in the favor of the large college Brady said. Los Angeles City College is first in enrollment, and first in profit, and the college at Long Beach is second in both departments.

Five colleges, Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Bernardino, Santa Monica, and Salinas, sold athletic equipment at a considerable profit, he said. Other stores included novelties, such as rings, bracelets and belt buckles.

All the stores, except one was operated by the associated students.

November 9 Last Day To Drop Course

Students wishing to drop courses must do so before Wednesday, November 9, Mary Jane Learmaid, registrar, warned early this week.

After that date, students may drop courses only by obtaining special permission from their counsellors.

Cards for dropping courses may be obtained from the counsellors in Building 3.

Midterm grades will be given out this week in class by the instructors, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare, announced.

Students who for some reason fail to receive their grades may check with their counsellors, he added.

CAB Reorganization Plan Puts Clubs In Six Main Catagories

By Bob Johnson

As part of the recently proposed structure change in the Club Activities Board to streamline the CAB and make it more efficient, all college clubs have been placed in a tentative classification.

The proposal for the structure change will be discussed again by the CAB this Friday. All clubs will hold meetings in rooms assigned to them earlier in the semester.

The plan, as it stands at the present time, places each college club in one of six categories, according to a club's purpose.

Following are the six categories with the clubs listed tentatively:

1) Fraternities: Tri Epsilon, Beta Phi Beta, Phi Beta Delta, Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Sigma Delta, Pi Delta Koppa, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Alpha Lambda Sigma, and Beta Tau.

2) Sororities: Theta Tau, Phi Beta Rho, Kappa Phi, Delta Psi, Alpha Lambda Chi, and Zeta Chi.

3) Religious: Collegiate Christian Fellowship, Hillel Foundation, and Newman Club.

4) Honor: Alpha Gamma Sigma, Phi Rho Pi, Omicron Phi Pi, and Lambda Alpha.

5) Social and Service: Alpha Phi Omega, Cosmopolitan Club, Ski Rams, Young Progressives, Strikes and Spares, Latin-American Club, Graduate Statesmen, French Club, Filipino Club, Chinese Club, Masonic Club, Pep Club, Student League, and Block SF.

6) Professional: Engineering Club, Band Club, Pi Mu Gamma, Pick and hammer, Radio Club, Dramatic Society, Men's Glee Club, Symphony Forum, Ram Cam, Phi Epsilon Rho, Mu Iota Psi, Hotel and Restaurant Club, Horticulture Society and Forum Club.

Attendance Requirements Clarified By Coordinator

Attendance requirements were clarified in an interview last Monday with F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare.

Marsh said that too many students are disqualified because they do not bother to study the requirements for attendance.

Attendance regulations are set up by the State Department of Education, Marsh added.

The attendance rule provides that absences for emergencies other than illness shall not exceed the equivalent of one week of class meetings.

State appropriations are based upon the average daily attendance. This appropriation is one of the major sources of revenue for the college and that is one reason it is important students attend classes regularly, Marsh added.

So far this semester the average daily attendance is above that of last semester.

Students who have been ill should report to the attendance office, Building 2 at 8 a. m. or before their first class meeting to obtain the proper illness excuse, he added.

Job Listings Offer Wide Variety Of Work For Qualified Students

Job listings are continually being changed on the bulletin board in Building 2, and students looking for work should keep in touch with the placement office, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced today.

Two personable women are needed to work during the American Academy of Pediatrics Convention at the Palace Hotel as clerks.

The women will be paid $10.00 per day and will be furnished with white uniforms.

The convention is planned for November 14 to 17, and the hours will be from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily.

Students interested in this type of work should apply to Amori immediately.

New California State civil service listings are now posted on the bulletin board for students interested in full-time employment, Amori said.

Date of examinations and requirements can be obtained from the placement office.

The government civil service commission has announced a number of library assistants are needed on full or part-time basis.

The salary will depend on ability and on a written examination, Amori added.

This should be a fine position for students interested in government employment, Amori said.

Place and date of examination can be obtained from Amori.

Post Office Work Regulations Due Soon

Definite plans will be announced regarding Christmas post office hiring after a scheduled conference of placement agencies is held by the Postmaster this week, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced today.

The Postmaster, John A. Fixa, has just returned from Washington where the Christmas placement regulations were planned.

A notice will be posted on the opportunities bulletin board later next week following this meeting, announcing the registration and selection rules.

Amori requests that students do not apply until the regulations are posted on the bulletin board.

AWS Hosts Tea In Lounge Today, Honors All Freshmen Women

Freshmen women students will be honored at tea by the Associated Women Students this afternoon from 2 to 4 p. m. in the student lounge, Building 2. The freshmen tea is given each semester for the purpose of welcoming all new students and is open to all women students of the college.

Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, will receive guests while AWS officers, Sandy MacKay, president; Beverly Jank, vice-president; Michi Soda, treasurer; Joan Tweed, secretary and Florence Loo, Women's Athletic Association president, will assist as the serving committee.

Martha Scott of the science department and Mary Golding, of the counselling center, will pour tea and coffee.

The lounge is decorated in the Hallowe'en theme, with flowers supplied by the flower shop under the direction of John Lawrence. The Treble Clef, directed by Gertrude Norgard, will sing, and records will supply background music.

All women students who are able are requested to come to this, the first tea of the semester, and get acquainted with some of the new students, Miss MacKay said.

The second tea, given each semester to welcome high school students who intend to enroll in the college the following year, will be held later this semester under the sponsorship of the Associated Women Students.

House Of Blue Lights Is Theme Of Tau Chi Sigma Dance Here Friday

Date for the annual Tau Chi Sigma danee is Friday evening, November 4, in the west campus auditorium, Frank Patterson, fraternity dance chairman, announced recently.

With the theme of House of Blue Lights, the dance will be highlighted with silvery blue ornaments for atmosphere.

Committee members Patterson, Jack Orr, Jim Ramsey, and Dick Gardner have planned, as special intermission entertainment, to have dance teams from the Arthur Murray Studio put on a special show.

The melodic strains of Ed Ticoulat and his orchestra will supply the rhythm for the dancers. Ticoulat's eight piece band features four vocalists.

Refreshments, which include a variety of soft drinks, will be served at the dance.

Bids are priced at 75 cents for those who come stag and $1.25 per couple. Dress for the affair is sport clothes.

Tau Chi Sigma has taken the theme name of the dance from the House of Blue Lights located in the heart of the International Settlement, Patterson said.

Denman Award Applications Due Today

Applications for two Denman scholarships are due today in Dean Margaret Dougherty's office, and women students who are graduates of San Franelsco public high schools and are interested in the scholarships of $125 each should file their letters of application with her in Building 2.

The scholarships will be awarded to the two women who have the most outstanding high school records in scholarship and leadership.

The awards offered by Joudge William Denman and his sister Mrs. Mary Cheatham are given in memory of their father, James Denman, former Superintendent of Schools and President of the Board of Education.

Last year's winners were Marian Chin and Joan Howard.

Honor Society Offers Coaching Aid

DON JENSEN, AGS ADVISOR

Alpha Gamma Sigma members announced last week that a coaching service is being set up by the society.

Students desiring information may call on Barbara Low who has been named director. Her office is in Building 5C.

For further convenience a mail box has been put up outside the office and any student interested may leave the name of the course he would like to receive coaching in, the hours convenient for him, including his name and telephone number, and Miss Low will call him.

Students desiring the coaching service are reminded that a standard fee of 75c an hour was established last semester by the honor society and will remain in effect this year.

The staff is composed of honor students who have shown a high aptitude in the various courses for which they have volunteered to serve as coaches.

The society also advises that any students interested in coaching others should call on them to help meet the need for more volunteers.

Don Jensen, faculty advisor to Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society, who last week revealed the total membership of the society as 40 members, again stated that many more students are eligible for membership but have failed to make application. Jensen also re-emphasized that to be eligible for graduation with honors or recommendations, a student must actively belong to Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Jensen listed the qualifications for membership as follows: At least 12 units, 30 grade points, a "B" average (however with less than 15 units an average above "B" is necessary) and no grade lower than a "C".

Touch-Football Game To End All Games Is Proposed Here

ALL in the spirit of fun, and with the current intramural touch-football league in mind, we are intrigued by the idea of organizing a touch football game between a team made up of members of the student council versus a team of Guardsman staff members.

President Harry Williams is in favor of the idea and thinks it should be a charity game. He did not say what charity and we would like to suggest that a milk fund for needy editors and Associated Student presidents might be a worthy cause.

Why not make it an annual bowl game? It could be called the "budget bowl" or the "financial fracas." A game between the council Orators and The Guardsman Scribes might not decide which was the best touch football team in the history of the sport, but it would certainly end all controversy about which was the worst.

It would, we are sure, be the touch football game to end all touch football games. Not since the game was first invented (in 1897 by Prof. Touch) would a sport fan be treated to such a spectacle.

AS President Williams pointed out, the council team would have to have the parliamentarian to help end the squabbles in the huddle or they would not get off a play all day. We can just see quarterback Williams taking a vote to see what play to run next as several council members object and the parliamentarian rules them out of order.

On the other hand, The Guardsman team would have to equip each player with the dictionary and a copy of Roget's Thesaurus. We can't have our quarterback giving ungrammatical signals. With one thing and another neither team may get around to running off a play. That might not be such a bad idea after all.

Williams suggested that whichever team wins would have to be investigated for ringers, proselyting, or general conduct unbecoming an officer. A perpetual trophy for such an event might be the editor's other necktie or the president's second string gavel.

ROBERT'S rules of order and the reporter's handbook would, of course, have to be used in place of the regular football regulations. Any incomplete pass could be tabled until the next meeting. De we hear a motion to adjourn?

Counterpoint: Jolson Sings Again, But Still Looks Like Parks

By Walt Heiji

JUST about three years ago, when most City College students were still in high school, Columbia Pictures made a movie about an almost forgotten jazz singer named Al Jolson.

The picture became an overnight hit, brought Jolson's name back on almost everyone's lips, and put the tunes of the jazz era on the nation's jukeboxes and radios.

ONCE AGAIN

Last week the sequal to the first Jolson movie hit Market street amid the tub-thumping of wild-eyed publicists and hucksters. The new picture, Jolson Sings Again, was subjected to wide ballyhoo, with teaser ads appearing in San Francisco papers two weeks before opening night.

This space has a slight connection with the people who run the North Coast Theatre chain, and the movie moguls expect it to have at least a two month run. It ran for more than six weeks in New York, where Tom Pryor, of the New York Times, labelled it better than the Jolson Story.

In contrast to most sequels, this second Jolson "epic" is a good movie. Furthermore, it has a good cast, and Larry Parks as Jolson gives a fine performance. Parks is so good, in fact, that he is afraid of losing his own personality and play Jolson for the rest of his life.

NOSTALGIC TUNES

A talented cast supports Parks, and William Demarest shines as Jolson's manager. The old tunes are wonderful to hear, sung in Jolson's dynamic style and may even bring back nostalgic memories for local instructors.

The only trouble with the movie is that fact and fiction have been mixed too much to provide an honest portrayal of the jazz singer's life. For instance, the love interest is provided by Barbara Hale, a nurse, when in reality Jollie's latest spouse was an X-ray technician. That was probably close enough for Hollywood style realism.

Moreover, the passage of time is almost completely ignored. Demarest still looks as young as the day he discovered Jolson back in the early 1900's. The discriminating moviegoer will notice these little flaws but will probably enjoy it anyway.

INSIDE DOPE

For the City College student who is majoring in drama and has some Hollywood hopes in the back of his mind, the picture provides a fascinating revelation of movie techniques.

Sound stage tricks are shown and the slickest job of all is the explanation of synchronizing Jolson's volee and Park's movements. Near the end it shows Parks playing Jolson and Parks playing Parks.

All told, the picture is a light, easy to absorb, pleasant to the eye and ear musical. Worse movies have been made before.

Hotel Student Is Adept Linguist

Proficiency in preparing good food is not the only attribute of Hotel and Restaurant major, Steen Weinold. He would he equally at home in Denmark, Sweden, Germany, France, or the U. S., inasmuch as he speaks all five languages.

Weinold started his Hotel and Restaurant study in Copenhagen, Denmark, and then went to the international hotel school, in Switzerland.

After meeting City College graduate, Jim Stahlbaum there, he became sold on coming here and went through much red tape to obtain a student visa so he could get a passport.

Looking-Up . . . Murder, Tough Criminals No Problem For Leff; He's KNBC Police Inspector

By Dick Briggs

MURDER and arson are cracked easier than walnuts by the "Candy Matson" mystery program detective, Inspector Ray Mallard, who is really the college's radio course head man, Henry Leff, incognito.

The new mystery program was originated over the air waves this summer with a unique first in detective thrillers.

WOMAN COP UNIQUE

In place of the popular frog-voiced, tough-crusted male detective, the super-sleuth is a sweet-sounding woman investigator (Natalie Masters) who unravels criminal cases with associate Inspector Mallard (Leff) with an ease that astounds even San Spade.

While a student at Brooklyn, then Cornell University, the radio actor qualified for bit parts on East Coast networks and the New York stage.

As an extra Leff appeared in the New York productions, Success Story, and Press Time, and filled in for radio shows San Francisco Radio Playhouse, Pat Novak, and Standard School.

TOPS IN POPULARITY

It's still a mystery to Leff how he was chosen for the male lead in KNBC's Candy Matson, weekly detective show, but it's evident that superior ability was one of the selecting factors. Following the show's first summer over a network, a west coast audience survey revealed the Matson program was second in popularity to Mr. District Attorney, a phenommal rating for a program only six months on the air.

The mystery show is released Saturday, 8:30, and then transcribed Monday, 6:30 p. m. over 23 stations.

MAYBE NATIONAL AWARD

Leff's selection as the male lead has a dual honor, in that the new program is the first to emanate from San Francisco in many years.

Coupled with his investigator part, Leff, during the summer, completed a narration series, titled Forests of Flame, now being considered for a national award.

Spotlight: Females Get Crazy Idea That Men Are The Weaker Sex

By Keith Gardner

IT will be better all around if the feminine readers of this twice-weekly treatise move on to Counterpoint or Looking-Up today, because our topic is Fact and Fiction about Women.

As references for this informative hodgepodge, we have consulted an extensive memory, the Encyclopedia Brittannica, the May and October issues of The Reader's Digest, the Rand McNally Atlas of the World, and the Greater Los Angeles Telephone Directory.

SEVEN POINTS

From one of the above sources comes an article describing in minute detail just what's wrong with American women. The list, of course, is much too long to be reprinted in as small a newspaper as this, but it boils down to seven essential points:

American women are: spoiled, aggressive, dissatisfied, expensive, bored, and have less femininity and individuality than women elsewhere. Frankly, we can't agree with this list. American women, we feel, have plenty of individuality.

MASSAGE

The writer of this article really hit the jackpot with that "expensive" business, however. We have known women who could order, and get, caviar at a hotdog stand. Spendthrifts of this type, though, can sometimes be discouraged by gently massaging their windpipes with the thumb and index finger.

Still another informative tale quotes the United States Public Health Service as saying that women outlive men by an average of eight years. This, they think, proves that women are not the weaker sex.

Further along in this article the writer begins to pussyfoot a little and says, "Perhaps we should not go so far as to describe men as the 'weaker sex,' but . . . " The man obviously has no faith in his own point of view.

POCAHONTAS

Now, all this scientific stuff is perfectly okay, but a quick glance at the phone book should settle the question for all time. First look up all the John Smiths, then flip back and see how many Pocahontas's you can find.

Who's the weaker sex?

Modern Dancers Suffer For Art

By Rose Hardie

Liniment and rubbing alcohol manufacturers should be doing a booming business this semester if the cries of aspiring modern dancers under the direction of Betty Heckman are validly backed up by the necessary aches and pains.

No doubt they are, for it was found that the poor women were taking part in a muscle-stretching session of physical exercises.

"Straighten those knees! Pull that tummy in and hold your heads up!"

These were typical pleas of Mrs. Heckman who does her best to turn certain "droopy Doras" and "flabby Floras" into graceful poised women.

The unfortunates also have to make the frantic dash to the gymnasium from the west campus. The stretch behind the main building often looks like a Bay Meadows handicap around five minutes after the hour.

Letters To The Editor

Letter Writers Use Ram's Horn to Air Local Views

• Yearbook Query

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a member of the Associated Students of City College, I don't like the words you're putting in my mouth. Are you one to speak for 5400 students and say we aren't the least bit interested in huying Ram-Pages?

Naturally we'll have to pay for an annual, through student body card sales, which incidentally is the way we pay for our newspaper; to be exact, one dollar out of five of student body funds goes to our Guardsman, but do we want to disband The Guardsman? Naturally not! Every college should have a yearbook and a newspaper.

Let's be frank, Mr. Editor, could it be that you are jealous of the other publication on campus?

Dick Evans, 1949 Sports Editor, Ram-Pages

• Ram-Pages Advertising

Editor, The Guardsman:

Accepting your generous offer to discuss the feasibility of another Ram-Pages, I would like to mention the fact that you neglected to inform the Associated Students, in your article, that in the tentative plans for the yearbook, the initial cost of said project would be absorbed by advertising.

There was quite an extensive discussion on this point at the council meeting. Teh! Teh! Now, how could this escape your ears?

Tom Dill

• One Man's Opinion

Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to thank you for presenting the facts about Ram-Pages in Friday's editorial. It's just one man's opinion, but it seems to me that the dismal loss of $8000 on last year's yearbook would indicate that another yearbook is not exactly in great demand. I don't think that the proposal to raise the cost of Associated Student cards to $6.50 is a very fair way to pay for a yearbook. Why should all the students pay for what only a few want?

I would like to know how many students bought copies of Ram-Pages last semester, and what, if any thing, the council is doing about finding out how the students feel about this matter?

John Sebelling

(Editor's Note: Fewer than 900 copies of Ram-Pages were sold to students. The council has formed a committee of three to look into the matter. All three have already spoken in favor of another yearbook.)

RAMblings . . .

By Frank Monte

WHEN the college gridmen invade Los Angeles next Saturday night to clash with the East Los Angeles Junior College Huskies, they will be seeking a chance for redemption of the 31-7 loss handed them by Los Angeles City College a week ago.

In a non-conference battle in the South October 7, the Huskies defeated the LACC Cubs 19-14. Limited to only eight yards rushing in the first half, the Huskies woke up after intermission and racked up a total of 226 net yards gained from rushing and passing. A win over the Eastsiders would show the Southlanders that the locals are much stronger than the 31-7 score showed.

Working out the T formation, Coach Al Hunt's Huskies have a good passer in Quarterback Ed Sherrill. Sherrill completed seven out of nine pass attempts, and was responsible for two long touchdowns in the Cub tilt.

Hostilities between the College and ELAJC began in 1948 when Grover Klemmer's charges all but annihilated the Huskies on homeground to the tune of 48 to 6. Prior to '48 the Rams carried on grid battles with Long Beach City College.

STRADER BIDS FOR OLLIE

With Ollie Matson still working on his first year of varsity college football at USF, the professional teams already have their eye on him. Norman "Red" Strader, pilot of the New York Yankees of the All-American Conference, told everyone concerned that the Yankees want Matson.

Strader approached Matson when he was just out of high school, playing his first year of college football on the 1948 Ram Championship team, asking him to remain at City College for another year, which goes to show that the pros stop at nothing.

"Play for Money in '52"

Under a conference agreement, the professionals cannot draft a college player until his class graduates. Had Matson remained at the college, he would have been eligible for pro football in 1950, but now, the "play for money boys" must wait until Matson finishes USF in 1952. These boys don't give a person a chance to play college ball before they are on his tail.

Gold Dust Bowl Again

Something interesting to all football enthusiasts is the fact that the Gold Dust Bowl will be held again this year at Vallejo on Saturday, December 17. Sponsored by the Vallejo 20-30 Club, with all proceeds going to some youth fund, the Dust Bowl had its inaugural last season, when the Rams knocked over Chaffey Junior College, winner of the '47 Little Rose Bowl Game, 20 to 7.

Tri-E Undefeated in Fraternity Football

Undefeated Tri E fraternity continued along their winning ways with a 19-6 victory over Beta Tau, Sunday, October 23. Beta Tau's touchdown was the first of the season scored on Tri E. Sunday's game was played on Balboa Field before an enthusiastic crowd.

At the conclusion of the season, the fraternities will throw a party honoring the winning team. The fraternity games consist of six men touch-football squads in a round-robin league.

Physical Education Degree Given Coach Roy Burkhead At Redlands

On the merit of his thesis, Measurement for Physical Education Major Candidates, bids to continue studies toward a doctor's degree have been offered Burkhead by the Redland's University.

He has not yet decided to continue his studies, for at the moment his whole interest is centered on the football teams which he thinks have excellent prospects.

Southern Colleges Respect Territorial Rights

By Walt Roessing

Two year colleges in the Southern California district are so strict about the possible proselyting of athletes that they are forced to respect each other's territorial rights in all sports.

Suppose the less numerous two year institutions in the Northern California area, approximately 25 to 42 located in the south, decided to follow the same practice.

The eventual result would be that year after year City College of San Francisco would emerge the champion in every sport in which its teams participated, following Compton's present example in the southland.

Swell For The Locals

Is this bad? Not for local followers maybe, but other colleges would not be able to furnish the Rams any real competition and would therefore lose interest in active athletics.

All San Francisco high school graduates would be eligible to play only in City College's territorial district, if such an agreement existed among the NCJC Conference colleges.

All-City Stars To Rams

The locals would no longer lose San Francisco stars like All-City basketball player Ken Flower of Lowell, eager Ernie Gisler of Mission, and griddler Dave Rosenkranz of Washington to Menlo; All-City caesan Eddie Rueda of Mission and basketballer Jim Loscutoff of Commerce to Grant Tech; football star Doug Seovil of Lowell to Stockton: All-Conference quarterback Sammy DeVito of Galileo to Marin; and eager Tom Taylor and All-Conference hoopster Bob Peters of Lincoln to Santa Rosa, to cite just a few recent examples, of which there are hundreds.

Character Over Winners

But this junior college district isn't interested in just turning out winning teams year in and year out.

Their representatives are more concerned with building up character in the players through active competition with their opponents, which is, of course, the most important goal.

Bulldogs Darken Ram League Title Defense Hopes With 13-0 Victory

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

Burlingame, Oct. 29.—Taking full advantage of two breaks that fell their way, Southern Division leaders San Mateo Junior College defeated runnerup San Francisco 13-0 tonight to virtually knock the Rams out of title contention.

The only manner in which the college eleven can take the division crown is San Mateo losing two games and Menlo losing one while the locals sweep their remaining conference games.

Midway in the first period the Bulldogs, with Bill Calhoon, Manny Paradero, and Jack Harper carrying the mail, marched 65 yards to their first score.

The decisive play in the drive was a 15-yard Paradero to Milan Radovich pass that trickled through the fingers of safety man Marv Crews into the surprised receivers grasp on the nine-yard line. After the Ram forward wall held for three downs, Calhoon circled left end and crashed over from three yards out. Radovich converted.

Early in the second quarter Calhoon put the local's in a hole with a 34-yard punt that went out on the Ram four-yard marker. On the first down Paradero took John Brown's end zone punt on the San Francisco 45-yard stripe and skirted untouched down the left sideline until being bounced out of bounds on the four. Two plays later Calhoon powered over from three yards out to give the Bulldogs a 13-0 lead which they never relinquished.

Take away Paradero's punt return and 15-yard pass, which, by the way, was the only pass San Mateo completed, the Rams dominated the game.

San Francisco gained a total of 186 yards as compared to San Mateo's 151, and racked up 12 first downs, five more than the Bulldogs made. However, the Rams, as the case has been all season, bogged down deep in enemy's territory.

In the opening moments of the game linebacker Bob McBride started a 56-yard Ram drive by intercepting an Art Matthew's pass on the 16-yard marker. Six plays later, including a 30-yard pass from Al Nethercutt to Crews, the Rams were on the Bulldogs 28-yard marker.

Two offside penalties and the smothering of Nethercutt ten yards behind the line of scrimmage, however, halted the march and forced Brown to punt.

In the fourth period the locals had a golden opportunity to score when Dan Montrose recovered a fumble on the San Mateo 38-yard stripe.

Four plays later they had a first down on the four, but failed to score.

JV Grid Game Postponed; Slate Near Completion

Mentor Roy Burkhead announced yesterday postponements of his junior varsity's football game with the Menlo College reserves until a later date this season.

However, the rest of the team's six game schedule is nearing the completed stage. It includes games with the reserve squads of Polytechnic High, Marin College, Balboa High, Mission High, and a home and home affair with Santa Rosa Junior College. Lincoln High and San Francisco State reserves are on the probable list.

Only one game has been played by the Lamb team thus far. It was a decisive victory over the Mission High reserves by a 13 to 0 score.

Several players, Burkhead says, are outstanding and should make themselves known on next year's varsity team. He pointed to the abilities of Pat Patterson at quarterback and Charles Shamblee in the center spot. "Other lads continue to show promise as the season continues," the mentor said.

Intramural Football Deadline, Basketball Playoffs Tomorrow

Deadline for intramural touch football has been changed, and signups will be taken in the men's gymnasium until tomorrow afternoon, according to Tom Wilson, intramural director.

First round schedules for intratennis, badminton, and ping-pong singles will be posted in the men's gymnasium this week.

Few students have signed up for the foul shooting tournament which will start in the near future. The number of foul shots to be taken has been reduced from 100 to 50.

Because of a disappointing turnout in intramural basketball, the playoffs will most likely be held today and tomorrow. Captains of teams leading their respective leagues are requested to see one of the intramural managers immediately for information pertaining to the playoffs.

Playoff games will be held on the large court, at times convenient to members of the participating teams.

Coach Roy Diederichsen has great hopes for intramural boxing this semester because of the fact that 120 students have enrolled in his boxing classes. Besides the many hopefuls in the classes, there are several boxers working out in the gymnasium every afternoon.

Diederichsen's Soccer Squad Hosts New Conference Addition, Santa Clara

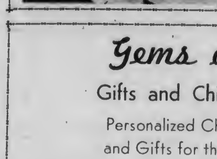
College soccer players are preparing for their first meeting with the University of Santa Clara this Saturday on the college turf.

Santa Clara's Broncos are an addition to the conference this season along with the University of California at Los Angeles.

Saturday's meeting will be the first for the two colleges in this sport or in any other except boxing. The Rams play USF and California at Berkeley, so this is not the first local meeting with large universities.

As is the system with most universities, Santa Clara had a turnout many times that of the college, and will undoubtedly field a team which is wise to the game as well as big and rough.

The usual difficulty faces the local club, namely, complete lack of weight in a game wherein one needs to weigh at least 300 pounds and run the 100 in 10 flat. The Rams depend on speed and elusiveness with the ball to win games. They have a hard time if the opposition is big and ball conscious.



Mentor Roy Diederichsen's pupils are high for this opening contest with Santa Clara, and team spirit, which Diederichsen was working on, has improved somewhat. Several players who were sidelined with injuries earlier in the season are expected to see limited action.

Campus Lawn Planting Starts; Sprinkler System Installed

Placement of the sprinkler system and water pipes last week marked the initial step in the Floriculture department's program designated to beautify the area surrounding the greenhouse, Raymond Peterson, class instructor, announced.

"We hope to have a nice green lawn by next spring. It is an enormous project that requires the cooperation of the maintenance men and the students," Peterson said.

When the plumbers have completed the work of laying all necessary piping, the students are expected to plant the lawn.

This is just one of the moves now under way to improve the appearance of the area located on the rear east campus. Future plans include the construction of a wall which will extend down Circular Avenue, and the planting of grasses and shrubbery in place of the barren waste land.

Last Friday night the Floriculture classes celebrated Hallowe'en with a gala masquerade party in the college greenhouse.

Decorations made from pumpkins, corn, and other ornaments were used to lend an atmosphere of Hallowe'en to the occasion.

Naval Reserve Recruiting Enlists Three Enrollees

Three local students were recruited into the United States Naval Reserve last week by Chief Boatswain's Mate John Snyder.

The new members are Alice Louise Villierme, who joined the Women's Naval Reserve; John Richard Mark, a new seaman recruit, and United States Army veteran Robert Carl Habbestad, a former private first class who enlisted as a seaman second class.

Required of all recruits, the first part of the Naval Reserve training is a basic training period which has as its purpose the acquainting of new members with Navy terminology and Naval procedures. After this period, the recruits spend their time in specialized study.

According to Snyder, the Naval Reserve offers an extensive line of studies from radio and electronics to journalism and medicine. The recent pay hike in reserve rates, he said, is expected to attract many more young men to the corps.

It is to be stressed, he said, that belonging to the Naval Reserve in no way interferes with a member's private life, except for one evening a week. Members have the right to quit at any time they so desire.

Any student who is interested in joining the corps may apply to the Naval Reserve Recruiting office in the Federal Office Building, San Francisco, by calling MArket 1-3828.

Art Students Get Monetary Awards

The sum of 20 dollars is to be awarded as prizes, during the current semester, to deserving students in the metal arts department of the college, Roy Walker, metal arts instructor, announced yesterday.

This amount is part of the original fund of 100 dollars, donated to the art department last year by G. H. Niemeyer, president of the Handy and Harman Company of New York.

From sheet silver and wire, students fashion intricate designs in metal. The finished products include rings, necklaces, bracelets and earrings, in addition, hand wrought spoons and bands are constructed.

Last semester cash awards totaling 30 dollars were won by four City College students of silversmithing. The craftsmen who received the prizes were Martin Zais, Eleanor Keep, Lois Milpoy, and Robert Green.

Photography Class Wants To Hire Models

All members of the feminine clientele at the college having modeling aspirations are requested to see Beverly Pasqualetti, photography instructor, to follow up "an interesting and profitable sideline."

Suitability and the ability to wear clothes well, for the women modeling sport clothes and formals, are the only prerequisites for the job.

Models will devote time on Monday and Wednesday morning from 8 to 12 o'clock, and on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 1 to 5 o'clock and will receive 75 cents an hour for their services, Pasqualetti said.

Play Hut Under Way In Hurley Village

Half the laundry room of the "bad weather hut" planned for children of Hurley Village is now partitioned off, and the entire building will be completed soon, a representative of the Hurley Village Playground Committee said yesterday.

Plans also call for a small workshop where children may learn crafts indoors, when weather does not permit outside activities.

Speech Test Deadline Set For November 10

Oral speech tests for second-semester students began yesterday and will continue to the Thursday, November 10 deadline, Anthony Paciotti, English instructor, disclosed recently.

Second-semester students whose speech is considered in need of special training will be required to enroll in communications 19A for the spring semester in order to graduate, Paciotto emphasized.

The schedule for taking the examination is as follows: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 9 to 11 a.m.; and Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. in Building 19, Room 19B.

College Military Science Courses Offer Practical Training With Pay

Students enrolled in the college military science courses may soon be formed into an individual unit, which will be known as the Cadet Training Platoon, in addition to their regularly assigned National Guard units, it was disclosed recently.

The unit will require two hours of drill weekly besides regular class time, and monetary rewards according to the grades held will be given. Enrollment in the college military science courses also necessitates enlistment in the 112th AAA Brigade here.

Present enrollment in the military courses on the campus, which were originally started in 1940, discontinued during the war, and resumed this semester, totals 22, and it is hoped that next semester there will be at least 60 enrolled.

Military science 21 and 22 are primarily designed to train young men to become officers in the armed forces, for upon completion of the requirements, students are eligible for a commission in the National Guard.

DISCussions: Stadium Hosts Jazz Festival

By Don Cunningham

The most important musical event of this or any other season is about to descend upon San Francisco and its commercially inclined citizenry.

Friday night, November 4, ushers in a huge jazz festival at Kezar Stadium, where such accomplished groups as those of Jack Sheedy and Dave Brubeck will display their musical wares.

It is also hoped that Pete Daily and his Capitol recording unit will be in evidence with their usual repertoire of Dixie standards. If an enjoyable evening is desired for little tariff, this is a good bet.

The tournament will be the third state tournament Street has participated in.

Street, graduate of Lincoln High and the Forensic Association there, is also co-director and treasurer of the San Francisco Forensic Association, an organization of all San Francisco high school speech departments, which holds forensic tournaments every year.

Controller of the tournament is Armand Magid, vice-president of the Graduate Statesmen, and the treasurer of Phi Rho Pi. Magid, parliamentarian of the Associated Students, won the Associated Men Student Homecoming Week contest last month.

Marcella Lewis, also secretary of Phi Rho Pi, is tournament secretary.

Remaining members of the college tournament staff are George de Urioste, Inter - Fraternity Council president, and Sophomore council member; Cliff Brew, who has participated in two state forensic tournaments; Tom Campanella, former president of Lowell High Forensic Association; Bob Bell, former president of the Forensic Association of Sacred Heart High, and James Andersen, Freshman council member, and vice-president of Phi Rho Pi.

Nine Officers Direct Coming State-wide Speech Tournament

Names of the tournament officers who will assist in the direction of the state-wide High School Forensic Tournament to be held at the college Friday and Saturday, November 11 and 12, were disclosed recently by Irwin Phillips, tournament director and vice-president of the campus Hillel Society.

Honorary chairman is Randle Street, also president of Phi Rho Pi fraternity and the college chapter of the Graduate Statesmen of America.

Work Experience And College Credit Goal Of Earn While You Learn Plan

All eligible men and women interested in the Retail Management Department's "Earn While You Learn" program has been urged to obtain further information from Samuel Ziegler, instructor in the department, in Room 249, at 10 o'clock daily.

Students who are interested in making retail management their career should investigate the possibilities this program offers, Ziegler said. The major points of the program are as follows:

1. Employment is offered at prevailing wages along with from two to five units of college credits toward graduation.

2. Employment insurance is provided for those who wish to continue on the same jobs as full time employees after graduation.

3. Promotional opportunities are offered qualified students while they are in training for a career in retail management.

Election of Helen Hall as first president of the Associated Women Students here was announced November 1, 1935.

Sorority Affairs Grab Limelight; Neophytes Impressed At Ceremony

DESPITE the fact that we are in the throes of rush season, club news seems to be at an ebb. But, anyway, here's the stuff that's washed in.

Delta Psi sorority has planned its second affair for Monday, November 14, and the occasion will be celebrated with the traditional spaghetti chow-down. Don't forget to wear your bibs, girls!

Kappa Phi ladies present their second affair on Sunday, November 6, with a Chinese dinner scheduled (also per tradition). Sister Gail Keating has generously provided her home to be used for the clambake.

Tau Chi Sigma fraternity announcements for this week, aside from that of their House of Blue Lights dance this coming Friday night, include notice of the second interrogation on Sunday, November 21, at the home of brother Joe Gentile, 300 Gennessee Street, at 7:30 in the p.m. It's a little early to mention this, but the early bird gets the worm!

The formerly unfilled office of Tau Chi vice-president has now been filled by Jack Orr. Orr was elected at the last regular meeting of the group.

Gamma chapter of the national fraternity of Pi Delta Koppa met at the home of brother Walt Halquist on Wednesday, October 19. After a short business meeting pledging activities began in a bang-up fashion, in more ways than a couple (per pledge, that is!) In fact, PDQ was "impressed" on all of the pledges in the usual delicate manner.

New pledges accepted for the semester are as follows: Milt Melzian, John Russell, Dave Firrucci, Dave Jeffrey, Ken Anderson, Bill Braas, and "Pep" Gasslot.

Pi Delta calendar of coming events includes a joint social with Delta Psi's (eyes, eyes, eyes . . . the strain will be terrific!) on Wednesday, November 9. The girls need have no fear, for the opposite sex will be shackled, it says here.

Round 'N About musically: The terrifically built-up Jazz at the Philharmonic concert at the Civic Auditorium last Wednesday evening turned out to be a fiasco in more ways than one. Although the group included musicians of high caliber, their music wasn't very good, frankly speaking.

However, they tried hard, and the disappointing result was probably due to the obnoxious audience that attended the affair, and did their best to disrupt the proceedings.

Pete Daily and his ensemble is scheduled to replace Jack Sheedey at the Club Hangover on Bush Street soon. Lovers of the Chicago School of Music should be overjoyed at this.

The first annual Jazz Festival occurring Friday night at Kezar Stadium will show, in accordance with the Philharmonic fade out, that San Franciscans on the whole, are not prepared to accept jazz, let alone understand it.

Toldja there warn't much news . . .

Tau Chi Sigma Presents Annual Dance Tonight In Campus Auditorium

Tau Chi Sigma members present their traditional semi-annual dance tonight in the campus auditorium, Jim Reed, organization president, announced yesterday.

With the House of Blue Lights as the theme, the dance will be highlighted by Kern-Ticoulet's dance band. The orchestra will play from 9 o'clock until midnight. Eliminating the possibility of a lull in the festivities, the fraternity committee members have arranged for several novelty acts to perform during the intermission.

In connection with their theme, decorations of silvery blue and white ornaments have been made to add color to the atmosphere.

Refreshments, which include a variety of soft drinks, will be served at the dance.

The price of admission is 75 cents for those who come stag. Bids for couples will cost $1.50. Dress for the affair is sport clothes.

Committee members are Reed, Jack Orr, Joe Gentiles, Dick Gardner, Jim Ramsey, and Frank Patterson. They have planned the Tau Chi Sigma dance to every detail and they invite everyone to come and enjoy an evening of fun and dance.

New Parking Spaces To Open

Vets, Returnees Get First Choice

Long talked of parking improvements will become a reality in several weeks when the large area between Buildings 1 and 13 is paved and opened for more than 100 additional cars, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced today.

Improvements in west campus parking facilities have been approved, and work should start in the near future.

Permits for the new area will be issued to students who have completed at least their first semester and to veterans. The permits will be issued on the same basis used in previous semesters. This system, which has proved a success, is by a drawing, Dean Browne pointed out.

The two numbers from 0 to 10 that are chosen will entitle Associated Student members, whose last card number is the same as either number picked, to use the new parking facilities.

Two numbers for west campus parking were picked early this semester for the available space now open, and these numbers 0 and 5 will be eliminated in the new drawing, Browne said.

WEST CAMPUS parking congestion will be relieved in several weeks when area to the left of Building 13 is completed and open for actual student use. Cars in the background are merely a few of the many which daily fill the parking space in the influx of students from the entire bay area.

Clubs Meet During College Hour Today

College hour is scheduled today, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, announced, with clubs holding their regular meetings in rooms assigned to them earlier in the semester.

Future college hour schedules in November are limited, with November 11 a holiday, November 18 for club meetings, and November 25 again a holiday.

College hour schedule for Friday:

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9:50 to 10:30
College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Vocational Council Post Goes To Amori At Semi-Annual Meet

Joseph A. Amori, placement director, was elected secretary-treasurer of the Council of Vocational Associations at the semi-annual conference and luncheon held at Lux College, October 28 and 29.

The council was formed last spring, when various business, industrial, and educational vocational groups united to coordinate their work with the California Commission for Vocational Association.

Amori was in charge of conference arrangements, and because of the success of this meeting, he has been chosen to form a committee to plan the next group meeting of the council.

The luncheon was prepared and served by the home economics students at Lux College.

JOSEPH A. AMORI, who was elected secretary-treasurer of the Council of Vocational Associations at the semi-annual conference last week.

Veterans' Book Store Serves 3000 Students Annually

Although not officially considered in the plans for the new student on-campus store, 3,050 veterans were served by the veterans' book store in Building 6 during the preceding Fall and Spring sessions, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of the division of student welfare, said yesterday.

During the fall semester of 1948, there were 1,590 veterans supplied through the vets' store, and last spring 1,460 received the benefits of that business.

The decrease in the number of veterans attending the college has not affected the over-all attendance, for as the number of veterans decreases, it has been noted that the number of non-veterans increases.

A great many students from the college plan to gather in the Empire Room of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel for the biggest social event of the Associated Students for the semester.

"In the past, the dances have provided students with one of the best evenings of fun and entertainment that is possible through participation in student activities," Miss Morrison said.

Dancing will start at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday night, November 10, and the dress is informal.

Admission will be free, providing each couple has an Associated Student card. There is no admission to an Associated Student dance for non-members, she pointed out.

The Social Committee has planned an extensive program for the dance, Miss Morrison said, and anyone attending should enjoy a pleasant evening.

Students Schedule Pre-Holiday Dance

The Associated Students will hold their second dance of the semester next week, Ronnie Morrison, Associated Student vice-president, announced yesterday.

HARRY WILLIAMS, Associated Student president, who led the college delegation at the State Conference of Junior Colleges.

College Named Conference Information Center

By Felton White

Two hundred and fifty delegates representing 44 state junior colleges approved unanimously, last week, the appointment of City College as an information center for all two-year colleges in the regional conference.

This action followed the motion made by Harry Williams, president of the northern region, at the State Student Government Conference held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday at San Bernardino.

The state is divided into three regions, Northern, Central, and Southern, with a president presiding over each region.

City College will distribute the desired information concerning activities in student government to any college requesting it.

An operation fund of 50 dollars was set up by the other colleges to pay for the handling and distribution.

Each year there is an annual convention conducted at a two-year college in one of the three regions where other colleges send delegates.

The purpose is to allow delegates to meet and study jointly the problems in student government functions.

Four student leaders and a faculty adviser represented the college at San Bernardino.

The delegation made its report to the Student Council at last Tuesday's meeting.

Each delegate represented a specific body of the student government, and accordingly, made separate reports.

Frank Bayol, president of the Associated Men Students here, outlined the discussed agenda of the council. He reported that there was little chance to have any proposals submitted by this college passed.

He was the only representative of the Northern Region to participate in the discussions. Most of the colleges, such as Marin and Modesto, have recently set up an AMS government, and their knowledge of its function is limited.

The AMS body also was chosen to act as a clearing house for news and government functions to be sent to various colleges in the State.

Ronnie Morrison reported on the clubs and their activities. There was little activity among them. Sacramento maintained an independent system, and Yuba had an inter-club council.

Methods of selling student membership cards and of distributing the funds at other two-year colleges in the State Conference were submitted to the council committee by local alumni liaison officer, Norman Reger.

Most of the colleges, especially the smaller ones, introduced the idea of purchasing student membership during the first day of registration.

Harry Williams gave an overall report of the conference.

Club Activities Board To Hear Reorganization Proposal Today

By Bob Johnson

Streamlining the Club Activities Board from its present membership of over 50 to the newly proposed membership of 6, will be the focal point of discussion in today's CAB meeting.

Decreasing the number of representatives at the CAB was proposed by Harry Williams, Associated Student president, two weeks ago. Since then there has been a good deal of debate from both sides. Today's CAB meeting is expected to clarify the issue.

Proposal Made Before

This is not a new proposal; it was first presented two years ago. In each succeeding semester a person or a group of persons has favored the change.

George deUrioste, Student Council member, is one of a committee of three students assigned to study the matter. This committee will make a complete report on findings to the CAB today. As a result of their efforts, it is hoped a vote will be taken today and a decision made.

Six Divisions Listed

Proponents of the revision say that with the new set-up, the CAB would be much more efficient. Their plan calls for dividing all recognized college organizations into six tentative groups.

These groups are fraternities, sororities, religious clubs, honor societies, social and service clubs, and professional clubs.

New Clubs Gain

The primary function of the CAB is to give recognition to new clubs on campus. With the new system, a club desiring recognition would petition through its classification representative. Clubs within this classification would give their decision to the CAB.

If an appeal is necessary, the new club could present its case to the six-member CAB. A higher appeal could be obtained from the Student Council.

Objections Stated

Main objection to the plan stems from a suggestion of unequal representation. There are fewer than five clubs in the religious and honor society groups, whereas there are as many as 15 in the professional, social and service groups.

Today's CAB meeting, it is hoped by all concerned, will settle the problem one way or the other.

High School Speech Tournament Set For College Campus November 11-12

Location of the California High School Speech Tournament scheduled here Thursday and Friday, November 11 and 12, will be in the college main building and west campus Building 19, it was decided yesterday at a tournament staff meeting attended by Oscar Anderson, Controller, on the administrative staff.

Registration for all events will be held in the old registrar's office, where Cliff Brown, Tom Campanella, Bob Bell, and George de Urioste will manage the registering and placing of entrants for the debating, impromptu and extemporaneous speaking, oratorical and dramatic deck, and and the oratory events.

Building 19 will house radio speaking, the only event to take place on the west campus, which will be managed by Don Foley.

Honorary Chairman Randle Street will head the campus welcoming committee for the judges and other prominent citizens.

Irwin Phillips and Armand Magid, supervisor and comptroller, expressed appreciation to the mechanical drawing department which has been preparing charts for the tournament, and to William Eckert, of the Advertising Art department who has overseen the placement of awards in the trophy case near the main entrance of the administrative building.

Sandy Zuckerman, editor of the Washington High Eagle, will assist with news releases.

Nan White, San Francisco News columnist, is also expected to attend the tournament, directors said.

Admission for Associated Student members will be 15 cents on presentation of their cards. Tickets for other students and visitors will be 75 cents.

Box offices will be established through Dean Lloyd Luckmann in the main building and the west campus where tickets for the play will be on sale.

Little Theatre To Have Raised Seats

Construction of raised seating was started in the Little Theater, Room 28 in the main building, last Monday for the student production of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing.

The raised seats will limit the audience to a maximum of 120, Director Paul Ellison said, which makes early purchase of tickets imperative.

Performances are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. November 17, 18, 19, 21, 22, and 23.

There will be no matinee performances unless the student demand is great enough, Ellison declared. If the demand is apparent, a matinee may be scheduled Monday, November 22.

Admission for Associated Student members will be 15 cents on presentation of their cards. Tickets for other students and visitors will be 75 cents.

Box offices will be established through Dean Lloyd Luckmann in the main building and the west campus where tickets for the play will be on sale.

Touch-Football Classic Set For Wednesday Afternoon

ACCEPTING the challenge of The Guardsman staff to organize a touch football team, the Student Council, last Tuesday, announced their starting line-up and started furious preparations for the big "Budget Bowl" game. This titanic clash of grid greats is now slated for next Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m.

Anybody with nothing better to do, and who would like to postpone doing home work for an hour, is invited to watch the "Big" game. The game brings together two undefeated, untied teams and is therefore the classic contest of the year. It is true that neither team has played a game yet, but that is a mere technicality.

It is not yet known whether the council Orators will use a T-formation, single wing, double wing, or the famous council shift. This last play consists of talking about one play and then pulling a different one. Not much in the way of power is expected by the Orators, but they are a tricky bunch.

ADMISSION to this touch-football natural is in line with the probable quality of play: Free. Boasting little in the way of passing, running, kicking, The Guardsmah Scribes hope to overcome their opponents by sheer spirit. What kind of spirit is not clear, but the Scribes are confident of winning and are now practicing a secret play called the journalistic jump.

Local odds show that the betting is 8 to 5 that neither team goes the limit, and even money that there will be no score. When asked for a prediction on the outcome, several local sport fans broke into uncontrolled laughter and fell to the ground. President Harry Williams did predict the Orators by fifty points, but this is not considered an unbiased opinion.

Quarterback Williams did not say how he expected to get the council team to agree on any play, but the way he brandished his five-pound gavel in the air gave some indication. Full line-ups will appear in the next issue.

Counterpoint: Sports Writers Put Ex-Ram Matson On The Spot

By Walt Heil

LAST spring before the first football was kicked off, downtown sports writers began trumpeting Ollie Matson, former City College grid star as one of the Coast's best backs.

They tabbed him as one of the Far West's best backs for 1949 and, one of the best sophomores of any college from Seattle to Los Angeles. All of this, of course, put the versatile Matson on the spot and the writers on a long and lonely limb.

PREDICTIONS UNFOUNDED

Most of the writers never saw Matson in action and based their predictions on his accomplishments with the local gridders which were superior to those of any other back in the conference.

At the time, this scribe was contributing to page three of this paper, and admonished the writers for putting Matson on the spot. Furthermore, we adopted a "wait and see" attitude toward the USF flash, for which we were roundly panned by our colleagues.

But, now that Matson has made prophets of everyone, the writers are going even further. Not satisied to leave well enough alone, they're booming Matson for an All-American rating, along with Bob Celer, of California and Ed LaBaron of College of Pacific.

ALL-AMERICAN RAM

It is true enough that Matson was an all-American while playing for the Rams last year, but to be an all-American in four year colleges is something else again.

USF plays in a comparatively easy league. It would be interesting to see how Matson would fare against teams like Notre Dame, Army, Oklahoma, and Cal, or even against Purdue, Pitt, or UCLA.

Matson can make it, however, on his ability, plus a well organized publicity drive coupled with a winning Don team that plays with the big ones. It has been proved that those factors are vital to anyone's becoming an all-American.

RESERVE JUDGMENT

Granted that Matson is future all-American fodder, let's not put him on the spot again by claiming an all-American berth for him until he plays against strong teams such as Santa Clara Sunday.

Incidentally, several former two-year college players, well known to local grid fans, help make the Dons go. Four former Rams are in the USF lineup consistently.

Matson of course is in there all of the time. Burl Toler continues great line backing for the Dons as he did for the locals. Roy Giorgi is an adequate ball carrier although he is used mainly on defense. Ken White, former pony back for the Rams, usually sees action late in the game when his mates have run up the score. Ed Brown, formerly of Hartnell, contributes his talents to the Don offense and defense.

No Women In Surveying Classes

Young women, who are seeking new fields to conquer, will find very fertile soil in instructor Leroy Briggs' woman-less engineering class—21A.

Women, although invading most fields, have singularly avoided Briggs' surveying classes. Observers point out, however, that the possibilities for surveying there would be tremendous for women students.

The men studying surveying are content with their prospects because surveying could lead to excitement and travel. At least, judging by their work on the campus, they engage in a very wholesome outdoor activity.

Looking-Up . . . San Mateans Win Tough Tussle With Dead Seaweed Clumps, Old Sticks

By Dick Briggs

(Editor's note: This information covering the peninsulan's flair for commendo strategy was revealed by a San Mateo College student who participated in evening watches before the San Mateo-City College football game.)

EXPERT in dreaming up dire situations from elements less dangerous than a gentle sigh, San Mateo College students, in part, rate top honors as the most fanciful romanticists since Don Quixote lost a jousting bout with a windmill about 1600.

Quixote's conquests over fanatical fighting armies of grass stalks, old logs, and windmills, were excelled by Mateans who prepared defense for the San Mateo township from an attack by City College students who were probably expected to swarm over the peninsula on man-hungry humming birds, and by the surf, from an ocean cavalry of saddled seahorses.

The Mateans were even far superior to Don Quixote in their melee with fantasy, emerging from the conflict without even so much as a broken lance.

The peninsulans' urge to play commando, we suspect, was fomented by the City College-San Mateo football game last week, and resulted in an alleged San Mateo raiding party which painted the main building here and caused great discredit to San Mateo College.

San Mateans, eager to play soldier, hooked up air-raid sirens on their three campuses in preparations for an expected reciprocal attack by City College which never came; City College students, for the most part, having outgrown eight year old shenanigans.

Still feeling inadequate with a three siren alarm, the peninsulans devised an elaborate watch system whereby selected students stood evening guard in readiness for the pre-supposed attack.

Stretching beyond the weirdness of fantasy for even a Don Quixote, other San Mateo students even patrolled the Peninsula beaches, possibly anticipating our students, swinging their wooden swords wildly in zeal for combat, to stroke up in rowboats on a shrewd flanking movement by sea.

The actual conflict never materialized, of course, though the San Mateo men undoubtedly carried out a successful sham battle against some old sticks and clumps of seaweed.

Not being too old fashioned, we think next year City College should play Don Quixote too, by preparing a reception committee complete with police and patrol wagon for any surreptitious, midnight paint slingers.

Cox Stadium Is Natural Icebox

By Cy Donaldson

Cox Stadium's gridiron audiences are full of shivers, goose-pimples, and breath condensations these crisp November evenings when the college football team plays its opponents.

A dead, ever-present cold chilled the spines of the spectators present at the last two football contests. Clouds of condensed moisture saturated the atmosphere.

Usually the best seats (at least those on the home side) are filled by game time, and stragglers must either sit on the opposite side of the field in the grandstand or from a vantage point on top of the slope—above the seats on the cold ground or the cold stone wall.

The field has been hollowed out of the ground, rather unusual for a gridiron. Most stadium sites are built above the level of the surrounding land.

During the windy season the steep slopes and the western entrance, which are open and unconveniently located above Lake Merced, at 19th Avenue and Holloway Street, act as a natural funnel ushering in the cool ocean breezes.

Results of the relatively low temperatures could also be seen on the field. The participants, both backfield men and linemen, defense and offense, all seemed to exhaling spirals of condensation, looking like so many steam engines building up pressure in their boilers.

In the team huddles, it appeared as if smoke signals were being sent to the anxious coach who replied from the side-lines.

Spotlight: Finer Techniques Of Popular Indoor Sport Explained

By Keith Gardner

A long time ago we promised to give you a report on the various forms of Loafing practiced around these parts.

The delay was caused by a temporary misplacing of our notes on the subject, but now that they've been recovered there's no reason to keep you from this vital, timely bit of information any longer.

THREE TYPES

To begin with, there are many different forms of loafing, but by far the most important are the daze, the doze, and the daydream.

Probably, the daze mania is more widely practiced than any other. In fact, we might almost go so far as to say that some of the students on this campus are in a perpetual daze.

The doze, though, is a much higher form of the art. In some classes it is nearly impossible to doze, but in others it's an automatic reaction that takes hold of the entire class as soon as the instructor opens his mouth. This produces an effect in instructors similar to a uranium atom meeting head on with neutron.

TOPS

But the absolute peak, the ultima thule, of loafing is the daydream. When monotony and boredom join hands, the result is bound to be daydreaming.

Daydreaming has one big disadvantage, though. Someone is bound to interrupt you just as the thing is beginning to get interesting. Recently, we reached the point in one where Lana Turner finally accepted an invitation to see our etchings. We were just purring, "Why, honey, I feel like a brother toward you," when some slob asked the time.

WHO, ME?

We aren't admitting anything, but if anyone asks you who the guy was that ran amok in class and killed a fellow sitting next to him, you can probably make a good guess.

Well, that's about all we can give you on loafing at this time. Further information, for those who are interested, can be obtained from The Guardsman editor who is recognized as the local expert on the subject.

Floriculture Student Frank Hilton Builds Lath House For Department

By Bob Johnson

While most students were enjoying the summer vacation in various places far removed from the college, Frank Hilton of the Floriculture department, was busily engaged last summer in constructing a lath house for use this fall.

This was no small project as it involved obtaining used lumber, digging post holes three feet deep, and a good deal of carpentry and painting. The end result of Hilton's labor is an open green house or, in the terms of a nurseryman, a lath house, forty by fifteen feet.

At the present time, Hilton has 4500 rooted cuttings growing in and about the lath house. These are small branches he has cut off larger shrubs, placed in the propagation room of the glass enclosed nursery room for a period of two months, and then planted in the lath house.

Membership in the Royal Horticulture Society of London and the Holly Society of America has enabled him to correspond with people and nurseries all over the world, thereby providing the means of obtaining a variety of plants.

Listed among these are the Kirishima Hybrids from Japan and the Glenndale Hybrids from the eastern part of the United States, both of which are exceedingly hardy plants and practically non-existent in California.

Hilton is one student who knows exactly what he is going to do after graduation. He is all set to go into the nursery business in Stellacoon, Washington, which, he is quick to emphasize, is near Tacoma. His specialty will be azaleas of which he has approximately 300 growing now.

Any one wishing to see the lath house with its thousands of azaleas is a welcome visitor.

Rams High For Huskies, Seek Redemption For LACC Setback

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

A golden opportunity to redeem themselves from the 31-7 shellacking they received at the hands of Los Angeles City College faces the Ram gridders tonight in Los Angeles when they encounter East Los Angeles College.

Earlier this season the East Los Huskies defeated their cross-town rivals, the Los Angeles Cubs, 19-14. A Ram victory tonight would prove that the earlier 31-7 loss to Los Angeles was not a true indication of the City College teams' strength.

Although they have failed to win in their last three starts, the locals are surprisingly high for this game. They know that Los Angeles wasn't four touchdowns superior, and want to prove it to the Southerners at the cost of East Los Angeles.

In other games this season, the Huskies defeated Glendale, who tied San Mateo 13-13, by a 19-12 score and Chaffey, whom the Rams beat in the Gold Dust Bowl last year, by a 27-19 margin.

ELAC is paced by quarterback Neil Garrett. It was Garrett's passes to halfbacks Elmer Douglas and Harry Bozigian and ends Bill Hattig and Tom Self that subdued LACC.

The Huskies are a light, but fast team. Their line's average weight is only 174 pounds while the backfield averages a mere 155 pounds. The Rams, on the other hand, average 187 and 167 in the line and backfield, respectively.

The charges of Coach Grover Klemmer will have to overcome their tendency to bog down on long drives if they want to overcome the Huskies tonight. Although they have won only two of five games this season, the locals have won the battle of statistics in four games and were not far behind in the Los Angeles contest. A little practice in play sequence should do the trick.

End Frank Puckett and tackle George Hart are on the doubtful list, while halfback Rotea Gilford is definitely out of the contest.

Halfback Marv Crews finally hit his stride last week in the San Mateo game and showed signs of the abilities he displayed at Polytechnic High. John Brown, however, is still the most consistent runner.

Members of the team have elected Brown and Don Morettini co-captains for the remainder of the season.

Intramural Touch Football Signups Extended To Today

Signups for intramural touch football have again been extended, and will be open until this afternoon, because of what seems an almost complete lack of interest on the part of the students.

All fraternities and clubs are eligible to sign up. No persons may enter as individuals, but must have a team organized.

Deadline for intramural boxing will be Friday, December 2, and the tournament will be held December 6, 7, 8, and 9. Weigh-ins will be November 28 and 29.

Many students are taking an interest in the tourney, and the present signups are as follows: Len Gage is the only person in the 130-pound class, Bob Gross, Bill Revilla, and Tom Hahn are entered in the 135-pound division, the 145-pound class consists of Fred Greene, Al Revere, and Jim Shimizu.

Participating as 150-pounders are Sigurd Jett, Hank Brusco, John Oakes, Gene Hamilton, Bob Schmidt, while Erick Siefert, Plato Kessler, Keith Gordon, Bill Sierrett, and Jack McCourtney will be contenders for the 165-pound laurels.

The 175-pound class will consist of Don Hughes and Joe Personeni, while Herb Brown and George Erickson will be going for the heavyweight title. No signups have been received for the 120, 125, and 155-pound divisions.

Only four games were played in the final round of intramural basketball held last week. In these contests the Hornets edged out the Beer Caps 33-31, the River Rats eked by the Cooks 35-32, and the Balboa Alumni swamped the Hotel and Restaurant team 49-20.

In the other game of the final round, the Beavers took a high-scoring contest away from the Beer Caps 54-32. Hiram Short was high point man for the winners and the game with 28 points.

Other returnees are center Pat Joyce, forward Roy "Skip" Carnegie, and guard Dick Farley. All played jayvee ball last season. Forwards Al Munn and Jack Marcus are also back to bolster the Ram attack. Munn played for the College in 1945, while Marcus played in '47.

High school stars competing for team positions are center George McLaughlin from Sacred Heart, Wayne Barnes and Dave Weddington from the Polytechnic, and Dick Muiready from the 1945 championship Lowell team. Dick Boyle, former St. James and USF Frosh star is also vieing for a center position.

Some of the lesser known men in contention for a berth are Scott Amour, Antonio Campos, Leonard Fritsch, James Green, Benjamin Grespan, Robert Hunter, Charles Jessup, Bob McGovern, Al Nicora, Frank Sampson, Raymond Sells, Hiram Short, Charlie Wettstein, and Bob Wilson.

Hillsman has begun to bear down on the team because time is precious, and daily workouts will be held in the men's gymnasium. All this is in preparation for the first game, against the California Frosh here, November 30.

Soccermen Lose To Don Champs

Ram hopes for an upset over the champion University of San Francisco vanished last Saturday morning when the Dons whipped Coach Roy Diederichsen's local soccer team by a 5 to 2 score.

Jose Rodiquez and Robert Davilia accounted for the only college points as they forced home one apiece. Their efforts were to no avail as the Don took charge and capitalized on local passing weaknesses to boot home five goals. Diederichsen sighted the passing of his club as the main reason for the loss.

Clean play, rather a new experience for locals, dominated the contest, and not one argument was provoked during the game. During the last two contests roughness was a common thing.

The Beach Chalet is the scene of the first meeting of City College and Santa Clara University tomorrow morning at 10 a.m.

RAMblings . . . San Mateo Jumps Into NCJCC Leadership; Four Teams Remain Contenders For Title

By Gene Van Dyke

SAN MATEO College, following their 13-0 win over the Rams last Saturday night, jumped into leadership in the NCJC Conference Southern Division football race, being the only remaining unbeaten, untied club.

The Bulldog goal has been crossed twice in three games. Such a defensive achievement is very impressive.

In the only other conference game last week, Menlo College clipped Hartnell of Salinas 21-12. The win, providing the Oaks a 3-1 standing, keeps them hot on the tail of San Mateo.

There still remain four live prospects for the title. San Francisco, Menlo, Modesto and Stockton have only one setback. A strategic upset would throw the league into a confusing deadlock.

* * *

Paint smears, apparently administered by San Mateo rooters, appeared on the campus last week. Similar scribbling adorned the entrance to the main building last season.

The incident recalls to mind the year a complete athletic program between San Jose and Santa Clara was interrupted because of actions of invading alien students.

The short distance between the two teams (San Mateo and City College) home towns have a great bearing on creating a strong rivalry.

Crude actions of students, most of the time far removed from the game itself, have indicated that possibly the San Mateo-City College series, like that of the Spartans and Broncos, should be discontinued.

* * *

Every so often some irate group begins a reform movement, pointing out the unscrupulous sports carrying-ons at Compton College. It seems about time someone went to bat for the Tartar's cause.

They seem to be the center of attraction when discussions arise pertaining to the Little Rose Bowl, illegal before season scrimmages, and unregistered players.

All of the talk, which probably should be garbaged as trash, doesn't seem to have inflicted any harm on Compton's playing performance.

Scoring in every period, they won again Friday evening, slugging Ventura JC 42-14.

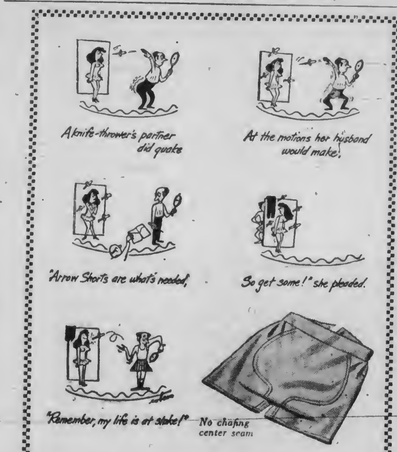
Returning Vets, High School Stars Bolster College Basketball Team

Stressing ability, condition, desire, team spirit, and sportsmanship, Coach Ralph Hillsman held the official opening for basketball last Tuesday afternoon in the men's gymnasium.

Keen competition for team berths is expected because of the equal capability of each of the 50 men that signed up.

Returning from last year's championship team are center Kevin Duggan, forward, Dud Trueisen and Marty Schneider, and guard Les Brillant. Duggan made the second string of the NCJCC all conference team, while Trueisen led the league in scoring, and was placed on the first string all conference team.

Jayvee Gridders Face Santa Rosa



Coach Roy Burkhead takes his Junior Varsity football team to Santa Rosa Junior College, Wednesday, November 9, to do battle with the Bear Cubs for the second time this season.

Earlier in the year the Santa Rosans trecked down to the city and took home a 7-0 victory after a close fought contest.

In the first contest John Bertetta, on the end of the Ram line, and Jack Marcus at the quarterback position combined to make the Ram Lamb a constant threat, but their efforts were not enough to affect the final score.

Too late for publication, the result of yesterday's Lamb versus Commerce High reserves contest will be found in the next issue of The Guardsman.

Not counting the Commerce game, the Lamb club has a season record of one win and one defeat, and has games with San Francisco State and Marin College left to play. There is no jayvee league officially, so league standings are not kept.

Four Supervise Instruction

Curriculum Split In Three Fields

By Bob Kays

Newly established as such this semester, the division of instruction is directed by Dr. Marcus Skarstedt as coordinator, and three deans supervising curriculum in university parallel, general college, and semi-professional fields.

Skarstedt was graduated from Augustana College in Illinois, and received his doctor's degree from the University of California.

In addition to having many years experience in eastern libraries and teaching at Whittier College, he is also author of The Normal Quartic Curve of Four Space, published in 1925.

Working directly with Skarstedt are Deans Luckmann, Sandys, and Brady.

Lloyd Luckmann is the Dean of university parallel courses. A member of the faculty since the college was founded, he was assistant to the president before being appointed to his present position.

Besides being concerned with the university parallel courses, Luckmann is responsible for relations with other schools and colleges.

Edward E. Sandys is the Dean of general college courses. Also with the college since it was founded, he was Dean of Men before his latest appointment. After graduating from Stanford he taught at Palo Alto High School, Beverly Hills High School, and Santa Monica Junior College.

Sandys has supervision over the departments of English, social science, music, art, and recreational leadership.

John J. Brady is the Dean of semi-professional courses. Formerly Assistant Dean of Men, he came to the college in 1940 from Washington Union High School in Centerville.

Brady is concerned with coordinating the activities of the departments that offer two-year terminal courses.

Round 'n About

Dreaded Hell Week Raises Havoc; Pledges Shipped To Test Grounds

GAILY colored neckwear and headgear, seen round 'n about the campus this week denoting the awful presence of Hell Week, make organization neophytes LOOK good, but how they feel is another story indeed.

The exodus of society leaders and pledges from the city to far-away places this weekend makes the new club members feel even worse.

Starting on their journey tonight are the Beta Phi Beta men and their proteges who will enjoy a howling good weekend at the Russian River cabin of brother Dave Utter. The wholesome (or is it gruesome) initiation proceedings will be carried out in style.

Also embarking tonight are members and pledges of Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity, and their destination is the far-northern territory. A hang-up time is guaranteed for all at this informal pledge initiation.

Forum Club, campus literary and discussion society, announces an exteremely important meeting to be held tonight at 8 at 157 Kensington Way, San Francisco. Purpose of the gathering will be to investigate the topic, Does the Personal Life of the Artist Influence His Work of Art? The famous poet, Ezra Pound, will figure controversially in the discussion.

Tonight at 8 seems to be a popular time, for the Latin-American Club has a shindig scheduled for that magical hour, too. The affair is a social gathering, dance, and typical revue (dancing girls?) given in honor of the college's sororities by the Latins in the parish hall of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, 908 Broadway.

Zeta Chi sorority's "Scandinavians" presented their second affair, a Smorgasboard feast, last Sunday at the home of sister Bea Groger and a sensational, if somewhat "sloppy" time was reported by all.

The Wednesday evening clambake of Zeta Chi, a joint meeting with Alpha Sigma Deltas, presented at the home of Felice Quast, also pleased the girls a great deal.

The campus Filipino Students Club, a comparatively new organization here, announces an important meeting today during college hour in Room 309. All Filipino students are invited to sit in on the proceedings.

Alpha Lambda Chi sorority's second affair, Kick Off, was held Wednesday evening, and they had a joint meeting with Tri-Epsilon fraternity on Thursday night. Both occasions provided much excitement for the girls.

Congratulations are extended by Kappa Phis and Tau Chi Sigmas to Ruth Stricker and Joe McCann who were married Friday, October 28, at Saint Cecilia's Church. A reception followed at the Pavilion of Flowers.

Add signs of the times: Several organization members have been seen rolling their own in the snack bar lately. Budget got them, too?

Students Start Next Semester Program Making November 14

Interviews between students who plan to register for the Spring 1950, semester and their counsellors will begin on Monday, November 14, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced last Tuesday.

To register for the spring semester, students must plan their programs and obtain a registration number, Marsh said.

Appointments for interviews are now being made in the counselling office in Building 3. Programs must be filled out before the end of the current semester, he continued.

Those who fail to see their counsellors before the end of this semester will encounter considerable inconveniences on registration day, Marsh added.

Coaching Service Needs Volunteers

The coaching service set up by Alpha Gamma Sigma is still in need of more volunteers, particularly to coach university parallel courses, Barbara Low, director of the service disclosed recently.

Any student interested in coaching may call on Miss Low at the AGS office in Building 5C or The Guardsman business office, Building 12.

Miss Low also called attention to the mail box, outside 5C, saying that students who wish to receive coaching should leave the name of the course in which they would like coaching, the hours convenient for them, their names, addresses, and telephone numbers.

Miss Low added that the fee for receiving coaching has been dropped to 60 cents an hour this semester.

Dean Warns Against Abuses of Student Lounge Privileges

Thoughtless students have been abusing the privileges for which the student lounge in Building 2 was intended, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, said recently.

The student lounge, Browne explained, is a place for studying, quiet talking, or resting, and excessive noise is not condusive to the functions for which the lounge was intended.

Card playing has to be discontinued in the lounge as students have been abusing this privilege also, Browne added.

The student lounge is also used by various clubs for teas and group meetings, and the furniture should not be misused as it destroys the appearance of the lounge.

Debris from lunches should be properly disposed of in the waste baskets provided for that purpose, Browne said.

Because many students spend their free time in the lounge, Browne urged that this popular meeting place should be kept in a good condition for all students to enjoy.

Geologist Green Brings Dinosaur Bone For Stay At The College

By Ben Galon

"This is a dinosaur bone and these are gastroliths."

That is what George Green, geology instructor, pictured at right, had to say when asked about an odd looking bone he was holding and a bunch of peculiar stones in a box. He said he brought them with him to the college after a recent visit to the Dinosaur National Monument in Utah.

The bone, he estimated, is about 100 to 200 million years old. Asked what the stones have to do with dinosaurs, he explained: "The dinosaurs were of various species. There was the Trachodon, which had 2000 teeth, and the Gigantosaurus, which was 100 feet long. Some of those prehistoric monsters were plant-eating and some were flesh-eating. One type dinosaur ate stones just as a chicken eats grit to grind its food. That's why these stones are called gastrolith or 'stomach-stone'."

Green said that the dinosaurs inhabited the earth 200 million years ago and they lived for a period of 140 million years. Just why they ceased to exist is not definitely known.

"At the end of the Cretaceous era (60 million years ago)," he said, "there were great volcanic eruptions. The earth was readjusted and all life was obliterated. It could be that the dinosaurs didn't outlive the catastrophe."

Speech Test And Drop Course Dates Are Set

Less than a week remains for second-semester students to take the required oral speech tests, Anthony Paciotti, English instructor, said yesterday.

Students who show speech defects are required to enroll in Communications 19A during the spring semester, in order to graduate, he added.

Tests will be held Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 9 to 11 a.m., and on Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. in Building 19.

Wednesday, November 9, is the last day to drop courses, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned yesterday.

Drop cards may be obtained from the counsellors in Building 3, she said. Special permission for dropping courses must be gained from the student's counselior and coordinator Grant Marsh after this date.

Welfare Division Solves Student Woes

The malady of midterm fever, caused by the virus peor gradeitis, is receiving prompt attention by the student welfare division this semester. Dr. F. Grant Marsh, department head, in the top picture, is recommending treatment for remedy of a special problem confronting the student on the left.

Most students seeking consultation, however, are not perplexed by grades, but with special problems (as is the case with student Mehdi Radpur pictured) relating to programming necessary courses for graduation.

X-Ray department of the welfare division is the registrar's office where grades of all attending and past students are recorded on microfilm. Some of the X-ray films reveal cancerous effects in some records (in the form of low grades), which the counselors and registrar's office try to remedy by stirring incentive of students to work for A and B marks.

Autumn Serenade Theme Of Associated Student Semi-Annual Dance Thursday

With Autumn Serenade as the theme, the semi-annual Associated Student dance will be held Thursday night, November 10, at the Hotel Sir Francis Drake, Ronnie Morrison, vice-president of the Associated Students, announced yesterday.

The dance will be held in the Empire and French rooms and will feature the orchestra of Kerns and Ticoulat, Miss Morrison revealed.

Summer Session May Be Reinstated Here

Administration officials are now discussing a plan to reinstate summer sessions here during 1950, Lloyd D. Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, said yesterday.

The summer classes will last for a six week period, he said, and will be limited in the variety of courses offered.

There were no summer classes held last year at the college.

Kerns and Ticoulat have added nine string sections to their orchestra for the occasion, and though a variation of musical rhythms will be played, most of the songs will be soft, melodic renditions.

Many members of the Kerns and Ticoulat band are former members of nationally known big name bands who wish to form a local orchestra because they have homes and jobs in San Francisco, Miss Morrison said.

Several humorous novelty acts will be presented during the intermission, Miss Morrison added.

Admission will be by Associated Student card only with one card per couple and dress is to be informal.

The music is scheduled to begin at nine o'clock and will continue until midnight.

Refreshments, mainly cokes, will be served.

"I am sure everyone who attends will enjoy the original type music played by Kerns and Ticoulat, Miss Morrison commented. "The committee invites everyone to be on hand for the gay dance."

College Has Day Off For Armistice Day

Because of the Armistice Day holiday this Friday, there will be no classes, hence no college hour program, and no issue of The Guardsman.

Only two days remain for second semester students all of whom must take oral speech tests before the 3 p.m. Thursday deadline, emphasized English Instructor Anthony Paciotti.

The schedule for the oral speech tests is Wednesday, from 9 to 11 a. m., and Thursday, from 1 to 3 p. m., in Building 19, Room 19B.

The tests consist of selected material, which is designed to point out defects in students' pronunciation. In some cases a topic of the students' choice is permissible as reading material.

The next issue of The Guardsman will be distributed on the regular publication day, Tuesday, November 15.

CAB Suspends Ten Organizations For Failure To File New Charters

Suspension of 10 college clubs, chartered by the Club Activities Board last semester, is now official, Frances McCarthy, CAB president, announced yesterday.

The following clubs are suspended:

Cosmopolitan Society, Chinese Club, Drama Society, Latin-American Club, Masonic Club, Mu Iota Psi, Omicron Phi Pi, Pi Mu Gamma, Ram Cam, and the Young Progressives.

Reason for this action came as a result of these clubs not submitting their charters to the CAB, Miss McCarthy said.

The status of 11 other college clubs, is indefinite. Many of them lack enough members who have Associated Student cards, and others don't have the required number of members in their respective clubs.

This group includes the following clubs:

Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Lambda Sigma, Beta Phi Beta, Tri Epsilon, Spur and Saddle, Alpha Lambda Chi, Lambda Alpha, Ski Rams, Iota Phi Lambda, Strikes and Spares, and the Hillel Foundation.

The Radio Club is the only new organization to complete requirements.

The following clubs are officially recognized by the CAB:

Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Delta Psi, Phi Epsilon Rho, Men's Glee, Beta Tau, Engineering Society, Alpha Sigma Delta, French Club, Theta Tau, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Forum Club, Alpha Phi Omega, Block SF, Inter-Fraternity Council, Phi Beta Delta, Kappa Phi, Pi Delta Koppa, Newman Club, Pick and Hammer, Phi Beta Rho, Phi Rho Pi, Collegiate Christian Fellowship and Zeta Chi.

The ten suspended clubs will not have representation at CAB meetings, nor will they be provided a room on campus for their club meetings, Miss McCarthy stated.

A few new organizations, she added, are now in the process of meeting requirements for chartering.

Counsellors Expect Big Spring Program Signup

It's "Look Ahead to the Spring Semester" time on campus this week, as counsellors hastily prepare to welcome an expected early rush of students who will make appointments for scheduling of their Spring programs, beginning Monday, November 14.

An announcement that students was issued by F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, that urged appointments for interviews be made early or the applicant will risk assignment of a late registration number.

Students early in arranging programs with their counsellors will be convenienced by being privileged to register in the first group during Spring registration.

Accompanying this announcement came an important report that routine in the Registrar's Office is back to "normal" after a recent move from the east campus into Building 3.

Not yet looking ahead to the Spring, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, issued a last minute call that all students desiring to drop a course must file their blue cards before the deadline, 4:30 p.m., tomorrow. Blue cards may be obtained from the student's specified counsellor.

To provide competent and fast service to students desiring assistance in planning their programs, the registration and counselling departments this year have been placed under one administrator, Coordinator Marsh.

Under Marsh the function of the registrar's office is that of keeping records on the thousands of past and present students, preparing transcripts for those who transfer, and checking applications for admission.

Also under the student welfare division is the counselling department which is now staffed with 13 full-time counsellors.

Marsh describes the counselling setup as an informal, student centered program, whereby students are given the opportunity to take tests which indicate their interests, capabilities, and aptitudes.

Shakespearian Comedy Set For Production Next Week

Second of the college's Shakespearian productions, the comedy, Much Ado About Nothing, starts its six-night run next Thursday, November 17, in the Little Theater, under the direction of Paul Ellison.

Like Twelfth Night, which was produced by the College Players last year Much Ado is composed of several "plots" woven together until they reach the climax of happiness for the "good" and comeuppance for the bad characters, with no great punishment meted out to anyone.

Carried through the Much Ado plot are two sets of lovers who go by the names of Claudio and Hero, and Benedick and Beatrice, respectively.

Presiding over most of the action is a prince named Don Pedro, and endeavoring to do the most harm is the typical villian, Don John and his cohort Borachio.

A discerning play-goer detects hints of the John Alden-Miles Standish dilemma, a suggestion that led to some predicaments experienced by Mozart's, Figaro, and good-natured conflict that forms the backbone of modern musical comedy, light opera, and swift-paced drama-comedy as well as Hollywood moving pictures.

Cast for alternate evenings is as follows: the role of one young hero, Claudio, will be portrayed by Paul Andrews and William Matteson, while his lady Hero, will be played by Vivian Breslin and Mary Cooke.

Edward Mulvihill and Robert Rogers will alternate as the prince, Don Pedro. Benedick is to be played by James Carlson and Ronald Zimmerman and Beatrice by Jane Howarth.

George Jackson and Mervyn Murphy as Don John, Eugene Carlson as Lenato, Leonard Wolf and Donald Powell as Borachio, the servant, and William Bausen and Don Stevens, in the comedy of Dogberry and Verges, complete the cast.

Tickets for the Shakespearian comedy are expected to be on sale in box offices set up in the west campus and main building.

The admission fee for Associated Student card holders is 15 cents while for other students and visitors the price is 75 cents.

If student demand appears great enough, there may be matinee performance scheduled Monday, November 22, Ellison declared.

Students, Faculty Members Must Be Identified At Symphony Concerts

Symphony Forum concert tickets will be honored only if persons holding them show proper identification and association with the college through which they purchase the tickets.

This announcement, made yesterday by Meyer M. Cahn, forum advisor here, is in accordance with San Francisco Musical Association regulations. The association sponsors these special student concerts at reduced rates.

To facilitate identification, students or faculty are expected to submit their names to Cahn or Robert M. Morton of the music department. The names will be sent to the Opera House where identification cards will be made and mailed to the individual before November 10. Names must be submitted by Friday, November 5, Cahn warned yesterday.

Lois Arfsten, member of the forum here, said that because of the appearance of many non-students at the Thursday night concerts, some form of identification must be shown.

Tickets for the performances can be purchased from members of the Music Counell or forum.

Ushers Offered Passes To Monteux Concert

Students interested in ushering at the Opera House for the San Francisco Symphony, conducted by Pierre Monteux, this Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, may receive ushering passes now from Margaret Dougherty, dean of women in Building 2.

Next week, passes will also be available for the Opera House concert by Pianist Alec Templeton, Monday evening, November 14.

Ushers must be at the Opera House by 7 p.m. for these performances, Dean Dougherty said.

Debate Tourney Highlights Education Week

Featured program here for American Education Week will be the state-wide California High School Speech Tournament scheduled for this Friday and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., according to Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses.

Open to the general public, the tournament is sponsored by Phi Rho Pi, speech honor society, which yesterday disclosed the names of judges recently added to the already lengthy list of prominent San Francisco personages.

Paul Ellison, college drama instructor directing the drama department's second Shakespearian production, Much Ado About Nothing, recently consented to abandon rehearsals long enough to serve as a judge along with other college instructors.

San Francisco State Teachers College is sending several instructors, among whom are Clarence Miller and Raymond Doyle of the drama and radio departments, to act as judges.

KSFO Round Table Moderator and secretary of the Commonwealth Club, Stewart Ward, also has stated his willingness to act as judge.

Captain George Shamer, ex-Naval officer, will also attend, along with Gordon Lious, adjutant for the San Francisco American Legion Post.

Students of the college are urged by Michael Griffin, speech coach for the tournament, to attend since this will be the college's only participation in American Education Week.

Judges H. A. van der Zee, Weinberger, John B. Molinari, and other municipal and superior court judges will render final decisions while students from this college and the University of San Francisco, and San Francisco State College will be preliminary judges.

Childish Vandalism Subject For Editorial Criticism

PAINTING buildings, and the willful destruction or defacement of property is, we think, a juvenile activity that calls for some little editorial comment.

If there is any collegiate activity more childish than vandalism, we have not heard of it. A few misguided intellects have the idea that this sort of thing is not only lots of "fun" but good college spirit. Let's take a closer look at this adolescent idea of "fun" and see if it really is college spirit.

Last year misguided juvenile vandalism almost led to the college being forced to cancel all remaining football games. Is this college spirit? Anybody involved in this activity did the college a serious disservice and, ironically enough, all in the name of college spirit.

THE playful lark of running around splashing paint is a costly sport and all the members of the Associated Students must help pay the bill. Each semester the Student Council must appropriate several hundred dollars of your money to pay for some overly enthusiastic student's idea of "fun." Is that college spirit?

Let it be understood that we are in favor of the old "rah rah," but not when it harms the college and hurts the rank and file members of the Associated Students. Vandalism is not only poor college spirit but a rather childish activity hardly worthy of college students.

Unless the students in general find some solution to the problem of these little boyish pranks, the administration will. Needless to say the administration solution will be a bit drastic. We sincerely hope that the students do not force any such action.

ONE possible solution may be to make sure such activities, if we must have them, be confined to some symbol or other about the campus. For example, old Sammy the west campus Ram is open to opposing colleges for the purpose of splashing paint. As Kipling or somebody once almost said: Spirit is spirit and vandalism is vandalism and never the twain shall meet.

Counterpoint: Tragic Story Of Joe Doe Versus Radio Giveaways

By Walt Heil

JOE Doe and his wife are typical San Franciscans. They live in the far reaches of the Sunset District, where it is foggy a good part of the year, and their only son attends City College from where he plans to go to Stanford.

Doe is a partner in a small advertising agency located in the canyon of brick on Montgomery Street, while his wife is a saleswoman at Macy's.

PHONE RANG

One pleasant Sunday evening when young Doe had decided to forego his usual visit to the local cinema palace and do his Communications 5A homework instead, and the rest of the family was sitting around reading the newspapers, the telephone rang.

Mrs. Doe answered as usual and correctly identified the mystery melody as the one she had just read about in the paper. The announcer excitedly informed her that she had just won the 100,000 dollar jackpot.

The announcer, in rapid fire order, rattled through the imposing list, which ranged from dog food to mink coats for the whole family, and gave Mrs. Doe his blessing.

SPREADS THE GOOD WORD

Meanwhile, young Doe had forgotten all about his modifiers and predicates, and couldn't wait to tell Betty, his ready steady, the good news.

Word got around quickly, and the house reverbrated with well wishers and the telephone rang again and again. It didn't cease ringing until well into the night. Young Doe, of course, was jubilant, but the folks were making wry faces.

The next day young Doe was by far the most popular man on the local campus and even got rushed by his favorite fraternity.

HE'S GOTTA DOG

"Congratulations, Jake. Say, I know you haven't got a dog and I have, I sure could use some of that dog food."

"Sure," says young Doe.

But the thrill wears off soon. The Does' life is disrupted and they are annoyed constantly. Soon the preposterous prizes begin to arrive. Everything from tractors, 1000 cases of hormone cream, Harry Truman busts, and dogfood are included.

Moreover, they had to decide what to do with all the prizes. A lawyer was hired for advice and they rented storage space in a warehouse. Doe decided the only things worth keeping were the car, TV set, and living room furniture.

BROKE EVEN

The rest was sold at cut rate prices and friends were dismayed because they did not get anything free. At any rate, the Does barely broke even, after deducting lawyer's fees, rental for storage, and lost wages.

"What a headache its been," said Doc. "The FCC ban should stick. Giveaways are fake and cheap entertainment and clutter up the radio when something constructive could be on. I'm glad its over, now I can sleep."

Orators vs. Scribes Tomorrow

Battle Royal Gets Women's Support

When the battle of the Budget Bowl sees the Student Council meet the members of The Guardman staff in the greatest of touch football games, the women of each group are expected to be present en masse to urge their respective teams on to victory.

Assuming the roles of water girls, band aid bearers, mascots, cheer leaders, and general rooters, their staunch support should aid the best team to fight its way to victory.

Council women will keep books on the fracas, while the Brenda Starrs of the paper will hustle back to write the "scoop."

Council rooters will include Ronnie Morrison, Sandy MacKay, Norma Moebes, Carmel Lee, Felice Quast, Joan Maranda, Florence Loo, and Frances McCarthy; while the opposing side will be supported by Rose Hardie, Bobbie Jackson, Sandra Marks, Naomi Takahshi, and Emma Robins.

Guardsman Eleven Favored To Win Budget Bowl Classic—It Says Here

An unbiased and impartial source (Coach Brennan) predicts a Scribe victory in the big "Budget Bowl" game tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m. on the college field. A secret practice, held at the college fountain, shows that the Scribe gridmen are ready and willing, said the Coach. (Nothing was said about being able, as this is open to question.)

Admission to this touch grid classis will be one used streetcar transfer, two Dewey buttons, or five cents in cold cash. As may be remembered, this is a charity game being played in order to establish a milk fund for needy editors and Associated Student presidents. Anybody who wants to see the worst game of touch football ever played should be there.

Looking-Up . . . National Skating Competitor Finds Domestic Life Unsafe, Keeps To Rinks

By Dick Briggs

RUNNING circles around everyone on campus is easy for freshman student Russel Presting, who literally does it—on ice skates, that is.

One of top winners in the 1949 Colorado Springs North America Ice Skating Meet, Presting is not early in practicing now to face the international competition that will vie for awards in the 1949 meet.

PLACES IN NATIONALS

Though Presting learned to cut his first figure eight on a frozen pond in South Dakota only three years ago, he easily placed third in the 440 and 880 yard speed race, and fourth place for total points against Canada's and America's top performers in the 1948 Colorado Springs Meet.

Skating against national championship competition in speed races presents more opportunities for mishap than a playful kitten making first acquaintance with a basket of loose yarn.

FEEL SAFE ON ICE

Skate blades can inflict deep, slashing wounds if a skater slips on an ice track at full speed. But Presting is more content whizzing at race horse speed, dangerously close to ice speedsters, than a cat stomach deep in a barrel heaped with catnip.

The hazards of ice skating on slippery, dangerous rinks hold no fears for Presting, who glides about on silver blades with the aplomb of an applauded prima-donna at a last curtain call. But outside the rink he falls heir to every virus, sore, and unusual circumstance that plagues all species from man to the tsetse fly. Once in a game of musical chairs he crashed into a companion and fractured his skull.

ALMOST PRODIGY

Presting can be classified as a prodigy considering that after skating only one year he qualified for the Los Angeles State Finals in 1947. Despite his early successes, Presting has a sincere modesty rarer than old jade.

His ability in becoming a superior ice skater within a short period, Presting passes off with a quick, rehearsed statement, "Oh, I got it from my parents, I guess, they were pretty good skaters."

Presting has skated frequently on outdoor ponds, but has never duplicated the classic Sunday funny paper joke of falling through thin ice, though "competing with top international competition is more hazardous than skating on thin ice," he says.

Spotlight: Today's Big Problem Is What To Buy Whom For Christmas

By Keith Gardner

NOW, we don't want this bandied about, but today is an auspicious date in the year 1949, and you good people should know about it

In case you haven't already guessed, there are only forty-eight more days 'til Christmas. This, of course, means that in another forty-seven days it will be time to do your holiday shopping, and therein lies our tale for today.

SOLVED

The problem of what to buy whom, where, and when, has existed for untold centuries, and until recently no one has been able to offer a satisfactory solution. But a couple of days ago the answer to the whole thing appeared to us in a vision (a vision composed of four different fruit juices with a few drops of Scotch to alleviate the terrible sweetness.)

We suggest limiting your purchases to the people with whom you customarily exchange gifts. If you can't remember, it's just too bad. Personally, we never have any trouble with things like that. Our memory, in fact, is such that we are frequently consulted by elephants.

DOUBLE STANDARD

What to buy is, of course, a slightly more difficult problem. But it can be solved. Mothers, for instance, will probably express unalloyed joy on receiving a double-breasted pinstripe with two pairs of pants, and fathers will be beside themselves on finding a sportcoat emblazoned with your college colors under the tree.

If, by any chance, the above named articles should just happen to fit you, their usefulness will be doubly increased.

In a metropolis the size of San Francisco there should be no worry at all as to where to buy gifts. Among the many popular stores there are the Emporium, I. Magnin's, and Joe's Super Thrift Shop.

VARIED CLIENTELE

Our personal choice is Joe's place. The clientele consists largely of dope fiends and second story men, but you can buy anything there. Sometimes before the police even know it's missing.

In conclusion we can only say that we hope these suggestions will prove helpful to anyone imbecilic enough to follow them.

(Personal note: Somehow the word seems to have gotten around that today is my birthday, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many readers who sent me gifts. But, regretfully, I must ask you to stop. As a result of your generosity, The Guardsman office is crammed so full of presents that it's impossible to do any work. Besides, I've got all the strychnine I need.)

Experts Say Modern American Jazz Lacks Popular Support

By Don Cunningham

"The future of jazz depends to a great extent on the awakening of new enthusiasms — the creating of new listeners and collectors—at the college-age level." So states the recent issue of that highly informative jazz magazine, The Record Changer.

Taking into consideration that more is spent on rare jazz records by college students than by any other group, the statement should be reasonably digestible to everyone, regardless of musical preferences.

Although the nation's leading recording companies and music journals realize that this special school set is a tremendously potential one for consistent jazz support, they carry out a policy of stuffing the supposedly educated student with deceitful talk of giving the public what it wants.

Which, when interpreted, seems to mean a grand scale distribution of stagnant, sentimental ballads, and tiring instrumentations. Music in this way becomes as much an art as a Nick Carter dime novel.

The majority of Americans have completely ignored their native jazz idiom and have left the raising of the musical orphan to a handful of observant enthusiasts.

One illustration of the indifference shown toward jazz in this country can be easily seen in the fact that the first three books on the subject were the products of foreign authors (and these saw light a quarter of a century after the music's beginnings in New Orleans.)

The most sensible way of raising jazz to its rightful position is by gaining the understanding and support of the future leader of the nation, the college student.

Klemmermen Pick On Lowly Hartnell To Snap Three Game Losing Streak

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

Armistice Day, 1948, found two of the nation's greatest two-year college teams, Hartnell and San Francisco, battling it out for the NCJCC southern division title. Armistice Day, 1949, finds just another pair of teams attempting to gain a winning average for the season.

It will be the Rams' first day game of the season Friday at Salinas when they tangle with the conference doormat.

The Panthers, who lost only one game last season, have failed to win in conference play this year. They have dropped decisions to Stockton, San Mateo, and Menlo. In non-league contests they have defeated the Cal Poly Frosh and Bakersfield, while being set back by John Muir and the Santa Clara Frosh.

The Rams, who have lost three in a row, can boast of only one conference win, that being the division's most powerful outfit, Menlo.

Last Friday night at Downey, the local gridders received the worst humiliation in their grid history. Still smarting from the 48-6 dumping they received from the Rams last year, East Los Angeles Junior College handed the locals an unforciful 53-6 lacing. The Huskie rooting section and team were not content until they pushed over the final tally in the last minute of play.

There may be only 40 more shopping days until Christmas, but this doesn't concern the Rams. They gave away enough gifts Friday night. Throughout the dreadful evening they fumbled ten times losing the ball on eight of the occasions, and had three passes intercepted.

Although they were trailing 6-26 at half, the Rams had picked up 120 yards rushing and 38 through the air for a total of 158 net yards gained, while the Huskies had accumulated only 58 yards on the ground and 49 yards by passing for a total of 107 net yards gained. For the entire contest the Huskies gained only 76 yards more than the Rams, who received the edge in first downs 12-10. Yet the Huskies won 53-6.

Taking advantage of two Ram fumbles and two intercepted passes, the Huskies racked up an early 26-0 lead in the first half.

To break the monotony, the locals came back 65 yards under the guidance of quarterback Dick Carillo to make their only score. Carillo passed nine yards to Marv Crews for the tally, leaving the score 26-6 at halftime.

In the second half, runs of 38 and 35 yards plus an intercepted pass and a recovered lateral provided the Huskies four more touchdowns to wind up their scoring spree at 53-6.

Medical Exam Final Dates Set

Medical examinations for women students here will be offered two days next week in the women's gymnasium, Gloria Swicegood, women's physical education instructor, said yesterday.

The two-day period, she said, is specially provided for those who have previously failed to take their required medical examination.

Monday morning, November 14, has been made available for the checkup, with Tuesday afternoon, November 15, positively the final time Dr. Alice Potter, college women's physician, will be present to give the checkup.

Because the examinations has sometimes to be of little importance, Miss Swicegood pointed out that department regulations provide that women students who fail to meet this requirement will not receive a grade in their physical education course.

Miss Swicegood added that she will take applications for appointments for the examinations through November 15.

Jayvee Grid Slate Completed; Three Games Left On Schedule

Completion of the Junior Varsity grid slate was announced by Lamb mentor Roy Burkhead this week.

With three games of their six-game season finished, the jayvee club goes to Santa Rosa for a return contest tomorrow. In the two teams' first meeting, Santa Rosa annexed a 7 to 0 victory on the local turf.

Other contests are San Francisco State reserves on Friday, November 17, and Marin College reserves on Monday, November 21. Both games are scheduled out of San Francisco.

The jayvee squad is fielded by the college for the lesser experienced football prospects to gain playing time in order to make the varsity the next season. "Some people seem to think that a player who is on the junior varsity is doomed never to make first string, but just the reverse of this is true," Mentor Burkhead stated.

So far this season the Lambs romped to a 13-0 victory over the Mission High reserves and lost a hard-fought 7-0 decision to the powerful Santa Rosa Junior varsity.

Repeat Of Last Season Win Sought By Local Soccermen Over Stanford

Local soccer players host the Stanford Indian footmen on the Ram turf Saturday in an effort to repeat last season's win over the Redskins.

Saturday's contest is the next to the last contest for Coach Roy Diederichsen's lads, who then face a new conference addition, UCLA.

In two Stanford games last year, City College won one and tied a second. In a contest which should have gone to the locals, Diederichsen's pupils are eager to see to it that the tilt this year is definitely theirs.

Power in the backfield kicking, which was one of the local weaknesses earlier in the season, has improved through the boots of halfbacks Nick Vasileff and Neal Decker.

All-American ratings for the selection of two men from this conference to play in an All-American game in St. Louis are divided between Decker and Vasileff for the locals. The game will pit the Northern and Western parts of the country against the Eastern and Southern sections.

Eight goals have been scored by the Rams thus far this season with Jose Rodriquez high point man with two tallies to his credit.

A look at the season record reveals but a single local victory, over California Aggies; a tie with San Francisco State; and two losses, one to California and one to the University of San Francisco.

RAMblings . . . Basketball Makes Spotlight As Hillsman Greets Future Local Casaba Talent

By Frank Monte

ALTHOUGH football is still parading in the sports spotlight, basketball bounced into the college sports picture last week, when Coach Ralph Hillsman greeted 50 casaba tryouts, in preparation for the coming season.

This year's basketball team will have to go a long way to meet last season's standards, when the "Hillsmen" walked off with 30 out of 32 contests. Not only did they take the Southern Division Conference title, 11-1, but they also grabbed the Modesto Basketball Tourney championship and the Cow Palace Preliminary Basketball Tournament crown.

At the climax of the season came the only disappointment, when the Rams, having beaten Grant Tech twice and hampered by injuries, lost to them in the finals of the Sacramento Invitational Tourney, 56-50. By virtue of this win, Grant Tech went to Hutchinson, Kansas, to compete against the nation's best in the National Two Year College Tournament.

Had the townies been at full strength and able to whip Grant Tech, it would have meant national recognition for the college. By comparative scores and win averages, the college squad was the logical team to send.

TRUELSEN, DUGGAN RETURN

Back again to pace the "Hillsmen" is all-conference forward, Dud Truelsen, who led the league in scoring last season, annexing 393 points in 29 tilts for a 13.6 average.

Along with Truelsen comes star center Kevin Duggan, who compiled 277 digits in 30 encounters. While Duggan is certainly a great offensive threat, he is better known for his outstanding defensive play.

With Captain Jim "Pop" Caldwell gone, forward Marty Schnieder will take over the honors and title of "Pop." Schnieder became the father of a baby girl a few weeks ago.

Other returnees looking for a spot on the first five are Les Brilliant, guard, Dick Farley, guard, Pat Joyce, center, and forward Skip Carnegie.

GRIDDERS IN DAY TILT

Thus far content to conduct all their games at night, Grover Klemmer's varsity will engage in their first day tilt, when they meet Hartnell College Friday, November 11, at Salinas. While last year's Armistice Day fracas meant the top of the heap in conference standings to both cluhs, this week the Rams, who still have a slight chance to gain the Southern Division crown will tangle with the doormat of the league.

Ram Coach Teamwork

COACH GROVER KLEMMER receives the wise consultation of line coach Bill Fischer at a recent team workout on the college field. Working together in such a manner helps both mentors decide important factors pertaining to the improvement of the squad. Although the team has been fairly ineffectual in recent games, both coaches seem to feel confident that better days lie ahead in the last closing season. Teamwork such as this helps keep up the team morale, because it gives the coaches a better chance to decide which players are to comprise the different squads. —Photo by Steinheimer.

Washington 130's Annex Intramural Championship, Beat Beavers 32-25

Playing by far the best game of the now past intramural basketball tournament, the Washington 130's subdued the Beavers by a score of 32-25 to annex the championship of the college. The game was played in the men's gymnasium last Wednesday afternoon.

With the game only five minutes under way, the Beavers held a six point lead, and it looked like the championship was decided, but the Washington squad began rallying, and at halftime, the Beavers were behind by two points.

The third quarter was a nip and tuck affair that saw both teams matching basket for basket, but early in the fourth period the Washington team, using a fast break that the Beavers could not stop, put on a seven-point spurge that was to give them the victory.

Harvey Cranow should be given a large part of the credit for this victory, because it was his fine defense and rebounding that made the win possible. Irving Winetraub and Bab Freis also played stellar floor games for the winners. Other members of the squad were Jerry Murphy, Charles Andrews, Gil Schmitz, and Ronald Kasablan.

Offensive and defensive star for the Beavers were Diek Boyle and Hiram Short, respectively. The smooth shooting of Boyle and the rebounding of Short were the main factors in the closeness of the contest. The remainder of the team consisted of Jim Green, Charles Walton, John Giosso, Felix Duag, Antonio Campos, and Frank Sampson.

Large Turnout For Coed Bowling; Mission Bowl Reduces Group Rates

Coed bowling, given for the first time this semester, is probably the one class with no cuts, according to Helene Mayer, supervisor for the class which meets at the Mission Bowl on Mondays and Wednesdays.

An experiment of the physical education department, coed bowling was received with enthusiasm by approximately 40 students, many of whom later dropped out because of the commuting conflicting with afternoon English classes.

"Exceptional bowlers of the class of A and B students are Stella Chew, James Maneggie and Howard McDonough, according to instructor Johnny Bazzanella. Miss Chew bowls a 150 point average, unusual for women bowlers.

Reduced rates of 25 cents a line and free shoe rental effective all day Mondays and Wednesdays to City College students, have induced them to play more than the daily requirement of two lines.

Students unable to attend the 1:00 class receive instruction later in the day but do not receive credit for the course. Instruction will still be given to students signing up now.

The Mission Bowl is located at 3140 Mission Street.

Round 'n About

ORDEALS suffered by organization members last week as part of the experiences of Hell Week seem to have stunned them into silence, for society spokesmen were mum on club news.

A few facts concerning Beta Phi Beta fraternity initiation activities, however, were extricated from Don Ward, Beta Phi publicity director. Members of the organization had a rough weekend at Russian River, which leads them to pose the question, Who got initiated . . . the members or the pledges? Judging from appearances, it must have been the members!

Tau Chi Sigma fraternity reports a gay time at initiation activities down the road a piece at Boulder Creek. Could be their dance held Friday evening spurred them on to great things!

All reports have it that the aforementioned fling was a terrific success, both for the flingers and the flingees.

Still no news from Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity members and pledges, who took off Friday night for an undisclosed hideout in the far north to celebrate initiation rites. Snowed in, maybe?

Although Le Cercle Francais (the French to you) members participated in no such monkey-business as initiations, they got their kicks recently from an epistle received by Doris Hernreid, faculty adviser of the group, from a hospital in Paris . . . ah, gay Paree.

The letter expressed much grati- Guy Gimmick (apologies to Jack McDowell.)

Students wishing to study the Bible were called on by members of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship this week to attend Bible study groups currently meeting Tuesdays in Room 215 at 10 a.m., and in Room 1A at 3 p.m. At the present time the morning meet is for women students only, however.

Morning and afternoon assemblages are now studying the Gospel according to Saint John, taking one chapter a week for discussion. David Brewer, president of the CCF, disclosed recently.

Flash! News just trickled in from the Alpha Sigma Delta far-north expedition. The weekend was spent at the gold mining town of Colusa, but all did not glitter!

Pledges including Tom Campanella, Dick Cordellis, Al Sebanc, Dick MacFarlane, Jack Oakes, Milt Castra, Jerry Brunette, Bruce Sloane, Dave Urbine, and several unrecognizable forms had a great deal of fun at the outing digging holes in the sand (not for the gold, but for trees.)

However, in spite of the hard work of the crew, Nick Choulos, an old hand in the society, reports he plans to ding one of the pledges at the pledge dinner coming up in a month. Now, who didn't dig their holes?

Because of our trip to Los Angeles to take in the game with the Huskies, we are unable to report on the Jazz Festival we've been promoting for some time. The clam bake was held Friday evening in Kezar stadium and featured prominent musicians playing the several types of jump melodies. Perhaps we'll hear how it turned out.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party!

Thunder Of Hell Week Passes With Pledges Well On Way To Recovery

Delta Psi Sorority Promises Weekly Assistance To College Librarians

Members of Delta Psi sorority have pledged themselves to help the college's librarians for at least one hour per week, Katherine Pedley, cataloging librarian, said recently.

They have taken on this added responsibility as a social subject, assuming such tasks as shelving books in the proper places, classifying the various pamphlets, typing and sending overdue notices, and handling the books at the desk, Mrs. Pedley said.

"It all depends on what the girl is most capable of doing," Mrs. Pedley explained. "She may be most adept at typing, so we place her at preparing book lists or the catalog cards."

There are other jobs which require skill such as mending worn book covers, carefully pasting torn pages together, or lacquering and lettering the covers of new books, she added.

"It's only because of these girls that we have been able to offer so many facilities to the students," Mrs. Pedley said, "and we could present much more service if other students would offer to help out."

Reporter Describes News Methods

Members of the 9 o'clock journalism class were taken behind the scenes of a day in the life of a police reporter last week as they listened to an address by Harvey Wing, police reporter of the San Francisco News, as he explained some of the techniques used in this type of news gathering.

One of the things that most attract young people to the newspaper business is its "never-a-dull-moment" quality, for as Wing pointed out seldom does exactly the same situation arise twice.

Before leaving Wing presented to the college library three copies of the book, A letter to a Young Man, written by the late John H. Sorrels, who was executive editor of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

AGS May Have Coaching Room In Building Five

Possibility that Alpha Gamma Sigma may soon have a room on the upper floor of Building 5 in which students may receive coaching was revealed today by Don Jensen, faculty adviser to the honor society.

Students interested in receiving coaching are reminded that the staff is composed of honor students who have shown special ability in the courses they are coaching, Jensen added.

Jensen also gave a brief description of what preliminary steps toward becoming a member are taken on registration day: Members of the society have a table at the end of the registration line and if the student believes he can qualify he gives them his name and address. His grades are then checked and if found to be satisfactory he is sent a card informing him he is eligible for membership in the honor society.

Denman Board Meets

Members of the Denman Scholarship Committee at a luncheon yesterday afternoon selected two winners from the 11 scholarship applicants.

The committee, composed of Dean Margaret Dougherty, chairman; former college president, A. J. Cloud, trustee; and Dr. Marcus Skarstedt, will announce the winners later this week. President Louis Conlan attended the meeting.

Department Stores Plan Tests For Student Christmas Helpers

Students planning to work as sales clerks or wrappers during the Christmas holidays should be prepared to take an examination given by the department stores, Joseph Amori, placement director, announced recently.

For the first time in many years, Amori said, department stores are giving a test on applicants' ability to do Christmas work. Sales workers are given a multiple choice examination on sales problems and store etiquette.

Most of the applicants sent from the college placement service are passing this examination, he added.

A finger dexterity test is given to applicants applying for wrapping work.

This test determines the applicants' ability to properly wrap packages, Amori said.

It has been found by the department stores that workers passing these tests are able to successfully carry on the duties required during the holiday rush, he explained.

Students who are unable to pass the test are requested to return to the placement office for other Christmas assignments, Amori concluded.

Bit Of Latin America Moves To San Francisco

By Clarence Whitcomb

A bit of romantic Latin America has been transplanted to San Francisco for students interested in Spanish culture and customs.

The founder of the Spanish-American Social Club, Dr. Jose H. Salvador, is a nationally known linguist and world traveler.

Salvador formed this unique club for students enjoying the music, songs, dances, games, and food of Latin America.

The club offers single or double rooms in a large home located near the campus.

Spanish notables and Latin-American Consuls visit the group for informal educational discussions, he added.

The atmosphere and culture of the Latin world has been reproduced for students wishing to live in Spain while attending City College, Salvador explained.

Students who would like to join this club should obtain membership information from Edwin C. Browne, dean of men.

Help A Needy Family At Thanksgiving Theme Of Rally-Dance Tomorrow Night

By Jack O'Sullivan

Help a needy family at Thanksgiving is the theme for which the Associated Students will present a benefit rally-dance in the west campus auditorium tomorrow night, Urb Cummins, rally commissioner, announced yesterday.

Admission to the dance is one can of food per person, something that can be used with a Thanksgiving dinner, or a monetary contribution, the minimum being 25 cents, Cummins declared.

Proceeds from the dance and sale of refreshments will be donated to the Salvation Army, under the auspices of the Community Chest, for their annual Thanksgiving dinners for destitute families.

Entertainment will be under the direction of Bill Rosaia, variety club chairman, who has presented some of the college's most praised rallies. Acts to be presented include various song and dance specialties, plus a few unusual skits.

"This rally promises to be one of the semester's social highlights," Cummins said.

Phi Beta Delta has consented to donate their services in operating the coat stand, and Alpha Sigma Delta will be in charge of the coke bar, Cummins added.

In addition to the donation of the cans of food, he added, the money derived from the coat and coke stands will be utilized to buy turkeys.

There will be dancing from 8 to 11 p.m. with music by the 12-piece college dance band; dress is luformal.

"This is a worthy cause and deserving of your attendance, as you can help a needy family and support the football team at the same time," Cummins said.

The second purpose of the rally is to create enthusiasm for the Ram game against Stockton, Thursday evening at Cox stadium.

Horticulture Students Hold Commencement Here Tonight

Commencement exercises for the evening classes in professional horticulture will be held at 7:45 p.m. tonight in the college greenhouse, Harry E. Nelson, floriculture department instructor, announced yesterday.

Cetrificates of completion will be presented to 15 members of the night class who have completed the two-year course. Three Associate-in-Art degrees are also to be awarded.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Public Schools, will be the principal speaker of the evening.

Dean John J. Brady will introduce Mrs. Cora Coonan, member of the Board of Education, who in turn will present the graduation certificates, Nelson stated.

Invitations for the ceremony have been extended to President Louis G. Conlan, former President Archibald J. Cloud, Dr. Karl Chaupp, School board member, and representatives from the Park and Recreation commissions.

"All the adults enrolled in this course are directly connected with some phase of the floriculture business in their daily work," Nelson added. "They spend two hours, twice weekly, studying ornamental horticulture and its related fields."

College Hour Set For Next Friday

College hour is scheduled for this Friday at 10:40 a.m., Louis Batmale, dean of activities, announced today. Clubs will hold their regular metings.

The Guardsman, in line with the policy of limited expenditures caused by low Associated Student funds, will not be published Friday. The next issue will be distributed on the regular publication day, Tuesday, November 22.

Another feature of college hour this week is the kodachrome film, Desert Venture, to be shown in Room 136.

Admission at a reduced rate to the USF versus Marquette football game at Kezar this Sunday, is available to Associated Student members.

Co-op To Start On Small Scale

Submission of tentative plans for the future student on-campus store were made at a recent meeting of the college's administrative officers and officials from the superintendent's office President Louis G. Conlan said yesterday.

The college's administrative officers met with Tom Hounsley, director of the division of accounts, and John Brady, assistant superintendent of schools.

It is still believed, President Conlan pointed out, that the store will have to start operation on a small scale. Most of the college stores in operation now, even the larger ones, had to begin business on a limited scale, and then gradually expand, he added.

The tentative plans will be used as "a point of departure," with the college working out all prospective plans from that point. "We want to make sure that our venture is a safe one," Conlan said; "we have many difficult problems to work out."

When facilities that now exist on the west campus are finally moved to their proposed site, the student store will probably be relocated in the student union building, the college's president said.

Administration Posts Notices

Administrative announcements containing information vital to students are now being posted on bulletin boards in the main building and strategetic points on the west campus, Lloyd D. Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, said yesterday.

The announcements will first appear in The Guardsman and then be posted on the bulletin boards as a constant reminder to students. "We don't want to take the space necessary to publish the announcements in every issue of The Guardsman," Luckmann said.

Students may find announcements posted in the main building bulletin board, building two, the cafeteria, and in the window of The Guardsman office.

November 22, Last Day For Photos In Soph King And Queen Contest

Deadline date for applicants to have their pictures taken for the Sophomore Queen and King contest is Tuesday, November 22, Bob Ryan, president of the sophomore class, announced today.

Sophomores planning to enter the contest must have their photos done at McMurray Portrait Studio before the deadline to be eligible for competition. The McMurray Studio is located at 1401 Van Ness Avenue.

The Queen and King contest is open to any member of the Associated Students who has sophomore standing. No other qualifications are needed, Ryan said.

Election by ballot will be held Wednesday and Thursday, January 4 and 5 in the student lounge with Associated Student members voting.

Winners of the contest will reign over the semi-annual Sophomore Formal.

Engineering Majors Hear Television Head

Opportunities and wage rates in the field of engineering are the chief subjects to be discussed by A. L. Elsberg, chief engineer of television station KRON, before students enrolled in engineering 48, Friday at 8 a. m., in the auditorium.

This was disclosed by William K. Mayo, acting chairman of the department of engineering, early yesterday.

LITTLE THEATRE players Ronald Zimmerman (Benedict) and Jane Howarth (Beatrice) aren't making "Much Ado About Nothing," that is, unless you feel contrary to the performers' opinion that the Elizabethan play will be a smash hit. Other actors in the photo who feel their version of the Shakespearian play is something to make much ado about, are (left to right), Barbara Andress (Margaret), Jane Howarth (Beatrice), Edward Mulvihill (Don Pedro), Mary Cooke (Hero), and Darrell Victor (Conrade). —Photos by Harrington.

Ticket Shortage For Much Ado Expected

Because of the limited space in the college Little Theatre, which holds a capacity audience of only 120 persons, members of the Associated Students are advised to obtain their tickets before the evening of production. Price of admission for Associated Student members is 15 cents, while admission for other students and visitors is 75 cents. Tickets will be available at the bank and, at limited times, in The Guardsman office.

Shakespeare Drama Has Six Day Run In Little Theatre

Love, comedy, and fast moving drama will take the stage of the college's Little Theatre for a six night run this Thursday evening when the Shakespearean production, Much Ado About Nothing, is presented by the College players, under the direction of instructor Paul Ellison.

Much Ado, a comical love story, carries through with a number of plots which culminate in the traditional "lived happily ever after" ending and banishment of the villain.

Revolving around the love affairs of the characters, Claudio and Hero, and another set of lovers, Benedick and Beatrice, the action is kept moving at a swift pace by the interference of the villain, Don John, and by the helping hand of the prince, Don Pedro.

The first set of lovers, Claudio and Hero, will be played alternately by Paul Andrews and William Matthewson, and Vivian Breslin and Mary Cooke, respectively.

Cast in the role of Benedick are Ronald Zimmerman and James Carlson, while Beatrice will be played by Jane Howarth.

Don Pedro alternately will be played by Edward Mulvihill and Robert Rogers, and the villainous Don John by George Jackson and Mervyn Murphy.

Other roles are Leonard Wolf and Donald Powell as Borachio, the servant, Eugene Carlson as Lenato, and William Hansen and Don Stevens, in the comedy roles of Dogberry and Verges.

Student Council Passes Club Board Reorganization In Roll Call Vote

The "de Urloste Plan," a tabled resolution submitted to the Student Council by George de Urioste three weeks ago for reorganization of the Club Activities Board, was passed by the council last Thursday with a 9 to 4 roll call vote.

This plan eliminates the present membership of more than 50 clubs and organizations, and sets up six groups, each with one vote in the CAB.

Decrease of number of representatives in the CAB was proposed by Harry Williams, Associated Student president, more than three weeks ago.

This is not a new proposal, however; it was first introduced to the council two years ago on a trial basis, but the motion was not carried, and the proposal was killed.

The Club Activities Board coordinates the activities and affairs of various organizations and performs any other duties allocated by the Student Council.

Other business on the agenda included a proposal made to the council for sending old year books to any institutions in the state which the council deems advisable.

Two books are to be sent to various colleges and universities, and three will go to East Bay high schools.

Council Action On New CAB Reorganization Criticized

WE note with interest the action of the Student Council in passing the Club Activities Board reorganization plan over the objection of the CAB representative, Frances McCarthy, and without taking any poll of those most concerned, the members of the Club Activities Board.

Regardless of the merits or demerits of the plan, and there is much to be said in favor of the idea, we wonder if it is wise for the council to disregard or ignore the opinions of those most interested. Possibly a vote from the members of the Club Activities Board would have been a more democratic procedure.

In our opinion this action sets a bad precedent, because if the council is going to reorganize one department or activity without consulting the members of this department for their opinions on the matter, they can then go on to every organization on campus. Again we say that it is not the plan itself that we are herewith concerned. Rather it is the ill-considered method by which the plan was pushed through the council.

ANOTHER item of interest from last Thursday's stormy council meeting was a suggested method of disposing of a "few" extra copies of last year's yearbook, Ram-Pages.

It was suggested that these extra copies, which are now gathering dust and getting in the way, could be, given to other two-year colleges and bay area high schools. What these other colleges and high schools would do with them was not mentioned. Anybody who says that you can't give away a yearbook is all wrong. The council can give them away.

ONE more item before we check out for the day. Block S. F., the City College letterman's society for outstanding athletes, is a bit concerned about the large number of other college, and high school blocks being worn on this campus.

Possibly the students wearing these foreign blocks do not realize that they are doing the college a disservice. Let's wear the official S. F. block on City College campus or none at all.

Counterpoint: Scene Of Past Theatrical Glory To Become Garage

By Walt Heil

NOT so long ago there appeared in the San Francisco papers a little two-inch story stating that the old Tivoli Theatre, a local landmark, would be torn down.

The story went on to say that the old theatre would be turned into a garage to aid the desperate downtown parking situation.

DAYS OF YORE

Dark and deserted since late in June when City College students left for summer vacation, the old Tivoli remembers better and prosperous days.

Sound, sound the clarion, fill the fife!
To all the sensual world proclaim
One crowded hour of life
Is worth an age without a name
Sir Walter Scott

Not so long ago, when long sideburns were in vogue and the cable cars were new, the Tivoli had its crowded hour of life. The old timers will recall when the Tivoli opened as a beer garden at Sutter and Stockton Streets in 1875.

BEER AND MUSIC

There on any balmy summer evening the young blades would sit and sip foamy steins of beer and listen to the orchestra play the days' favorite tunes.

Some years later the Tivoli became the opera housee for San Francisco. There on glittering opening nights, the town's elite elitzens would gather to hear Faust, Pinafore, and Othello, sung by the best artists of the times. The Floods, the Hopkins, and the Stanfords would all attend as today the Camerons, the Geigers, and the Luries do.

The theatre was condemned in 1903 as a fire hazard, and a new building was erected where the latest Tivoli stands today at Mason and Eddy. But, the fire and earthquake of 1906 destroyed that building, too.

ROUGH GOING

A few years later when the fire and rubble had been cleared away the old show place was opened to the public again. The Tivoli tried to pick up where it had left off. For some 40 years now the going has been rough.

Movies became popular with the advent of the "nickelodeon" and the fickle public rushed to this new entertainment medium. Furthermore, in the late 1920's vaudeville was dying and radio came in, both put a crimp in the Tivoli's box office.

RAPID FALL

The old show place of San Francisco slipped rapidly from here. The movies flopped there, the stage shows couldn't draw flies, and the recent revivals failed miserably.

In the same building where theatre greats once played, shiny new Packards, Hudsons, and Fords will give off carbon monoxide fumes. As the man in the newsreel says, "Time Marches On."

Silver Pole Lacks Telescope

Customary meeting place of the college is the Silver Pole, located in the lobby of the main building. The silver pole is the biggest and only column located in the building.

It is solidly embedded in the rock of the hill in the basement and extends straight up to the center of the observatory of the roof.

If you were to ask Louis Berman, astronomy instructor, the chances of a telescope being installed under the dome in the roof he would tell you optimistically, "Not a chance."

Looking-Up . . . Splashing Paint Not Short Cut To School Spirit; Let's Be Practical

By Dick Briggs

IF splashing paint were the accepted means to show school spirit, college campuses would look like a practice field for Army camouflage painters.

Fortunately this is not the prevailing attitude, though a student, Y. Yasinitsy, has attempted to condone the recent smearing of paint on the San Mateo College campus by City College students prior to the Ram-Bulldog football game (See Ram's Horn, Letters to the Editor, this page.)

The attack, he personally stated, was made only in a spirit of revenge, and would never have materialized had San Mateo College students not painted the City College campus.

Yasinitsky felt it necessary to carry on his "cause" for the raiders, who he says "have plenty of spirit and courage and don't give a hoot for anything." We like to feel that school spirit is that common feeling among students which is exercised to further the good reputation and lasting good will of the college, and, like most others on campus, we feel we have a lot of spirit, and aren't ashamed to admit that we "give a hoot" for a lot of things, particularly in disseminating the good reputation of City College.

We cannot, under any and all circumstances, visualize how causing willful destruction of public property is anything but vandalism. Apparently we are dense, but we must apologize in being unable to interpret defacement of public buildings as a means to gain good will and further the good reputation of City College.

Viewing the action from other than the moral aspect, and on a practical economic basis, defacing property of other colleges indirectly curbs many student activities which are important in heightening school spirit. Last year, according to Associated Student President Harry Williams, a bill in excess of $300 was paid to other colleges for property damage caused by City College students.

This semester insufficient funds necessitated budget cuts of campus organizations, and the $300 expended in 1948 to repair damages to other colleges would have aided vitally to relieve financial pressure on many student organization. The budget slash for the athletic department was so severe that many football players are required to supply their own adhesive tape, necessary equipment to prevent injury, which has always been supplied through Associated Student funds.

Either morally or economically, we can't visualize how painting other campuses is more advantageous to the college than supplying equipment to the athletic department, the drama and music departments, or the many other groups dependent upon student funds for survival.

Troubled Times Hits UCLA Campus

By Bob Jones

Last month California students attending institutions of higher learning made headlines as the University of California inflicted a state of prohibition on its campus. A few days later, the student council of San Jose voluntarily offered to follow suit.

During the same month, pledges of Delta Tau Delta fraternity of U. C. L. A. caused Monogram Pictures to halt production on one of its pictures.

The pledges, observing traditional Ditch Day, kidnapped Johnny Sheffield, member of that fraternity and Monogram's star, just as he left the studio.

The star was taken to Palm Springs, where he was held until the next day. During that time, he was permitted only to send a telegram to his father, Reginald Sheffield of Santa Monica, indicating that he would be returned to Hollywood the following day.

The "kidnapping" resulted in the stoppage of the picture Sheffield was working in until his return.

Meanwhile, rumors of a case exactly the opposite fumed up from the City College drama department. A student from State College tried out for a prominent part in the College Players' production, Much Ado About Nothing.

The aspirant got the part and a lift to his ego—but never returned.

Spotlight: What's Wrong With The Local Weather, Or How To Swim

By Keith Gardner

A sucker, by definition, is a guy who writes a piece on the lousy weather, knowing full well that when the paper he's writing for comes out, the skies will be as blue as Jack Benny's eyes.

So bear this in mind, friends, while the local sucker gives out with a few sage words on the current climatic conditions.

THREE TYPES

For ease of reference, weather can be divided into three major tyypes. These are Fog, Rain, and Snow.

Since San Franciscans enjoy yearround perfect weather (Note to the Chamber of Commerce: Leave the money in the hollow stump at Elm and Magnolia streets. Small bills only.) it will be somewhat difficult to explain these things, but we'll try.

Fog, to begin with a local product, is nothing more than a low flying cloud, or vice versa. To clearify the matter, let's take a sample case. If, for instance, you see a motion picture set in London and Sidney Greenstreet walks through the streets of Limehouse looking blurred and hazy, it's not chronic astigmatism, it's fog. Is that clear, or is our explanation a little foggy?

EXPERT OPINION

Rain is one of the facets of weather that's rather easy to account for. When asked to explain the scientific causes of rain, experts are apt to mumble a few ridiculous phrases about "dewpoint" and "precipitation," and let it go at that.

Actually, rain is simply a form of water, and as such is familiar to us all. It supplies us with hydro-electric power so we can waste our eyesight reading stuff like this, and also tastes very good when mixed with a substance known as "bourbon." Now, let's move on to snow.

Snow, admittedly, is very rare on the west coast, though it is sometimes seen in the far northern regions such as Alaska and Los Angeles.

RIPLEY YET

Delving into Ripley, we find that on more than one occasion red snow has fallen in Japan. Having tasted sakl, we're inclined to take that with a grain of salt (the red snow, not the sakl.)

Well, that's about all we can give you on weather at this time. In future weeks we will offer for your approval such topics as Bankruptcy Made Easy, or Roll Dem Bones, and a factual report on a new novel entitled The Man Who Shocked Kinsey: The last one's a real pip. Don't miss it.

Ram's Horn — Letters To The Editor — Agent XI Reports on Operation Vandalism

To The Bastions, Men!
Editor, The Guardsman:

It is evident that your reporters are incompetent to find stories and they write anything that their limited imagination is able to produce.

Certain Dick Briggs in his column "Looking Up," in the November 4, 1949, issue of The Guardsman, jumped to conclusions without investigating the facts. Briggs has correctly described the defenses of the SMJC campus for the pre-game painting raids; however, he was completely misinformed that the San Mateo Campus remained untouched by the CCSF patriots.

The SMJC students created a challenge to the loyal element of the CCSF when the former have established strong defenses on their campus; the biggest challenge—the fact that the San Mateo "guards" were equipped with rubber hoses and other lethal weapons. Certain students from our campus had the courage to demonstrate their defiance and in doing this they had outdone the SMJC bunch by working out a perfect method of attack. Our men sent an undercover man to San Mateo who had spent a whole day on the SMJC campus, surveying the situation in preparation for the raid. He has done an excellent job! Incidentally, during his course of the undegcover assignment he tried out for the SMJC term play, but did not qualify for the lead. Later, during early morning hours, the party assembled and with plans brought home by the undercover man a strategic attack was engineered. Our men were completely prepared for every emergency which included toothbrushes in the event that they were imprisioned should anything have gone wrong.

The San Mateo institution was attacked from the rear, on foot. The San Franciscans gained easy entrance through the wire fences and did a splendid job of decorating the streets, etc., to the dismay of the •Win Minded Rams Host Stockton Thursday

Locals Trip Hartnell 15-12 To Snap 3-Game Losing Streak

By Bob Quinlan, Sports Editor

With a win streak of one straight behind them, the college eleven returns to home grounds after a three week tour Thursday night to host the Stockton Cubs at 8 p.m. at Cox Stadium, 19th and Holloway Avenues, along the "M" car line.

Off to a shaky start, the Cubs are now purring along smoothly in fourth place, one-half a game behind the Rams. In their best effort they routed Monterey 44-6, while rolling up 430 yards.

Last Armistice Day the locals snapped their three game losing streak by tripping Hartnell 15-12. Once again the scoreboard failed to provide a true indication of the respective teams' strength.

The Klemmerman wound up with 118 net yards gained as compared to the Panthers' 202. The former also led in first downs 15-6.

The Ram forward wall led by Don Moretti, Wally Barnard, and Jim McAuley, played its best game of the season as it held the Panthers to nine net yards gained by rushing.

Although they racked up 279 yards on the ground, the Rams took to the air to score. In the first period Al Nethercutt passed 36 yards and 50 yards to Frank Puckett and Stan Hahn, respectively, for the San Francisco touchdowns. Al Look converted after the second score.

The Panthers also used the airways to reach paydirt. In the first quarter Wally Wong passed to Bill Whited for 64 yards. Whited scored again in the final period on the payoff side of a 24-yard Bob Swan pitch.

John Brown tallied two more points for the Rams when he nailed Homer Smith behind the goal for a safety.

Offensive standouts for the locals were poney halfbacks Hahn and Marv Crews. With their quick, explosive running Hahn and Crews picked up 86 yards for a 6.1 average and 80 yards for a 4.7 average, respectively.

COACH ROY DIEDERICHSEN'S Ram soccer club will gain a third place spot in the Coast Soccer Conference should they defeat UCLA Saturday at Beach Chalet.

Pointing for a win against the Bruins are starters D. Hughes, goalie; A. Godoy, inside right; N. Decker, left fullback; E. Smith, center half; M. Barrarie, left half; G. Sergeff, right half; N. Vasileff, right full; A. Reyes, inside left; R. Davila, left wing; F. Zeleaya, right wing; and J. Rodriquez, center full.

Intramural Football Competition To Start Tomorrow On Balboa Field

Because of the large number of teams entered, the intramural football tourney, will be conducted on an elimination basis, and will begin tomorrow, on Balboa field near the tennis courts.

With 12 teams entered so far, the only kind of tournament that Director Tom Wilson could draw up was the elimination playoffs, with the losers of the first round playing for a consolation prize.

Games will be played on Monday through Thursday at 3:10 and 4:10 p.m. In order to get the games off on time, captains of the individual teams should check the bulletin board in the men's gymnasium daily.

Stressing the non-use of cleats, Wilson also stated that there will be eight men to a team with two substitutes. Buckles will be given to the winners, second place medals to the runner-ups, and a third place award to the consolation winner.

Teams entered so far are The Ewes, Keiki Kanes, Dough Boys, Vigilantes, The Guardsman, Campus Police, Kigmies, The Single Wings, Revengers, The Buricheads, The Singing Chefs, and Ping Pong A. C.

Deadline for the tennis singles tourney is tomorrow. Contestants should get their first round matches off as soon as possible and report their scores to Wilson.

Sign-ups for the Novice Boxing Tournament will be open until Monday, December 5. In the past, the novice tourney has proved to be an exciting and interesting affair for both the fans and the contestants.

WAA Horse Show Scheduled

City College's Intercollegiate Horse Show has been scheduled for January 6, 1950, at the St. Francis Riding Club located at 701 Seventh Avenue, according to Boh Ott, Spur and Saddle Club president.

Open to participation by saddle-bred students of the college and freshmen and sophomores from University of California, Stanford University, Mills College, San Francisco State, San Jose State and San Mateo Junior College, the show will be entered by three classes of riders: beginning, intermediate, and advanced.

Two of the eight events in the show, Beginners Horsemanship and Beginners Game, to be judged at a walk, trot and canter, will be entered by the beginning class, Ott said, while the intermediate class will ride in the intermediate class will ride in the Jumping Obstacle.

RAMblings . . . Local Boxers Vie With Major Colleges

By Frank Monte

WITH most of the members of the NCJCC not possessing a boxing team, the college pugilists, now elevated to major sports standing, will conduct their fistic battles again this season and next with the four year institutes in the bay area.

Indeed, this offers great opportunity, because there is no doubt that the locals more than held their own in the big league competition last season, and should probably do so again.

Turning to last season many people may not realize the strength of Coach Roy Diederichsen's team. In two meets with San Francisco State, they decked the Alligators both times. In a tri-meet at San Jose with Santa Clara and San Jose State, the locals came in second, and then on homegrounds dumped the Broncos again in a dual engagement.

Hosting San Jose, Diederichsen's men lost 5½-2½, but in no way lowered their prestige. San Jose, under the capable piloting of DeWitt Portal, boasts one of the top fistic teams in the country. Portal's first team walked off with second place national honors, last year while the second squad took the third place Pacific Coast berth.

In taking second place in the National Two Year College Boxing Tournament at Pasadena, the college pugilists proved to be the initial participant of any local team in national competition.

When Diederichsen and his five battlers, namely Roy Damas, Jerry Stern, Dean Bender, Len Garcia, and Frank Sueuga, departed from the South, they left quite an impression with the southlanders, taking four second place spots, and stern grabbing the lightweight title.

With the team almost to full strength again, except for Roy Damas, probably the only thing lacking is the support of the fans.

Soccer Squad Hits For Third Place, Hosts UCLA At Chalet Saturday

College soccer players face their last opponent of the 1949 season Saturday at Beach Chalet as they tangle with the second new addition to the conference, the University of California at Los Angeles, in an effort to secure the third place finishing position.

Little is known about the Bruin shinskinners, although they are expected to be tough, and Ram Coach Roy Diederichsen has scheduled hard workouts for this week in an effort to repeat last week's win over a newcomer when they defeated Santa Clara 5 to 1.

Scoring will be counted on from several steady scorers. A look at the season scoring reveals complete statistics for the season. High point honors go to Jose Rodiquez, hard-running center fullback who boasts five goals while Leonard Godoy follows closely with three tallies, and Mario Barrarie, Nick Vasileff, Robert Davila, and Dave Milkier all have one each.

The season win and loss column was balanced last week by the college victory over the Broncos, to a two win and two loss with one tie. San Francisco State tied City College with a 2-2 score, Santa Clara and the California Aggies went down to defeat by 2-1 and 4-1 scores, respectively, and the University of California and the University of San Francisco each downed the locals.

In comparative scoring the opposition has scored 12 goals while the Rams have hit the basket 11 times.

Ram Basketball Coach Becomes Father of Boy

Basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman became a father last Saturday, November 5, when his wife, Doris, gave birth to a baby boy at 6:25 a.m. It was the first child for the Hillsmans.

Upon arrival at the hospital, the tiny tot weighed in at seven pounds, ten ounces.

The couple have named the child John Joseph Hillsman.

Controler Watches Finances, Buildings

Anderson Protects Campus Bank From Operating In Red

By Bob Kays

Personally assuming all the headaches and woes that arise from financial matters here, Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, Coodinator of the Division of Educational Management, watches over the college's pocketbook with his associates Carl Anderson and Henry Sicabaig.

Aside from keeping the student bank operating in the black and keeping an audit of the Associated Student funds, he allocates the money for repair and maintenance work on the buildings, and has supervision over the janitors and engineers and all non-certificated personnel.

Anderson did his undergraduate work at the University of British Columbia and received his doctor's degree in physics from the University of California. After teaching at Humboldt State College, he turned to British Columbia as assistant professor, and then came to City College in 1939.

In addition to his other talents he has for the last two years acted in the capacity of a consultant to the California State Senate in problems concerning taxation.

Anderson is presently sharpening his pencils and stocking up on Bromo Seltzeer in preparation for the reams of paper that will have to be filled with figures and calculations when the college begins construction of its proposed new buildings sometime in the obscure future.

Vets Lose Credit For Leaves Of Absence

A leave of absence for veterans after completion of five weeks of a semester under the G. I. Bill means that they will be charged with a full semester under the Bill, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of the division of student welfare, said yesterday.

More About Operation Vandalism At San Mateo

patrol cars of San Mateo which roamed the streets of their campus.

They saw the evidence of the raid in progress but were unable to detect any of our men. Finally, when the statue—a globe—was painted, our men began to return. They split in several groups. The last group went by the guards on the rear end of the campus. These SFCC students boldly sang a song while strolling past the penninsulars. Later, however, through a mistake in orientation they walked into the main guard post of SMJC and were detected. Their escape can be easily compared to an escape from a prisoner of war camp during the last war. They hid behind trees, impersonated rocks, and waded through creeks. The San Mateo patrol cars flashed their spot-lights in a frantic search for the heroes, but all in vain. Finally, the SF men, wet from waists down, tired, and dirty, sloshed across the field toward their auto. Even then two men from SM were chasing them on foot, but were unable to catch these heroic patriots who gained revenge on the rival campus for the vandalism inflicted to the Ram.

Three students were forced to remain in the weeds of the swamp until morning and reached San Francisco by bus.

I was asked by these men to write this letter in order to clarify that revenge was gained and that they are not the "ever active" fraternity men or members of clicks. They are ordinary students who have plenty of spirit and courage and who "don't give a hoot for anything."

Sincerely,
S. "Yash" Yasinitsky

Fifteenth Annual Christmas Concert Set For December 8

Heralding the Yuletide season once again, the 15th annual Christmas Concert will be presented by the college music department under the direction of Flossita Badger in the west campus auditorium on Thursday, December 8, at 8:30 p.m.

Having become as much of a tradition as Christmas trees and sleigh bells, the concert this year will present, in addition to the choir program, several oratorial selections featuring the combined voices of the A Cappella Choir, the Men's Glee Club, and the Treble Clef Society.

Choral works which open the program will be followed by a number staged by Betty Heckman's modern dance group, and orchestra selections under the direction of Meyer Cahn.

Students from the drama department directed by Robert Morton, will present a tableau accompanied by Christmas music.

Soloists from the opera workshop include Adele Lee, Eileen Scott, and Irene Boulet, sopranos; George Sanders, bass; Jean Buonoccorsi, contralto, and Mario Surachi, violinist. Aileen Fealy will be the accompanist for the evening, with Charles Dennis, Director of Music for all San Francisco schools, as guest conductor of the combined chorus numbers.

Ushering will be done by the Associated Women Students and the Music Council, and the commercial art department is handling the decorations for the event.

U. C. Entrance Applications Due

City College students planning to attend the University of California during the Spring semester, 1950, have just six days in which to inform the registrar's office, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said yesterday.

Monday, November 21, is the deadline for requesting the registrar's office to send photostats of records to the University's director of admissions, since the records must be collected, sorted, photostated, and then mailed by December 1.

In addition, each candidate for admission to the University must individually file official applications for admission and vaccination certificates with the office of the director of admissions University of California, before Thursday, December 1.

Registration at University of California starts on Monday, February 6, 1950, while classes start one week later on February 13.
